interfere with the public affairs of the people, or to control the sovereignty which creates them, should be forbidden under such penalties as will make such attempts impossible.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE COMMISSION.

We favor such an enlargement of the scope of the interstate-commerce law as will enable the Commission to protect individuals and communities from discriminations and the public from unjust and unfair transportation rates.

And again, in 1904, we said:

[Declarations from Democratic platform, 1904.]

TRUSTS AND UNLAWFUL COMBINES.

Individual equality of opportunity and free competition are essential to a healthy and permanent commercial prosperity, and any trust, combination, or monopoly tending to destroy these by controlling production, restricting competition, or fixing prices should be prohibited and punished by law. We especially denounce rebates and discriminations by transportation companies as the most potent agency in promoting and strengthening these unlawful conspiracies against trade.

INTERSTATE COMMERCE.

We demand an enlargement of the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission to the end that the traveling public and shippers of this country may have prompt and adequate relief for the abuses to which they are subjected in the matter of transportation. We demand a strict enforcement of existing civil and criminal statutes against all such trusts, combinations, and monopolies, and we demand the enactment of such further legislation as may be necessary to effectually suppress them.

During all these years the Republican platforms were silent upon this question. The credit for the initiative therefore belongs to the Democratic party, and your humble servant was a party to its inauguration. From that day to this I have voted for every measure that came before Congress looking to these needed reforms.

Mr. Chairman, the meat in this bill is contained in sections 15, 16, and 20.

SECTION 15.

It is this section that confers upon the Commission the power to establish or fix a rate or to declare what shall be a proper charge in certain instances. The section empowers the Interstate Commerce Commission to determine and prescribe what, in its judgment, will be a just and reasonable rate, and the amount fixed by the Commission is the maximum or highest rate that the railroad can charge. The Commission is empowered by this section to make regulations in respect to transportation that are just, fair, and reasonable, and to make orders that the carrier shall cease and desist from the violation of such regulations, and invests the Commission with power to enforce its orders and decrees by severe fines and penalties. It would seem, Mr. Chairman, that the bill has conferred upon the Commission all the power that Congress can give, and if it does not accomplish all that is expected it will be the fault of the courts and not the House of Representatives.

Section 15 is as follows:

SEC. 15. That the Commission is authorized and empowered, and it shall be its duty, whenever, after full hearing upon a complaint made as provided in section 13 of this act, or upon complaint of any common carrier, it shall be of the opinion that any of the rates, or charges whatsoever, demanded, charged, or collected by any common carrier or carriers, subject to the provisions of this act, for the transportation of persons or property as defined in the first section of this act, or that any regulations or practices whatsoever of such carrier or carriers affecting such rates, are unjust or unreasonable, or unjustly discriminatory, or unduly preferential or prejudicial, or otherwise in violation of any of the provisions of this act, to determine and prescribe what will, in its judgment, be the just and reasonable and fairly remunerative rate or rates, charge or charges, to be thereafter observed in such case as the maximum to be charged; and what regulation or practice in respect to such transportation is just, fair, and reasonable to be thereafter followed; and to make an order that the carrier shall cease and desist from such violation, to the extent to which the Commission find the same to exist, and shall not thereafter publish, demand, or collect any rate or charge for such transportation in excess of the maximum rate or charge so prescribed, and shall conform to the regulation or practice so prescribed. Such order shall go into effect thirty days after notice to the carrier and shall remain in force and be observed by the carrier, unless the same shall be suspended or modified or set aside by the Commission or be suspended or set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction. Whenever the carrier or carriers, in obedience to such order of the Commission or otherwise, shall publish and file joint rates, fares, or charges, and fail to agree among themselves upon the apportionment or division thereof, the Commission may after hearing make a supplemental order prescribing the portion of such joint rate to be received by each carrier party thereto, which order shall take effect as a part of the original order.

The Commission may also, after hearing on a complaint, establish through routes and joint rates as the maximum to be charged, and prescribe the division of such rates as hereinbefore provided, and the terms and conditions under which such through routes shall be operated, when that may be necessary to give effect to any provision of this act, and the carriers complained of have refused or neglected to voluntarily establish such through routes and joint rates, provided no reasonable or satisfactory through route exists.

SECTION 16.

Section 16 of the bill confers extraordinary powers upon the Commission. If any transportation company fails or refuses to obey the orders of the Commission, they may apply to any court of competent jurisdiction for a writ of injunction, and by this process they may stop the running of trains or the receipt or delivery of freights until the railroad renders complete obedience to the orders of the Commission. This seems to be a very near approach to actual control and direction by the Government.

Section 16 is as follows:

If any such common carrier shall neglect or refuse to file or publish its schedules or tariffs of rates, fares, and charges as provided in this section or any part of the same, such common carrier shall, in addition to other penalties herein prescribed, be subject to a writ of mandamus, to be issued by any circuit court of the United States in the judicial district wherein the principal operating office of said common carrier is situated or wherein such offense may be committed, and if such common carrier be a foreign corporation in the judicial circuit wherein such common carrier accepts traffic and has an agent to perform such service, to compel compliance with the aforesaid provisions of this section; and such writ shall issue in the name of the people of the United States, at the relation of the Commission appointed under the provisions of this act; and the failure to comply with its requirements shall be punishable as and for a contempt; and the said Commission, as complainant, may also apply, in any such circuit court of the United States, for a writ of injunction against such common carrier to restrain such common carrier from receiving or transporting property among the several States and Territories of the United States, or between the United States and adjacent foreign countries, or between ports of transshipment and of entry and the several States and Territories of the United States as mentioned in the first section of this act, until such common carrier shall have complied with the aforesaid provisions of this section of this act.

SECTION 20.

Section 20 is far-reaching in its provisions and effect, and confers extraordinary power upon the Commission.

The section reads as follows:

SEC. 20. That the Commission is hereby authorized to require annual reports from all common carriers subject to the provisions of this act, and from the owners of all railroads engaged in interstate commerce as defined in this act, to prescribe the manner in which such reports shall be made, and to require from such carriers specific answers to all questions upon which the Commission may need information. Such annual reports shall show in detail the amount of capital stock issued, the amounts paid therefor, and the manner of payment for the same; the dividends paid, the surplus fund, if any, and the number of stockholders; the funded and floating debts and the interest paid thereon; the cost and value of the carrier's property, franchises, and equipments; the number of employees and the salaries paid each class; the accidents to passengers, employees, and other persons, and the causes thereof; the amounts expended for improvements each year, how expended, and the character of such improvements; the earnings and receipts from each branch of business and from all sources; the operating and other expenses; the balances of profit and loss; and a complete exhibit of the financial operations of the carrier each year, including an annual balance sheet. Such reports shall also contain such information in relation to rates or regulations concerning fares or freights, or agreements, arrangements, or contracts affecting the same as the Commission may require; and the Commission may, in its discretion, for the purpose of enabling it the better to carry out the purposes of this act, prescribe a period of time within which all common carriers subject to the provisions of this act shall have, as near as may be, a uniform system of accounts, and the manner in which such accounts shall be kept.

The Commission may, in its discretion, prescribe the forms of any and all accounts, records, and memoranda to be kept by carriers subject to the provisions of this act, including the accounts, records, and memoranda of the movement of traffic as well as the receipts and expenditures of moneys. The Commission shall at all times have access to all accounts, records, and memoranda kept by carriers subject to this act, and it shall be unlawful for such carriers to keep any other accounts, records, or memoranda than those prescribed or approved by the Commission, and it may employ special agents or examiners, who shall have authority, under the order of the Commission, to inspect and examine any and all accounts, records, and memoranda kept by such carriers. This provision shall apply to receivers of carriers and operating trustees.

In case of failure or refusal on the part of any such carrier, receiver, or trustee to keep such accounts, records, and memoranda on the books and in the manner prescribed by the Commission, or to submit such accounts, records, and memoranda as are kept to the inspection of the Commission or any of its authorized agents or examiners, such carrier, receiver, or trustee shall forfeit to the United States the sum of $500 for each such offense and for each and every day of the continuance of such offense, such forfeitures to be recoverable in the same manner as other forfeitures provided for in this act.

Any person who shall willfully make any false entry in the accounts of any book of accounts or in any record or memoranda kept by a carrier, or who shall willfully destroy, mutilate, alter, or by any other means or device falsify the record of any such account, record, or memoranda, or who shall willfully neglect or fail to make full, true, and correct entries in such accounts, records, or memoranda of all facts and transactions appertaining to the carrier's business, or shall keep any other accounts, records, or memoranda than those prescribed or approved by the Commission, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be subject, upon conviction in any court of the United States of competent jurisdiction, to a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000, or imprisonment for a term not less than one year nor more than three years, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Mr. Chairman, the sections of the bill I have referred to and will print in my remarks contain the essential features of the bill. The other sections provide the machinery by which the Commission may put into operation and enforce these provisions. It seems unnecessary to consume any more time in this discussion. It is now up to the Commission and the courts. We have given the Commission all the power we can confer. We have endeavored to give them power to enforce their orders. We believe that good results will follow, and that our efforts to regulate and control common carriers will be successful.

The President, in his annual message at the opening of the Fifty-ninth Congress, dealt at length with the question of railroad rate legislation, and I beg to quote in part what he so forcibly says:

In order to insure a healthy social and industrial life every big corporation should be held responsible by and be accountable to some sovereign strong enough to control its conduct. I am in no sense hostile to corporations. This is an age of combination, and any effort to prevent all combination will be not only useless, but in the end vicious, because of the contempt for law which the failure to enforce law inevitably produces. We should, moreover, recognize in cordial and ample fashion the immense good effected by corporate agencies in a country such as ours, and the wealth of intellect, energy, and fidelity devoted to their service, and therefore normally to the service of the public, by their officers and directors. The corporation has come to stay, just as the trade union has come to stay. Each can do and has done great good. Each should be favored so long as it does good. But each should be sharply checked where it acts against law and justice.

* * * * * * *

The immediate and most pressing need, so far as legislation is concerned, is the enactment into law of some scheme to secure to the agents of the Government such supervision and regulation of the rates charged by the railroads of the country engaged in interstate traffic as shall summarily and effectively prevent the imposition of unjust or unreasonable rates. It must include putting a complete stop to rebates in every shape and form. This power to regulate rates, like all similar powers over the business world, should be exercised with moderation, caution, and self-restraint; but it should exist, so that it can be effectively exercised when the need arises.

The first consideration to be kept in mind is that the power should be affirmative and should be given to some administrative body created by the Congress. If given to the present Interstate Commerce Commission or to a reorganized Interstate Commerce Commission, such Commission should be made unequivocally administrative. I do not believe in the Government interfering with private business more than is necessary. I do not believe in the Government undertaking any work which can with propriety be left in private hands. But neither do I believe in the Government flinching from overseeing any work when it becomes evident that abuses are sure to obtain therein unless there is governmental supervision. It is not my province to indicate the exact terms of the law which should be enacted; but I call the attention of the Congress to certain existing conditions with which it is desirable to deal.

In my judgment the most important provision which such law should contain is that conferring upon some competent administrative body the power to decide, upon the case being brought before it, whether a given rate prescribed by a railroad is reasonable and just, and if it is found to be unreasonable and unjust, then, after full investigation of the complaint, to prescribe the limit of rate beyond which it shall not be lawful to go—the maximum reasonable rate, as it is commonly called—this decision to go into effect within a reasonable time and to obtain from thence onward, subject to review by the courts. It sometimes happens at present, not that a rate is too high, but that a favored shipper is given too low a rate. In such case the Commission would have the right to fix this already established minimum rate as the maximum; and it would need only one or two such decisions by the Commission to cure railroad companies of the practice of giving improper minimum rates. I call your attention to the fact that my proposal is not to give the Commission power to initiate or originate rates generally, but to regulate a rate already fixed or originated by the roads, upon complaint and after investigation. A heavy penalty should be exacted from any corporation which fails to respect an order of the Commission. I regard this power to establish a maximum rate as being essential to any scheme of real reform in the matter of railway regulation. The first necessity is to secure it; and unless it is granted to the Commission there is little use in touching the subject at all.

Illegal transactions often occur under the forms of law. It has often occurred that a shipper has been told by a traffic officer to buy a large quantity of some commodity and then after it has been bought an open reduction is made in the rate, to take effect immediately, the arrangement resulting to the profit of the one shipper and the one railroad and to the damage of all their competitors; for it must not be forgotten that the big shippers are at least as much to blame as any railroad in the matter of rebates. The law should make it clear, so that nobody can fail to understand, that any kind of commission paid on freight shipments, whether in this form or in the form of fictitious damages, or of a concession, a free pass, reduced passenger rate, or payment of brokerage, is illegal. It is worth while considering whether it would not be wise to confer on the Government the right of civil action against the beneficiary of a rebate for at least twice the value of the rebate. This would help stop what is really blackmail. Elevator allowances should be stopped, for they have now grown to such an extent that they are demoralizing and are used as rebates.

All private car lines, industrial roads, refrigerator charges, and the like should be expressly put under the supervision of the Interstate Commerce Commission or some similar body so far as rates and agreements practically affecting rates, are concerned. The private car owners and the owners of industrial railroads are entitled to a fair and reasonable compensation on their investment, but neither private cars nor industrial railroads nor spur tracks should be utilized as devices for securing preferential rates. A rebate in icing charges, or in mileage, or in a division of the rate for refrigerating charges is just as pernicious as a rebate in any other way. No lower rate should apply on goods imported than actually obtains on domestic goods from the American seaboard to destination except in cases where water competition is the controlling influence. There should be publicity of the accounts of common carriers; no common carrier engaged in interstate business should keep any books or memoranda other than those reported pursuant to law or regulation, and these books or memoranda should be open to the inspection of the Government. Only in this way can violations or evasions of the law be surely detected.

A system of examination of railroad accounts should be provided similar to that now conducted into the national banks by the bank examiners; a few first-class railroad accountants, if they had proper direction and proper authority to inspect books and papers, could accomplish much in preventing willful violations of the law. It would not be necessary for them to examine into the accounts of any railroad unless for good reasons they were directed to do so by the Interstate Commerce Commission. It is greatly to be desired that some way might be found by which an agreement as to transportation within a State intended to operate as a fraud upon the Federal interstate-commerce laws could be brought under the jurisdiction of the Federal authorities. At present it occurs that large shipments of interstate traffic are controlled by concessions on purely State business, which of course amounts to an evasion of the law. The Commission should have power to enforce fair treatment by the great trunk lines of lateral and branch lines.

The question of transportation lies at the root of all industrial success, and the revolution in transportation which has taken place during the last half century has been the most important factor in the growth of the new industrial conditions. Most emphatically we do not wish to see the man of great talents refused the reward of his talents. Still less do we wish to see him penalized; but we do desire to see the system of railroad transportation so handled that the strong man shall be given no advantage over the weak man. We wish to insure as fair treatment for the small town as for the big city, for the small shipper as for the big shipper. In the old days the highway of commerce, whether by water or by a road on land, was open to all; it belonged to the public and the traffic along it was free. At present the railway is this highway, and we must do our best to see that it is kept open to all on equal terms. Unlike the old highway it is a very difficult and complex thing to manage, and it is far better that it should be managed by private individuals than by the Government. But it can only be so managed on condition that justice is done the public. It is because, in my judgment, public ownership of railroads is highly undesirable and would probably in this country entail far-reaching disaster, that I wish to see such supervision and regulation of them in the interest of the public as will make it evident that there is no need for public ownership.

The opponents of Government regulation dwell upon the difficulties to be encountered and the intricate and involved nature of the problem. Their contention is true. It is a complicated and delicate problem, and all kinds of difficulties are sure to arise in connection with any plan of solution, while no plan will bring all the benefits hoped for by its more optimistic adherents. Moreover, under any healthy plan, the benefits will develop gradually and not rapidly. Finally, we must clearly understand that the public servants who are to do this peculiarly responsible and delicate work must themselves be of the highest type both as regards integrity and efficiency. They must be well paid, for otherwise able men can not in the long run be secured; and they must possess a lofty probity which will revolt as quickly at the thought of pandering to any gust of popular prejudice against rich men as at the thought of anything even remotely resembling subserviency to rich men. But while I fully admit the difficulties in the way, I do not for a moment admit that these difficulties warrant us in stopping in our effort to secure a wise and just system. They should have no other effect than to spur us on to the exercise of the resolution, the even-handed justice, and the fertility of resource, which we like to think of as typically American, and which will in the end achieve good results in this as in other fields of activity. The task is a great one and underlies the task of dealing with the whole industrial problem. But the fact that it is a great problem does not warrant us in shrinking from the attempt to solve it. At present we face such utter lack of supervision, such freedom from the restraints of law, that excellent men have often been literally forced into doing what they deplored because otherwise they were left at the mercy of unscrupulous competitors. To rail at and assail the men who have done as they best could under such conditions accomplishes little. What we need to do is to develop an orderly system; and such a system can only come through the gradually increased exercise of the right of efficient Government control.

Mr. Chairman, while we are trying to find a just and fair way of regulating railroad freight charges, and to regulate their management, we should not forget that there is a powerful regulator, if properly invoked. There are highways upon which commerce can be carried independently of the railroads, and which can not be monopolized, for they belong to the people and are subject to their use. In my own State of Alabama there are almost as many miles of navigable rivers as there are miles of railroads. These rivers traverse almost every section of the State, and all of them empty into the Gulf at the port of Mobile, except the Tennessee River, which reaches the Gulf at New Orleans. Waterways are nature's highways, and belong to the people. They can not be monopolized nor controlled by corporations or private individuals. The navigable waterways entering the Gulf of Mexico exceed in length 35,000 miles, and the South has three-fourths, or 27,000 miles, of these navigable streams and coast line. The same States have 54,000 miles of railroad, showing one-half as many miles of navigable waters as railroads. If these rivers were improved and in active competition with the railroads, the question of rates would be settled forever, and the commercial world vastly benefited. One-half of the earnings of the railroads for one year would make all needed improvements on our rivers and harbors.

In view of these facts, it seems to me that the National Government should be generous in making appropriations for the improvement of our rivers and harbors. "That Government is worthy of the confidence and support of the people which refuses to govern their business, but opens and maintains the way for them to transact business on equal terms." "To this end let the improvement of our inland waterways be carried on upon a broad and comprehensive plan, and under continuing appropriations." If we were to spend one-half the amount on our rivers and harbors that we are spending on our foreign possessions, the rate question would be settled, and the cost as nothing when compared with the results, alike beneficial to every part of our common country.

Mr. Chairman, while we are considering the question of the transportation of the products of the various industries of the country and the cost thereof, we should treat the subject from the broadest point of view. The condition of the wagon roads, over which 85 per cent of all the commerce of the country is transported, presents a condition as serious as railroad rate legislation. The tax imposed by the miserable condition of these roads on agricultural products between the starting point and the railroad station or river landing is equal to the charge of the common carriers to their point of destination. Of all the civilized countries on earth, this country has the poorest roads. In all that is progressive, except good roads, it stands first. In material wealth, in varied commerce, in products of agriculture—cotton, meat, corn, wheat, tobacco—and products of iron, steel, and timber, in the number of miles of railroad, in the oppulence of cities, in the per capita wealth of the people, it stands superior over every other nation. It feeds and clothes the largest part of mankind, and yet the prime producers of this wealth and greatness have less done for them than has been done for the same class in any other country. The farmers have cheerfully done their full duty in bearing the burdens of Government. In time of war they have been its strongest supporters and defenders, and in times of peace they have been a never-failing source of wealth, and yet the Government has done nothing for them, when compared with the material benefits that have been bestowed upon other classes and interests. It is admitted that 85 per cent of all commerce is moved on the dirt roads. The statistics for 1903 show conclusively that 500,000,000 tons were transported by horsepower, the average distance being 8 miles. The cost of moving this tonnage, at 25 cents per ton per mile, amounted to $100,000,000 in round figures, which is stated to be the cost of operating the wagon roads of the country for one year.

The following table may be as interesting as it is surprising:

Cost of transportation per ton, horsepower, 5 miles	$1.25
By steam cars, 250 miles	1.25
By steamship on the Lakes, 1,000 miles	1.25

It will be seen that the same amount of money that it takes to haul a given amount of produce on the dirt roads for 5 miles will pay freight for 250 miles on the railroads or for 1,000 miles by water on the Lakes.

These figures prove conclusively the enormous tax that bad roads levy upon the farmers, and how much of legitimate profit is consumed in transportation from the farm to the railroad station or river landing.

It seems to me that while we are considering the question of the cost of transportation and railroad rates, tolls, and taxes we should take a broad view of the question and also consider a remedy for the immense meed that is imposed by our miserable system of dirt roads. That Congress has the same power to improve the post-roads as it has to appropriate money to improve rivers and harbors and irrigate land and aid in the construction of railroads is admitted. Almost the first thing that Congress did after taking over Porto Rico was to appropriate a million dollars for the public highways of the island. We have expended many millions for the same purpose in the Philippines, and from neither do we get any revenue, nor can we expect any material aid from them in case of war with a foreign nation. Mr. Chairman, I believe in helping our own people and developing our own counrty first, and if we have anything left for charity give that to our own people also. I am a firm believer in the policy of government aid in improving the public highways of the country, over which, as I have said, 85 per cent of the commerce of the country is first moved. [Loud applause.]

Mr. BIRDSALL. Mr. Chairman, during the second session of the Fifty-eighth Congress, and just about one year ago, we had before us for consideration House bill No. 18588, known as the "Esch-Townsend bill," having for its object the amendment of the "act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887. During the discussion upon that bill I took occasion to express my views upon the questions involved, and shall now draw to some extent upon my remarks at that time as far as they may be applicable to the pending measure.

While the subject of further regulation of the great transportation companies of the country had been more or less in the public mind for several years, and while hearings had been pending from time to time before the committees of both the Senate and the House whose duty it is to hear and examine such questions, yet nevertheless an acute stage was not reached in the matter until about the time for the convening of the Fifty-eighth Congress, when the public mind was again directed pointedly to it by the President's message. The fact is that the evils complained of and sought to be remedied had existed and had been growing for many years. Individuals directly affected by them were cognizant of their existence, but the average citizen was unconscious of them, and, having but recently discovered them, fell into the error of supposing that they had recently come into existence. This tendency of the human mind has often been noted. The public eye having been directed toward the subject with the view of discovering evils, disclosed to the public mind many forms thereof of which it was not theretofore cognizant, and, "growing by what it was fed on" and conceiving that evils were everywhere prevalent, the public mind became alarmed at both real and supposed grievances and loudly clamored for redress. More than a year has passed, and the hysteria, if any existed, has abated. Time has given opportunity to more thoroughly investigate conditions and more considerately determine upon remedial legislation. We find by an examination of the report of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce that it has had under consideration eighteen bills bearing upon the subject of increasing the power of the Interstate Commerce Commission, and out of these a bill embodying, as the committee believes, the best principles deducible from all of them has been evolved and is now recommended to the House for its approval or rejection.

The bill so reported is as follows:

A bill to amend an act entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887, and all acts amendatory thereof, and to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commission.

Be it enacted, etc., That section 1 of an act entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887, be amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 1. That the provisions of this act shall apply to any common carrier or carriers engaged in the transportation of passengers or property wholly by railroad (or partly by railroad and partly by water when both are used under a common control, management, or arrangement for a continuous carriage or shipment), from one State or Territory of the United States, or the District of Columbia, to any other State or Territory of the United States, or the District of Columbia, or from one place in a Territory to another place in the same Territory, or from any place in the United States to an adjacent foreign country, or from any place in the United States through a foreign country to any other place in the United States, and also to the transportation in like manner of property shipped from any place in the United States to a foreign country and carried from such place to a port of transshipment, or shipped from a foreign country to any place in the United States and carried to such place from a port of entry either in the United States or an adjacent foreign country: Provided, however, That the provisions of this act shall not apply to the transportation of passengers or property, or to the receiving, delivering, storage, or handling of property wholly within one State and not shipped to or from a foreign country from or to any State or Territory as aforesaid.

"The term 'railroad,' as used in this act, shall include all bridges and ferries used or operated in connection with any railroad, and also all the road in use by any corporation operating a railroad, whether owned or operated under a contract, agreement, or lease, and shall also include all switches, spurs, tracks, and terminal facilities of every kind used or necessary in the transportation of the persons or property designated herein, and also all freight depots, yards, and grounds used or necessary in the transportation or delivery of any of said property; and the term 'transportation' shall include cars and other vehicles and all instrumentalities and facilities of shipment or carriage, irrespective of ownership or of any contract, express or implied, for the use thereof and all services in connection with the receipt, delivery, elevation, and transfer in transit, ventilation, refrigeration or icing, storage, and handling of property transported; and it shall be the duty of every carrier subject to the provisions of this act to provide and furnish such transportation upon reasonable request therefor, and to establish through routes and just and reasonable rates applicable thereto.

"All charges made for any service rendered or to be rendered in the transportation of passengers or property as aforesaid, or in connection therewith, shall be just and reasonable; and every unjust and unreasonable charge for such service or any part thereof is prohibited and declared to be unlawful."

SEC. 2. That section 6 of said act, as amended March 2, 1889, be amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 6. That every common carrier subject to the provisions of this act shall print and keep open to public inspection schedules showing the rates, fares, and charges for the transportation of passengers and property which any such common carrier has established, and which are in force at the time upon its route. The schedules printed as aforesaid by any such common carrier shall plainly state the places between which property and passengers will be carried, and shall contain the classification of freight in force, and shall also state separately the terminal charges, icing charges, and all other charges which the Commission may require, and any rules or regulations which in any wise change, affect, or determine any part of the aggregate of such aforesaid rates, fares, and charges. Such schedules shall be plainly printed in large type, and copies for the use of the public shall be posted in two public and conspicuous places in every depot, station, or office of such carrier where passengers or freight, respectively, are received for transportation, in such form that they shall be accessible to the public and can be conveniently inspected.

"Any common carrier subject to the provisions of this act receiving freight in the United States to be carried through a foreign country to any place in the United States shall also in like manner print and keep open to public inspection, at every depot or office where such freight is received for shipment, schedules showing the through rates established and charged by such common carrier to all points in the United States beyond the foreign country to which it accepts freight for shipment; and any freight shipped from the United States through a foreign country into the United States the through rate on which shall not have been made public, as required by this act, shall, before it is admitted into the United States from said foreign country, be subject to customs duties as if said freight were of foreign production.

"No change shall be made in the rates, fares, and charges or joint rates, fares, and charges which have been established and published by any common carrier in compliance with the requirements of this section, except after thirty days' public notice, which shall plainly state the changes proposed to be made in the schedule then in force and the time when the changed rates, fares, or charges will go into effect; and the proposed changes shall be shown by printing new schedules, or shall be plainly indicated upon the schedules in force at the time and kept open to public inspection: Provided, That the Commission may, in its discretion and for good cause shown, allow changes upon less than the notice herein specified, or modify the requirements of this section in respect to publishing, posting, and filing of tariffs, either in particular instances or by a general order applicable to special or peculiar circumstances or conditions.

"And when any such common carrier shall have established and published its rates, fares, and charges in compliance with the provisions of this section, it shall be unlawful for such common carrier to charge, demand, collect, or receive from any person or persons a greater or less compensation for the transportation of passengers or property, or for any services in connection therewith, than is specified in such published schedule of rates, fares, and charges as may at the time be in force.

"Every common carrier subject to the provisions of this act shall file with the Commission hereinafter provided for copies of its schedules of rates, fares, and charges which have been established and published in compliance with the requirements of this section, and shall promptly notify said Commission of all changes made in the same. Every such common carrier shall also file with said Commission copies of all contracts, agreements, or arrangements with other common carriers in relation to any traffic affected by the provisions of this act to which it may be a party. And in cases where passengers and freight pass over continuous lines or routes operated by more than one common carrier, and the several common carriers operating such lines or routes establish joint tariffs of rates, fares, or charges for such continuous lines or routes, copies of such joint tariffs shall also in like manner be filed with said Commission. Such joint rates, fares, and charges on such continuous lines so filed as aforesaid shall be made public by such common carriers when directed by said Commission, in so far as may, in the judgment of the Commission, be deemed practicable; and said Commission shall from time to time prescribe the measure of publicity which shall be given to such rates, fares, and charges, or to such part of them as it may deem it practicable for such common carriers to publish, and the places in which they shall be published.

"No change shall be made in joint rates, fares, and charges, shown upon joint tariffs, except after thirty days' notice to the Commission, which shall plainly state the changes proposed to be made in the schedule then in force and the time when the changed rates, fares, or charges will go into effect. The Commission may make public or require the carriers to make public such proposed changes in such manner as may, in its judgment, be deemed practicable and may prescribe from time to time the measure of publicity which common carriers shall give to advances or reductions in joint tariffs.

"It shall be unlawful for any common carrier party to any joint tariff to charge, demand, collect, or receive from any person or persons a greater or less compensation for the transportation of persons or property, or for any services in connection therewith, between any points as to which a joint rate, fare, or charge is named thereon, than is specified in the schedule filed with the Commission in force at the time.

"The Commission may determine and prescribe the form in which the schedules required by this section to be kept open to public inspection shall be prepared and arranged and may change the form from time to time as shall be found expedient.

"If any such common carrier shall neglect or refuse to file or publish its schedules or tariffs of rates, fares, and charges as provided in this section or any part of the same, such common carrier shall, in addition to other penalties herein prescribed, be subject to a writ of mandamus, to be issued by any circuit court of the United States in the judicial district wherein the principal operating office of said common carrier is situated or wherein such offense may be committed, and if such common carrier be a foreign corporation in the judicial circuit wherein such common carrier accepts traffic and has an agent to perform such service, to compel compliance with the aforesaid provisions of this section; and such writ shall issue in the name of the people of the United States, at the relation of the Commission appointed under the provisions of this act; and the failure to comply with its requirements shall be punishable as and for a contempt; and the said Commission, as complainant, may also apply, in any such circuit court of the United States, for a writ of injunction against such common carrier to restrain such common carrier from receiving or transporting property among the several States and Territories of the United States, or between the United States and adjacent foreign countries, or between ports of transshipment and of entry and the several States and Territories of the United States as mentioned in the first section of this act, until such common carrier shall have complied with the aforesaid provisions of this section of this act."

SEC. 3. That section 14 of said act, as amended March 2, 1889, be amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 14. That whenever an investigation shall be made by said Commission, it shall be its duty to make a report in writing in respect thereto, which shall state the conclusions of the Commission, together with its decision, order, or requirement in the premises; and in case damages are awarded such report shall include the findings of fact on which the award is made.

"All reports of investigations made by the Commission shall be entered of record, and a copy thereof shall be furnished to the party who may have complained, and to any common carrier that may have been complained of.

"The Commission may provide for the publication of its reports and decisions in such form and manner as may be best adapted for public information and use, and such authorized publications shall be competent evidence of the reports and decisions of the Commission therein contained in all courts of the United States and of the several States without any further proof or authentication thereof. The Commission may also cause to be printed for early distribution its annual reports."

SEC. 4. That section 15 of said act be amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 15. That the Commission is authorized and empowered, and it shall be its duty, whenever, after full hearing upon a complaint made as provided in section 13 of this act, or upon complaint of any common carrier, it shall be of the opinion that any of the rates, or charges whatsoever, demanded, charged, or collected by any common carrier or carriers, subject to the provisions of this act, for the transportation of persons or property as defined in the first section of this act, or that any regulations or practices whatsoever of such carrier or carriers affecting such rates, are unjust or unreasonable, or unjustly discriminatory, or unduly preferential or prejudicial, or otherwise in violation of any of the provisions of this act, to determine and prescribe what will, in its judgment, be the just and reasonable and fairly remunerative rate or rates, charge or charges, to be thereafter observed in such case as the maximum to be charged; and what regulation or practice in respect to such transportation is just, fair, and reasonable to be thereafter followed; and to make an order that the carrier shall cease and desist from such violation, to the extent to which the Commission find the same to exist, and shall not thereafter publish, demand, or collect any rate or charge for such transportation in excess of the maximum rate or charge so prescribed, and shall conform to the regulation or practice so prescribed. Such order shall go into effect thirty days after notice to the carrier and shall remain in force and be observed by the carrier, unless the same shall be suspended or modified or set aside by the Commission or be suspended or set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction. Whenever the carrier or carriers, in obedience to such order of the Commission or otherwise, shall publish and file joint rates, fares, or charges, and fail to agree among themselves upon the apportionment or division thereof, the Commission may after hearing make a supplemental order prescribing the portion of such joint rate to be received by each carrier party thereto, which order shall take effect as a part of the original order.

"The Commission may also, after hearing on a complaint, establish through routes and joint rates as the maximum to be charged and prescribe the division of such rates as hereinbefore provided, and the terms and conditions under which such through routes shall be operated, when that may be necessary to give effect to any provision of this act, and the carriers complained of have refused or neglected to voluntarily establish such through routes and joint rates, provided no reasonable or satisfactory through route exists.

"If the owner of property transported under this act directly or indirectly renders any service connected with such transportation, or furnishes any instrumentality used therein, the charge and allowance therefor shall be no more than is just and reasonable, and the Commission may, after hearing on a complaint, determine what is a reasonable charge as the maximum to be paid by the carrier or carriers for the service so rendered or for the use of the instrumentality so furnished, and fix the same by appropriate order, which order shall have the same force and effect and be enforced in like manner as the orders above provided for in this section.

"The foregoing enumeration of powers shall not exclude any power which the Commission would otherwise have in the making of an order under the provisions of this act."

SEC. 5. That section 16 of said act, as amended March 2, 1889, be amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 16. If, after hearing on a complaint made as provided in section 13 of this act, the Commission shall determine that any party complainant is entitled to an award of damages under the provisions of this act for a violation thereof, the Commission shall make an order directing the carrier to pay to the complainant the sum to which he is entitled on or before a day named.

"If a carrier does not comply with an order for the payment of money within the time limit in such order, the complainant, or any person for whose benefit such order was made, may file in the circuit court of the United States for the district in which he resides or in which is located the principal operating office of the carrier, or through which the road of the carrier runs, a petition setting forth briefly the causes for which he claims damages, and the order of the Commission in the premises. Such suit shall proceed in all respects like other civil suits for damages, except that on the trial of such suit the findings and order of the Commission shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated, and except that the petitioner shall not be liable for costs in the circuit court nor for costs at any subsequent stage of the proceedings unless they accrue upon his appeal. If the petitioner shall finally prevail he shall be allowed a reasonable attorney's fee, to be taxed and collected as a part of the costs of the suit. All complaints for the recovery of damages shall be filed with the Commission within two years from the time the cause of action accrues, and not after, and a petition for the enforcement of an order for the payment of money shall be filed in the circuit court within one year from the date of the order, and not after.

"In such suits all parties in whose favor the Commission may have made an award for damages by a single order may be joined as plaintiffs, and all of the carriers parties to such order awarding such damages may be joined as defendants, and such suit may be maintained by such joint plaintiffs and against such joint defendants in any district where any one of such joint plaintiffs could maintain such suit against any one of such joint defendants; and service of process against any one of such defendants as may not be found in the district where the suit is brought may be made in any district where such defendant carrier has its principal operating office. In case of such joint suit, the recovery, if any, may be by judgment in favor of any one of such plaintiffs against the defendant found to be liable to such plaintiff.

"Every order of the Commission shall be forthwith served by mailing to any one of the principal officers or agents of the carrier at his usual place of business a copy thereof; and the registry mail receipt shall be prima facie evidence of the receipt of such order by the carrier in due course of mail.

"The Commission shall be authorized to suspend or modify its orders upon such notice and in such manner as it shall deem proper, and the orders of the Commission shall take effect at the end of thirty days after notice thereof to the carriers directed to obey the same, unless such orders shall have been suspended or modified by the Commission or suspended or set aside by the order or decree of a court of competent jurisdiction: Provided, however, That the Commission, for good cause shown, may extend the time in which such order shall take effect.

"It shall be the duty of every common carrier, its agents and employees, to observe and comply with such orders so long as the same shall remain in effect.

"Any carrier, any officer, representative, or agent of a carrier, or any receiver, trustee, lessee, or agent of either of them, who knowingly fails or neglects to obey any order made under the provisions of section 15 of this act shall forfeit to the United States the sum of $5,000 for each offense. Every distinct violation shall be a separate offense, and in case of a continuing violation each day shall be deemed a separate offense.

"The forfeiture provided for in this act shall be payable into the Treasury of the United States, and shall be recoverable in a civil suit in the name of the United States, brought in the district where the carrier has its principal operating office, or in any district through which the road of the carrier runs.

"It shall be the duty of the various district attorneys, under the direction of the Attorney-General of the United States, to prosecute for the recovery of forfeitures. The costs and expenses of such prosecution shall be paid out of the appropriation for the expenses of the courts of the United States. The Commission may, with the consent of the Attorney-General, employ special counsel in any proceeding under this act, paying the expenses of such employment out of its own appropriation.

"If any carrier fails or neglects to obey any order of the Commission, other than for the payment of money, while the same is in effect, any party injured thereby, or the Commission in its own name, may apply to the circuit court in the district where such carrier has its principal operating office, or in which the violation or disobedience of such order shall happen, for an enforcement of such order. Such application shall be by petition, which shall state the substance of the order and the respect in which the carrier has failed of obedience, and shall be served upon the carrier in such manner as the court may direct, and the court shall prosecute such inquiries and make such investigations, through such means as it shall deem needful in the ascertainment of the facts at issue or which may arise upon the hearing of such petition. If upon such hearing as the court may determine to be necessary it appears that the order was regularly made and duly served, and that the carrier is in disobedience of the same, the court shall enforce obedience to such order by a writ of injunction, or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise, to restrain such carrier, its officers, agents, or representatives, from further disobedience of such order, or to enjoin upon it, or them, obedience to the same; and in the enforcement of such process the court shall have those powers ordinarily exercised by it in compelling obedience to its writs of injunction and mandamus.

"From any action upon such petition an appeal shall lie by either party to the Supreme Court of the United States, and in such court the case shall have priority in hearing and determination over all other causes except criminal causes, but such appeal shall not vacate or suspend the order appealed from.

"The venue of suits brought in any of the circuit courts of the United States to enjoin, set aside, annul, or suspend any order or requirement of the Commission shall be in the district where the carrier against whom such order or requirement may have been made has its principal operating office. The provisions of 'An act to expedite the hearing and determination of suits in equity, and so forth,' approved February 11, 1903, shall be, and are hereby, made applicable to all such suits, and are also made applicable to any proceeding in equity to enforce any order or requirement of the Commission, or any of the provisions of the act to regulate commerce approved February 4, 1887, and all acts amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto. It shall be the duty of the Attorney-General in every such case to file the certificate provided for in said expediting act of February 11, 1903, as necessary to the application of the provisions thereof, and upon appeal as therein authorized to the Supreme Court of the United States, the case shall have in such court priority in hearing and determination over all other causes except criminal causes.

"The copies of schedules and tariffs of rates, fares, and charges, and of all contracts, agreements, or arrangements between common carriers filed with the Commission as herein provided, and the statistics, tables, and figures contained in the annual reports of carriers made to the Commission, as required by the provisions of this act, shall be preserved as public records in the custody of the secretary of the Commission, and shall be received as prima facie evidence of what they purport to be for the purpose of investigations by the Commission and in all judicial proceedings; and copies of or extracts from any of said schedules, tariffs, contracts, agreements, arrangements, or reports made public records as aforesaid, certified by the secretary under its seal, shall be received in evidence with like effect as the originals."

SEC. 6. That a new section be added to said act immediately after section 16, to be numbered as section 16a, as follows:

"SEC. 16a. That after a decision, order, or requirement has been made by the Commission in any proceeding any party thereto may at any time make application for rehearing of the same, or any matter determined therein, and it shall be lawful for the Commission in its discretion to grant such a rehearing if sufficient reason therefor be made to appear. Applications for rehearing shall be governed by such general rules as the Commission may establish. No such application shall excuse any carrier from complying with or obeying any decision, order, or requirement of the Commission, or operate in any manner to stay or postpone the enforcement thereof, without the special order of the Commission. In case a rehearing is granted the proceedings thereupon shall conform as nearly as may be to the proceedings in an original hearing, except as the Commission may otherwise direct; and if, in its judgment, after such rehearing and the consideration of all facts, including those arising since the former hearing, it shall appear that the original decision, order, or requirement is in any respect unjust or unwarranted, the Commission may reverse, change, or modify the same accordingly. Any decision, order, or requirement made after such rehearing, reversing, changing, or modifying the original determination shall be subject to the same provisions as an original order. Whenever an order of the Commission made in pursuance of section 15 as amended, other than an order for the payment of money, shall have been complied with for the period of three years such order shall not thereafter be in force as against the carrier so complying therewith."

SEC. 7. That section 20 of said act be amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 20. That the Commission is hereby authorized to require annual reports from all common carriers subject to the provisions of this act, and from the owners of all railroads engaged in interstate commerce as defined in this act, to prescribe the manner in which such reports shall be made, and to require from such carriers specific answers to all questions upon which the Commission may need information. Such annual reports shall show in detail the amount of capital stock issued, the amounts paid therefor, and the manner of payment for the same; the dividends paid, the surplus fund, if any, and the number of stockholders; the funded and floating debts and the interest paid thereon; the cost and value of the carrier's property, franchises, and equipments; the number of employees and the salaries paid each class; the accidents to passengers, employees, and other persons, and the causes thereof; the amounts expended for improvements each year, how expended, and the character of such improvements; the earnings and receipts from each branch of business and from all sources; the operating and other expenses; the balances of profit and loss; and a complete exhibit of the financial operations of the carrier each year, including an annual balance sheet. Such reports shall also contain such information in relation to rates or regulations concerning fares or freights, or agreements, arrangements, or contracts affecting the same as the Commission may require; and the Commission may, in its discretion, for the purpose of enabling it the better to carry out the purposes of this act, prescribe a period of time within which all common carriers subject to the provisions of this act shall have, as near as may be, a uniform system of accounts, and the manner in which such accounts shall be kept.

"Said detailed reports shall contain all the required statistics for the period of twelve months ending on the 30th day of June in each year, and shall be made out under oath and filed with the Commission, at its office in Washington, on or before the 30th day of September then next following, unless additional time be granted in any case by the Commission; and if any carrier, person, or corporation subject to the provisions of this act shall fail to make and file said annual reports within the time above specified, or within the time extended by the Commission for making and filing the same, or shall fail to make specific answer to any question authorized by the provisions of this section within thirty days from the time it is lawfully required so to do, such parties shall forfeit to the United States the sum of $100 for each and every day it shall continue to be in default with respect thereto. The Commission shall also have authority to require said carriers to file monthly reports of earnings and expenses or special reports within a specified period, and if any such carrier shall fail to file such reports within the time fixed by the Commission it shall be subject to the forfeitures last above provided.

"Said forfeitures shall be recovered in the manner provided for the recovery of forfeitures under the provisions of this act.

"The oath required by this section may be taken before any person authorized to administer an oath by the laws of the State in which the same is taken.

"The Commission may, in its discretion, prescribe the forms of any and all accounts, records, and memoranda to be kept by carriers subject to the provisions of this act, including the accounts, records, and memoranda of the movement of traffic as well as the receipts and expenditures of moneys. The Commission shall at all times have access to all accounts, records, and memoranda kept by carriers subject to this act, and it shall be unlawful for such carriers to keep any other accounts, records, or memoranda than those prescribed or approved by the Commission, and it may employ special agents or examiners, who shall have authority under the order of the Commission to inspect and examine any and all accounts, records, and memoranda kept by such carriers. This provision shall apply to receivers of carriers and operating trustees.

"In case of failure or refusal on the part of any such carrier, receiver, or trustee to keep such accounts, records, and memoranda on the books and in the manner prescribed by the Commission, or to submit such accounts, records, and memoranda as are kept to the inspection of the Commission or any of its authorized agents or examiners, such carrier, receiver, or trustee shall forfeit to the United States the sum of $500 for each such offense and for each and every day of the continuance of such offense, such forfeitures to be recoverable in the same manner as other forfeitures provided for in this act.

"Any person who shall willfully make any false entry in the accounts of any book of accounts or in any record or memoranda kept by a carrier, or who shall willfully destroy, mutilate, alter, or by any other means or device falsify the record of any such account, record, or memoranda, or who shall willfully neglect or fail to make full, true, and correct entries in such accounts, records, or memoranda of all facts and transactions appertaining to the carrier's business, or shall keep any other accounts, records, or memoranda than those prescribed or approved by the Commission, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be subject, upon conviction in any court of the United States of competent jurisdiction, to a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000, or imprisonment for a term not less than one year nor more than three years, or both such fine and imprisonment.

"Any examiner who divulges any fact or information which may come to his knowledge during the course of such examination, except in so far as he may be directed by the Commission or by a court or judge thereof, shall be subject, upon conviction in any court of the United States of competent jurisdiction, to a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or both.

"That the circuit and district courts of the United States shall have jurisdiction, upon the application of the Attorney-General of the United States at the request of the Commission, alleging a failure to comply with or a violation of any of the provisions of said act to regulate commerce or of any act supplementary thereto or amendatory thereof by any common carrier, to issue a writ or writs of mandamus commanding such common carrier to comply with the provisions of said acts, or any of them.

"And to carry out and give effect to the provisions of said acts, or any of them, the Commission is hereby authorized to employ special agents or examiners who shall have power to administer oaths, examine witnesses, and receive evidence."

SEC. 8. That a new section be added to said act at the end thereof, to be numbered as section 24, as follows:

"SEC. 24. That the Interstate Commerce Commission is hereby enlarged so as to consist of seven members with terms of seven years, and each shall receive $10,000 compensation annually. The qualifications of the Commissioners and the manner of the payment of their salaries shall be as already provided by law. Such enlargement of the Commission shall be accomplished through appointment by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, of two additional Interstate Commerce Commissioners, one for a term expiring December 31, 1911, one for a term expiring December 31, 1912. The terms of the present Commissioners, or of any successor appointed to fill a vacancy caused by the death or resignation of any of the present Commissioners, shall expire as heretofore provided by law. Their successors and the successors of the additional Commissioners herein provided for shall be appointed for the full term of seven years, except that any person appointed to fill a vacancy shall be appointed only for the unexpired term of the Commissioner whom he shall succeed. Not more than four Commissioners shall be appointed from the same political party."

SEC. 9. That all existing laws relating to the attendance of witnesses and the production of evidence and the compelling of testimony under the act to regulate commerce and all acts amendatory thereof shall apply to any and all proceedings and hearings under this act.

SEC. 10. That all laws and parts of laws in conflict with the provisions of this act are hereby repealed, but the amendments herein provided for shall not affect causes now pending in courts of the United States, but such causes shall be prosecuted to a conclusion in the manner heretofore provided by law.

SEC. 11. That this act shall take effect and be in force from and after its passage.

The importance of the subject becomes apparent when we reflect upon the interests involved, and it is not strange that a diversity of opinion should honestly exist among our people, both as to the wisdom of the proposed legislation and the remedies provided for the grievances that exist.

By reference to the statistics furnished in the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission for the year ending June 30, 1904, we find the general balance sheet of the year's report, covering 198,841.19 miles, or 93.69 per cent of the total mileage for which general operations are reported, to be as follows:

ASSETS.

Cost of road	$10,784,449,493
Cost of equipment	727,087,638
Stocks owned	1,717,878,586
Bonds owned	555,248,770
Cash and current assets	736,320,615
Material and supplies	158,736,068
Sinking funds and sundries	123,536,887
Miscellaneous	1,053,155,427
Total	15,856,403,494

LIABILITIES.

Capital stock	$6,464,286,168
Funded debt	7,237,547,239
Current liabilities	877,325,977
Accrued interest on funded debt	46,683,903
Miscellaneous	679,081,578
Profit and loss	551,478,629
Total	15,856,403,494

The commercial valuation of railway properties given by the Bureau of Census is $11,244,852,000.

For the year ending June 30, 1904, taxes were paid by railways upon portions assigned to operations as follows in the several States and Territories:

Alabama	$785,690
Arkansas	613,970
California	1,844,904
Colorado	1,334,578
Connecticut	1,133,544
Delaware	101,445
Florida	503,366
Georgia	881,216
Idaho	343,266
Illinois	4,830,658
Indiana	3,091,936
Iowa	2,048,496
Kansas	2,437,443
Kentucky	1,052,444
Louisiana	742,739
Maine	426,873
Maryland	500,715
Massachusetts	2,981,157
Michigan	2,605,514
Minnesota	1,946,325
Mississippi	615,929
Missouri	1,513,964
Montana	680,353
Nebraska	1,288,953
Nevada	356,805
New Hampshire	404,839
New Jersey	1,742,815
New York	4,782,371
North Carolina	686,376
North Dakota	683,644
Ohio	683,644
Oregon	440,490
Pennsylvania	5,072,723
Rhode Island	198,507
South Carolina	481,491
South Dakota	310,231
Tennessee	835,909
Texas	1,228,633
Utah	372,377
Vermont	155,442
Virginia	1,135,458
Washington	736,244
West Virginia	568,723
Wisconsin	1,925,427
Wyoming	203,562
Arizona	223,627
District of Columbia	30,537
Indian Territory	48,833
New Mexico	284,103
Oklahoma	291,543
Total	61,658,373

The aggregate earnings from the operation of railways in the United States for the year ending June 30, 1904, amounted to $1,975,174,091, of which amount $444,326,991 was received for the transportation of passengers and $1,379,002,693 for the transportation of freight. If to this be added the income of railways from other sources, amounting in the aggregate to $212,932,990, we have a grand total of earnings and income of $2,188,108,081.

The mind scarcely conceives the immensity of the traffic carried on and over the railways of the country. For instance, the number of passengers carried is reported for the year ending June 30, 1904, at 716,419,682, and the number of passengers carried 1 mile 21,923,213,536, while the number of tons of freight carried 1 mile was 174,522,089,577. Dividends increased from $477 per mile of line in 1897 to $1,046 per mile of line in 1904. I have given these figures as an index of the enormous interests we are now considering and the figure they must necessarily cut in the economics of the country.

The question of transportation must ever remain an interesting problem in our industrial economics. It is one of the three great lines of human industry, constituting the connecting link between the producer and the consumer. The evolution of our industrial system has necessitated greater and more rapid means of communication for the distribution of our products among the people from the farm and forest, mine and factory. The railroad has become the great vehicle of transportation, both of persons and property. Some time we may come to a proper realization of the necessity and advantages of improving our inland waterways as an auxiliary means of transportation, but until we do so the railroad must and will continue unchallenged and unrivaled in the supreme control of our means of transportation and exchange.

We are not slow to acknowledge the beneficent effect railroads have had in the settlement and development of the West, and fully realize now how much the prosperity of the country depends upon them. They have been the advance agents of civilization and have united with bands of steel the East, the West, the North, and the South into an indissoluble union of social and commercial interest. I well remember when the lines of railway were being constructed across unsettled portions of my own State, and civilization and settlement was marked by a narrow border that followed its trail. The prairies of Iowa, Nebraska, and the Dakotas would, sir, be virgin soil and trackless prairies but for the railways, while over their broad and peaceful bosoms to-day are dotted the homes of millions of prosperous families and of men who form the stable, conservative element of our immense population, and who will some day constitute the balance wheel of this great Republic. To-day, sir, in the great State of Iowa, you can not, in its most secluded or remotest spot, get 15 miles beyond sight of a line of railway, and never beyond the sound of the whistle of some locomotive.

Surely we appreciate the great advantages of railways, and recognize them as indispensable now to our social and commercial life.

But while the railways have aided in the upbuilding of communities and States, they have grown with our growth and builded with our upbuilding. In recognition of their value and importance we have aided them in their infancy by large grants of public lands, by liberal donations in the way of taxes voted directly to aid in their construction, and in addition thereto have granted to them through our State legislatures the right of eminent domain, an incident of sovereignty not possessed or conferred upon the individual citizen.

In the early days of the Republic the sovereign power sought to aid in transportation by the construction of great national highways, canals, and locks, but in the progress of our evolution it was deemed wise to confer upon private corporations the power under the law to condemn the property of the individual for the common good whenever the necessities of transportations required or demanded it. But the people have at no time surrendered their sovereignty over the subject-matter and will as jealously and as zealously protect their rights in this respect as they will the right to free sunlight and fresh air. Hence, sir, for more than seventy years it has been an established principle in the jurisprudence of the country, affirmed by courts, both State and Federal, that railways were and are public servants in the use of these utilities at their command. This proposition is not only firmly established by the courts, but its active maintenance is imperatively necessary for the due preservation of our commerce.

As has been well and repeatedly said by the President of the United States, "Above all we must strive to keep the highways of commerce open to all upon equal terms."

It has been frequently stated by the opponents of this great legislation that the step we are about to take is a great and important one, marking a departure in our national policy toward industrial agencies. It may, indeed, be a great step, but it is in the right direction. It is not, however, a departure from fundamental and inherent powers of government, but, in fact, only an assertion of those inherent powers hitherto but half asserted and partially enforced, and it becomes a great question because, and only because, great interests are involved and affected by the exercise of those powers.

Happily, sir, we can now approach the discussion of the questions involved unhampered by partisan lines or sectional interest, and alike with minds unhampered by prejudice and uninfluenced by passion.

The public mind, never hysterical on the subject, is open to reason and conviction, and, in spite of all the efforts of the opposition to create alarm and doubt, has settled down to the calm conviction that the legislation here proposed is not only warranted by the Constitution but is demanded by justice.

As public servants the railways are morally and legally bound to treat all individuals alike, so far as possible under given conditions, and likewise to treat all communities fairly and equitably. For the service thus rendered the public they are entitled to receive a reasonable compensation.

For many years the question of compensation was left wholly to the railways themselves, and the only guide to the maximum charge was the question of "how much the traffic would bear," and the reduction forced by competing lines was the only safeguard that lay between the avarice of railways and the necessities of the shipper. Competition, however, was eventually eliminated by a system of pooling, whereby the rate was maintained by common consent and the proceeds of traffic itself divided between competing lines upon a basis mutually agreed upon between them. This and other means resorted to for the purpose of stifling competition and to maintain excessive rates finally led, in many States, to the exercise of the inherent power of control vested in them, and commissions were appointed to make, adjust, and regulate rates of transportation. Twenty-four States have now such commissions in operation. The power of the State commissions could not, however, be extended to interstate commerce, and Congress, on February 4, 1887, passed an act to regulate commerce between the States and foreign nations, by which act an Interstate Commerce Commission was appointed and invested with certain powers, and looking to the control of railway corporations and the subject of their rates.

For several years after the establishment of this Commission it assumed the right of substituting a rate it deemed reasonable in place of one found upon complaint to be unreasonable, and the power thus assumed was acquiesced in for about ten years. The question, however, being finally raised, the Supreme Court of the United States held that no such authority had been granted the Commission by the act creating it, and that under the act of February 4, 1887, it was limited to a finding that the rate complained of was unreasonable, and relegating the complaining party to his action for damages, or to the courts for relief if the rate was continued.

The Supreme Court, however, did not decide that such power and authority could not be delegated by Congress to the Commission by an appropriate act.

It is contended by the opponents of this legislation that the act of rate making is legislative in its character and must be exercised by Congress itself; that such power can not be delegated to the Commission. It may be conceded that this precise question has not been determined by the Supreme Court of the United States so far as the power of Congress to delegate its authority is concerned. It has, however, been several times passed upon by the State courts in cases involving a like delegation of authority by State legislatures to like commissions, and the power has been uniformly and, I think I am safe in saying, universally upheld. There can be no distinction in principle between the limitations imposed upon the legislative power of a State and that imposed upon Congress.

In fact, the exercise of the power of control over railway corporations of the States is usually, if not always, based upon grounds of public policy independent of express constitutional authority. Within the limits of the State the State legislatures have assumed the power of regulation and control as existing "ex necessita" in the interest of sound public policy and in the fundamental rights to prescribe what tolls shall be charged and collected upon the highways of commerce within its limits. No doubt the power exists also in the courts independent of legislative action and consonant with principles of the common law to afford redress. Resting upon these principles alone the State legislatures, acting within their proper sphere, have been constantly held to possess the power of regulation, and their courts have likewise held that, having decided that rates upon railroads must be reasonable, the power of determination and duty of prescribing reasonable rates might be properly delegated to a commission to carry out the will of the legislature.

The power of Congress to regulate commerce between the States and Territories and foreign countries rests not upon the implied, but upon an express grant of power by the Constitution of the United States.

Section 8 of Article I provides that "Congress shall have power to regulate commerce with foreign nations and among the several States and with the Indian tribes," and after enumerating in addition the several other powers granted to Congress, Article I further provides: "That it shall have power to make all laws which may be necessary and proper for carrying into execution the foregoing powers and all other powers vested by this Constitution in the Government of the United States or in any department or officer thereof." Congress, therefore, by the express grant of the Constitution, has full power and authority to regulate railways as an incident and instrument of commerce between the States, and to this end it has express power under the Constitution to make all laws which may be necessary and proper for carrying into effect the power of regulation granted as aforesaid.

The "power to regulate" is a general power, it is a broad power, and comprehends everything proper and necessary to effectuate the purposes of the grant. It comprehends not only the power to make necessary regulations, but as well the power to provide for their proper execution and enforcement.

In Gibbons v. Ogden, reported in 9 Wheaton, 204, the Supreme Court defined commerce as follows:

> Commerce, in its simplest signification, means an exchange of goods; but in the advancement of society, labor, transportation, intelligence, care, and various mediums of exchange become commodities and enter into commerce; the subject, the vehicle, the agent, and their various operations become the object of commercial regulation.

In the same case it is said:

> The power to regulate commerce, here meant to be granted, was that power to regulate commerce which previously existed in the States. But what was that power? The States were unquestionably supreme, and each possessed that power over commerce which is acknowledged to reside in every sovereign State. The law of nations, regarding man as a social animal, pronounces all commerce legitimate in a state of peace until prohibited by positive law. The power of a sovereign State over commerce, therefore, amounts to nothing more than a power to limit and restrain it at pleasure. And since the power to prescribe the limits to its freedom necessarily implies the power to determine what shall remain unrestrained, it follows that the power must be exclusive, it can reside in but one potentate, and hence the grant of this power carries with it the whole subject, leaving nothing for the State to act upon.

Speaking of the Constitution upon this subject the court says:

> This instrument contains an enumeration of powers expressly granted by the people to their Government. It has been said that those powers ought to be strictly construed, but why? Is there one sentence in the Constitution which gives countenance to this rule? In the last of the enumerated powers, that which grants expressly the means for carrying the others into execution, Congress is authorized "to make all laws which shall be necessary and proper for the purposes." But this limitation on the means which may be used is not extended to the powers which are conferred, nor is there one sentence in the Constitution that prescribes this rule. The grant does not convey power which might be beneficial to the grantee if retained by himself or which can inure solely to the benefit of the grantee, but is an investment of power for the general advantage, in the hands of agents selected for that purpose, which power can never be exercised by the people themselves, but must be placed in the hands of agents or lie dormant. We know of no rule for construing the extent of such powers other than is given by the language of the instrument which confers them, taken in connection with the purposes for which they were conferred.

What is this power?

It is the power to regulate—that is, to prescribe the rule by which commerce is to be governed. This power, like all others vested in Congress, is complete in itself, may be exercised to its utmost extent, and acknowledges no limitations other than are prescribed in the Constitution.

The sovereign States, therefore, by adopting the constitutions containing this grant of power, each surrendered so much of its sovereignty as pertained to interstate commerce and conferred upon the common Government its sovereignty in this behalf, which common Government, by a union of its individual units, became the possessor of supreme sovereignty over all relating to commerce between the States and foreign nations.

It is important to have this principle in mind, as we shall further consider hereafter over what the sovereignty of the State extended and what was conveyed by the grant.

Under the Federal Government, before the adoption of the Constitution, the feeble character of the Federal compact was nowhere so apparent as in its failure to extend its operation over interstate commerce. The States asserting their sovereignty insisted upon passing embargoes and laying duties upon the commerce coming to their ports, and at least in one instance a serious rebellion arose in one State.

In Brown v. Maryland (12 Wheat., 419, 446) the Supreme Court of the United States took occasion to say:

> It may be doubted whether any of the evils proceeding from the feebleness of the Federal Government contributed more to the great revolution which introduced the present system than the deep and general conviction that commerce ought to be regulated by Congress. It is not, therefore, a matter of surprise that the grant should be as extensive as the mischief and should comprehend all foreign commerce and commerce between the States. To construe the power so as to impair its efficiency would tend to defeat an object in the attainment of which the American public took, and justly took, that strong interest which arose from a full conviction of necessity.

Again, in the case of Robbins v. Shelby Taxing District (120 U. S. 489, 494), in the matter of "interstate commerce," the court, speaking through Judge Bradley, declared:

> The United States are but one country and are and must be subject to one system of regulations and not a multitude of systems.

Congress thus having the plenary power, subject to the limitations imposed by the Constitution to prescribe rules by which commerce among the several States is to be governed, the question naturally arises, What are the principles that should control the judiciary when determining whether a particular act of Congress avowedly adopted in execution of that power is consistent with the fundamental limitations of the Constitution?

The general principles applicable to this subject were long ago announced in the great case of McCullough v. Maryland (4 Wheat., 316, 421, 423).

> The sound construction of the Constitution must allow to the National Legislature that discretion with respect to the means by which the powers it confers are to be carried into execution which will enable that body to perform the high duties assigned to it in the manner most beneficial to the people. Let the end be legitimate; let it be within the scope of the Constitution, and all means which are appropriate, which are plainly adapted to that end, which are not prohibited but consistent with the letter and the spirit of the Constitution are constitutional.

Again:

> When the law is not prohibitive and is really calculated to effect any of the objects intrusted to the Government, to undertake here to inquire into the degree of necessity would be to pass the line which circumscribes its judicial department and to tread on legislative ground. The court disclaims all pretensions to such a power.

Again, in 4 Wheaton, 3, 16–409, the court says:

> The Government, which has a right to do an act and has imposed on it the duty of performing this act, must, according to the dictates of reason, be allowed to select the means, and those who contend that it may not select any appropriate means, that one particular mode of effecting the object is excepted, take upon themselves the burden of establishing the exception.

Let it be admitted that the Federal Government is one of delegated powers. We have seen that the States did delegate to Congress all their sovereignty over commerce between the States and foreign nations—gave it power to regulate the same and to make appropriate laws to carry this power into execution. So much of the inherent power or sovereignty of the States as pertained to this subject therefore passed by its grant to the Federal Government.

Under the powers inherent in every sovereignty, a government may regulate the conduct of its citizens toward each other, and, when necessary for the public good, the manner in which each may use his property.

It has, in the exercise of these powers, been customary in England from time immemorial, and in this country from its first colonization, to regulate ferries, common carriers, hackmen, bakers, millers, wharfingers, innkeepers, etc., and in doing so to fix a maximum of charge to be made for services rendered, accommodations furnished, and articles sold.

When the owner of property devotes it to a use in which the public have an interest, he impliedly grants to the public an interest in the use, and he must submit to control by the public for the common good as long as he maintains the use; he may withdraw his grant by discontinuing the use. These principles are declared forcibly in the case of Munn v. Illinois, 94 U. S., 113.

It is also declared that the limitation of charges establishes no new principle in the law, but gives only a new effect to an old one.

Possessed, therefore, of all the inherent power of sovereignty originally held by the States, with full power delegated to it to make any laws necessary to carry its sovereignty into execution, by what rule, in reason, can the power of Congress in the selection of the agencies by which its power shall be executed, be judged by any other rule than is applicable to a State legislature in the exercise of its sovereign power? I venture the assertion that in the absence of constitutional limitations the exercise of constitutional powers by the Federal Congress must proceed upon and be governed by the same rules that prescribe the exercise of power by State legislatures upon all subjects over which each has unlimited and unquestioned sovereignty.

If, then, a State legislature may employ as its agent an administrative body called a "commission," and authorize it to determine and prescribe rates and regulations for railways in the exercise of its inherent sovereignty within its proper jurisdiction, upon what principle can it be denied that Congress possesses a like authority in the exercise of the same power and upon the subject clearly within its jurisdiction? I confess to an inability to comprehend why such power, if existing as a part of the State's inherent sovereignty, was not delegated to the Federal Government as a part of the granted power.

That the State had power to create a commission and give it authority to fix rates is clearly affirmed in the case of Reagan v. Farmers' Loan and Trust Co. (154 U. S., 393).

The Supreme Court says in that case:

> There can be no doubt of the general power of a State to regulate fares and freights which may be charged and received by railroads or other carriers and that this regulation can be carried on by a commission; such a commission is merely an administrative board created by the State for carrying into effect the will of the State as expressed by its legislature. (Railroad Commission cases, 116 U. S., 307.)

No valid objections therefore can be made on account of the general features of this act, those by which the State has created the railroad commission and intrusted it with the duty of prescribing rates of fares and freights as well as other regulations for the management of the railroads of the State. In Cooley's Constitutional Limitations, page 732, the learned author says "that the United States has the power to go beyond the general regulations and descend to the minutest direction if it shall deem it advisable to do so," and the principle laid down by him is quoted with approval in the case of the Ferry Company v. Pennsylvania (114 U. S., 196).

But is it essential that Congress shall in itself descend into the minutiæ of regulation and prescribe each rate of fare and each charge of freight to be transported? Why may it not, like the State, act through an administrative body, enacted by it for that purpose, if such body be a necessary and proper instrument for carrying out the will of the Government as expressed in its legislation?

I believe Congress has the same power to act in this behalf through its Commission as the States possess, and it has been so adjudged as to the power of regulation.

The Commission is neither a Federal court under the Constitution, nor does it exercise judicial powers, nor do its conclusions possess the efficacy of judicial proceedings. This Federal Commission has assigned to it the duties and performs for the United States, in respect to that interstate commerce committed by the Constitution to the exclusive care and jurisdiction of Congress, the same functions which State commissions exercise in respect to local or purely internal commerce over which the States appointing them have exclusive control. Their validity in their respective spheres of operation stands upon the same footing. What one sovereign may do in respect to matters within its exclusive control, the other may certainly do in respect to matters over which it has exclusive authority. (Kentucky Bridge Co. v. L. and N. Rwy. Co., 37 Fed. Rep., 613.)

To deny the power as existing in the Federal Government and consider its existence in the State government is to make a distinction that is founded neither upon reason nor justice and is prescribing a limitation by intendment not warranted by the Constitution. Under the Constitution Congress has plenary power over the subject-matter of interstate commerce, and in the exercise of that power may appoint and use all proper and necessary instrumentalities to effectuate the legislative will, and as the courts have said, "they will not interfere with the legislative discretion if the means employed are not prohibited by the Constitution itself.

The powers of government are divided into and repose in three branches—the legislative, judicial, and executive departments. Each department must act within its own sphere of powers to preserve the true purpose of our Constitution and preserve our civil rights and personal liberty. Under the Constitution we can not invade the executive or judicial power, nor can either of those branches usurp our legislative functions. The primary control of railroads rests with Congress. We are to declare what they may or may not do, and impose such regulations for their conduct as seems to us best, subject to the one rule, that whatever we do must be done within the limitations of the Constitution, to which we owe obedience and from which our powers are derived.

Whether we have acted within our constitutional powers is for the courts constituting the judicial branch of our system to inquire. But the court will not invade the legislative discretion. Let the end be legitimate, let it be within the scope of the Constitution and all means which are appropriate, which are plainly adopted to that end, which are not prohibited, but consistent with the letter and spirit of the Constitution, are constitutional.

We have declared in virtue of our powers, "That all charges for any service rendered or to be rendered in the transportation of persons or property or in connection therewith shall be just and reasonable." We have the power to use any means proper and necessary for the enforcement of this rule of conduct on the part of railways, and as a means to that end we have full power to invest in a commission as our administrative agent the authority to investigate and supervise the operation of railways that the legislative will may be properly carried into execution. We are not delegating our legislative functions in any respect, but are directing by a specific statute the manner in which our instrumentalities shall apply and carry into effect the law we have enacted. Unless we can do this in our way, the grant of power we have received is a barren right, incapable of execution, because it is beyond the power of Congress to act directly upon the subject of prescribing rules, rates, and regulations for the thousands of railways throughout the country.

I believe it to be the law that Congress can confer upon a commission the duty and power to make rules, rates, and regulations by which corporations engaged in interstate commerce shall be controlled. But the Commission, which might perhaps be aptly termed our legislative substitute, is bounded, as we are, by the limitations of the Constitution, for its powers can rise no higher than their source.

The Constitution provides that no person shall be deprived of his property without due process of law and that private property shall not be taken for public use without adequate compensation being made therefor. Congress has no power to deprive me of my property without my day in court. Neither has it the power to take any portion of my property for public use without first making compensation therefor. Hence, what it may not do itself it can not authorize to be done by its Commission or any other agency. It has been repeatedly held, in cases where rules have been prescribed by a State legislature or its commission, that if the rate was confiscatory, then such act was unconstitutional, because in principle it was the taking of private property for public use without just compensation therefor. It follows, therefore, that the power granted the Commission, and exercised by it, must be within the limitations prescribed by the Constitution, as construed by the highest court in the land, subject, however, to this limitation—I conceive that Congress has power to create the Commission and confer upon it ample power.

In the case of Davidson v. City of New Orleans (96 U. S., 97) the court decided that the appointment of a board of assessors for assessing damages was not only due process of law, but the proper method for making assessments to distribute the burden of a public work amongst those who are benefited by it. No one questions the constitutionality or propriety of boards for assessing property for taxation or for the improvement of streets, sewers, or the like, or for commissions to establish county seats, for assessing damages under proceedings for eminent domain, and for doing many things appertaining to the administrative management of public affairs. Due process of law does not require a court. It merely requires such tribunal and proceedings as are proper to the subject in hand.

The legislature has power to fix rates. Were it to do so it would do it through the aid of committees appointed to investigate the subject, to acquire information, to cite parties, to get all the facts before them, and, finally, to decide and report. No one can say this is not due process of law, and if the legislature can do this, acting by its committee and proceeding according to the usual forms adopted by such bodies, why can it not delegate the duty to a board of commissioners charged to regulate and fix charges so as to be equal and reasonable? Such a board has at its command all the means of arriving at the truth and ascertaining the reasonableness of fare and freights, which a legislative committee has. Its duties being of an administrative character, it would have the widest scope for examination and inquiry, and such a body, though not a court, is a proper tribunal for the duties imposed upon it.

I will say, in conclusion, that no case can be found wherein the court of last resort has decided that such a commission can not exercise this power when it has been in express terms granted by the legislature, and will also predict that railways will not raise this question, for if decided in their favor it would relegate the rate-making function back to Congress when the undoubted power does exist, there to become the football of politics, and where the utmost of public resentment will be reflected against them.

Mr. Chairman, we can pass no law here which will confiscate railway property, as was said by the Supreme Court in the case of the Milwaukee Railway v. Minnesota (134 U. S., 418).

> Neither the legislature nor such commission acting under the authority of the legislature can establish arbitrarily and without regard to justice and right a tariff of rates for such transportation which is so unreasonable as to practically destroy the value of the property of the persons engaged in carrying business on the one hand, nor so exorbitant as to be in utter disregard of the rights of the public for the use of such transportation.

In either of these classes of cases there is an ultimate remedy for the parties agreed in the courts for the relief against oppressive legislation, and especially in the courts of the United States, when the tariff of rates established either by the legislature or the commission is such as to deprive a party of his property without due process of law.

Until the judiciary is appealed to to declare the regulations made, whether by the legislature or by the commission, voidable, for the reasons mentioned, the tariff of rates so fixed is the law of the land and must be submitted to by both the carrier and the party with whom he deals.

I am quoting now from the opinion of Justice Samuel F. Miller, one of the greatest constitutional lawyers and ablest judges. After this concise statement of the law covering the case, he considers the matter of remedy and says that the proper, if not the only, mode of judicial relief against the tariff of rates established by the legislature, or by its commission, is by a bill in chancery asserting its unreasonable character and its conflict with the Constitution of the United States, and asking for a decree forbidding the corporation from exacting such fare as excessive or establishing its rights to collect the rates as being within the limitations of a just compensation for the services rendered.

This bill nowhere undertakes to abridge the rights of the court to intervene or to exercise all the powers they now enjoy under the Constitution of the United States. It preserves every right that the railroads have and goes far to protect them against themselves. It preserves their right to a reasonable compensation for any service rendered the public and provides that whatever rate shall be made by the Commission shall be fixed at the maximum of reasonable compensation and must be remunerative. No private individual in his business has the power to fix absolutely a remunerative compensation for his services, but he must submit to the inexorable law of supply and demand. Under the present bill, no matter what the conditions of the country may be otherwise or the conditions of business, the railways are to be protected in a fairly remunerative income for the property engaged in that enterprise. This provision or limitation is equally available to the railway companies, who can appeal to the courts against a rate that is not fairly remunerative.

A great demand has gone up from the people for relief from the abuses practiced, and even the railways themselves are demanding relief from the private cars and terminal-line abuses. I have time to present only one of the many complaints in my State touching the abuses of rates and special privileges granted: Iowa stock shippers are allowed no "feeding in transit rate," as are Nebraska shippers—that is, Iowa feeders can not ship from Colorado or other western points to Iowa, hold for feeding for a time, and then ship to Chicago, as can the Nebraska shippers; again, the rates of the central Iowa feeder to Chicago are 21½ to 23 cents per hundred, while the Mississippi River rate is 15 cents. Again, the rate on dressed meat from Missouri River points is 18 cents and on live stock 23½ cents.

Inquiry in several directions revealed the fact that live-stock shippers located in central Iowa make three complaints against present conditions, briefly outlined as follows:

First, there has been no direct advance in rates in recent years, but the service has been seriously modified and in such a way that the same is equivalent to a market advance in rates. For example, cattle shipped to Chicago from central Iowa, until some eighteen months ago, were run in from eighteen to twenty-four hours; now it takes from twenty-four to thirty-six hours.

Shippers say that after a run of twenty-four hours a carload of cattle will shrink at the rate of $3 per car per hour. Live-stock men say that the slow and uncertain service rendered is part of a well-thought-out plan to get on a tonnage basis. This poorer service, however, works a further hardship to the cattle shipper. His stock often reaches Chicago too late for that day's market. He must hold them over until the next day at heavy expense and face the possibility of a slump in prices. In the case of prime cattle, for which grade the principal market is on Mondays and Wednesdays, the condition is greatly aggravated. Should the central Iowa shipper who starts his prime cattle with the intention of reaching Monday's market be delayed until 11 a. m. or 12 noon, the chances are that he will have to hold his cattle over until Wednesday. Of course this means a heavy shrinkage and an enormous expense.

Second, while the rate on stock shipments has not been advanced in cents per hundred, the rate on other products has been lowered. To illustrate: A few years ago the rate on live stock from Missouri River points to Chicago was 23½ cents and the rate on dressed beef and packing-house products the same or more. At the present time the rate on dressed meats and packing-house products is only 18 cents per 100 pounds; but in the meantime there has been no reduction of the rate on live stock. As most of the dressed meats and packing-house products are shipped in private cars, for which the owner receives a rebate of 1 cent per mile, it amounts to a difference of from $15 to $25 per carload, according to the kind of stock, and this for substantially the same service.

As the fruitage of railways is the rate that they get for the carriage of persons and property, it is easy to understand why they refuse to yield the smallest fraction of their right to fix the rate and to control it as far as they may after it is fixed.

It is said that to confer upon the Commission the authority to fix rates is to confer upon that tribunal too great a power and is an unwarranted invasion of the rights of private property. When we examine into the ownership of the great systems of railways we find them centralized in comparatively a few hands.

The Vanderbilt system embraces 19,500 miles; the Pennsylvania system, 18,000; the Morgan-Hill system own 3,000; the Gould system, 16,000; the Harriman system, 21,000, or a total of 114,000 miles of railroad control by five systems, or, in other words, practically by five men, and consolidation and merger is going on every day. We have left at present the Atchison, San Francisco, Milwaukee, and Great Western systems, constituting the only important independent systems and aggregating, say, 30,000 miles.

There are, in round numbers, 200,000 miles of railway in the United States, but the remaining 60,000 miles are made up of short systems absolutely dependent upon the main lines for existence. From these statements we have the deduction that five men now have a monopoly of all the railway business of this country. Freight is a tax on everything that enters into the commerce of the nation; upon the clothes we wear; the things we eat; and it is a tremendous power to rest in the hands of any five men to dictate the tribute which shall be paid. Experience has demonstrated that when you invest a man with power over the property of his fellow-men he will abuse that power if you do not restrain or control him. It is in accordance with the law of human nature that tends to impel us always to decide a question to our own advantage where our own interests are involved. I do not believe the railway property of this country should be permitted to say, without control, what other property shall pay to it, because I believe it will abuse that power as it has done in times past.

For like reasons I am not in favor of giving the Interstate Commerce Commission power to make rates in the first instance. If made by the railways, with knowledge on their part that their action will be subject to speedy review by a tribunal having power to substitute rates, we can reasonably anticipate their action will be predicated upon a possible review by the Commission, and therefore founded upon a fair basis.

The present movement is not of agrarian birth. It was not conceived in nor is it urged forward by any spirit of hostility to railways, but is born of a conviction among business men, the men who make and carry on the commerce of this country, that there are existing evils that should be remedied and that they and the people at large have rights which, as public servants, the great transportation companies are bound to respect, and that for the remedy of such wrongs and the enforcement of such rights they have no effective and speedy remedy under existing laws.

What we need and what all are entitled to is as equal a distribution of the benefits of transportation as conditions throughout the country will permit of.

The legislatures of many States, including Iowa, Kansas, Louisiana, Michigan, Minnesota, Missouri, South Dakota, Wisconsin, and Illinois, have memoralized Congress within the past few years to enact legislation of this character. Up to January 17, 1905, 62 national and sectional organizations, 400 State and local organizations, representing 45 States and Territories, and 17 State granges have petitioned Congress to act, and since the last date hundreds more of petitions from commercial, mercantile, manufacturing, and agricultural associations have been received and filed by Members of this House.

It is time, sir, to act. For seven years the people have been asking for relief, and if we do not heed their just demands they will rightly revoke our commissions and place their interests in more worthy hands. Pass the pending bill. If there are defects in it, time will demonstrate it, and the remedy can be applied by further legislation.

To those who fear that this is a step toward socialism let me say that these commercial organizations are not inimical to railways; they recognize that they are absolutely necessary to the prosperity of the country, but they do insist that such transportation business shall be carried on upon lines compatible with justice to the individual and fairness to all communities. If railways will not themselves conduct the rate-making power upon that basis then the only way we can correct such evils is to exercise in some form, in some proper form, supervision over the railroad rates. But one other alternative is presented, and that rests in government ownership, a principle we are not yet ready to consider, much less to adopt, but to which it might be wise for railway managers to inquire of themselves how much and how far their conduct has now a tendency to thrust public opinion.

Capital and its allied interests are ever on the alert to protect themselves. The people's interests are often and too long neglected. There is yet time to approach a solution of the problem upon the basis of mutual interest, which involves only a square deal for the railroads and a square deal for the people. The public mind is not hysterical, but is fully aroused to the importance of the question and guided by reason and desire to do justice only. The people will move firmly, without malice, to a proper and final assertion of their sovereignty and to a fair settlement of the problem.

The people are and ought to be supreme. In the words of the immortal Lincoln, "This is a Government of the people and by the people and for the people." Its chief corner stone is justice founded on the law, and when any man or set of men can set at defiance the will of the majority, as expressed in the law, then will come anarchy and dissolution. Justice is the eternal, everlasting will of God to give each man his right, and obedience to law is the golden precept of civilization. It is calumny when men stand on this floor and charge the exponents of this legislation of holding out the torch to the socialist and anarchist. Men who stand for the classes as against the masses, who preach in the name of the sacred right of private property, that its owners are exempt from the law and privileged to disregard it are sowing the seed of the Commune; and men who uphold that commercial morality, which makes it legitimate to live by the sweat of another man's brow, are planting the seed of class hatred and ultimate revolution. Sir, hundreds of thousands of lives and billions of treasure were expended in proving the stability of a nation founded on mutual interest and in justifying the equality of man. We shall move onward and upward at whatever cost until every man, be he rich or poor, is equal before the law. No government was ever destroyed by the poverty of its citizens; its decay was always preceded by wealth and corruption founded on a disregard of the law and the suppression of human rights.

Look at the picture which that great novelist, Dickens, draws of the French revolution in the Tale of Two Cities:

> Slowly the tumbrils roll along the street; six tumbrils carry the day's wine to La Guillotine. All the monsters imagined, since imagination could record itself, are realized in that one word—guillotine. And yet there is not in France, with all its rich variety of soil and climate, a blade of grass, a sprig of pepper-corn that will grow to maturity under conditions more certain than those that have produced this horror. Crush humanity out of shape again under similar hammers and it will writhe itself into the same tortured forms; sow the same seed of rapacious license and oppression over again and it will as surely bring forth fruit according to its kind. Slowly but surely the tumbrils roll along; turn these back again, thou powerful enchanter, Time, and they shall be found to be the equipages of feudal lords, of flaring Jezebels, houses that are not "my Father's house" but dens of thieves, the huts of millions of starving peasants.

Sansculottism is not dead, but only sleeping, and will be aroused, if at all, and again whirl in bloody maelstrom, not at the behest of men who would obey the law, but of those who would defy and set it at nought.

God speed the day when the corridors of this great Capitol shall be free from the representatives of special interests, and when we shall legislate for the whole people, regardless of section, class, or interest; then, indeed, shall we have the fulfillment of a "government of the people and by the people and for the people."

Mr. ADAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from New York [Mr. COCKRAN] one hour and fifteen minutes.

Mr. COCKRAN. Mr. Chairman, while I am far from believing that this bill if enacted into law will prove a complete panacea for all the evils which it is intended to reach, I consider it, nevertheless, one of the most important measures considered by the House since the reconstruction of the Southern States after the war of secession. Even though in actual operation it should fall far short of the results on which its framers and suporters count, yet it is a step—an important step, a decisive step, because it is the first step—toward emancipating the industrial life of this country from the domination of forces which, organized solely to promote the public welfare, have recently begun to oppress and retard it, and which by acquiring an overshadowing influence over the Government which has created them threaten a complete subversion of the institutions under which this nation has achieved the most marvelous progress in the history of the human race. [Applause.]

Criticisms of this measure, sir, have been numerous and varied, but it seems to me they are all leveled against provisions which it does not contain. It is denounced on the ground that it will produce certain evils, and these are precisely the evils which it is intended to cure or to avoid. It has been described as a scheme to substitute government rate making for rate making by business interests. It has been described as a step toward public ownership, and this, it is argued with much rhetorical fervor and some degree of justice, is a step—a long step—toward socialism. I support it, sir, because I regard it as a barrier, and I hope an effective one—as I certainly believe it is the only one we can erect—against the very tendencies which gentlemen opposite attribute to it. It has come to be styled generally as anti-railroad legislation, legislation designed to injure railroads either by imperiling their property or reducing their earnings. Sir, I have always regarded railroads, honestly administered, as the most effective agencies of progress and of civilization. If I believed that this bill would restrict their operations, diminish their earnings, or check their progress, I would be among its most active opponents. I support this measure, sir, not in hostility to the railroads, but in the interest of railroads, in the interest not merely of their ultimate security, but of their immediate revenues and prosperity. [Applause.]

Mr. Chairman, if gentlemen would only pause to realize the exact scope and purpose of this bill, they would see at once that many of the objections urged against it are both irrelevant and extravagant. The object of this measure is simply to compel companies engaged in railroad transportation between the different States to render the people whose franchises they operate efficient service—which means impartial service—at reasonable rates. To accomplish that result, any citizen who considers himself aggrieved by excessive charges is authorized by this measure to complain before a board empowered, after full inquiry, to decide whether the rate charged him is fair or unfair; and if unfair to substitute a rate which will be proper and just for the one found to have been onerous and oppressive. That is the entire scope and purpose of the measure which has been denounced with such brilliant rhetoric from the other side of this Chamber as a step toward the public operation of railroads, leading inevitably to socialism. Sir, this plain statement of the object and purpose of the proposal now before us must be enough to satisfy anyone not wholly captive to prejudice and passion that, far from this being a measure tending to establish public ownership of railways, it is the only means by which public ownership of them can be averted. [Applause.] Far from its being a socialistic demonstration, it is an effective barrier against the rising tide of socialism which gentlemen seem to discern and to dread, because it takes from the socialist the most plausible argument that he can advance to impeach the existing order of society and to support his own theory of government. [Applause.] Far from its being an attempt to reduce the earnings of railroads, it is a measure to increase them, and at the same time provide that these steadily increasing revenues will reach owners of capital by which railways are operated, instead of being diverted largely to the pockets of faithless managers, who plunder stockholders and people with cheerful but rigorous impartiality. [Laughter and applause.]

Mr. Chairman, the misapprehension of this bill which has so largely marked this discussion springs mainly, I think, from confusion of thought as to the precise relations between companies engaged in transportation and the state. I should explain that I use the word "state" in its broadest sense to designate the Government—the total sovereignty of the nation however it may be distributed and by whatever agencies it may be exercised.

Some gentlemen speak of railways as if they were private enterprises, and every measure for their regulation is discussed as if it affected private property. Other gentlemen seem to consider railways purely public enterprises, with which the state has plenary powers to deal as if they were public property. If either assumption were sound, the argument based upon it would be unanswerable. If corporations engaged in transportation are purely private enterprises, like those engaged in making tables, cloth, or shoes, an attempt to exercise over them such a control as this bill proposes to establish over railways would be a projection of government far into the domain of private business, and would be a long step indeed toward socialism. If, on the other hand, railways are in any sense public functions, and therefore subject to control and regulation by government, the supervision of rates created by this measure is probably the very mildest form in which that authority can be exercised. To describe as oppressive such a measure as this is to argue that government has no right whatever to regulate railways or even to scrutinize them. Since, then, the right of government to regulate or control in any way the operations of railways depends upon whether they are private or public property, the first step in profitable discussion is to ascertain and define their precise character.

Gentlemen who regard railways as public property are not wholly right; neither are those who consider them private property wholly wrong. Railroads are neither exclusively public nor exclusively private enterprises. They partake of both characters.

Under our industrial and political system there are two elements entering into a railway service. One is the right to operate it—the right sometimes to use public property; the right always to take private property for corporate purposes—what is known as the franchise. The other is the capital, in the form of lands, rails, locomotives, buildings, and other property by which the franchise is placed in operation. The franchise, the power to take anything I possess which may be necessary or useful to the operation of a great enterprise—the power to drive me from the house in which I was born, from the hearthstone near which I have lived, from the place where I had hoped to die—that power is an attribute to sovereignty. The right to control it must, therefore, always remain with the sovereign, that is to say, with the state—the Government. On the other hand, the capital by which the franchise is operated is the property of individuals who contribute it. It is private property dedicated to a public service. A railway, then, is a public function, the administration of which is intrusted to a private agency. But whether it be administered by a private agency or by government directly through its own officers, a railway never ceases to be a public function. [Applause.]

Now, from this what follows? What are the reciprocal rights and duties of the capital by which railways are operated, and of the people whom the railways are chartered to serve—of the sovereign whose franchise is the basis of the enterprise and the individuals who own the property by which it is made effective? Clearly, the railway in return for the special opportunities of profit which it enjoys, owes to the sovereign efficient service; and the sovereign—that is to say, the people—are bound in return by every principle of justice, of prudence, of self-interest, to protect, preserve, and maintain in absolute security, the capital—the private property—dedicated to this public service. Stated in the narrowest compass, the railway owes the people the most efficient service within the reach of human endeavor, consistent with the security of the capital—the private property—embarked in it.

Now, what is meant by security of property? What does it involve? What are its essential features? What rights does it embrace? While it appears to be conceded on all sides that a rate which compelled a railway company to do business at a loss would impair the value of the capital embarked in it and therefore would be a taking of property without due process of law, which the courts must condemn as confiscatory, some gentlemen opposite appear to think that a rate which did not entail actual loss in operation, but which nevertheless was so low as to prevent any possibility of earning profits on the capital by which the railway is operated would be within the Constitutional powers of Congress (acting directly or through a commission) to impose, and therefore beyond the power of the courts to correct. A little reflection will show these gentlemen that they misconceive radically and underrate grievously the nature and extent of the security guaranteed by our Constitution to owners of property. Security of property means not merely the safety of its body—the right to hold its corpus intact—it means the right of the owner to employ it for a profit, or what he conceives to be a profit, provided the specific purpose be not in itself illegal. Unless property can be employed at a profit it won't be employed at all, and unless it can be employed it is not worth holding. A right of property which did not embrace the right to employ it for the profit of the owner would be a mere right of custody, utterly valueless, a burden rather than a benefit, a penalty rather than a privilege, a hollow mockery, a trap for the unwary baited by delusive and misleading words. Such a conception of property is at utter variance with all our jurisprudence, and any law based on it that we might pass would most assuredly be set aside by judicial decree. [Applause.]

A rate which even though it did not entail a loss in operation—that is to say, an actual impairment of the property invested in railways, yet was so low as to prohibit profit, would be confiscatory—confiscatory of an essential element—the most important element in the right of property. The idea that such a rate would be tolerated by the same courts which, uniformly and without exception, have set aside confiscatory rates, is not a conclusion reached by logical processes, but a figment of the mind, a delusion of ardent imaginations, of fervent patriotism, and other excellent qualities stimulated to extravagance by improvident use of sonorous but misleading and sometimes nonsensical phrases. [Laughter and applause.]

A more serious criticism, Mr. Chairman, is that advanced by gentlemen who, conceding the right of the Government to exact from railways efficient service at reasonable rates, yet question the power—the intellectual capacity—of an administrative board or of any body not composed of railway experts to determine intelligently what constitutes a just and reasonable rate. This, of course, is equivalent to recognizing the existence of a right in government which it is powerless to assert and of a duty imposed on it which it is powerless to discharge. Mr. Chairman, I have never yet found myself compelled to admit incapacity or imbecility in government—at least, in this Government. [Applause.]

To ascertain and determine what is a just rate in every instance we have only to bear in mind the essential nature of the relations between these agencies and the public whom they serve—what the corporation owes to the people and what government owes to the corporation.

The corporation, as we have seen, is bound to render the best service consistent with security of the capital embarked in it, and security of capital includes the right to employ it at a profit. If the community is entitled to the best service consistent with the safety of capital, the just rate to each individual must be the actual cost of the service rendered to him plus a reasonable profit to the company. There can be no other rate consistent with justice, as a moment's reflection will show. If one man's goods be transported for less than they cost, some other man must be charged more than the service rendered to him is worth. It can not be otherwise. All who use a railroad can not have their goods transportated for less than the actual cost. If they did, in a very short space of time the railway would be bankrupt and could not transport any goods at all, because it has no source of revenue except the rates which it charges to the people who use its facilities.

If, therefore, it serve one man with favoritism, it must serve others with oppression. Justice and reason require that each man should get that for which he pays, and that no man shall be forced to pay the cost in whole or in part of service rendered to another. There can, therefore, be but one measure of what constitutes a just and reasonable rate. It is the actual cost in each instance of the service to the company plus a reasonable profit to the capital actually employed in making that service effective. Here, sir, is a simple rule by which absolute justice can be done to all. By this rule alone can the question what constitutes a reasonable rate be determined finally and peaceably, for justice, the experience of this country shows, is the only secure foundation for domestic peace as it is the one exhaustless fountain of industrial prosperity. [Applause.]

Mr. Chairman, it is objected by critics of this, as of every attempt to establish by law the right of all men to service by railways on equal terms that to fix an arbitrary rate of transportation per ton, or per head of cattle per mile, would at times work great injustice. The objection is not without force, but the rule which I have suggested would obviate it. Take, for instance, the case of two farmers living on opposite sides of a highway, one offering two hogs and the other offering thirty hogs—or whatever may be the number that would constitute a carload—to a railroad for transportation to the same market place. It is perfectly plain that if the same rate per hog per mile were charged in each instance the results would be very unequal. Hogs can not be placed in the same car with merchandise or other live stock. The transportation of two hogs would necessitate the use of a separate car—that is to say, it would cost the railway practically just as much to carry them a given distance as to transport an entire carload. To charge for this service the same rate per head as it cost the railway per head to transport the larger number would cause the two hogs to be carried for less than the actual cost of the service to the railroad, and the deficit must be made up by charging other men more than the value of the services rendered to them. On the other hand, if the owner of the larger number were compelled to pay the same rate per head for transportation that it actually cost the company to carry the two hogs per head, the result would be an excessive rate to the corporation and a correspondingly unjust imposition on the shipper.

But if two men each offered two hogs, or if each offered a carload for shipment at the same place to the same destination and one obtained a rate lower than the other then grave injustice would be perpetrated. The man favored by the low rate would be enriched at the expense of his neighbor—one man would be placed under tribute to another, and that through the perversion and abuse of a Government agency organized and bound to serve both with equal efficiency on absolutely equal conditions. [Applause.]

Strict application of this simple rule will solve every difficulty growing out of what is called "long hauls" and "short hauls." If the cost of transporting a carload of hay from Iowa, 1,600 miles, to New York, be 3 cents a ton, and the actual cost of transporting a carload from Maine, 400 miles, be 2 cents, the rates charged from both places should be in like proportion—in the proportion of 2 to 3, which is that of the cost, not of 1 to 4, which is that of distance. Not the distance, but the actual cost to the railway—in which distance is, of course, an important element—should determine the rate charged by it for transportation. If, however, two men, either in Maine or in Iowa, offered each a carload of hay for transportation to New York, and one is charged more than the other, that would be favoritism to one and therefore oppression to the other. Or if a railway undertook arbitrarily to fix charges so that a shipper in Maine or in Iowa, as the case may be, was placed on a footing different from that assigned to him by the actual conditions of transportation, then the railway would be usurping powers of sovereignty, or rather abusing powers of sovereignty to enrich men dwelling in one place at the expense of men dwelling elsewhere—a course at once mutinous, dishonest, disloyal, and demoralizing. [Applause.] The inflexible rule which justice prescribes and which, therefore, the law should enforce, is that men using the same service are entitled to absolutely identical treatment. Where the character of the service differs, then the rate to be charged for it should differ in corresponding degree. But it should always be the actual cost of the service to the railway plus a reasonable profit.

The rate which insures to every man the service for which he pays at the minimum cost consistent with safety of the property employed in rendering it—the rate which allows no man to enjoy any service at the expense of another—that is the rate which must ultimately be held the fair and the reasonable one. No other is consistent with justice, and therefore no other can be permanent in this country. [Applause.]

Mr. Chairman, in the light of these principles, I ask the committee to examine the actual operation of these corporations and measure the difference between the service to which the people are entitled and the service which they have actually received.

It is a matter of universal knowledge, not questioned here or elsewhere, that this service which should be impartial, has been governed by favoritism and discrimination. I do not think there is a single locality in the country where rates have been excessive to everyone. Wherever charges for transportation have been unreasonably high to the general public, they have always been unreasonably low to some favorite of the railway. And this, sir, is not to benefit the corporation, but to benefit some dishonest manager at the expense both of the railway and of the public. I have more than once pointed out that between a railway honestly administered and the people there never can be a conflict of interest. A railway can not prosper except as the country through which it passes prospers. Its revenues and earnings depend on the volume of business in the community that it serves. Anything that restricts the volume of business restricts the revenues of the company and impairs the value of its capital. But the interest of the company is not necessarily the interest of the manager, who often profits by betraying it, and at the same time oppressing the community. The means most usually employed for this plunder of the stockholders and the public is the fixing of high charges for transportation to the community and then secretly giving lower rates to favored individuals. The business of the favorite is increased enormously, but the whole volume of transportation is diminished. The railway would reap larger profits from serving a hundred men, each doing a business of $1,000 a week, than in serving one man doing a business of $50,000 a week. But if the rates are made high to the general public, and, at the same time, one man be afforded transportation under such favorable conditions that all his rivals will be crushed, his business will, of course, be multiplied several times in volume, but, at the same time, the general business of the road would necessarily be diminished. His profits would be swelled enormously, while the revenues of the company available for dividends would be reduced. The railway manager who shared the profits of the favorite would be enriched, while the railway would be injured, and the stockholders who trusted their property to him would be plundered. And this, sir, explains why this species of favoritism has been so widely prevalent. It is safe to say that no rebate has ever been enjoyed by one man at the expense of competitors where the fruits of the plunder have not been shared by the railway officials through whose corruption the favors have been obtained. [Applause.]

Do gentleman realize the moral enormity of these discriminations, the excessive injustice that they perpetrate, the widespread demoralization which they breed? Do they realize that they are more grievous burdens to trade, grosser outrages on justice than any oppression which could be perpetrated under our system by government itself, as these great functions touch the daily lives of the people much more closely and more frequently than any department of government—Federal, State, or municipal? The cost of transportation is a tax upon trade. By every principle of justice and sound policy it should be equal to all men. Unequal taxation deliberately imposed by government would shock our moral sensibilities so deeply that I do not believe it could be enforced, no matter what authority undertook to impose it. The sense of justice throughout the community would defeat its collection by some means or other. Suppose a man's property at one corner of Seventh street and Pennsylvania avenue were taxed 5 per cent of its value and the property of another man engaged in the same business at the other corner was taxed but 1 per cent, would not the injustice be so grievous and so palpable that an indignant public opinion would make persistence in the wrong impossible? But discrimination in rates exacted by a railway is vastly more oppressive than any inequality of taxation which government could impose. The government tax collector appears but once a year. The property on which the tax is levied forms but one feature of your industry—one element of your capital. The railroad taxes not merely all your property, but all your actions; every element of your possessions, every feature of your activities. If you are engaged in manufacture, its charges are a tax not merely on the goods which you send to the market, but on the raw materials from which they are produced. It taxes every morsel of food consumed by your laborers, and is, therefore, a determining feature in the wages you must pay them. It fixes conditions of access to every person who visits your factory or your warehouse. Where railway rates are unfair and oppressive, it is as though respiration were taxed—a toll levied on every breath the citizen drew, and a higher rate imposed on the vast majority than on a few favorites—as if every exercise of muscular energy were taxed and the rate was unequal between individuals. It is superfluous to say that the man in whose favor such agencies were employed would have every competitor at his mercy. Against such discrimination by government no genius, no industry, no capacity could avail. Yet that is precisely the advantage which rebates and discriminating rates have been giving to some men at the expense of others all over the country for many years past. [Applause.]

Efficiency, capacity, honesty, sobriety, diligence, the possession of every virtue, have become less valuable to their possessors in the competitions of business than the favor of some railway manager. And these favors, I repeat, sir, without fear of contradiction from anyone, are always granted corruptly [applause], not for the benefit of the railway, but to the injury of the railway; not for the profit of the stockholders, but for the profit of thieves among the managers, who plunder their own stockholders and the people with relentless appetite. [Applause.]

Sir, the history of railway management in this country is a history of favoritism, of corruption, of wrong made enormously profitable, and crime made respectable by the great fortunes of which it has been the source. I do not deny that in spite of this favoritism the railways have rendered enormous service to the country; that they have been among the most powerful agencies of progress. But, sir, they have not been as loyal as they should have been in serving the whole community on equal terms, and where they have deviated from impartial service they have been made the means of perpetrating the very gravest offenses against morals and property. [Applause.]

The men who control transportation facilities and abuse their authority have established a power greater than the Government. The favor of a railway manager is more important to a man engaged in commerce than the favor of the President, of both Houses of Congress, of the judiciary, of the Army, of the Navy, and of all combined. Government, exercising all the power of all its departments, can only protect a man; a corrupt railway manager can enrich him. Larger fortunes have been established by illegitimate railway favors than by the highest ability in legitimate industry ever possessed by any man in the world. As all these favors are granted to favorites at the expense of victims, as they are tributes levied on the industry of many for the benefit of a few, this railway corruption has resulted in the demoralizing spectacle of plunder made more profitable than industry. Where discrimination has been grossest, corruption the most depraved, the most cynical, the most unblushing, there the profits of the criminal have been most extensive. And the courts have signally failed to prevent this corruption, while they have been singularly effective in protecting fortunes which have been the fruits of these crimes.

Rockefeller, at once the richest and the most despised of the whole population, has long been the chief beneficiary of this corruption, and his fortune is the chief monument of its extent. [Applause.] Unfortunately he stands not alone; he is but the type of a band growing ever more numerous and more dangerous. These men have established themselves as a privileged class. They are so far above and beyond the law that they plead the magnitude of their crimes as a reason for arresting the pursuit of justice. Have we not seen within a few days the adoption of a resolution by this very House propounding an inquiry concerning the relations between two great railway systems, which it was our duty to formulate, create a disturbance in the market which almost amounted to a panic? Do we not hear it urged as a reason against pressing the inquiry, which the law enjoins upon us, that to persist in it will uncover extensive violations of the law which can result only in a profitless scandal, since the community would prefer submission to these crimes rather than pay the frightful cost of redressing them? Is not this a cynical admission that this Government, organized to establish justice, can not afford to do justice, even when injustice is palpable—that under the protection of laws intended to foster industry criminals have grown so powerful that instead of submitting to the law they can treat with the law—nay, defy and command it. Their power to enrich is so extensive and their readiness to use it for their personal aggrandizement is so notorious that the weak and the unscrupulous and the base in business and in politics have become their courtiers, hoping, and with reason, for a shorter pathway to wealth through their favor than through industry, however capable, meritorious, or diligent. Through the cupidity of political leaders they have succeeded in dominating both political parties in all the larger States of the Union. In the smaller States, where the people are still largely engaged in agriculture, where they still meet at villages and crossroads for personal discussion of political issues, political parties are still controlled by the opinion of the neighborhood, but in the larger States, those embracing great cities, both parties are dominated by railway influences.

It is no exaggeration to say that in all those great States the debates and contentions which on the surface appear to be the competition of politicians for leadership are usually but screens behind which different financiers contend for the control of some political machine which they consider a useful instrument in the prosecution of their enterprises. No man can be considered an eminent financier nowadays unless he counts the leader of a political machine among his followers, his clients, his retainers, his dependents. [Applause.]

Have we not seen within a few months two gentlemen prominent in railway management engage in a struggle for the possession of some $425,000,000, to which neither of them had the slightest claim of ownership, and when they met to discuss whether the control of this vast fund, which one of them had managed to acquire, should be held by him exclusively or be divided between both of them, the weapon with which one threatened the other was the government of the State to which both men are supposed to be subject, but which one of them controlled absolutely, because the boss of the dominant political party was as completely his property as the watch in his pocket. But the other was by no means alarmed, formidable as this threat may sound. He, too, was a financier, and therefore too wise and too wary to be found without a political bludgeon of his own within easy reach. The gentleman who accompanied him to that interview as his friend, his adviser, his bottle holder in this duel of financial giants, had been a conspicuous member of the present National Administration, and has since returned to the President's Cabinet as its chief. The financier who owned the State government ought to have understood that an opponent so accompanied was not one to be attacked with a weapon no stronger than the government of a mere State—even though it were the Empire State of the Union. But he did not. He instigated a legislative investigation as an act of war. The result proved his folly in underestimating the force which he antagonized. To-day he is wiser, though somewhat damaged. The political retainer upon whom he relied is unhorsed, his machine is badly jarred and dislocated, if not wholly crushed, while his rival holds with a tighter and firmer grasp than ever the undivided control of the $425,000,000 which had been the subject of their discussion.

Sir, do I exaggerate the influence, the powers which these men wield? Am I extravagant when I describe them as a privileged class enjoying immunities unknown to the law, exercising powers above the law and in spite of it? Must we submit to the domination of this class, or should we make an effort at least to bring it within subjection to the laws?

The gentleman from Maine [Mr. LITTLEFIELD] says the courts can afford redress for all these evils by simply enforcing existing law. If the courts had held uniformly that all men were entitled to service by railways on equal terms and if they had used their processes and all their powers to facilitate discovery so that any man who had reason to believe himself aggrieved could ascertain the terms on which all other men were served—the rates they were charged—these abuses would never have arisen and the demand for this legislation would never have been heard. But, as a matter of fact, the courts have not prevented these abuses. When have the courts undertaken to prevent, much less to punish, any financial exploit by which railway managers have enriched themselves enormously at the expense of the stockholders who intrusted them with their property and of the community who depended upon their capacity and fidelity? What feat of spoliation by syndicates or financiers has been interrupted by judicial process?

Doubtless the case of the Northern Securities Company occurs to some gentlemen, though they have shown me the courtesy of refraining from interruption. Doubtless they are asking themselves now if the judgment declaring the organization of that company to be a conspiracy did not constitute a judicial interference with the consummation of an illegal financial operation. Sir, there can be no stronger proof that a privileged class exists amongst us, no more striking illustration of the extent to which these privileges are tacitly recognized by the courts themselves, than this very case, so often quoted as an evidence that the law is still capable of regulating and governing the conduct of all citizens, even of men mighty in finance.

It is true that the organization of the Northern Securities Company was adjudged a conspiracy, but let us see for a moment the effect of that decision upon the object for which the conspiracy was formed and on the men who were adjudged to be conspirators. Contrast the immunity which they have enjoyed, aye, the rewards which they have reaped, from the very act pronounced to be criminal, with the severe punishments inflicted on other violators of statutory prohibitions or the fate which overtook a man who was found guilty merely of violating an injunction order.

You will remember that the Northern Securities Company was organized avowedly for the purpose of placing control of several railroads in the hands of two groups of financiers. The Attorney-General of the United States, by direction of the President, instituted proceedings in the courts praying that this attempt to reduce control of several railways to such a narrow compass that it could be held by two groups of financiers be adjudged a conspiracy in restraint of trade under the Sherman antitrust law.

Sections 2 and 3 of this law are so clear in their denunciations of certain acts as conspiracies and so specific in the penalties denounced against them that I shall read them to the committee:

SEC. 2. Every person who shall monopolize, or attempts to monopolize, or combine or conspire with any other person or persons to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce among the several States, or with foreign nations, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

SEC. 3. Every contract, combination in form of trust or otherwise, or conspiracy, in restraint of trade or commerce in any Territory of the United States or of the District of Columbia, or in restraint of trade or commerce between any such Territory and another, or between any such Territory or Territories and any State or States or the District of Columbia, or with any foreign nations, or between the District of Columbia and any State or States or foreign nations, is hereby declared illegal. Every person who shall make any such contract or engage in any such combination or conspiracy, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof, shall be punished by fine not exceeding $5,000, or by imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both said punishments, in the discretion of the court.

In rendering judgment on this suit the Supreme Court declared:

In our judgment the evidence fully sustains the material allegations of the bill and shows a violation of the act of Congress, in so far as it declares illegal every combination or conspiracy in restraint of commerce among the several States and with foreign nations and forbids attempts to monopolize such commerce or any part of it.

And again:

This combination is within the meaning of the act a "trust;" but if not it is a combination in restraint of interstate and international commerce, and that is enough to bring it under the condemnation of the act.

Here, then, we find the organization of the Northern Securities Company declared a conspiracy by solemn judgment of the court, and the persons who promoted it were therefore conspirators—criminals—specifically denounced as such by the law. No description could have been more comprehensive; no words could have been bolder; no judgment would seem to be freer from anything like consideration of persons or results. Yet, what was the actual outcome of this decision?

The object of the conspiracy, as we have seen, was to place several railways within the control of two groups known as the "Morgan group" and the "Harriman group," and that object was declared a conspiracy, a crime. The court directed that the stock held by the Northern Securities Company be distributed; but the method of distribution was so ordered that when the judgment was put in actual force the Harriman group was found to have been eliminated and the Morgan group was left in supreme control. The attempt to reduce control of these companies to two groups was pronounced a conspiracy, and the actual result of the decision was to reduce the control of them to one group. The object of the conspiracy instead of being defeated was more effectually accomplished. And that was not all. The stock of the company, which was selling at about 100 when the suit began, sold at 160 when the adverse decision was rendered. Its capital stock was $400,000,000, and therefore this decision, that is generally supposed to have destroyed the corporation, enriched its promoters by $240,000,000. Conspiracy was found by the court; the conspirators were identified by name in its decision; but the object of the conspiracy, instead of being defeated, is more completely effected by the decision itself, and the authors of the scheme, instead of being punished or even questioned, walked out of court, not weighed down by its fetters, nor staggering under its sentence, but joyfully bearing a golden burden of $240,000,000, perfectly satisfied that the court which pronounced their conduct to be a conspiracy would use all its powers to protect them in holding and enjoying the fruits of their crime. [Applause.]

Am I exaggerating here? Am I straining terms when I say that these men were specifically adjudged criminals by the highest court in the land, and that they are nevertheless absolutely secure from the pursuit of justice? I am quite willing that the merit of this assertion be examined in the light of a luminous contribution to this branch of the subject by a member of the court itself. Mr. Justice Holmes, writing a dissenting opinion, uses this language as his final argument against the judgment of the majority:

What I now ask is, under which of the foregoing classes this case is supposed to come, and that question must be answered as definitely and precisely as if we were dealing with the indictments which logically ought to follow this decision.

Observe here, sir, the recognition, quite unconscious, I believe, but for that reason all the more significant, of a privileged class by a judge of the Supreme Court, and mark the unquestioned immunity from the pursuit of justice which he realizes members of that class enjoy. "The indictment," he says, "which logically ought to follow this decision," not the indictment which necessarily must follow it, as would have been the case with any ordinary citizen adjudged guilty by the Supreme Court of having violated a penal statute, "Logically," he says, that is to say, for purposes of discussion—academically—so to speak—these men might be considered criminals, but the possibility that they could be indicted is so extravagantly improbable that he—a member of the court—mentions it to illustrate most strikingly what he believed to be the extravagance of the conclusion reached by the majority.

Now contrast this enrichment of men found guilty under the Sherman law with the treatment of Eugene V. Debs, who was not even accused of transgressing a criminal statute or at least who having been accused demanded a trial and could not get it. The violation of an injunction order was the head and front of his offending. At most, he committed a civil offense. Although when we contrast the penalty which followed it, with the rewards heaped on these men whom the decision of the Supreme Court adjudged to be criminals, we must conclude that if his offense was civil his treatment was decidedly uncivil. [Laughter and applause.] There is no doubt about what happened to him. He was not punished by mere animadversion or judicial denunciation. He was committed to jail. His body was taken into custody. He was confined in a cell; the bolts were turned on him. He ate the prison fare. Prison wardens controlled his movements. He expiated to the last moment by confinement and discredit—so far as imprisonment can inflict discredit—the violation of an injunction order. Tell me that Debs stands equal before the law with Messrs. Morgan, Harriman, Hill, et al., and you say that which mocks common experience and common sense. [Applause.]

But it may be said that the act of Mr. Debs involved, in some way, dangers to society so grave that it became necessary to take exceptional measures against its recurrence. I shall not pause to consider the merits of such a suggestion, because even if well founded it certainly would not apply in the case of two Senators recently condemned to imprisonment, not for any act in itself heinous, but for mere violation of a statutory prohibition. One of these men after thirty-three years of meritorious service in the most illustrious legislative body in the world, had earned the respect and regard of all his fellows, without distinction of party. I speak of him solely from his public character. I knew nothing of him personally. I never saw him to my knowledge. But he was found to have asked some officers of the Government to do a favor for one of his clients, and because a member of Congress is forbidden by law to practice before any of the Departments, he was promptly haled before a criminal court; he was tried; he was sentenced; he died—died under the shameful cloud of a criminal conviction.

And there is another Senator living now against whom, for a kindred act, the same grave penalty has been denounced, over whose head hangs the same sinister, blighting, shameful cloud. His liberty hangs on the slight chance that a judgment of conviction against him may be reversed by the Supreme Court, which has already decided that the act charged against him constitutes a crime. Does anybody doubt that if his conviction be affirmed he will be compelled to expiate in a prison the act which was forbidden by law? Does anybody question that if Heaven itself had not interposed and called Senator Mitchell to judgment at a higher tribunal his body would have shared the ignominy which had already overtaken his name? These men certainly were not conspirators against the public peace. They were not dangerous or vicious men; they were among the most conspicuous in the land. They had been chosen ambassadors of their respective States to the highest legislative council, not merely of this nation, but in all the world. Yet for an act which amounted at the most to an impropriety the law drew its sword and smote them. And with what fearful vengeance! They were dragged from the places of honor which they had reached and sentenced to confinement in those gloomy precincts, where the darkest miseries of life are concentrated and by close association aggravated; where the law, instead of protecting men in the enjoyment of liberty, deprives them of liberty; where men of sensitive nerves and decent associations, forced into contact with the blighting fruits of vice and crime, are made familiar with every step in the consummation of every vengeance inflicted by outraged society on its outcasts, even the last dreadful one, where the State immolates the human victim whose sacrifice it deems necessary to its own safety—those hideous precincts so vividly painted by one whose perverted morals had brought him within their limits, but whose genius was able to describe fittingly the horrors they enclose.

> And as one sees most fearful things
> In the crystal of a dream,
> We saw the greasy, hempen rope,
> Hooked to the blackened beam,
> And heard the prayer the hangman's snare
> Strangled into a scream.

From that abode of horror and ignominy to which the law had condemned him Senator Mitchell was delivered only by the hand of death. To it the sentence of the law has already assigned Senator Burton. [Applause.]

Sir, is this equality before the law? Is this democratic government? Have Messrs. Mitchell and Burton enjoyed equal privileges and equal immunities with Messrs. Morgan and Hill and Harriman and the others? Justice, which has stood supine, motionless, inert, incapable, which has never been able even to get in motion against Messrs. Morgan and Hill, has been active, vigilant, relentless, inexorable, almost ferocious, in pursuit of Messrs. Mitchell and Burton. Surely the acts of Messrs. Morgan and others, pronounced crimes by the Supreme Court, were at least as injurious to the community as those charged against the two Senators. Yet Messrs. Morgan and Hill are enriched by the decision which condemns them, and free to enjoy the wealth which is showered on them. Messrs. Mitchell and Burton were consigned to infamy, to absolute and irretrievable ruin of fortune and of honor.

Sir, this is not an isolated case. On all sides we find the law prompt and vigilant to overtake small offenders, slow and incapable in pursuit of great offenders; quick to punish the thief who steals a few dollars; incapable of even questioning the plunderer of millions. [Applause.]

For many years the members of this privileged class have held the law in contempt; but the contempt which they have always felt they have lately begun to show. Have we not quite recently seen a man who dominates many systems of transportation snap his fingers at a mandate issued by the Supreme Court of a sovereign State? Have we not heard him exercise a flatulent wit in deriding officers holding its commission, while he refused contemptuously to answer its interrogatories? And have we not seen a court of the State in which this contempt was displayed hold that while this recalcitrant and truculently insubordinate witness might be compelled to answer some time before the Day of Judgment, between that important event and the present time, there was no immediate pressing necessity for his yielding obedience to the command of the law. [Laughter and applause.]

And is it not a fact that at the very time when this flagrant contempt was permitted to go unrebuked the very same court which had refused to punish or even rebuke it issued an injunction against some striking printers so sweeping and so drastic that it was hailed as decisive of the contest by one side of labor controversy. Sir, I am not criticising this court or any court. I know it is claimed that all these decisions and proceedings which I have mentioned were incumbent upon the judges—the only course open to them under the law. That may or may not be so. I express no opinion on that subject one way or the other. But I do say it is unfortunate—a calamity—a reproach—not merely to our Government, but to our civilization—of which this Government is the highest type and the noblest fruit—that the courts which have shown such vigilance, such vigor, such ingenuity in devising and enforcing methods of preventing injury to the property of corporations, through violence on the part of striking employees, have been so utterly incapable of preventing graver, more extensive, more demoralizing injury to the property of corporations and to civic morals through the fraud and corruption of dishonest officers. [Applause.]

Sir, if we must have amongst us men who actually possess and enjoy exclusive privileges, would it not be better by far that these privileges were acknowledged and recognized by the law than that they should be enjoyed in defiance of the law? For to acknowledge their privileges it would be necessary to define them, and to define them would not be to enlarge but to limit them. While the privileges of this class are unrecognized, they are unlimited. If it be true that while the letter of the law declares all men to be equal, yet the machinery of the law is incapable of controlling men worth many millions of dollars, better by far acknowledge that fact formally and provide that men so rich be tried by their peers, and define as their peers men of equal possessions. If these privileges were recognized and defined, the possessors of them, in order to preserve them, would very probably unite to punish any of their number who by flagrantly exceeding them might provoke a public opinion that would endanger them. [Applause.] Now, every attempt to pursue a rich man for any crime is at once proclaimed an assault upon wealth, and all the possessors of wealth combine to shield him so effectively that no man worth $5,000,000 has ever been prosecuted to conviction, though as we have seen the guilt of many is not doubted or even denied. Nothing is ever gained by ignoring facts. Since a privileged class actually exists, there is but one of two courses open to us—we should either make the law conform to actual conditions, acknowledge the privileges, define them, and by defining confine them within definite limits, or else we should abolish the conditions which have allowed them to grow up in defiance of law. [Applause.]

The power to control the competitions of trade, to enrich some men by granting them low rates of transportation while high rates are exacted from others, is the main source of these dangerous privileges. This bill, which seeks to abolish rebates and favoritism, is at least a step in the direction of reestablishing equal rights and equal privileges for all citizens. [Applause.]

Now, what objections have been offered to this bill aside from the suggestion that the courts can of themselves accomplish the object at which it aims without any further legislation? I think it advisable to show, if I can, that these objections are unfounded and extravagant, because, judging from the generous applause which has greeted them, it is reasonable to assume that some gentlemen who are going to vote for the bill are opposed to it in their inmost souls. Of course, they have all with a single exception swallowed their convictions in silence. It has been reserved for one to swallow his convictions vociferously. [Laughter.] And here I congratulate gentlemen opposite who have had the courage to take the floor and frankly express views in opposition to the whole scope of the measure—views which are certainly unpopular, and which, therefore, could have been voiced for no other reason than loyalty to conscience. These gentlemen have given a splendid exhibition of political courage. They have done more; they have rendered a very great service to the country and to the House, for they have simplified decisively the issue in debate.

The gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. McCALL] and the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. SIBLEY] both oppose the bill upon the ground, briefly stated, that it tends to Government rate making, and therefore to what is called public ownership. I believe both distinguished gentlemen will agree that I have stated correctly the main ground of their opposition. If I shared their views of this measure, I should certainly join them in opposing it. But this bill does not provide for Government rate making. If it becomes a law, there are but two conditions under which by any possibility Government rate making could be substituted for business rate making. Either all the rates exacted by all the railways in the country must be unjust (in which case the necessity for some scheme of regulation becomes not only pressing but imperative) or else every shipper in the country must be so dishonest that whether a rate be fair or unfair he would complain of it, and the commission must be so corrupt and so extravagant that it would sustain every complaint, whether well founded or ill founded.

There is nothing about a commission which makes it peculiarly liable to corruption. Whatever influences might affect it injuriously would be just as likely to affect any other department of Government. To argue that powers must not be conferred upon a body or officer because they may be used corruptly would be to argue against the establishment of any Government agency whatever.

The force of this is clearly recognized by the gentleman from Maine [Mr. LITTLEFIELD] who has gone much further, and boldly plants his objection on grounds suggested rather than taken by the gentleman from Massachusetts and the gentleman from Pennsylvania. The gentleman from Maine tells us that he is opposed to this measure because the Interstate Commerce Commission might become dominated by populists, by socialists, by enemies of property, who, incapable of appreciating the rather delicately balanced rights of the community and the stockholders in railway enterprises, would pervert the powers conferred upon them to the oppression of all right and the injury of all property. But, surely, sir, if that objection have any weight, it is an argument against all government. Government must be administered by human agencies, and men always are liable to corruption. Courts have not been always upright. Courts have been guilty of corruption, of which this Interstate Commerce Commission has never even been suspected, according to the gentleman himself. Are we to abolish courts because judicial decisions have been sometimes bought and sold, and that by the most learned and accomplished judges? The President in the nature of things must be a man. Are we to abolish the Presidency because its powers may be perverted by some incumbent to an ignoble purpose? If the gentleman's argument be sound against the Interstate Commerce Commission, it is sound against every agency of Government.

Why, sir, it is the argument of anarchy itself. It is based upon precisely the same premises and is marked by the same nonsequitur. The anarchist argues that because all governmental powers may be abused, therefore they will be abused—because Government is a potential source, therefore it is an inevitable source of tyranny and demoralization. Sir, this argument of anarchy as we have heard it here is new in nothing except in the theater of its delivery. When we consider the place in which it has been put forth with such dialetical skill and rhetorical brilliancy, we can not help feeling that from this moment it must assume a new weight and force in the estimation of mankind. It has acquired the enormous advantage of having been delivered, not to a motley throng of long-haired enthusiasts by some nameless, hair-brained rhetorician in the back room of some obscure cafe, but by a conspicuous ornament of American citizenship on the floor of the American Congress to the sanest and most conservative legislative body in all Christendom. [Applause.]

While I do not think this argument of anarchy needs any refutation here, the fact remains that its author, as well as the gentleman from Pennsylvania and the gentleman from Massachusetts have made a contribution of great value to this discussion. They have made it clear beyond all doubt that in the administration of railways throughout this country grave evils have arisen. This much they all admit. But while they all admit and deplore the existence of these evils they seem to think there is no remedy for them. The gentleman from Massachusetts tells us he will go as far as anyone in attempting to punish rebates. But while his disposition and his capacity are inspiring, while he is willing of purpose, sound of wind, and vigorous of muscle, eager to go any distance in pursuit of this wrong, there is an insuperable difficulty in the way of utilizing for the public weal his eminent capacity and excellent disposition—we can not get him to start. [Laughter.]

Sir, if his contentions were sound; if it be true that, under our present system of transportation, Government is incapable of affording a remedy for oppressive exactions or unequal rates, then we must change the system. There is no other alternative. For the American people to remain helpless and submissive under injustice would be intolerable and inconceivable. [Applause.]

I know it has already occurred to some on this floor and to many throughout the country that public ownership, or rather public operation of railways, is the only adequate remedy against this form of oppression. And, here, sir, I deem it proper to say that I am not one of those who believe the operation of public utilities by Government is always and necessarily socialism. I entreat gentlemen to mark that word "necessarily." I say it is not necessarily socialism, because while the direct operation by Government of any enterprise essentially public is not necessarily socialistic, the grounds on which this policy is urged are nearly always distinctly socialistic. Bearing in mind that a railway is always a public function, whether it be administered by Government through its own officers, or by a private agency empowered and employed by Government for that purpose, it must be perfectly clear that what Government can empower an agent or corporation to do, Government can do itself. Nay more, Government would be bound to perform the public service itself if a private agency could not be found to perform it. The only ground on which the employment of a private agency to administer a function essentially public can be justified at all is that the private agency can administer it better, that is to say, it can give better, cheaper, and more efficient service than the Government through its own officers.

I am opposed to public operation of railways for the very simple reason that in the nature of things it is not possible for governments to administer them as efficiently as they are administered now by private agencies—even though the service actually rendered to the people is far below the standard of efficiency to which they are entitled. The reasons for this belief are, in my judgment, conclusive, but the time now at my disposal will not permit a full statement of them. At this moment I can do no more than point out that there is not on record a single instance in which a public utility administered by Government has resulted in as good service as where it has been administered by private agencies. The post-office is often cited as a striking instance of efficient service by Government. What improvement in transportation or business methods has ever been developed by a post-office through its own operations? Where has a single invention or discovery been added to the resources of civilization by the administration of a postal system? The telegraph would seem to be a natural outcome of postal operations. It is a device for the transmission of intelligence, and as such it is considered in many countries to be so essentially a function of the mail that it is included in the postal service. Yet, was the telegraph a development of postal administration? Was it invented by anyone connected with some postal system? Was it not the invention of a man in private life, adopted by the post-office long after its value had been established by private enterprise? So true is this that a good postal service is distinguished from a bad one, not by the development of improvements in its own administration, but by greater promptness in accepting improvements developed under some private agency.

In many countries the railways are a feature of the public service administered by public officers.

When has any important device for improvement in travel been developed in the administration of a railway by government?

All improvements in travel, in transportation, in the transmission of intelligence, have been developed by private agencies authorized to operate public franchises by some government—most of them by this Government. The only reason, I repeat, why the operation of these public functions should be intrusted to private agencies is because they can operate them better, give cheaper, more efficient service than the Government through its own officers. If the control of transportation were transferred now from private agencies to public officers, the effect would be to impair its efficiency, and at the same time increase the cost of it. If this were understood by the people, proposals for public operation of railways would be robbed of all popularity. Nobody would be found advocating a policy of poorer service at higher rates. Why, then, are these proposals popular, or supposed to be? Because they are always accompanied by a promise or suggestion—a covert hint—that if the railways of the country be operated by Government the rates charged for transportation will be reduced, no matter what the service may actually cost. Now, if anybody be given a service for less than it cost, as we have already seen, the deficiency must be made up by excessive charges in other directions. Some men must be compelled to contribute from the fruits of their industry to the expenses of others, and that is socialistic, it is undemocratic, it is un-American, unjust, intolerable, among a people where equality is the universal aspiration and justice the universal passion. [Applause.] Thus it is that public ownership, while not essentially or necessarily socialistic, is always conveyed with a suggestion of socialism, and that suggestion is the sole source of its popularity. [Applause.]

If public operation of railways far from redressing the evils of which we complain would aggravate them, is there no remedy? Are we helpless before these wrongs—their perpetrators and beneficiaries? Must we submit to these discriminations and inequalities which have created a privileged class—which have corrupted our whole industrial system, so that finance, as I said here some weeks ago, has become synonymous with piracy in the minds of the people? [Applause.] No, Mr. Chairman, we are not helpless or even feeble. Redress—ample and complete redress—is within our power. This bill, in my judgment, affords an important measure of it. The gentleman from Massachusetts assigns as one of his reasons for opposing it that not one line of it specifically prohibits rebates. But, sir, a moment's reflection must satisfy the gentleman that if no single line of it expressly prohibits rebates, every line of it tends to make rebates impossible. The most effective feature of the bill is the popular determination it embodies; the overwhelming—practically unanimous—popular determination that this evil shall stop, now that its magnitude is understood. [Applause.]

In practical operation I think its best feature is the publicity it provides. Where there is publicity there can not be crime or injustice. That is the distinctive feature of our Christian civilization. All other civilizations have more or less sanctioned crime, have been built more or less upon injustice. Christian civilization is based on absolute justice, and justice to be triumphant only needs the light of heaven. Under the benign influence of Christianity justice has become so universally the passion of civilized men that no open violation of it will be tolerated by the public conscience. Turn the light upon every transaction of government and no wrong will be suffered to exist, and therefore none will be attempted. It must always be remembered that the publicity which should be exacted from railways and corporations exercising public functions is very different from the publicity which should be exacted from corporations engaged in private industry. A corporation engaged, for instance, in making desks or cloth gets no privilege from the Government except the mere right to organize, and that right is a mere evolution, a growth, a development of the ordinary partnership.

The only publicity that such a corporation owes to the public is an honest statement of the property represented by the shares which it offers in the market. In other words, it should not be allowed to plunder the community through fraud or misrepresentation as to the nature of the enterprise in which owners of capital are invited to embark. In every other respect the corporation engaged in private business has a right to exclusive information about its own affairs. It should not be compelled to disclose any of the elements on which its prosperity has been built up, because to disclose them would be to imperil if not to lose them. The conditions under which it obtains its raw material or whence they come, the manner in which its industry is conducted, even the rates of wages paid to its employees—all these are subjects to knowledge of which it has an exclusive right. But a railway being a public function should have no secrets whatever. All its operations are for the public. Everyone should be informed of them that he may judge for himself whether the service afforded him is the best to which justice and reason entitle him.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired.

Mr. ADAMSON. All of the time, Mr. Chairman, has been allotted by agreement, but I would ask the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] if he can not grant to the gentleman some of the time at his disposal.

Mr. HEPBURN. I will yield the gentleman five minutes.

Mr. ADAMSON. And I will yield the gentleman five minutes also, making ten in all. [Applause.]

Mr. COCKRAN. I thank the gentlemen. I say that a railway, or any corporation exercising a public function, is not entitled to any secrets whatever. No good purpose can be served by secrecy in the administration of any public function, and secrecy is never desired except to conceal some scheme of corruption. [Applause.] If shippers can secure equal terms, I have no fear that the rates charged for service will be excessive. To secure equal terms for all it is only necessary that the rates charged to everyone shall be made public. With absolutely equal rates nothing but benefit can ensue from the operation of railways. Let publicity be complete and injury will be impossible while benefits will be innumerable. Even overcapitalization, that bugbear of modern discussion, will cease to be dangerous if everybody knows just on what capitalization is based. Conditions are conceivable where an increase of stock by a railway without any increase of tangible property would be a benefit rather than an injury to the public. Unfortunately, under actual conditions wherever such an increase has occurred it represented spoliation of the people.

If a corporation by cheapening transportation largely increased its revenues everybody would rejoice that such a service had proved a source of profit, and nobody would object to an increase of capital based on it.

If the Western Union Telegraph Company to-morrow should reduce its charges for telegrams to 10 cents a message of 15 words, and by that reduction its revenues were largely increased, obviously the value of its stock would be increased in like degree. There could be no objection to a corresponding increase of capitalization. It would be capitalizing a service, and I would rejoice if such a great public service increased the value of the capital one hundred millions of dollars. I would rejoice still more if the increase were two hundred millions of dollars. The larger the reward such a service reaped the greater encouragement there would be to still further reduction in the cost of telegrams to the community. But if the company increased its capital and attempted to earn dividends on it by raising charges for telegrams, that would be an attempt to capitalize plunder, which should be resisted by all the powers which the people can exercise through legislative and administrative agencies. [Applause.]

This illustration, sir, I hope will make clear what I conceive to be the true principle governing in this respect the relations between corporations administering public franchises and the Government which charters them. It illustrates also, I hope, the attitude of those who stand with me in support of this bill.

We stand here, sir, not plotting against the prosperity of great industrial enterprises, but eagerly striving to stimulate their productive capacity by wise regulation. We are not hostile to railways, but anxious to develop all their beneficent elements for the good of this people and the growth of civilization.

Sir, whoever would oppose the growth of railways would confess himself opposed to progress, to prosperity, to the most important and salutary fruits of Christian civilization.

I have never ridden on a railway train and realized the thousands and tens of thousands of human hands that must contribute to its efficiency without a new appreciation of the splendid civilization which makes possible the voluntary cooperation of such vast numbers in mutual service. In an industrial system based on servitude railways would be impossible. The mighty engines so powerful in useful production when directed by the loyal hands of freemen would be capable of such devastation in the hands of discontented men that they could not be instrusted to slaves inflamed against masters who fettered their limbs and robbed them of the things produced by their labor.

Who that has rolled from a railway station in a comfortable car and cast a thought on the man keeping lonely vigil in the switch tower, on the watchful eyes inspecting every inch of track, the thousands of hands ready to repair the slightest defect which might imperil the safety of life or limb, the vigilance with which the roadway is kept clear, the honesty with which every man's baggage is guarded, the promptness with which it is surrendered to him at the end of the journey, the millions of men everywhere moved to useful activity by knowledge that the things which they create will be transported by other men to the market place, and the things which they need will be brought back to their very doors—who that has thought of all these can fail to realize that railways in successful, honest operation are the chorus—the full chorus—of that splendid hymn whose prelude was intoned at Bethlehem when the sheperds heard angels singing

On earth peace, good will toward men.

How can the growth of good will on earth be shown more strikingly than in the perfect confidence with which every one of us trusts his property, his life, the lives of his children to the loyalty of men whose faces he has never seen, whose names he will never hear, but who he knows stand at throttle of engine or on platform of passenger car ever ready to give their lives to save your life or mine? [Applause.]

A few years ago while on a journey to Scotland I woke up at daybreak in the limits of Carlisle—that "merrie Carlisle" so often sung in mediæval balladry—Carlisle whither captives in foray and border warfare were brought in triumph to be hung on the gallows tree while all the country side made festival and holiday—and as I looked from the window of my compartment, the train having stopped for a moment, I saw a man who embodied to me the whole march of progress for eighteen centuries. He could not be called an imposing figure, according to the canons of literary description; his face was grimy, his hands were black, as he stood by a switch, his eyes fastened on the train and the rails before him. Yet to me that man with blackened face was a sublime figure, the most imposing of all the landscape, for I knew he was not an enemy dogging my footsteps, to rob me, to beat me, capture me, or kill me, but he was a brother serving me faithfully, watching vigilantly over my safety while I slept [applause], and I felt that he typified the difference between the Carlisle of three centuries ago and the Carlisle of to-day—the difference between the civilization which we enjoy and that lower civilization from which humanity has risen through the wider operation of Christian influences. [Applause.]

There is one element which is the vital principle of Christianity and which must dominate every enterprise through which our civilization can be advanced or served, and it is justice—that justice which our Constitution was organized to establish; that justice which is always the aspiration of the American heart, and which if we are to have peace must always be the possession of every American citizen. [Applause.]

This bill, sir, aims at nothing but justice, to establish justice between a great public function and the people whom it is organized to serve. Its provisions can only become operative where injustice is attempted. It will remain a dead letter while justice is respected and obeyed. Those who are likely to be affected by its operation, and who doubt its policy, who distrust its provisions, who fear that the making of rates by any public body may lead to confusion—contention—and possibly to socialism, can obviate all the possibilities which they apprehend by simply doing justice. For my part I regard the practically unanimous passage of this bill as the most inspiring event since the war of secession, because it registers the inflexible determination of the American people that whether by the voluntary action of the railroads or by the intervention of Government, justice shall be enthroned in our railway system and in our whole industrial system as it is supposed to be enthroned in our political system; for it is only by extending and maintaining the dominion of justice wherever any function of Government is exercised that peace can be permanent in this land and prosperity general among its people. [Prolonged applause.]

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, if it would not interrupt the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN], I yield to the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. WILEY].

Mr. WILEY of Alabama. Mr. Chairman, a year ago, when the Esch-Townsend bill (H. R. 18588), designed to confer enlarged powers upon the Interstate Commerce Commission to fix railroad rates and regulate trusts, was under consideration in this Chamber, I made a speech in favor of that measure, and voted for it on its passage. Quoting from that speech, I now find I used this language:

Sir William Wallace, of Scotland, declared:

"He strikes home when right points his sword."

The contest in which we are now engaged is the people's fight against monopolistic greed. Faith in a just cause and unceasing labor to attain a righteous end have never failed, in the long run, to accomplish desired results.

I tried at that time to make plain how a Republican oligarchy, so long intrusted with the control of Governmental affairs, have made themselves veritable Egyptian taskmasters and piled upon the bowed shoulders of the common people burdens too grievous to be borne. I endeavored to demonstrate how this long lease of power had been systematically abused and prostituted to baneful ends, enabling the few to amass fabulous riches at the expense of the many. I warned the country then, and I "sound the alarum" now, that this shameless orgy of spoliation, if unchecked, will result in national disaster and ruin. I cited instance after instance in both ancient and modern history to confirm this contention and to prove impending peril to any land "where wealth accumulates and men decay." I showed, certainly to my own satisfaction, the ominous conditions consequent upon the concentration of gigantic capital in certain of the great corporations of the country, wherever managed for their own selfish aggrandizement by a limited number of unscrupulous men holding the dangerous power conferred by illgotten riches.

I did not then, and do not now, condemn legitimate wealth, but rather, instead, the existence of those oppressive and iniquitous laws which have enabled favored classes to gather together in a few years fortunes of such unprecedented and menacing magnitude. In its Democracy, as taught by the fathers, that speech, I know, was sound to the core. I stand by it unwaveringly to this good hour, and abate nothing from the force and truth of the position then taken.

The bill we are now considering is in entire harmony with the provisions of the former bill. It is wiser and better. In the summing up of the situation it is more comprehensive. In its grasp of a vital issue, in which the masses, in contradistinction to the classes, are interested, it is more masterly and unassailable; and, verily, it is as manifest as the golden rays of the midday sun that the distressing cry of the people for deliverance from extortion, discrimination, and monopolistic greed has frightened the Republican leaders upon the floor of this House into the advocacy of a measure which only two years ago they were denouncing with bitterest invective as communistic and revolutionary.

A year ago I said then, and repeat now, in this Chamber:

The State, or county, or city, or community which secures the largest number of railroads will enjoy the fullest measure of the substantial blessings of life—a condition of well-being, commercial consequence, abundance, affluence, and earthly happiness; the tranquillity and contentment which peace and comfort bring.

Notwithstanding the many advantages which come to the people from well-conducted railway lines, some thoughtless persons have the idea that the description of the beast in the Bible is a peculiarly accurate definition of every railroad corporation: "Dreadful and terrible, and strong exceedingly; and it had great iron teeth: it devoured and brake in pieces, and stamped the residue with the feet of it."

James Mill, in his Essay on Government, says:

"The end of government is to increase to the utmost the pleasures and to diminish to the utmost the pain which men derive from each other."

While this is true, the Justinian rule of conduct, "So use thine own as not to injure another," applies to artificial as well as natural persons.

Of railroads, Mr. Justice Caruthers said:

"The policy of our decisions has been, so far as consistent with the safety of life and property, to encourage and protect this most grand and useful improvement of the age. Every reasonable precaution must be used to avoid injury to others, at the peril of strict and ample accountability. They enjoy almost a monopoly in the business of common carriers, wherever they exist, both as to persons and property. A necessity to patronize them is imposed upon all by the circumstances of the time; all other modes of travel and transportation having been superseded by this, on account of its greater ease and astonishing speed. While, on one hand, the courts should protect them with a strong arm against unjust demands and injuries to their property rights, which popular prejudice may favor or afflict; on the other the security of life and property requires that they should be held to a strict and skillful performance of all the duties imposed on them by law."

But all right-thinking men, I take it, will agree that the duty and obligation above outlined, like all other human duties, have correlative rights and immunities.

A railroad has a dual existence. It is both a private and public corporation. It enjoys some of the attributes of sovereignty. It possesses the right of eminent domain. Upon the payment of just compensation to the owner it can take any man's property for its own uses and purposes, without his consent and against his protest. The law, therefore, wisely imposes, and ought to impose, upon common carriers of passengers and freights for "hire and reward"—an instrumentality so powerful for mischief as well as good—a large measure of responsibility in the performance of the important duties they have contracted to discharge to the general public by virtue of their corporate franchises; and I do not hesitate to declare that rebates, in all their protean shapes and forms, whatever the guise they wear, must cease. On this subject the public have "a fixed opinion."

The people will no longer tolerate the evil. Whenever a railroad company, no matter where it does business, is proven to be guilty of the pernicious habit of granting rebates, by which one customer or patron is given special rates and better facilities in his business transactions than some other customer or patron—an unjust, unlawful, and offensive discrimination, by which the one enjoys an advantage or obtains a profit at the expense or to the pecuniary injury of the other—it is my deliberate conviction that the franchise of that corporation ought to be forfeited, its privileges withdrawn, its corporate life destroyed, its tracks pulled up, and its properties sold at public outcry. It deserves and should receive the death penalty. It is an evil that once existed to an alarming extent in certain sections of the country—one of which the public complained grievously and where they had just cause to complain. It is "a thorn in the flesh."

The railroads themselves admit the wrong and are really anxious to have the nuisance abated; but while condemning in unmeasured terms this baneful practice, it is also true, and but fair to state, that many railway lines have ceased to give rebates in any form; but the bill under consideration, in my humble judgment, is inadequate to eradicate another and peculiar type of the rebate vice, the one more hurtful than all others to shipper, buyer, and consumer. The remedies proposed are merely partial. The overshadowing evil is the special terminals owned by individuals and the private car system. The measure we are now considering lacks the power to prevent the rebates afforded by these private facilities or to stop cut rates, or to regulate private cars and private car lines, or private terminals. When the Republican majority passed the Elkins bill, known as the "antirebate law," they expressly provided it should not apply to private cars or terminals, and it is manifest that the Interstate Commerce Commission will have no authority to prevent these private car owners from getting rebates unless we enact legislation here extending the jurisdiction of the Commission over them.

On this subject the President speaks in resounding tones. In his message he uses this language:

"Above all else we must strive to keep the highways of commerce open to all on equal terms, and to do this it is necessary to put a complete stop to all rebates. Whether the shipper or the railroad is to blame makes no difference; the rebate must be stopped, the abuse of the private car and private terminal-track and side-track systems must be stopped, and the legislation which declares it to be unlawful for any person or corporation to offer, grant, give, solicit, accept, or receive any rebate, concession, or discrimination in respect of the transportation of any property in interstate or foreign commerce whereby such property shall by any device whatever be transported at a less rate than that named in the tariffs published by the carrier, must be enforced."

The owners of these private cars possess an iniquitous advantage over all competitors. The evidence taken down in the hearings before the committee discloses that practically all private refrigerator car lines have been absorbed by the Armour Car Line Company. They charge the railways a fixed mileage under exclusive contracts—agreements not to use any other cars than the Armour brand. It is no wonder, then, that they enjoy a monopoly, not only in the shipment of dressed meats and packing-house products, but also in the transportation of fruits and vegetables and in handling poultry and eggs and the output of the dairy business. These private car companies make enormous profits, "without rhyme or reason," by moving their cars to meet the demands of trade and as business exigencies require from place to place—from the cold latitude, where apples, potatoes, and celery grow, in Michigan, southward, where the red cherries and berries ripen, in Virginia; thence to Georgia, where the peach and melon are produced in luxuriant profusion; thence to the truck-growing regions of Alabama, Florida, and Mississippi; thence westward to California and the golden shores of the Pacific, hauling every year fruits and vegetables from all these States, as well as large quantities of the best oranges on the round globe from Florida and California.

The evidences further show that these private car lines have advanced their charges thrice over within the past six years, say, from $20 per car for a given distance to $55 per car for the same distance.

There can be no doubt that this car trust is a great and growing evil, and some legislation should be speedily enacted to break down the monopoly.

The shipper has no alternative except to patronize the private car system. He is like the young Irishman who enlisted in the army. He said he was forced to volunteer. For instance, it is claimed, and not denied, that the beef trust shippers in Chicago and other great cities get a much lower rate than the ordinary shipper who has to rely on railroad companies for the transportation of his goods.

It is an open secret that men like Rockefeller and Carnegie, by means of their side tracks and private terminal facilities, have been able to secure such low rates for the carriage of their stupendous volume of freights as not only to undersell all competitors, but to destroy all competition as well. As a consequence, they are ranked to-day amongst the richest men in the world.

The bill under consideration, I respectfully insist, does not even touch upon these gigantic evils, these twin monsters of vice, which figure so conspicuously in the transportation problem. Permit me, right here, to state that the Hearst bill contained provisions which did seek to restrain and regulate these mischievous violations of justice and right, but that measure, so far as it related to these propositions, does not appear to have received favorable consideration by the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. My criticism, therefore, is that we are now playing Hamlet with Hamlet left out of the play.

The owners of these private cars contend that they do not come within the provisions of the interstate-commerce act as it now exists. Any measure, I care not from what quarter it may emanate, which does not extend the authority of the Commission over these lines, as mediums of interstate commerce, so as to regulate their charges is lamentably inadequate.

There are numerous business concerns in all sections of the country, having several miles of private side tracks, switching privileges, and terminal facilities. I have not time to enumerate them. These accommodations, by whatever name called, enable the owners to secure special rates, which are but a subterfuge, device, or scheme to cover up and hide from the eyes of the public unjust rebates. They obtain a division of freight on all cars delivered to connecting roads by means of their private terminals, and receive compensation for services rendered which is unfair and excessive. These abuses can not be rectified until these terminal companies are placed under the control of the Interstate Commerce Commission. In their last report the Commission say:

"The terminal road is, in our judgment, one of the most dangerous means for the preferring of favored shippers at the present time, and we earnestly call the attention of Congress to this situation. * * * The important thing to which we call attention is the growth of these practices. Until recently it is our impression that they have been largely confiend to a few instances. To-day they are extending in all directions, and unless checked must soon become general."

A crisis evidently is at hand. Great economic problems confront us.

The Democratic party is the party of the masses, the Republican party is the party of the classes.

Talk to me, if you please, of a third party—of a people's party. The Democratic party is the people's party, and there can never be any other people's party so long as the people themselves love liberty and respect popular rights.

The Democratic party has not yet accomplished its mission, nor lost its power to do good.

The bill now under consideration does embrace within its provisions, and seeks to regulate them, the private-car and side-track evils, and in that respect, if in none other, it is a far better measure, more remedial and beneficial, than the Esch-Townsend bill, which passed the House twelve months ago, just in time to receive its deathblow in the Senate.

But the people are concerned about other matters beside the railroad-rate question and the regulation of commerce between the States and Territories. Their solicitude takes a wider range. It goes out to the family altar, the rooftree, the fireside. It is the domestic hearthstone that throws around us its benign, Christian, and cheering influence. However humble, it is alike a shrine of our affections—a school of our hearts.

It is the duty of Congress, therefore, to safeguard that most hallowed of all earthly habitudes—the American home—which should be a place of peace, a shelter from doubt, an abode of love, watched over by household gods upon whose altars burn the incense of heaven; a hive "where all beautiful feelings cluster like bees and their honey dew bring;" a temple of holy revealings; not merely four square walls, "though hung with pictures and gilded," but a domicile in which our attachments have sway and "where the heart has builded." The hand of this powerful Government ought not to lift the door latch to admit within the sacred precincts of the home, where wife, mother, and loved ones abide, the distilled damnation poured out from the dramshops of contraband liquor traders. I take advantage of this occasion, while this body is in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, to invite attention to the lamentable fact that, for the sake of filthy lucre alone, unredeemed by a single palliating circumstance, Congress has become the aider and abettor of crime by authorizing the Treasury Department of the Government to grant legal permits to persons to engage in the liquor traffic in communities where such business is prohibited by local laws.

To cure this evil, I introduced at this session the following bill:

A bill to prevent the United States from issuing a license to any person to sell spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors or other intoxicating beverages in any community where the sale thereof is prohibited by State or local laws.

Be it enacted, etc., That from and after the passage of this act it shall be unlawful for any official or governmental employee in the Revenue Service of the United States or in any other department of the Government to issue a license, give a tax receipt, or grant a legal permit to any person, firm, or corporation authorizing the sale or other disposition of any spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors or other intoxicating beverages in any community under the jurisdiction of the United States whereven and wherever the sale or other disposition thereof is prohibited by State or local laws, and any such license, if issued, shall be a nullity and afford no shield or protection to the holder thereof.

SEC. 2. That any person violating the provisions of this law shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and upon conviction shall be fined a sum in double the amount of the license so issued.

SEC. 3. That all laws and parts of laws in conflict herewith be, and the same are hereby, repealed.

Some other bills have been offered having the same beneficent aim in view.

Now, indulge me, please, for a little while to say a few words in advocacy of this bill. I am not wedded to any special measure, but unquestionably some legislation to suppress the evil herein complained of is imperatively demanded.

The newspaper editorials, memorials from temperance organizations, resolutions from religious bodies, letters from prominent and influential gentlemen, now on file with the Committee on Ways and Means, earnestly indorsing this bill, which I had the honor to introduce at an early day of the present session, speak more eloquently than I am able to do in favor of the proposed legislation, and give better reasons than I can assign why this much-needed relief should not be withheld.

The granting of a legal permit to sell intoxicating liquors either by Federal or State government is not a vested or contract right, but a mere privilege, which can be taken away or revoked by the sovereign power at its own pleasure or discretion at any time, even after a license has been issued to the vendor; and that, too, when a cash consideration has been paid by him under a valid legislative enactment expressly authorizing a sale thereof by him upon his paying for and taking out a license to carry on such business.

The supreme court of my State—Alabama—in the case of Powell v. The State (69 Ala., p. 10), held several years ago that when the defendant had paid a price and obtained a license to sell spirituous, vinous, or malt liquors and other intoxicating beverages in the county of Lowndes under a statute then in force authorizing such sale, and subsequently the legislature repealed the law without providing for any refund of the tax, he was not entitled to recover back the license money so paid by him; nor was he any longer legally warranted in carrying on the business of a retail liquor dealer under such statute or license. Under these circumstances, and upon this state of facts, our highest judicial tribunal affirmed a judgment of conviction rendered against the defendant in the lower court.

In reaching this conclusion the State supreme court decided, of course, that there was no such contractual relations existing between the defendant Powell and the State of Alabama as would make that provision of our Constitution against impairing the obligations of a contract operative or applicable, and that the State in granting authority to Powell to sell liquors in Lowndes County had not entered into a binding contract with him nor conferred any vested right upon him, but had merely issued to him a permit or license, revocable at the option of the legislative department of the Commonwealth. But as I have the volume before me containing this decision just referred to supra, it is, perhaps, better that I take the facts and read the text of the court's opinion directly from the book itself.

Briefly stated, the facts of that case were substantially as follows: At the spring term, 1881, of the circuit court of Lowndes County, in the State of Alabama, the grand jury returned an indictment against the defendant, charging in one count that he "did sell vinous or spirituous liquors without a license and contrary to law," and, in another count, that he "did sell, give away, or otherwise dispose of vinous, spirituous or malt liquors or intoxicating bitters or beverages within 5 miles of Rehoboth Church, in Crenshaw County." The evidence introduced on the trial showed that Powell, shortly before the indictment was preferred, had sold a pint of whisky, at his store, to a certain purchaser within 3 miles of said church, which was located, not in Lowndes County, where the defendant lived, but in the adjoining county of Crenshaw; that he had previously duly applied for and obtained a license as a retailer under the general law, which at that time was in full force, and that the amount he paid therefor had never been refunded to him.

This being all the evidence, the trial court refused, at defendant's written request, to charge the jury that if they believed the evidence they must find him not guilty; but, on the contrary, the presiding judge instructed them to find him guilty. Thereupon the jury returned a verdict of guilty, and from that judgment of conviction the defendant appealed to the Supreme Court. The judgment of the circuit court was affirmed.

It will be observed that the indictment charged the defendant with the violation of a local law, within 5 miles of a designated church, in a county other than that in which he then resided, and as being contrary to the provisions of a special statute, only recently enacted, prohibiting the sale of spirituous liquors within a radius of 5 miles of said church.

On appeal the constitutionality of the act was assailed, but upheld. The language employed by the court is, in part, as follows:

It is immaterial that the defendant had obtained a license to engage in the liquor traffic, and was doing business under it at the time of the passage of the act under consideration. Such a license was a mere permit, revocable at the option of the State. It was in no sense a contract between the licensee and the State within the meaning of the Federal Constitution, which prohibits the States from passing any law impairing the obligations of contracts, or within the meaning of a similar clause in our own constitution. It is settled by the vast weight of authority that such licenses can be revoked by the legislative department at pleasure. (Citing Cooley's Constitutional Limitations, 282–283; Fell v. The State, 20 American Reports, 83; Boyd v. Alabama, 94 U. S. Reports, 645, and authorities there cited.)

I did not intend to address the House along this line, and would not have thought to do so now but for the suggestion, which I understand was made before the Ways and Means Committee, to the effect that if the United States Government should refuse, even under an inhibitory law of Congress, to give a permit to a particular person to sell liquors in a community in which such sale is prohibited by law, then, in that event, such person could not be convicted whenever tried in a Federal court, for the reason that he, having applied to the proper department of the Government for a license and not having obtained it, would be authorized by natural right to proceed to do business without it—or words in substance to that effect—and that, under this condition of affairs, publicity was the only avenue of hope left open to us. Surely this position, in my judgment, is untenable—an entire misconception of the law as applicable to this class of cases—certainly so far as I understand it.

Now, I desire to emphasize the declaration that upon no principle of justice, equity, or fair dealing can this great Republic be justified in granting a legal permit, for a moneyed consideration, to any person, no matter who he may be, whether of high or low degree, to violate a State law in any community throughout the broad limits of this country, I care not where that locality may be, in which prohibition prevails. It is an invasion of the domain of State sovereignty; and to do so, in plain English, is to encourage and sanction ab initio the infraction of State statutes by vicious men, whose brazen-faced effrontery stalks forth for public imitation in defiance of law—men who are afraid to face the constituted power of the Federal Government as displayed by Federal courts, because, forsooth, they feel sure of conviction by Federal juries drawn outside the vicinage where the offense was committed, selected from neighborhoods far away from corrupting local influences and environments. These "dead falls" and "blind tigers," operated as they are in violation of State laws, carried on clandestinely in places where police protection can not be afforded, patronized and supported by ignorant and venal men, for the most part by the worst element of a negro population, so far as my State is concerned, are utterly demoralizing as well as destructive of the repose and well-being of society and are productive of numerous and heinous crimes.

These dens of iniquity are veritable hotbeds of vice and all licentiousness. They lead to untold evils, such as murder, arson, rapine, and robbery, and entail upon rural communities every earthly ill and human woe. The people will not be slow to condemn any political party that forms a league with criminals; that enters into a partnership with lawbreakers.

In this connection I ask the reading of an article from the Alabama Christian Advocate, which I now send to the Clerk's desk. It reflects the sentiments of the law-abiding citizenship of the country.

The Clerk read as follows:

[From Alabama Christian Advocate.]

SOME NEEDED LEGISLATION.

Hon. A. A. WILEY, Representative from the Second district of Alabama, has introduced a bill in Congress that should speedily become a law. The purpose of the bill is to prevent the issuance of Federal liquor license in territory where the State law prohibits the sale of liquor. Such a law will go far toward destroying the blind-tiger evil, and from the standpoint of justice alone our people should have the relief and protection which this law will give. The United States Government, through its internal-revenue department, will issue a liquor license in any territory without regard to State or county prohibition laws. More than that, the State law making the holding of a Government license for the sale of intoxicating liquors prima facie evidence that the person was engaged in the sale thereof, has been practically nullified by a ruling of the Treasury Department that a State court had no power to compel a collector of internal revenue to come into court and bring his books and give evidence as to the license issued by him. Is it not time that our General Government cease this business of licensing crime? We have been very zealous for our State's rights, and justly so, we think; and yet we have long submitted to this injustice.

It is true our county officials should be more vigilant and do more toward destroying blind tigers, but in some instances they are indifferent, and again when they would make the attempt to bring the criminals to justice there are influences that make their efforts fruitless in many instances.

No fair-minded man can object to Mr. WILEY's bill. Every man interested, not merely in prohibition, but in the enforcement of law, must indorse it as fair and just.

Mr. WILEY of Alabama. I have not exaggerated any of the facts, but have stated the naked truth. For these reasons, there is an overwhelming sentiment amongst the people I have the honor to represent in Congress behind this or any other similar bill which will have even a remote tendency to bring them freedom from the baneful consequences flowing from conditions existing in several localities, not only in my Congressional district, but throughout the entire land. "Every inordinate cup is unblessed, and the ingredient is a devil."

Let us do our duty fearlessly and honestly. Obligations confront us. If we fail to meet them bravely and patriotically, misfortune will overwhelm us and calamity will follow in our train.

In the words of the immortal Shakespeare—

Oh, that men should put an enemy into their mouths to steal away their brains, and that we should with joy, revel, pleasure, and applause transform ourselves into beasts.

[Applause.]

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I can not hope to equal in eloquence the gentleman from New York [Mr. COCKRAN] who has just preceded me or the leader of the minority in the House, the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] who will follow me, but I beg your indulgence while calling attention to the magnitude of the interests which we seek to interfere with, the evils which the country now suffers from, and the method of relief offered by the pending measure introduced by the distinguished statesman and patriot, the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN], whose courage and whose persistence have succeeded in bringing the bill before the House with the unanimous support of our committee. In future history it will be noted as a remarkable occurrence, that in giving consideration to this great political and economic question the twelve Republicans and six Democrats of that committee have put aside the spirit of partisanship, have kept down mere individual judgment, and in the effort to accomplish a great result have unanimously directed their attack to the main point in controversy and have presented to this House a bill which includes the individual opinion of no member, but the best judgment of all the membership of that great committee.

THE RAILWAY INTERESTS.

The railroads can not be crippled without directly injuring the transportation service which they render. They can not be injured without affecting the financial condition of the country, and an injury to the general financial condition is felt by all branches of industry. The railway interests are so enormous and have so many persons employed that they are entitled to receive the most careful consideration before any legislative action is taken which might prove detrimental to them. The 216,000 miles of direct line of road, the 300,000 miles of trackage, the 1,300,000 employees, the gross earnings of $2,100,000,000, the freight-service charges of $1,500,000,000, the operating expenses of nearly $1,400,000,000 represent an industry of such vast proportions and so interwoven and connected with the success or failure of every other industry and so interdependent upon the growth and prosperity of each and every locality that it is not to be lightly dealt with or treated with malice or handled with hysterics.

Over 70 per cent of the railway stocks of this country paid no dividends in the year 1897, which was an ordinary year. Over 42 per cent, or $2,696,000,000, of railway stocks paid no dividends in 1904, which was a fat year. A business which increased its gross earnings from a little over $1,200,000,000 in 1898 to nearly $2,000,000,000 in 1904 and $2,100,000,000 in 1905, which increased the amount paid to railway employees from $495,000,000 in 1898 to $817,000,000 in 1904, which increased the average cost of running a train 1 mile from 95 cents in 1898 to $1.31 in 1904, while the average revenue for 1 ton of freight carried 1 mile only increased from 0.754 of 1 cent in 1898 to 0.780 of 1 cent in 1904, which carried, in 1904, 1,300,000,000 tons of freight, including that received from other carriers, and received therefor $1,379,000,000, or about $1 a ton, is not to be treated as a public enemy.

It is easy to see that the fixing of railway traffic rates is a work involving tremendous difficulties, which can only be illustrated and which can not be defined or comprehended. Let me give you an illustration: Persons employed by the railroads may be engaged in connection with the actual transportation of freight or passengers, or the maintenance of right of way and structures, or the maintenance of equipment, or in general administration. The final object of the road is the actual transportation, so that everything in the way of expenses, except actual transportation, is in its nature preparatory for actual transportation itself. The cost of actual transportation on two roads might be about the same, but the cost of preparation might be very different. For instance: In the New England States there are two railroad employees engaged in actual transportation for every one employee engaged in maintenance of right of way and equipment, while on the Pacific coast two persons are engaged in maintenance for every one person engaged in actual transportation. It is often necessary for a road to carry freight at rates which but little more than pay the cost of the actual transportation, for without such carriage the actual cost of other freight transported might be considerably increased. It is often necessary for roads to carry freight at rates which in addition to paying the actual cost of transportation contribute something more than the cost of mere wear and tear of equipment and right of way, but which do not contribute anything toward fixed charges or dividends.

The successful railway manager must in some way secure business enough for his road at such rates as in their totality will pay not only the cost of actual transportation, but will also pay the cost of maintenance of way and structures, cost of maintenance of equipment, cost of general administration, taxes, interest on bonds, and other fixed charges, and still show some profit on the balance sheet, or else his road goes into bankruptcy and he goes into oblivion. That all freight can not be charged for on the same basis is self-evident to every one. White diamonds and black diamonds must have different rates. Rates must be adjusted in such a way as to be fair to the capital invested in the road and also fair to the persons using the road for the accommodation of their business. This is not easy to do.

In the group of States including New York, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, Delaware, and Maryland there is a railroad stock issue of $1,364,000,000, and the railways reported for the fiscal year 1904 (the last report published) the carriage of 414,000,000 tons of freight; while on the Pacific coast there was a stock issue of $759,000,000 and only 42,000,000 tons of freight carried.

In this same group of New York and Pennsylvania the mileage of loaded freight cars going north and east was 985,000,000; going south or west, 572,000,000; while the mileage of empty freight cars going north and east was 221,000,000 and going south and west 627,000,000; and of the total mileage of freight cars in the last reported year, out of a total of 14,353,000,000 miles traveled by the cars, 31 per cent, or four and a half billions, was mileage of empty freight cars. The difficulty in the way of fixing rates includes the consideration of the loaded car, the movement of the loaded train, and the movement of the empty train, the trend of the loaded cars, and the trend of the empty cars. If the cars are moved loaded to a point, they must either be returned loaded or empty eventually to the starting point or to some other starting point. And the difficulty in the way of understanding rate making is largely comprehended in the fact that the railway manager must at all times consider that having moved a car with a load in it he must either move the car back empty or find another load at some rate which will more than pay the expenses added to it by carrying its load.

I think it might be proper to give a few of the figures with reference to the railways. The railway stocks amount to $6,359,000,000, the funded debt to $6,873,000,000, making an aggregate capitalization of $13,231,000,000. About 20 per cent is owned by the railways themselves. The average capitalization is $64,000 per mile, to which should be added $4,200 per mile on account of current liabilities. The railway capitalization of this country, with 216,000 miles, is a little over $13,000,000,000. The railway capitalization in Great Britain and the European continent, with 149,000 miles, is over $18,000,000,000. So that the total capitalization of our roads is not excessive; but we ought to understand, also, that the amount of stock and bonds is not, after all, a fair criterion of the amount of value of the roads.

The total number of persons employed on the roads for the year 1904, was 1,296,000, or 611 to each 100 miles, and of these there were engaged in actual transportation 566,000 persons; engaged in the maintenance of equipment, 261,000; engaged in the maintenance of way and structures, 415,000; in general administration, 48,000.

The total number of freight cars in the country, excluding all private cars, for which no report is received, was 1,692,000, and of these there were 310,000 20-ton cars. The 20-ton car was the car a few years ago. Now the 30-ton car is the principal car, and of these there are 707,000. But there are 260,000 40-ton cars, 107,000 50-ton cars; then there are some cars up to 75 tons.

While the cars have been increasing in capacity, the locomotives have likewise; and if it were not for the fact that there have been increased economies in railway transportation the rates could not be so low as they now are. One of the needs of the future will be to increase still further the economies in transportation.

These figures show that in dealing with this subject it is necessary for Congress not to deal unjustly with the railroads. We can not afford to take the position that we will deprive the investors in the capital of the railways of a fair return upon their investment.

In the year 1904 there were $2,696,000,000 of stocks which paid no dividends; there were $78,000,000 more which paid not to exceed 2 per cent; there were $112,000,000 more which paid not to exceed 3 per cent; there were $178,000,000 more which paid not to exceed 4 per cent; there were $928,000,000 more which paid not to exceed 5 per cent. So that the total payment of dividends on the aggregate capitalization of the railroads was about 3 per cent, and of the total $2,000,000,000 of gross receipts less than 10 per cent of it, or $183,754,236, found its way eventually into the pockets of the owners of the stock.

Another illustration of the difficulties between different localities of the country in the fixing of the rate may be seen in the case of the group of roads lying east of Illinois and west of Pennsylvania, as compared with the group of States lying west of Indiana and east of the Missouri River.

In the Indiana and Ohio group the railways paid $124,000,000 to the employees and carried 292,000,000 tons of freight, while in the Illinois and Iowa group there was an expenditure of $152,000,000 to employees and they carried only 225,000,000 tons of freight. The expenditure to employees in the Indiana and Ohio group was $28,000,000 less than in the Illinois and Iowa group and the number of tons of freight carried was over 60,000,000 more.

These facts illustrate how difficult it is to make comparisons of freight rates, how difficult it is to determine what shall be the rate at this point and what shall be the rate in that locality, and yet, Mr. Chairman, I am as firmly convinced as one can be of the necessity of the passage of a bill like this. It is with me a belief that it is absolutely necessary, both for the interests of the shippers and the interests of the railway, that there shall be placed between them a disinterested body which shall decide conflicting questions which may arise. [Applause.]

Mr. STERLING rose.

Mr. MANN. I will yield to the gentleman.

Mr. STERLING. The gentleman gave the per cent of dividends on the stock; has he the figures of the percentage of dividends on the actual value of the railroad property?

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, nobody knows what the actual value of the railroad property is. As I said, the amount of capital stock is no fair criterion. Much of the capital stock of the road is not intended to ever pay dividends; much of the capital stock of the road was issued and is held solely to control the ownership of the road and for use in stock gambling. Much of the stock of the roads is far less than the actual value of the road.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. The gentleman mentioned that about 20 per cent of the capitalization of the railroads was owned by the railroads themselves. I desire to know whether he means that it is owned by the roads in their corporate capacity or by the managers and directors individually?

Mr. MANN. Owned by the railroads in their corporate capacity. The railroads own in their corporate capacity $1,942,000,000 of stock of other railroads, and they also own $558,000,000 of bonds of other railroads.

RATE REGULATION NEEDED.

Now, Mr. Chairman, without any intention to in any way deal with this question from the standpoint of passion or hysterics, with no idea on the part of this Congress or any desire on the part of the people to interfere in the slightest degree with all the labor and action necessary for the proper equipment and management of railways, let us see what it is that we propose to do in this case. And, first, I will trespass upon your time to the extent of calling attention to what the President stated in his message, not merely because the President stated it, but because his statement is as good a statement of the case in a few words as has ever been made. In his message of a year ago the President said:

> While I am of the opinion that at present it would be undesirable, if it were not impracticable, finally to clothe the Commission with general authority to fix railroad rates, I do believe that, as a fair security to shippers, the Commission should be vested with the power, where a given rate has been challenged and after full hearing found to be unreasonable, to decide, subject to judicial review, what shall be a reasonable rate to take its place; the ruling of the Commission to take effect immediately, and to obtain unless and until it is reversed by the court of review.

And in his recent message he said:

In my judgment the most important provision which such law should contain is that conferring upon some competent administrative body the power to decide, upon the case being brought before it, whether a given rate prescribed by a railroad is reasonable and just, and if it is found to be unreasonable and unjust, then, after full investigation of the complaint, to prescribe the limit of rate beyond which it shall not be lawful to go—the maximum reasonable rate, as it is commonly called—this decision to go into effect within a reasonable time and to obtain from thence onward, subject to review by the courts.

It is not improper for me to call the attention of the House to the fact that in the first report which I submitted to this House from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, which was a minority report filed in the House January 24, 1898, I stated that in my opinion Congress "is also called upon to enact legislation which will authorize the Interstate Commerce Commission or some other national authority to prevent excessive or unreasonable rates and to decide what are reasonable, fair, and compensatory rates, both as to passenger and freight traffic." I have remained of that opinion ever since.

It will be noticed that in the Presiednt's first message he recommended that power be given the Commission to fix absolute rates, although he did not use the term "absolute rates." In his second message he suggested the power to fix maximum rates.

PROVISIONS OF THE BILL.

Now, you wish to know what we have attempted to do through the Hepburn bill. Let me briefly enumerate the main propositions of this measure. What does the bill do?

(a) Enlarges definition of the common carriers covered by putting under the provisions of the act all railroads transporting passengers or property from one State to another, without regard to whether they are used for such transportation under a common control or arrangement or for continuous shipment, thus permitting the establishment by the Interstate Commerce Commission of compulsory through routes for shipment where the companies have failed to establish such through routes, and the authority to do this is expressly conferred upon the Commission.

(b) Enlarges the definitions of the terms "railroad" and "transportation" by expressly including under the one all terminal facilities and under the other services in connection with the receipt, delivery, elevation, and transfer in transit, ventilation, refrigeration or icing, storage, and handling of property transported when such services are not exempt from the provisions of the act as stated therein.

(c) Provides that the schedules of tariffs shall state separately icing charges and other charges which the Commission may require.

(d) Provides for thirty days' public notice before change of tariff schedules can be made, instead of ten days for increase and three days for reduction now required.

(e) Empowers the Commission, when finding any existing rates unreasonable, etc., to prescribe the reasonable maximum rates for the future; which rates shall go into effect after thirty days' notice, and remain in effect during the term of three years' observance.

(f) Empowers the Commission to prescribe what regulations or practices in respect to transportation are just, fair, and reasonable, and requires their observance.

(g) Authorizes the Commission to apportion the division of through rates and the terms and conditions under which through routes shall be operated.

(h) Provides that the allowance made by the carrier to the owner of the property transported for service, private cars, etc., furnished by him, shall be no more than is just and reasonable, and the Commission may determine the maximum charge to be allowed.

(i) Provides a forfeiture of $5,000 against any carrier, or officer or agent thereof, failing to obey an order prescribing the maximum rates or prescribing regulations or practices observed, and makes every distinct violation a separate offense.

(j) Requires the United States courts to enforce the orders of the Commission, when it appears that the order was regularly made and served, by injunction or other mandatory process.

(k) Provides for the keeping of uniform books of account and memoranda, partly to aid in the gathering and compilation of statistical information and partly to prevent the payment of secret rebates or other preferences.

THROUGH ROUTES.

You may ask what is the purpose of enlarging the definition of common carriers in such a manner as to permit the Interstate Commerce Commission to establish through routes and through rates. Let me give just one illustration. The Standard Oil crowd are great owners of railroad stocks. They are interested not only in the stock of the Standard Oil Company, but they are interested in and owners of great masses of railroad stocks. They have their influential men upon the boards of directors of many railroad companies. They own pipe lines of their own. These pipe lines are not common carriers. The oil which they transport is transported through their pipe lines. Competitors of the Standard Oil Company usually do not own a pipe line. Take, for instance, a case where oil is to be transported from the interior to the Atlantic seaboard. The Standard Oil Company owns a pipe line. Their competitors do not own pipe lines. The Standard Oil Company hence does not care for the establishment of through routes and through rates on the shipment of oil. Their competitors have frequently found that they could not obtain a through rate, but were compelled to pay the sum of the local rates of the different roads over which the oil must be shipped in order to pass from the interior point to the seaboard.

By this bill we propose that the Interstate Commerce Commission shall have the power, if no through rate now exists on oil from Cleveland to Boston, to establish a through route, and to fix the through rate, and to divide that rate among the roads which constitute the through route. Under the terms of the present interstate-commerce law, the two roads connecting with each other are not covered under the act for the purpose of a through route, unless they make a through bill of lading; but under the terms of the pending bill, if two carriers are otherwise engaged in interstate commerce, and hence come under the terms of the law, they can not lawfully refuse to give a through bill of lading and make a through rate and a through route, and, if they do, the shipper who is injured may appeal to the Interstate Commerce Commission and secure relief.

Mr. MURDOCK. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a question?

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman yield?

Mr. MANN. Certainly.

Mr. MURDOCK. In the proviso at the end of that section providing for the establishment of a through route, taking the language "if no satisfactory route exists," does the word "satisfactory" there go to the rate—satisfactory and reasonable?

Mr. MANN. If a satisfactory route exists, there is no occasion to require the establishment of the new route. It does not go to the question of the rate, because the Commission already has the power under other provisions of the bill to make that rate on the already established route reasonable if it be not reasonable. In addition to the power to establish through routes we enlarge the term "railroad" and the term "transportation" for the purpose of including all of the facilities of transportation.

Mr. DRISCOLL. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield?

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman yield?

Mr. MANN. Certainly.

Mr. DRISCOLL. The gentleman has studied this question so very carefully and is so able a lawyer that I will ask him whether or not the bill will permit companies to grant free passage or transportation to passengers.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, the original interstate-commerce law, and in that respect this bill does not interfere with it, probably prohibits the granting of free transportation.

Mr. DRISCOLL. Will this permit cut rates or half-price tickets, according to the judgment of the gentleman?

Mr. MANN. This bill does not interfere in any way with that question. There is a section in the law as it now exists upon the statute books authorizing the granting of excursion rates, authorizing the granting of mileage tickets and such things as that, but not providing for "cut rates," so called, except in that way. That is not interfered with by this bill.

REASONABLE MAXIMUM RATES.

The principal provision in this bill is giving the Commission power to prescribe reasonable maximum rates for the future. The distinguished gentleman from Texas [Mr. RUSSELL], who so ably instructed and entertained the House a few nights ago, criticised the President and marred his speech by his unjust criticism that the President had used the term "reasonable maximum rates" with an innuendo—with the intention to accomplish something besides the fixing of a reasonable rate which should be the maximum.

Why, Mr. Chairman, the term "reasonable maximum rates," which seems new to my Democratic friends in the House, was in the first law passed on the subject. Illinois was a pioneer in this legislation, and in the original act in that State the power was given to the railroad and warehouse commission to fix "reasonable maximum rates," and that was given by the Iowa law and by the laws of other States. It is a term as well known as any ordinary term in legislative acts, but when the distinguished Members of the minority side of the House not familiar with these acts of some of the Northern States raised the question we promptly changed the wording; but the President of the United States used the language with fair intent to accomplish the purpose which we seek to accomplish in this bill.

The gentleman from Texas [Mr. RUSSELL], who is a new and valued addition to our committee, stated in his speech that none of the bills introduced in Congress provided for a maximum rate. Mr. Chairman, in the bill which I introduced on the 24th of last February it was provided that the rate of freight, etc., "found by the Commission to be reasonable and just shall be the maximum charge or rate of freight demanded," etc. The distinction between the power to fix an absolute rate and the power to fix a maximum rate is one of vital interest and importance. The power to fix generally absolute rates is the power to destroy competitive forces, to paralyze industries, to injure railroads, to interfere with all of the principles and methods of modern business life; while the power to fix a maximum rate is a power which has been exercised and construed in many of the States and which does not prevent the continuance of those competitive forces so essential to the preservation of a proper distribution of railway traffic and so vital to the prosperity both of railroads and to shippers.

Mr. Chairman, the language of section 15 of the interstate-commerce act, as proposed to be amended by this bill, is carefully prepared. Under the interstate-commerce act it was construed by the Interstate Commerce Commission they had the power to fix a great many rates in one case. The Maximum Rate case has been referred to here, where the Commission attempted to fix all rates of the six classes of freight for the entire country south of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi River in one order.

What do we propose to do here? We do not give to the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to fix rates. We say by legislative act what the rate shall be. The Legislature defines what the rate shall be. The rate shall be just, reasonable, and fairly remunerative. That is a legislative declaration as to the rate just as much as though we said the rate shall be 50 cents a hundred pounds. We make the declaration ourselves, we do not confer upon the Interstate Commerce Commission any legislative authority or any judicial authority. We say as a matter of legislative act that the rate shall be just, that the rate shall be reasonable, that the rate shall be fairly remunerative, and then we leave to the Commission the administrative power to determine what in each particular case is the just, reasonable, and fairly remunerative rate. We do not confer upon the Commission the power to put these rates into force in the future. That is a legislative act. We authorize the Commission to find what the reasonable, just, and fairly remunerative rates are and then we say by the act that this order of theirs shall go into effect; so that the Legislature finds what the rates shall be and puts those rates into force; and all the Commission is given power to do is the administrative act of making the computation, as it were, ascertaining the facts in a particular case as to whether the rates are complying with the provisions of law which we make, and if they are not, then we put new rates into force by our act.

Mr. MACON. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. MANN. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. MACON. I am very sincere in the belief that there is not a more conscientious legislator in this body than the gentleman from Illinois [applause], and for that reason I ask him the direct question if he does not think that the line between a close together he can hardly tell where one begins and the other ends? Now, I understand that a maximum reasonable rate is right up to the top of reasonable rates, and the moment you go beyond that in the very slightest degree you then strike an extortionate rate. Now, if the Commission was only allowed to substitute a maximum reasonable for an unreasonable rate, would it be allowed to substitute a rate that would be fairly remunerative to the shippers, producers, and consumers as well as to the railroads?

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I am always delighted to have a conversation with my very distinguished and able friend from Arkansas, and I would be very glad to answer the question if it were involved in the case. I only referred to it before because I thought the gentleman from Texas had done a grave injustice to the President. It is not involved in the bill which we now have before us and the question could not be answered in a sentence or two.

Mr. MURDOCK. Mr. Chairman——

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Illinois yield?

Mr. MANN. I yield.

Mr. MURDOCK. Can you conceive of a rate that would be just and reasonable and at the same time not fairly remunerative?

Mr. MANN. I do not think they mean the same. "Unjust" applies to discriminations, "unreasonable" to value of service or amount. "Fairly remunerative" means that there shall be remuneration for the service rendered which shall be fair to the railroad and to the shipper in that particular case. What may be fairly remunerative in one case might be confiscatory if applied to another case, and what may be fairly remunerative for one commodity under particular circumstances may mean ruin to the company or the shipper if applied in the same ratio to all of the business. A large share of the freight charges to-day are so low they contribute little or nothing toward the fixed charges of the road, and yet it is profitable for the railroads to carry such freight at these fairly remunerative rates. Any scheme of rate making which did not authorize the Commission in making the rates to take into consideration all of the circumstances and conditions surrounding the movements and character of the traffic would be a definite injury to business instead of a benefit. It may be that the term "reasonable" would meet the case, though that has a defined, common-law meaning, which ought to be avoided. If the common-law meaning of the term "reasonable" were applied to all the freight rates now in the United States it might perhaps raise half of them.

The Commission, in fixing a freight rate, must take into consideration not merely the rate upon the particular commodity involved between the points named, but must also take into consideration the general character of business upon the road and what other commodities pay between other points. If the Commission, in fixing a maximum rate, is required to fix a rate which, in addition to paying the cost of the actual transportation, pays its share of the cost of maintenance of right of way, structures, and equipment and also its proportion of the cost of fixed charges, and leaves something for dividends, it is plainly manifest that the Commission must proceed upon different lines in fixing rates from the lines now followed by railway officials. It is not the purpose of the pending measure to lay down new principles for rate making. It is the desire, I take it, to leave the Commission to decide, as the railroads now decide, upon the particular circumstances in each case.

FULL HEARING REQUIRED.

We do not propose to give the Commission authority to make rates ad libitum without full consideration. We confine the authority of the Commission to act after a full hearing. A full hearing is a jurisdictional question with the Commission. If the Commission shall entertain a complaint and make an order covering a thousand rates without a full hearing upon the different rates that order is ineffective. The present law makes no such requirement. The present statute gives to the Commission when complaint is made the power to make an investigation and make an order. We confine in this bill the power of the Commission to make the finding after a full hearing of the case. What is the theory of that? The same that goes through our judicial procedure.

The Commission can not act without the hearing. It is not the purpose of the bill to give the Commission the authority to initiate rates throughout the country. When a complaint is presented and a hearing is had; then we say that the Commission is the best qualified to pass upon the case. Here is the situation. Here are the railroad companies, absolutely necessary to the shipper. The railroads can not continue in business without them. The railroads would go into bankruptcy at once without the shippers. The shippers can not continue in business without the railroad company. The two are essential to each other. The two have grown up so that the railroads and the shippers are intertwined and interdependent on each other. Neither can exist without the other. The railroad depends for its life upon the power of the State; it comes within the control of the Government. It can continue in business only upon terms which Government grants to it. What do we do? We say that the railroads must have freight from the shippers and that the shippers must have the freight facilities offered by the railroads. Who shall decide in case of a conflict between these as to what is the proper rate? Shall the railroads permit the shippers to determine the rate to be paid? Shall the shippers permit the railroads to determine the rates to be paid? Is either one to have the power to control the other? The proper method is to do as we do with all trials of property. The right of shipment is as much a right of property to-day under our system as the right to hold a piece of land or to own a dollar bill. We submit the right of trial of property in a way to a disinterested commission, which, after hearing both sides, shall reach a conclusion.

Now, I have often seen courts for whom I had not a great deal of respect so far as the capacity or ability of the judge was concerned. There are thousands of lawyers in this land just as capable of rendering justice and deciding great questions as the nine eminent gentlemen who sit in this Capitol as the last resort in the determination of justice. But we have learned that an able judge, or one who is not so able, after he has listened to the testimony and after he has been instructed by the counsel, renders a fairer decision than the ablest lawyer does in his own chamber, retained by one side of the case. [Applause.]

Some of the distinguished gentlemen opposing this bill have said that it is the beginning of conferring the rate power. Not at all. We commenced controlling the rate power when the first bill was passed upon this subject. The distinguished gentlemen from Massachusetts [Mr. MCCALL] and Pennsylvania [Mr. SIBLEY] say: "Stop rebates. We are with you upon stopping rebates." Why, Mr. Chairman, the power to stop rebates is the power to control rates. When railroad companies were first organized the railroad owners believed that they had the same right to sell the commodity which they had to sell that any merchant had to sell his commodity, and there was no pretense of giving the same rate to everybody. The railroad would give to this man this rate and to another man, who would bring it large quantities of freight, another rate. It was considered legitimate. It was the same process which we follow in many kinds of business. It was the old idea, now generally exploded, even so far as merchandise selling is concerned, that you sell to the person who wants to buy after bartering and dickering over fixing the price. And when Congress stepped in and said that the railroads could not make rates as they pleased, they could not discriminate between individuals, we then and there took control of the fixing of railroad rates. Would anybody take away that power which we have exercised? Would anybody let the railroads now fix rates as they pleased and discriminate between individuals as they please? And yet it is but a step further to say that, having forbidden them to discriminate between individuals, we shall forbid them to unjustly discriminate between commodities and between localities, and we shall forbid them to charge extortionate rates. This is the exercise of a power which no one questions.

But they say that the power may be wrongly used. Ah, Mr. Chairman, the power of government may always be wrongly used. The judge on the bench may be corrupt, the executive may be bought, the legislature may be bought, every official may become corrupt, but when we fear power because we fear we can not elect honest officials, then we fear self-government, and we abandon republican principles. [Applause.]

I am no more afraid of conferring upon the Interstate Commerce Commission the power, after full hearing, to determine justice between the shipper and the railway company, than I am afraid of conferring upon the Supreme Court of the United States the power which it is now exercising of determining the rights between the State of Illinois and the State of Missouri in a case out there. [Applause.]

"FAIRLY REMUNERATIVE" CONSIDERED.

Mr. MACON. Does not the gentleman believe that if we eliminated the words "fairly remunerative" we would eliminate a somewhat dangerous proposition?

Mr. MANN. Section 15, as we propose to amend it, provides that if the Interstate Commerce Commission, upon complaint and after full hearing, shall be of opinion that any rates charged by the railroads are unjust or unreasonable, etc., the Commission shall prescribe what will, in its judgment, "be the just and reasonable and fairly remunerative rate or rates, charge or charges, to be thereafter observed in such case as the maximum to be charged." I have already endeavored to explain to the House the necessity of inserting the words "fairly remunerative," or words of similar meaning, such as "compensatory," but perhaps I ought to be more explicit.

In the last fiscal year for which full reports have been compiled, the year 1904, we find that there were 641,000,000 tons of freight originating on the lines of railroads making the returns. That of this, over 51 per cent, or 330,000,000 tons, were the products of mines, bituminous coal leading with a tonnage of 174,000,000 tons. The products of the forest aggregated 12 per cent, or 80,000,000 tons, including lumber to the amount of 67,000,000 tons. Grain amounted to 30,000,000 tons; cotton to 3,000,000 tons; live stock to 10,000,000 tons; dressed meats to 1,730,000 tons. Merchandise amounted to less than 5 per cent of the total, or 30,986,689 tons. It is self-evident that merchandise and coal can not be charged the same rate. If bituminous coal were charged the same freight rate that is charged the average product of freight, the cost of coal in many parts of the country would be so great as to compel a change in our method of living.

On every railroad, nearly, you will find that there is an excess of loaded cars going in one direction and an excess of empty cars going in the opposite direction. Less than half the railroad employees are engaged in the actual transportation of freight. More than half of the employees are engaged in maintenance and administration.

Of the $2,000,000,000 collected in the year 1904 as gross receipts by the railroads, less than 25 per cent, or $465,872,674, were paid out by the railroads as net interest on the funded debt and net dividends on stock. A very large proportion of the freight which was carried, known as coarse and bulk freight, probably contributed nothing toward the payment of this interest or dividends. If the freight charge will pay more than the cost of actual transportation and its share of wear and tear of equipment, way, and structures, it brings a profit instead of a loss, provided it would not otherwise be secured; nay, more, it may bring a profit, although not paying so much as the actual cost of transportation if carried in cars which would have to be moved in the same direction anyway, and which otherwise would be moved empty. A freight train may contribute nothing toward the payment of dividends or interest. It may contribute nothing toward the payment of taxes or other fixed charges. It may contribute nothing toward the payment of maintenance of right of way. It may contribute nothing toward the payment of maintenance of equipment; and yet, if it will pay operating expenses, it may be profitable to the road to carry the freight, because it may be in the movement of cars which otherwise would be empty and the cost of movement the same.

"Fairly remunerative" means it may be a rate which, whether it contributes anything toward the payment of fixed charges or not, is, for the service which is rendered in the particular case, fair to the railroad and to the shipper. We propose to give to the Commission the power to say in each case what is a fairly remunerative rate for the service rendered. Each case will depend upon its own facts.

THINGS NOT PROVIDED IN THE BILL.

Mr. Chairman, having discussed somewhat hastily some of the things which the pending bill proposes to do, I beg to call the attention of the House to some things which it does not propose to do.

The bill does not provide for absolute rates.
It does not provide for the compulsory raising of rates.
It does not provide for maximum rates.
It does not provide for differential rates.
It does not provide for arbitrary classification.
It does not provide for permanent rates.

The CHAIRMAN. The time of the gentleman has expired. The gentleman from Georgia is recognized.

Mr. ADAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I will be glad if the gentleman is given time to conclude his remarks.

Mr. HEPBURN. I yield such further time as the gentleman may desire to consume. [Loud applause.]

Mr. SIMS. If it will not interrupt the gentleman too much, I want to ask him a question.

Mr. MANN. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. SIMS. I have received several letters, and among others, petitions from railway employees asking me to oppose this bill upon the ground that if it passed they will lose from their wages. As I have a great respect for the opinion of the gentleman from Illinois, who is a member of the committee, I would like to hear him on that idea.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I think it is very natural that the railway employees may have such fears. When we remember that the wages which are paid to the railroad employees have increased from $495,000,000 six years ago to considerably over $800,000,000 now, an increase of over 65 per cent, it is not to be wondered at that the railroad employees, aided by the arguments and instructions of their distinguished employers, should be besieging Congress with a threat and fear they do not really wish to make, or to believe, that their wages will be reduced.

Mr. Chairman, if I believed that this bill would interfere with the railway business of the country, I would not be in its favor. We depend upon the railroads of the land. We can not strike them down. We can not injure the railways or the employees without greatly injuring the shipping interests of the country.

Mr. HINSHAW. Will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. MANN. Certainly.

Mr. HINSHAW. Has not the same argument always been used by the railway managers and others against every invention for safety appliance that has been introduced and every single item of progress in railway management?

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, after all, in determining a great question like this, we have reached that point where we come to the parting of the ways. The issue has been presented, and it must be met. Shall Government, when the issue is presented, say that the railways may do as they please—may resort to extortion if they choose, without regard to the rights of the Government—or shall we say that properly safeguarded Government shall exercise its right of control to prevent extortion and prevent unjust discrimination?

Now, as I was saying, Mr. Chairman, we do not provide for absolute rates. We do not provide for differential rates. We do not interfere with the construction of the long and short haul clause as it has been made. We do not give to the Commission the power to make arbitrary classifications. It is true that in making a review of rates, if the rate be changed, it may involve a change of the class or it may involve an exception from a class, or it may involve a fixing of a commodity route. But we do not authorize the Commission of its own sweet will to change this article or that, to readjust the classifications of the country, or readjust the freight rates in this arbitrary or initiatory manner. We confine the action of the Commission to the case which is presented and prevent them from arbitrarily injuring any particular locality. We do not give them the power to say which port shall be built up, which city shall be preferred; we leave open the competitive forces of the railways. The old bills which we had sought to stifle competition; we leave competition in force. The railroads running south, west of the Mississippi, and the railroads running east, north of the Ohio, will have to fight out the question as to which road shall carry the grain for export abroad.

We do not seek to determine those questions. Much has been said here in denunciation of the principle of basing points. Whether basing points be right or not, their establishment has been one of the movements of economic forces, which ought not to be idly interfered with while the great question of overconcentration of population in large cities continues to be the problem of the age. It is claimed that basing points tend to build up local distributing centers, and that doing away with basing points would result in many cases in the South and West especially in adding to the business of a few large cities at the expense of minor distributing points, in the same way as it is claimed the establishment of cheap parcels post would result in building up mail-order houses at the expense of the country merchant and the city wholesaler.

Mr. Chairman, it is sometimes much easier to complain about the faults of others than it is to right the faults in ourselves. The grossest discriminations, the most unjust preferences known to-day in the carriage of freight are those which exist under the postal laws and regulations. Here, for instance, are the popular magazines and books in competition with each other. By our postal laws we carry the magazines through the mails from New York to San Francisco for 1 cent a pound, which is far less than the cost of the service. On the other hand, we charge for carrying a book from New York to Philadelphia 8 cents a pound, which is far above the cost of the service. We lose probably not less than $20,000,000 or $30,000,000 a year by the carriage of second-class mail at a cost of 1 cent a pound. We make it up partly from excessive charges levied against books, which are in direct competition with the magazines and newspapers comprising second-class matter.

We propose to confer upon the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to regulate abuses of much less notoriety, while we admit that up to the present time we have been unable to regulate those abuses in the postal service over which we have direct control. It is not surprising that railroad officials, when they notice the incapacity of Government to correct abuses under its direct charge, on account of the political influence of newspapers, magazines, etc., do not desire the railroad business to be placed under the control of a governmental agency which, in the end, may be influenced by the same motives and controlled by the same fear.

But the danger to the railroads of radical railroad legislation is far less than the danger to the business interests. If a commission shall be created which will listen to the conflicting interests of different localities and which shall endeavor to conserve the natural advantages of one community over another, which shall endeavor to fasten upon our country zones of influence and zones of trade, which shall endeavor to interfere with or restrain the active, persistent, and constant competitive forces of commodities and localities, as well as shippers and railroads, we will have entered upon a dangerous, if not a paralyzing, course.

Mr. Chairman, there are some things about this bill which are objectionable to me. The provision fixing a penalty of $5,000 for each distinct violation of an order of the Commission might penalize a road to the extent of millions of dollars a day. That proposition is so unconscionable that if endeavored to be enforced I think the court must hold it unconstitutional. No one, whether he be person or corporation, should be threatened with ruinous fines as a penalty for appealing to the courts of the land for constitutional protection. Probably no attempt would ever be made to enforce such penalties, but I fear that the provision as it stands is unfortunate.

The strongest remedy furnished by the bill is not the fear of penalties, but is the affirmative remedy that the courts shall enforce the lawful order of the Commission by a writ of injunction, mandamus, or other summary process.

I should like to take up for discussion at this point the so-called "court" feature of the bill. I am inclined to think that under this bill the interests of the railroads are properly safeguarded, but I can not, in view of the time fixed for voting upon the bill this afternoon and in justice to the two great gentlemen who are to follow me in this debate, go into that question at this time.

SUMMARY.

Let me then make a summary of the position which I occupy.

I believe that the shipper, with a just complaint concerning the service rendered to him by the railway or the charge therefor, should have an impartial tribunal pass upon this question between him and the railroad company, vital to them both; but I do not believe it advisable or wise for the Government to attempt to reduce to such a low point the earnings of capital invested in railway enterprises as will tend to prevent the investment of new capital. On the contrary, assurance should be given for a reasonable return on the investment. The railroads to-day are wholly inadequate to the existing transportation needs. Many of the lines need double tracking. Some need a third or fourth track. Most of them need better terminal facilities. More rapid transportation is needed for many classes of freight, and particularly for live stock and perishable freight. More safety appliances are required, not only for the benefit of the employee, but for the passenger, and the citizen who is neither. More care should be demanded in the transportation of passengers. Signal systems by which railway collisions will be rendered almost impossible are of as great importance as the question whether the grain business from disputed points shall go to Milwaukee or Minneapolis.

The study of recent years, both as to railway transportation and water transportation, leads me to believe that in the not distant future transportation by rail will be immensely cheapened. We have increased the length, width, and depth, the capacity of steamships and of railway cars; but while we have deepened our harbors we have not widened our railway tracks. An evolution in the construction of railways is inevitable. When it comes, it will require vast sums of capital. It will require confidence on the part of those furnishing the funds that they will receive a fair return for their investment.

The business of the country can not live without the use of the railroads. The railroads can not live without being used by the business interests. The railroads are necessary to the shippers. The shippers are necessary to the railroads. The freight rates determine whether the shipper shall live. The freight rates also determine whether the railroad shall live. If the rates be too high, a particular shipper may be driven out of business. If the rates be too low, the railroad may be driven into bankruptcy. The railroads being a necessity to the shippers and the shippers being a necessity to the railroads, the reasonable plan is in fixing the freight rates to be paid that both shippers and railroads shall come to a mutual agreement after mutual exchange of opinions and positions; but in case the shippers and the railroads are unable to agree, there should be some tribunal to settle the dispute without leaving it wholly to the judgment of one of the interested parties.

That is the proposition in the pending measure. It is proposed to give to the Interstate Commerce Commission, to a limited degree, the rate-making power. The Commission may hear complaints that any particular rates are unreasonably high, or unjustly discriminatory, and may decide what shall be the highest rates to be thereafter charged by the carrier. This will not prevent the carrier, in the face of competition, from lowering its rates, in order to save its share of the business. The Hepburn-Dolliver bill now pending before us is immeasurably superior to the old Nelson-Corliss bill, the Cooper-Quarles bill, or the Esch-Townsend bill of the last session. Those bills proposed to give to the Commission the general power to fix absolute railroad rates which could not be changed, except upon filing a new petition and having a new hearing before the Commission. Those bills enacted into law would have fastened upon the business interests of the country a system of arbitrary and absolute rates entirely unresponsive to the business interests, or the changing conditions of transportation or business. The enactment of any of those bills into law might have proven a catastrophe to the shipping and business interests of the land; but the Hepburn bill, now pending, is very different. True, it confers the rate-making power to an extent upon the Commission, but it permits the Commission at any time, of its own motion, to change its order; it permits a rehearing of the case at any time; it provides that the rate fixed by the Commission shall not be the absolute rate, but only the maximum rate, and it provides that this rate shall be compulsory only for the term of three years. This will give the power to correct the evils which are complained of, but will not give the power to confiscate the property invested in railroads, or to paralyze the business interests of the country and prevent the location and establishment of new industries along the lines of the railroads.

It will not give the Commission the power to determine differentials, the power to say whether grain from the Northwest shall be shipped for export by way of the Gulf ports or the north Atlantic ports, the power to destroy the law of competition, the power to ruin one city or one locality for the benefit of another city or another locality. The former bills were intended to destroy railroad competition. The pending bill invites competition and it preserves all the competitive forces which tend to increase the economy of transportation and reduce the cost thereof.

The fixing of railroad tariffs is the most complex and delicate work now carried on in our country. The interests, the localities, the commodities, the persons interested are as diversified as our land, our productions, and our people. No one set of men ever have or ever can manipulate the delicate mechanism of railway tariffs for all parts of our country, for all commodities produced by us, and for all interests which may be destroyed or upbuilt.

But government must exercise some control. It is as necessary for government to be the judge in the last resort between shipper and carrier as to the rate to be charged, as it is for government to determine the right to any other class of property.

The railroad officials fear that it is dangerous to confer, to any extent, rate-making power upon a governmental agency. Let us admit it. There is some danger. No one can tell how dangerous it might become if fully exercised. But no new legislation is ever enacted without some element of danger in its possibilities. The best guaranty is that the pending measure is conservative. It protects the interests of the shipping community and does not permit the confiscation of the railway properties. The present bill is a compromise measure. It probably does not meet the full views of any one. But the subject is a great one. It is the most stupendous subject in its many ramifications which has ever come before this body. In a sense, we grope in the dark.

This measure is an advance in the complexity of our internal affairs and in the progress of government paternalism. The necessities of the case require us to take this step. We can not avoid it. If properly used in the future, it will be a great advantage to both shippers and railroads. If improperly used in the future, we must trust the people to correct its abuse as we must at all times trust the people to provide safe government and to observe the safeguards of government. [Great applause.]

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. CURRIER). The gentleman from Georgia has twenty minutes remaining, and the gentleman from Iowa one hour and twenty-three minutes.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I think there must be some error about that; there is yet two hours and forty minutes before general debate is closed.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair understood that general debate was to close at half past 3.

Mr. HEPBURN. At half past 4.

The CHAIRMAN. Then the gentleman from Iowa has two hours and twenty-three minutes remaining.

Mr. ADAMSON. I hope the gentleman from Iowa will agree with me in extending the time of the other speakers.

Mr. HEPBURN. I will yield to the gentleman such time as he wants.

Mr. ADAMSON. I will yield, then, to the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] such time as he desires.

Mr. HEPBURN. We will try and divide the time remaining equitably between us.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Chairman, I hardly expect the Chair or the House to believe so improbable a statement when coming from a Member of the House of Representatives, but it is none the less true that I am about to make a speech that I do not want to make. I do not want to make it because there is absolutely nothing left to be said upon this question. So far as this side of the Chamber is concerned, no party was ever at any time served by half a dozen men so well as we have been served by the six Democratic members of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce. [Applause.] No country was ever served more patriotically than they have served this country, with studiousness, with intelligence, industry, and courage. They have seen their way and they have traveled in it. Many records of the House of Representatives will be examined in vain to find any question more exhaustively and better presented for the consideration of the House and the public than this question has been presented in this record by the gentlemen who have represented this side of the Chamber and by some of the gentlemen who have represented that side of the Chamber.

Mr. Chairman, the attitude which the House of Representatives holds to this bill is a rather remarkable one. It is very seldom that the two parties in this House, crossing swords day by day, with partisanship always tense, though sometimes concealed, will unite publicly in presenting a common measure to the country, with the view of having an effect upon public sentiment in the country and upon other legislative quarters for the benefit of the people, regardless of party. Upon this fact, Mr. Chairman, I congratulate the country, because the country as a result of it will get good and much-needed legislation to cure palpable, plain, and obvious evils that threaten all sorts of industries, and not only that, but that threaten something back of and higher than industries—integrity and the business honesty. Because, although these railroad discriminations and rebates and exploitation of one place at the tearing down of another place by the mere brute force of transportation power causes men much loss of money, causes much financial unfairness, it also causes something more than that. It gets into the business world the idea that it is right; that it is at least legal to discriminate against one man in favor of another; that it is at least legal, and hence in a manner right, to deprive citizens of equal business and equal industrial opportunity. I congratulate the country, therefore. I congratulate the Democratic party, because, although in the minority, by constant driving and constant reiteration, a very much cherished Democratic policy is about to triumph under a Republican Administration. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

I need not run over what I ran over at the last Congress—the utterances of Democratic platforms; the bill introduced by the Democratic floor leader for the purpose of bringing about this result before any other bill was introduced; the utterance of the last Democratic platform; the utterances of the temporary chairman of the St. Louis convention, calling upon the Republican party to know whether they were going to stand pat or not upon the then impotent condition and the now impotent condition of the Interstate Commerce Commission, as the tribunal to which these questions have been relegated by Congress. I congratulate the Republican party upon the all-familiar principle that "as long as the lamp holds out to burn, the vilest sinner may return." [Applause and laughter on the Democratic side.] I congratulate the President of the United States, because although this is not his child in the sense of being blood of his blood and bone of his bone and sinew of his sinew, for all of its blood and bone and sinew are Democratic, it is, at least, his adopted child. [Laughter.] I congratulate the President, because having seen the light on his way to Damascus he has become sincerely and honestly converted. I congratulate the Democratic party, furthermore, upon the fact that they have had the President's aid, and I confess frankly that without his aid we never could have budged an inch until we came into power. We love the good of the country so much more than we do mere partisan prestige that we are glad to see this legislation come about by our aid under a Republican Administration, and we are willing to see Republicans get their full share of the credit which the people will give to everybody who is concerned in this consummation.

Mr. Chairman, I might perhaps as a mere matter of variation—Members of Congress being uniformly and almost without exception remarkably modest—congratulate myself to some extent upon the attitude of the House to the bill to-day. As far back as the last Congress I expressed at many places and finally upon this floor the hope that the majority and minority members of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce could agree upon a joint bill so that they could present to the country and to another parliamentary body in another portion of this Capitol a united, undivided, nonpartisan front. I expressed on this floor a willingness if certain amendments I then proffered, which are in this bill, were adopted I would withdraw the then minority bill and vote myself and guarantee on this side a solid vote for the then majority bill. During last summer I had the honor to write to one of the Republican members of the committee, expressing that idea to him, and to the Democratic members of the committee, expressing that hope to them. I want to say now that the bill introduced by the minority members of this committee, in my opinion—the second Davey bill, the one introduced at this session—is the best bill upon this question that ever saw the light [applause on the Democratic side], and this bill does not altogether agree with it; somewhat falls short of it. There are certain particulars in which I would like to amend this bill, so that it might altogether agree with that second Davey bill.

But in that very same breath I want to say that these Democratic members of the committee, having done the very best that they could do, having gotten the very best terms they could get engrafted on the only bill which can pass, having acted, in my opinion, wisely, with the grand strategic and tactical purpose in view of presenting an undivided, nonpartisan front, so that the people, plus the President, plus the House, might constitute a force that no private interest, no railroad-retained instrumentalities anywhere would dare resist, I shall resist amendments to the bill, even though they be the very amendments I want. [Applause.] I say that I agreed with them when they concluded to subordinate to this grand tactical and strategic purpose a lot of minor differences. I want to say that the Republican members of the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce have acted with broad patriotism. The minority members went to them with certain amendments that were sine qua non—that were prerequisite, in their opinions, to any possible agreement—and the members of that committee upon the other side of the Chamber met them in a spirit of broad patriotism, having this same great strategic purpose in view, and agreed to all that they offered—that is, all that were of prime and prerequisite essentiality. Then the minority members in the same spirit conceded some other and minor points of difference, and they thus present us now with the bill which is before the House.

In view of all that, when an amendment is offered upon this side or the other side of the House which would, in my opinion, make the bill better, if amendments are offered to put into this bill provisions of this year's Davey bill (for the minority bill was named the Davey bill because of the senior Democratic member of the committee, just as the other bill was named the Hepburn bill after the chairman of the committee, and both bills took up the Commission's bill as a skeleton and proceeded from that skeleton to subtract and to fill up and reach a conclusion), I say that even if an amendment is offered to put into this bill a provision of the Davey bill bettering it, in my opinion, I shall vote against it, because I am going to stand by the committeemen on this side of the Chamber who have succeeded in bringing about a united and undivided front, so that the power of President, people, and House may exercise its full influence in the country and elsewhere. [Applause.] Now, Mr. Chairman, as for my little mite in bringing about this result, I want to say I never felt prouder of being connected with anything since I have been a national legislator. I think, as I have said upon this floor several times, that he serves his party best who serves his country well, and I think that the minority membership, in connection with this consummation devoutly wished by me and now attained by all of us, have acted with courage, have acted with intelligence, and have acted in a broad spirit of patriotism. We are glad to be met in a like spirit from the other side of the Chamber.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I do not intend to make a long speech. The legal aspects of this case are embedded in the record exhaustively. There can be no doubt of the constitutional power of Congress to do this thing. If there ever had been any doubt before it has been dispersed like the vapors of the early morn when the sun has arisen by the arguments that have been made. I find it strange, Mr. Chairman, that men will strain at gnats and swallow camels every day whenever their own preconceived ideas, their own selfish interest, or the selfish interest of something that they represent leads them to it. I heard one of the most distinguished lawyers of the United States upon this floor the other day deny the right of the Congress of the United States to delegate legislative powers, and yet that gentleman has served with me and with some of the balance of us for years and is familiar with the conspicuous history of the United States and the manner in which Congress has delegated legislative powers a hundred years agone and up to now. The Constitution of the United States does not mention the Territories of the United States except in one clause; Congress shall have the right to dispose of the Territories and "to make rules and regulations" for the government thereof.

Every bit of the power to legislate for Territories is lodged in the United States Congress, and yet the United States Congress has from the beginning of the history of this country delegated that legislative power to the Territorial legislatures, prescribing how it should be elected. It has not abdicated its power. It could not do that. Of course Congress still has the power to do away with the Territorial legislature whenever it pleases—to resume its legislative power, though delegated. Delegatus non delegare does not apply to parliament, but to its creatures or agents. Congress has the power to sit in judgment upon an enactment of the Territorial legislature and to repeal it. Congress has delegated to it, as if it were a tenant at will, certain legislative powers. That is all that it does in this case. The gentleman from Maine [Mr. LITTLEFIELD], for whom I have a very high regard personally and as a public servant, a man of magnificent individuality and courage, who has more than once stood athwart the pathway of a public gust, more than once stood against his own party in the Chamber—a hard thing to do—made a speech the other day which was like every speech he has ever made, powerful of its sort; but after you analyze it, Mr. Chairman, you find that it meant but two things:

First, an impassioned appeal to the Congress of the United States to regard as vested rights certain discriminations which, in his opinion, have built up certain New England cities. He based his argument altogether, almost, upon the fact that if these unjust discriminations, if these "preferentials," as he calls them, were done away with, a great many industries in New England would be injured. I believe he referred especially to the town of Worcester; "that Worcester was absolutely dependent"—this was his language—"on the present preferentials for its prosperity and its industries."

Now, Mr. Chairman, the question comes—and I believe the gentleman from Maine [Mr. LITTLEFIELD] is the last gentleman who would shirk the responsibility of answering the question and ruling his conduct in accordance with the answer—if such preferentials exist, are they just, are they nondiscriminatory, are they fair? If they are such preferentials as are just, nondiscriminative, and fair, then this bill will not interfere with them; if they are preferentials that are unreasonable, unjust, unfair, or discriminatory, will he stand up before the American people and tell them that he wants cities in New England made prosperous and kept prosperous by unjust, unfair, and unreasonable transportation regulations? [Applause.]

That was one part of his speech. Mr. Chairman, there is no vested right in discriminations made by Government-chartered corporations in favor of one person against another, or in favor of one locality against another. There may be a vested wrong, and, if there be, it ought to be done way with just as soon as possible. Ah, Mr. Chairman, it is not without significance that the main opposition to this bill comes from the Northeast. The shareholders, directors, and presidents of the great railroad companies come thence, and they have so fixed so-called "preferentials" and other things—that they call by still more polite names, but the plain English of which is unjust discrimination—as to build up that part of the country in which they are interested against, or at the expense of, that part of the country in which they are not interested.

Mr. Chairman, if discriminations, rebates, and unjust preferentials went to the railroad treasury and through the railroad office to the shareholders as dividends, it would not be so bad; but they do not go that way. There are rings within rings in the management of a railroad company just as we have lately ascertained that there are rings within rings in the management of life insurance companies. Jake Thompson and Tom Williams and Billy Clark—fictitious names, Mr. Chairman—as traffic managers of great systems, meet in a little private room somewhere to arrange joint traffic rates.

They are not so much guided, though they are somewhat guided, by the interests of the railroads which they represent as they are guided by the interests of the ring within the ring where management is concentrated and in the places in which they have investments. I can imagine them now meeting and talking to one another. One says to another about the joint traffic to the town of A, "Let us make that a little lower." "Why? It is already lower than the traffic for equal service to the town of B." "Yes; but Mr. Pierpont Harriman"—a great railroad president, let us say—"has investments in the town of A. It is upon his line, and in making the joint traffic you want to show him this courtesy." The other fellow says: "That is all right; but Mr. James Morgan"—another railroad president—"has investments in the town of C., and that is on his line, and if you will give him preferential rates to C he will agree to give you preferential rates to A." And when you get through you have not built up the railroads which these two fictitious persons represent, but you have built up Pierpont Harriman and James Morgan.

The gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. MCCALL], I believe it was—it was one of the gentleman at any rate—talked about the dangerous power to be lodged in these seven men. Why, of course, the power is dangerous. All power is dangerous.

The power lodged in twelve men to determine whether I shall be hanged or not is dangerous. [Laughter.]

But power has to be landed somewhere, and in the ultimate analysis you have to determine where it is safest to lodge it. Is it safe to lodge this power where it will be exercised in the open by seven public officials, or is it safer to lodge it where it will be exercised in secret, in violation of existing law, as it must be exercised, if exercised at all, and therefore necessarily in secret. Three, four, nine, twelve, fourteen—I do not know just exactly how many traffic managers act as agents of that many great railroad systems, commissioned as agents, not of the systems themselves so much as of "the rings within rings" that control the several systems; not for the benefit of the shareholders, but for the benefit of those who hold the offices in the railroad company. Which is the safer of the two? The gentleman said we would get—I believe it was my friend from Massachusetts, and if there is any man in the House that I admire it is he; he has the independence of an old Roman senator, and he is always showing it, and showing it in this very case, so far as that is concerned—I think it was he who referred to the "power to crush" that we were about to invest in the Commission—that is the language, I believe.

Which would you rather give the "power to crush" to—a public tribunal exercising its functions in public, subject to be visited with public indignation, to be removed, or somebody who is doing the crushing act when you do not know when they are doing it, where they are doing it, nor when done know who did it? The "power to crush!" Ah, yes. We hear a great deal about a railroad building up this place, that, and the other. They make a basic point of this place, that place, and the other and build it up. Did you ever think of the converse side of that proposition—while they were building up that basic point they had to tear down something or other? One of these gentlemen referred the other day to a little place in Iowa—Colfax—and Des Moines, and said you could ship to Des Moines and send freight back to Colfax, although Colfax was on the way to Des Moines, cheaper than to Colfax, and in that way the railroads had built up a great jobbing trade at Des Moines. He was afraid this jobbing trade might be destroyed—Des Moines hurt. But what in Heaven's name happened to Colfax while all this was going on? Do not look at one side alone of the shield, gentlemen.

One part of the speech of the gentleman from Maine was an impassioned appeal for vested rights in the profits of certain vested wrongs. The other part of his speech was equally impassioned against all political institutions for the government of the country. That is what it amounted to, if it amounted to anything. He said that the President might not fill vacancies as they occur on the Interstate Commerce Commission. Yes, he might fail to do so. Then he said you might be left with four members of the Commission, three of whom would make a quorum, and three men would be doing all this; and then that these three men who would be doing it would be doing wrong, and doing it in the interest of something corrupt or in the interest of some political party. Of course all this is metaphysically possible. There might be a President who was criminal enough and who was fool enough to want to do that. Now, there is some consolation in American history, not so awfully much when we look back over it all, for we are the most vainglorious people that God ever set upon his footstool.

We brag more about ourselves, brag more about our Government, that "we are so great." God knows we can not be as great as we think we are, and that is so necessarily, because it is simply impossible, when God Almighty could hardly be that great himself. But there are some consolations in American history. One of them is this: The American people have never yet elected a man, as my friend Charley Edwards would say, who was a "plumb born fool," President of the United States. [Laughter.] It sometimes seems that it would be so when you consider the way the nominations are made and the elections carried on, but we have never yet done so. And then there is another consolation. If we should accidentally elect a "plumb born fool" President of the United States, they are not likely to elect him again or to succeed him with another. So that these evils can not last longer than four years, even if that sort of a fool is going to be in the White House. Why, the argument of the gentleman would apply equally as well against the Supreme Court.

The President might fail to fill a vacancy upon the Supreme Court bench. If he does, there is no way to make him send in an appointment to the Supreme bench; but I have never found that they have failed to make appointments. Public indignation and wrath stand athwart all folly and corruption and have a constitutional way of asserting themselves and removing obstacles.

Why, Mr. Chairman, to be serious about the matter, when you come to the last analysis of it, the answer to all that sort of talk is that no man would dare to act in the manner that is indicated; no man would dare to do it in Russia to-day; much less in America would a man dare so palpably and defiantly to outrage public opinion and keep on outraging it. No President of the United States, certainly, in a country like this, would be fool enough to do it. And if he did and kept it up for four years, after four years' suffering they would put another in his place. But the real fact is very far from this. I do not believe that such a condition will ever exist. We stir ourselves up sometimes in talking. We stir ourselves up in debate and occasionally temporarily believe a whole lot of things, we are so much in earnest, and the more honest we are the more earnest we will be and the more fond in believing foolish things for a little while.

But nobody really believes that any Interstate Commerce Commission is going to be actuated by the idea of building up one part of the country at the expense of another. Nobody is afraid that any party dares attempt to make a matter of political machinery out of that organization. Why? Because the most sensitive thing in our national life is what we call the industrial element—the business element in it—and while some of them are Democrats and some of them Republicans, they will allow neither party to interfere with business. [Applause.] Business must be carried on, and must be carried on fairly; and they will see to it that it is carried on fairly.

Now, Mr. Chairman, a great deal has been said about the present system being well enough and that rates generally are reasonable, and all that. Mr. Chairman, in connection with that they tell us that Great Britain, the only country which has the system that we are now seeking by this bill to obtain—because all other countries either have total or partial governmental ownership or laws conferring an unrestricted private ownership—that Great Britain's freight rates are ever so much higher than ours. I doubt that when you take it by and large there is no doubt of the fact that the cheapest freight rates in the world, measuring per ton per mile, are the freight rates of the United States. What brings the average down consists in the long-haul freight rates from New York to San Francisco, from Chicago to New Orleans, across the continent, up and down, sidewise and transversely. That brings the average down. But if you take the freight rates from Shubuta to Toomsuba, and that ilk, and compare them with any freight rates of equal length in Great Britain on the short haul, you will find that ours are greater. In other words, our system is starving all the intermediate points to build up the great and extravagant extremities. [Applause.]

In that way is brought about a small average freight per ton mile. Then you must remember that in Great Britain the freight rates consist not only of the transportation of the goods, but of what they call "collection and delivery." The railroad goes to the shipper's place, gets the goods, hauls them to the car and loads them on it, and then when they come to the consignee's place they take the goods out of the cars, haul them to his shop, and unload them. Then you must remember another thing in this connection, and that is the most important of all.

Where one life is sacrificed to the Moloch of transportation in Great Britain, some ten are sacrificed in the United States. In other words, a part of the freight rate in Great Britain consists of better tracks, better equipment, and consequently larger capitalization upon which dividends must be earned, all of which has been due to the anxiety of the people and of the Government there to protect life and limb as well as business. It would be better for the American people if we took a little bit more care to see to it that fewer people are killed and crippled each year, even if the freight rates were a little bit higher. [Applause.]

Another thing: Their roads are better ballasted; they take no such chances of immense speed on an unsafe road as we take. Of course all this necessitates a higher capitalization, and if the dividends be paid it necessitates a higher freight rate than otherwise would prevail there. I doubt, though, if local rates are given due weight, if the charge there is as high even though the service be safer.

Now, Mr. Chairman, some of the gentlemen—I think it was my friend from Maine, Mr. LITTLEFIELD—and it has been my misfortune, by the way, to have been so much occupied with other things when this discussion was going on as to have heard only parts of several speeches, I have heard but two speeches from beginning to end, and I have not had time to read the RECORDS—but this much I heard from my friend from Maine: He went on to tell how many cases had been carried up to the courts from the Interstate Commerce Commision, how many of them had been set aside, and how many of them had been affirmed, and he intended to show by this that the Interstate Commerce Commission was a very unsafe tribunal, a very incorrect and unreliable tribunal, for the decision of cases of this sort.

But the gentleman from Maine forgot that while a score of cases were carried up, there were hundreds of cases decided by the Commission so plainly and palpably right that even the railroads never dared to carry them up, and the very fact that so few cases have been carried up, acquainted as you and I are with the litigant spirit of railroad companies, is a tribute to the Commission.

The gentleman wanted a system which would be elastic. Now, I am going to leave that point to be explained by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN], who has knowledge of the intricacies and details of this bill perhaps not excelled by the knowledge of any other man.

This bill does leave plenty of elasticity—free play for competitive forces. It does leave elasticity, but while you are talking about elesticity, there are two sides to that question. There may be such a thing as too much elasticity. You do not want things in what my friend, the Speaker, would call such an "India-rubber" condition, as that the rate may be stretched or contracted regardless of right, regardless of justice, or reasonableness, just to suit the whim of a man who chooses to stretch or contract it.

There is nothing that is such a drawback upon rascality as publicity. Men who are expert in these matters will tell you that two or three great electric lights on a great street are worth fifty policemen, because a man can not go into a dwelling without thinking himself that somebody may see him. The great advantage of this sort of legislation is that the rate-fixing power, as far as this bill confers any rate-fixing power at all, is lodged with men who must exercise it in public, after hearing both sides; whose decision must be given publicity and with which all the world becomes acquainted almost at once. So that if it shall be that any unfair or corrupt motive guide them to a decision, that will appear to the people from the very nature and character of the decision itself. It can not appear where men meet in secret for the purpose of determining questions of this sort. The gentleman said that we are taking away from the railroads the power to fix rates. Mr. Chairman, this bill does not do that. No bill offered has pretended to do that. Nobody has proposed to take away from the great transportation companies the power to initiate the rates, and, as a matter of fact, out of 10,000 rates there will probably not be 20 that will be questioned and challenged and brought before the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The balance will remain as they were initiated by the railroads, and the only rates that will be attacked, the only rates that will be challenged, will be those that are thought by somebody to be unjust, unreasonable, or discriminatory, and the only rates that will be set aside will be those thought by the Commission to be unjust, unreasonable, or discriminatory. Aye, and there I have gone a bit too far, because there is a right of appeal from this board to the courts of the country. Congress could not take that right away if it wanted to. In that particular I wish that the bill were a little bit better than it is. I do not believe that a court ought to have anything except two things to do with the action of Congress or with a law passed by Congress or with the decision of the Interstate Commission having powers delegated by Congress. I do not think it ought to have anything to do with the decision of a tribunal of this sort organized by Congress to act in lieu of Congress itself with regard to certain particular things, except this: The court ought to have, and we could not take away from it if we wanted to, these two powers: First, to say that the decision arrived at by the tribunal is unconstitutional, because it takes private property without due process of law and without adequate compensation—that is, in a word, confiscatory. Mr. Chairman, if we said in the bill that the courts should not have that power, they would have it anyhow. We could not prevent them from having it. Then they ought to have this power—to say that the decision arrived at is beyond the scope of the authority given to the tribunal by the Congress of the United States. In the first case they would say that it was unconstitutional because it was beyond any power that Congress itself had, and therefore beyond any power that it could confer. In the second case they would say that the decision was unlawful because it was beyond any power that Congress had as an actuality conferred. That is as far as the power ought to go—to condemn as unconstitutional or unlawful.

Now, Mr. Chairman, a few general words about the great underlying principle of the bill. There has never been a court that I know of which has passed upon a railroad question that has not in some language or other expressed the idea that the railroad was a quasi public body, exercising public functions as well as private functions. It is partly private in its organization, in its contribution, in its management. To a certain extent it is public in this, that it occupies the public highway and is subjected, like all highways, to the government of the state.

The state—using the term right now in the sense of government and not particular States in the Union—has exactly originally the same control over a railroad that it has over a turnpike, over a dirt road—the right to say where it shall run, who shall travel it, and on what terms; and there never was from the beginning of time in English-speaking countries a day when the state did not reserve to itself the right to say what tolls upon a highway should be, what tolls upon a canal should be, what rates upon a railroad should be. Why, in Great Britain they went so far that they always put the railroad tolls in the charter when they chartered a railroad company until after a while, with changed conditions, the charter rates became so much greater than any rates that were actually charged that they organized the great canal and railway commission, which is exactly what we are doing here, and gave them power to do more than we are giving the Interstate Commerce Commission power to do under this bill. They gave them full power to make—to initiate—schedules of rates.

You would think, to hear our opponents talk, that having done that anarchy would have come about, Populism would have been in control of the Government of Great Britain, that all the railroad property in Great Britain would have been confiscated, that the whole political sky would have been dissolved into its original elements, that everything would have gone back to chaos; but I do not find from recent reading of English history that anything of that sort occurred.

Why, to hear some of these gentlemen you would think that when Mississippi, for example, organized her railroad commission and gave general rate-making powers to it, and general regulatory powers to boot, all these things would have happened. Now, I want to make a confession, Mr. Chairman. When I was younger by some twenty-odd years, when it was first proposed in Mississippi to organize a railroad commission with these powers, tons of literature were sent out by the railroads, just as tons of literature have been sent out by them in connection with this matter, and being naturally conservative I became alarmed.

I thought if we should do this thing, a lot of demagogues constituting a railroad commission might deal drastically with these great corporations in order to make themselves popular and secure reelection, while discouraging capital from coming into that State to build railroads, and I thought I would go to Jackson, where the legislature sat, and use my influence with my friends to keep them from doing this awfully radical and dangerous thing. Luckily for me, it turned out I was too busy to go and I did not go. The bill was passed. They brought it to the circuit court of the United States and from there to the Supreme Court, and both courts said the State legislatures had a perfect right to delegate this power, as drastic and as strong as it was; that it was perfectly constitutional. It went into operation and the railroad commissioners began to perform their duties under it. Mississippi built more railroads in the next ten years after the act passed than it ever built in any thirty years of its previous history. That is what is going to happen now.

I can assure my friend from Massachusetts [Mr. MCCALL] I know how honest he is, and I know what a perfect natural-born conservative dread he has of having the Government do too much. I share it with him, but I can assure him that within five years from now he will not know that this legislation was ever passed, except that he will find out that whenever unfair and unreasonable preferentials or discriminations exist that they have been terminated. He will find that the railroads will not have many lawsuits, because with this law on the statute books they will themselves correct culpable discriminations between persons or places for the purpose of avoiding being brought up before the Interstate Commerce Commission and being made subject to all this expense. He will not find much litigation about it, and the law will be, to a very large extent, self-executing—automatic—that is to say, the fact of the existence of the law will make the railroads, without waiting for the initiation of suits before the Interstate Commerce Commission, do what the law requires to be done upon their own initiative.

Now, Mr. Chairman, as to the Federal Government taking too much authority upon itself in the regulation of interstate commerce, with regard to this particular question I want to say this to Democrats: They seem to forget one side of what old

Thomas Jefferson said years ago. He believed in preserving inviolate the reserved rights of the State as the sheet anchor of local self-government and individual liberty, but he added to it, "and the delegated powers of the Federal Government in their full integrity as the only safeguard of national independence."

Now there are two sorts of States rights. The States right to insist that its reserved rights shall not be usurped by the Federal Government, and generally that is all men think about when they think about States rights, but there is a coordinate and coequal States right which exists in this; the right of the State to insist that the Federal Government shall perform the duty delegated to it by the Federal Government for the protection of the State and of the people. [Applause.] That is the States right for which I stand here. The Federal Government has the delegated power to regulate interstate commerce, and it follows, as four follows the addition of two and two, that this power having been conferred for the protection of the State, for the protection of the people of the State, that when evils exist that the States can not remedy, because that power having been delegated they are powerless, it is the most sacred of all States rights that the people of the States shall make the Federal Government exercise the duty of which their people have deprived themselves and which they have delegated to their other servant, the Government of the United States.

Mr. Chairman, we on this side of the Chamber have dreamed for years that some time we might get into power, and when we did one of the things we were going to do was to pass a bill like this. Now, I think I see this bill take its way out of this Chamber northward, and as it goes northward it shall go as a catapult, overcoming every possible obstruction in its pathway. Oh, it may receive a few stabs over there under the fifth rib in the shape of amendments coming from the enemy acting as nurses to the bill for the time being, while they pretend they are friends of it; a few little railroad jokers may be put in it, but when it comes back let us all, Democrats and Republicans, make up our minds right here to stay here until the next session of Congress comes before we in conference cede one single essential principle in this bill or adopt as an amendment upon it one single thing that will devitalize it in the slightest degree or deprive the Commission of that power which it ought to have. [Applause.]

What are we? The American House of Commons. Who are our allies? The man in the White House for one, and he is no contemptible ally either, and I am glad he is with us; the people of the United States, greater than he or we both put together and multiplied by ten. They are with us in this thing. Let us find out who governs America—the President and the House of Commons and the people all added together, or somebody else somewhere else. As for my part, I would be willing to stay here and make it a condition sine qua non to the passage of ordinary appropriation bills, that this bill should come back from whencesoever it may go—virtually as it now is, or at any rate not rendered impotent of operation by amendment. That is the reason that I spoke in the beginning of the grand, strategic, and tactical importance of a united House front overshadowing minor differences about details in this bill. That is what William Tecumseh Sherman called "grand strategy" in opposition to "skirmish strategy."

Now, Mr. Chairman, I have spoken longer than I intended to. I did not want to speak at all, because everything has been said that could be said. I did not know of any good that could be done by speaking. Friends would have me do it as party representative. Old Thomas Jefferson was once asked why he took so little part in debate. He said that he seldom heard a debate in which nearly every question and nearly every point had not been covered. He preferred for somebody else to take the laboring oar, and as for himself he took it only when he found some essential point had been neglected or had been brought forward so weakly as not to have its due effect. This is one of the greatest debates before this House concerning which neither one of those two things could possibly be said. I have never known of a question being so thoroughly elucidated by both sides as this question. I have never known of a committee on both sides of it, Republican and Democratic, that had exhaustively followed out all the intricacies and complexities of a question as this Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce has in this particular case.

Mr. Chairman, I thank the House for its attention. [Loud applause.]

Mr. ADAMSON. Mr. Chairman, before the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] begins, I wish to make a request. He generously offered to divide the remaining time with the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS], and I have no doubt that if left to himself he would consume much less time than that remaining to his credit. But I realize that he is the chairman of the committee and the author of this bill, and will be interrupted very often and will desire to answer those questions, and it is for the good of the country that he should answer them. Therefore, I request unanimous consent that he speak until the conclusion of his argument and at his own will. [Applause.]

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair's recollection is that the House fixed the time for closing the debate at 4.30 p. m. It may be open to a question if this committee can extend the time now.

Mr. ADAMSON. Then, Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee rise informally for the purpose of making that request.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, permit me to say that that is entirely unnecessary. The gentleman does not desire to consume more time than given under the order.

Mr. ADAMSON. I think the gentleman will be interrupted a good deal.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Iowa has remaining under the rule one hour and forty-five minutes.

Mr. HEPBURN. That is all of the time that I will desire.

Mr. ADAMSON. I have no doubt that it is all the time the gentleman desires, but I do not believe it is all the committee desires him to have.

The CHAIRMAN. If a longer time than that is desired, it can possibly be arranged later.

Mr. ADAMSON. We can renew it later, if necessary.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I do not desire to occupy even the time that might be allotted to me under the existing orders of the House. I would be glad, indeed, if it were possible to conclude this matter to-night; and I am hopeful that there will be sufficient time after I have concluded my remarks to read this bill, pass upon the proposed amendments, and carry the bill to its final passage before adjournment. [Applause.]

Mr. Chairman, I want at the outset to make my acknowledgments to my colleagues on the committee and to some other gentlemen for kindly expressions they have indulged in personal to myself. I feel very grateful for all of these expressions, and I am not less grateful, among others, to the gentleman from Pennsylvania for the nomination that he gave to me to a high office, because of the fact that I know that there are constitutional provisions which would make me ineligible to that appointment. [Laughter.] My gratitude is none the less profound.

Mr. Chairman, I regret somewhat that some gentlemen participating in this debate should have used the occasion for the purpose of exploiting political organizations or taking the credit to themselves and to organizations that they are connected with for the present state of legislation upon this great question. This is a matter that ought to rise higher than party, at least higher than partisan politics. It ought to engage the attention of men because of other motives than that of promoting this organization or the other. I do not choose to follow any of those who have spoken on these lines further than to suggest that the law that we have was written by Republican hands and pressed through Congress by the arguments and efforts of members of the Republican organization. I want to remind them that the amendments to that law adopted two years later were written by a distinguished Republican, and it was Republican zeal that secured them as part of the law of the land. I want to remind gentlemen that the act of 1890—the Sherman Act—was written by a distinguished Republican Senator; and, further, I want to remind gentlemen that the act of 1903—the Elkins Act—was the work of a distinguished Republican member of the Senate; and that if there have been shortcomings in the way of declarations in national platforms upon the part of the Republican party, there has been no failure when work was to be done and things were to be accomplished. [Loud applause on the Republican side.]

Mr. Chairman, I remember twenty years ago, about this time, when the first act—the act of 1887—was being discussed in this House. I remember with what zeal that measure was attacked as destructive to the great interests of the country, revolutionary in character, full of socialism. It was a measure that was to introduce then, as now, European methods in place of American, and was in the direction of an experiment that would be fatal to the great commercial institutions of the country, and it was amidst denunciations of that character, prophecies of that doleful nature, that the legislation was had and that the bill became law. What one of those prophecies in the fullness of time do we now recognize as facts? Not one.

Then, Mr. Chairman, the railway mileage of the United States was 137,000 miles, now 220,000; then the gross earnings of the railways were $931,000,000, now $2,100,000,000; then the cost per ton per mile was 1.17, now 0.74; then the dividend on stocks was only 1.81 per cent, now 3.03 per cent; then the gross earnings per mile were $6,861, now $9,301; then, in 1887, 61,000,000,000 of tons of freight were carried 1 mile. In 1893,

171,000,000,000 of tons of freight were carried 1 mile. In 1886, 45 railroads, with a mileage of 7,887 miles and stocks and bonds aggregating $374,000,000, were sold under foreclosure proceedings. In 1894, 13 railroads, with a mileage of 534 miles and stocks and bonds of $28,000,000, were sold under foreclosure. Under this legislation the facts show that this great industry has prospered beyond compare. Nowhere else in all the world is there such a state of prosperity, notwithstanding the fact of this governmental supervision and notwithstanding the dolorous fears of the gentlemen who indulged in jeremiads twenty years ago—so like the speech of my friend from Massachusetts the other day—his speech was full of shadows; no sunlight anywhere in all the horizon of his sentences. I have stated what I have in order that he may be consoled and that hope again may spring in his bosom and that he may believe that even New England may prosper under this legislation. [Applause.]

Mr. Chairman, this is a great question. Any proposition of law that involves an interest so great as the railway interests of the United States ought to be regarded with solicitude by those who are charged with responsibility in that behalf.

One-twelfth of all the wealth in the United States is involved in greater or less degree in this bill. The earnings of the railways are so colossal that two billions and one hundred millions mark the amount of this great interest in one year. Our whole wealth production is but ten times more than that. Think how colossal this is. But the aggregate of investments, the aggregate of annual earnings, does not mark fairly the importance of this subject to the American people. Think how dependent we are for our prosperity, for the comforts of life even, upon the common carriers of the land. Think of the infinitude of the transactions between the carriers and those they serve—millions and millions of transactions.

And yet, Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. McCALL] announced the astonishing doctrine that with all these varied and varying interests, with all of these interests, the people can not separate themselves from—they can not separate their connection with the railways—yet in all of these multiplied transactions there shall be no practical arbiter, no one to settle disputes except one of the parties in interest.

Mr. McCALL. If the gentleman will permit me, and the courts.

Mr. HEPBURN. I am going to speak of that. And the courts! Ah, yes, the courts. But we have had the courts during all these years, and I am not like the gentleman from New York, disposed to decry the power, or honor, or necessity for preserving respect for the courts. [Applause.] I recognize they are a necessary agency in the preservation of everything that is dear to the American citizen, and I reprobate, at least, the good taste of any gentleman who undertakes to disparage them in the minds of the people. [Applause.]

I tell you, Mr. Chairman, that whenever that evil day comes, should it ever come, when the people of the United States feel that in the courts they can not hope for justice, that in the courts they can not find an agency that will protect them in their rights and punish their offenders—whenever that day comes, and that other spirit "of righting oneself"—when that evil spirit takes possession of the public mind, there is an end to our institutions and to our boasted liberty. [Applause.]

The gentleman from Massachusetts says the remedies by courts are ample. Experience teaches that they are not. Not because of the fault of the courts, but because of the peculiar character of the transactions involved and because of the disparity in individual power of the contestants in the courts.

Mr. COCKRAN. Mr. Chairman, I am sure the gentleman wants to be fair. I would like to know how the statement of the gentleman differs in the slightest degree from the statement that I made. I have not criticised the courts any more than has the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN].

Mr. HEPBURN. The remarks of the gentleman from New York seemed to me, if not intended for the purpose, had the result of inflaming one man's mind against the courts, because that man was taught that, being poor, he lacked the power and could not have that efficient justice, that quick disposal of his business that another man with wealth behind him and station to aid him could have, and it was that spirit that I found in the gentleman's language that seemed to me ought not to pass unrebuked.

Mr. COCKRAN. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman how his statement now differs from mine. It is undisputed that the one person whose imprisonment I took occasion to mention—and I do not at all criticise the justice of that decision—was committed to jail for violation of an injunction, while others, although pronounced guilty of a crime by the decision of that same court, had not been actually incarcerated or even prosecuted.

Mr. HEPBURN. If I misunderstood the character and purpose of the gentleman's remarks, I am sorry.

Mr. COCKRAN. Well, I want to congratulate the committee on this contribution to the discussion, as I understand the gentleman now corroborates me by stating that, so far as the courts are concerned, they are inadequate, and therefore a more efficient agency to effect a remedy must be established.

Mr. HEPBURN. With that portion of the gentleman's remarks I am in entire accord. I was about saying that the courts had proved inadequate because of these reasons: The subject of the controversy in all of the cases that I can conceive is an involved one to the plaintiff; the knowledge and information that would enable the plaintiff to maintain his action for an overcharge are not in his possession. He could not give that expert testimony as to all the elements that would enter into the composition of a just and reasonable charge or an overcharge, while a knowledge of all these facts are in the hands of his adversary, and therefore he could not recover.

That is one of the difficulties, not with the courts, but because of the peculiarities of the subject of controversy. The courts have not been adequate and therefore some other means had to be substituted. With what abhorence would we look upon a proposition, if gentlemen should make it, with reference to controversies other than of this class that were certain to rise and be numerous in the community, providing that one of the parties alone should determine the rightfulness of the controversy; and yet that is what is involved in all of these multitudes of possible disputes between carrier and shipper. It is the carrier that fixes the rate. He imposes upon the other party the necessity of accepting his rate. There is no escape from it. He may pay the charge and then the common law, says the gentleman from Maine [Mr. LITTLEFIELD], gives him a remedy and allows him to recover for the overcharge. Ah, how barren is that remedy, and while it is a known fact that the cases where such suits might be instituted are counted by millions, none is ever brought because of the expense, because of the delay, because of the inability to secure the proof whereby a judgment is within the limits of possibility. Therefore it is futile to talk about the courts as they are constituted furnishing that remedy that ought to be somewhere existent. Now, what do we do by this bill? The gentlemen who oppose it have discussed it as though it conferred upon the railway commission the power to establish schedules and rates. They have, I think, sometimes purposely set up this bogy for the purpose of combating it. No one has proposed that. The jurisdiction of the Commission is limited, as is its power limited, by this law. They can not at pleasure establish a rate. Before their jurisdiction attaches it must be ascertained that a wrong has been done, an overcharge has been made, a wrong in an extravagant, unreasonable rate, because the law to-day and the common law provide that the carriers' charge shall be just and reasonable. That is the limit to which he is permitted to go in fixing his tariff of schedules.

Now, under the operation of this bill, if it should become a law, it is necessary for some one to allege a violation of the statute—that a crime, in other words, has been done—because the overcharge is a crime, as well as being prohibited, and remedies furnished civilly by the courts. He has committed a crime. What then? Investigation follows, and if it is ascertained that the carrier is in violation of the law, then the jurisdiction of the Commission attaches, and it is permitted to do what? Fix a rate? Oh, no; oh, no. It is permitted to establish a just, reasonable, and fairly remunerative rate that shall be the maximum rate that the carrier shall charge. That is all. Can you think of any legislative effort in the direction of control more conservative than this? First, the carrier must be in the wrong—the carrier must be a criminal. His criminality must be ascertained. When it is ascertained by a dispassionate Commission then a rate within limitations, fair and certain and well defined, may be established as the maximum that the carrier may charge, leaving the feature of flexibility still remaining in the rate, and permitting the carrier to charge that lower sum that the exigencies of business or the activities of competition may make it prudent and wise for him to adopt. One gentleman complains of this bill because the words "unreasonable" or "reasonable" have no accurate judicial determination. There are some words, I think, that can not be defined, and yet we use them every day, and the courts use them. Would it be possible for the four critics of this bill to define the word "fraud?" Is it probable that any two of them would agree as to the legal definition of the word "fraud?" And yet the courts have been industriously at work upon that for centuries, trying to find out what constitutes fraud. There is no definition that would be satisfactory to any lawyer that ever read a law book. There are proximations, and yet you will find after the study of the most carefully prepared definitions that in your own experience you have had cases that do not come within that definition.

I could not define the word "reasonable" in a way satisfactory to myself. I doubt whether any gentleman could do that, but he could in a series of cases, exercising his best discretion, looking at all the facts that may be brought to bear upon a given case, arrive at a conclusion that will be in harmony with the demands of justice and will be right in all of its bearings upon all of the parties. It is a very difficult thing, a very difficult thing, to use words of our English language that are not susceptible of varying interpretations. My friend on my right, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GROSVENOR], was exercised the other day because there was not sufficient definiteness in the language used. I do not know that I see before me one individual whom I believe can write an English sentence of twenty words that I can not give more than one meaning to. It is an exceedingly difficult thing to use the English language in such way that ingenious carping can not find fault with it. My friend here undoubtedly has heard the story of the little girl who at her prayers in the morning said, "Good-by, God; we are going to move to Missouri?" [Laughter.] Her wicked brother, who happened to overhear her, and who was jubilant at the idea of the journey, used the very same sentence, but he said, "Good! By God, we are going to move to Missouri!" [Renewed laughter and applause.]

In view of this great difficulty of using the English language so as to convey a given idea with absolute certainty I thought that some of the comments of my distinguished friend a day or two ago reached the dignity only of carping criticism. [Applause.] The gentleman from New York [Mr. SULZER] last night indulged in a character of comment I thought not differing greatly from that of the gentleman from Ohio. [Laughter and applause.] But there was something at least interesting in the remarks made by the gentleman from New York. [Laughter.] They tended to give to the membership of this House a more exalted idea of the aggregate of manliness which was on our roll. Patriotism of a rare character was illustrated by what he said. It is seldom that you find a man so patriotic and so self-abnegating that he will refuse the princely income of $25,000 a year and content himself with the beggarly stipend of 20 per cent of that in order that he may do good to all mankind. [Laughter and applause.]

Do good! Not here; ah, no pent-up Utica like this meets the exalted aspirations of the gentleman from New York. He stands on a pedestal of his greatness, either above or below the Statue of Liberty, I do not know which [laughter], proclaiming to all the world, "Come ye that are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." [Laughter and applause.] And yet, Mr. Chairman, when the gentleman attempts to be practical I am not sure that he reaches the high-sounding phrases of his declaration of greatness. He told us this bill was lacking in great essentials—that it did not include in its provisions a class of instrumentalities of commerce that it was wicked and criminal to omit. He told us that this bill did not provide dire and certain punishments behind the bars of the penitentiary where the criminal classes—those whom gentlemen here will agree are violating the provisions of this law or engaged in conduct now that if continued after the proposed law would become criminal—where those people should be incarcerated, and that it was because of these two defects that the law was fundamentally and radically deficient. He told us with much elation that he had prepared a bill—No. 8414. Those figures impressed themselves upon my memory, and I never will forget them [applause] as the file number of a bill embodying all wisdom upon this subject and a proposition that would give to the country what the country wants and give to all of the rich clients of my friends that which they do not want. I sent for the bill, and, lo! here it is. He told us that a dozen lines alone would furnish the legislation that was to bring about the cure for all of our difficulties, and here is the bill—8414. [Laughter and applause.] Make a mental picture of it, gentlemen. Write it upon the tablets of your memory, so that no time, no circumstance, no conditions of horror or joy shall ever permit you to lose that mental impression. 8414! [Laughter and applause.] And yet, gentlemen, the class of instrumentalities that is omitted from the committee's bill is omitted from this one. [Laughter.] The gentleman had never thought of it, probably, until he got upon his feet. [Laughter.] I say that in order that I may be kind to him. [Laughter.]

But here is the provision, gentlemen. Here is the provision of bill No. 8414 on the subject of punishments. The gentleman wanted Rockefeller and all those gentlemen he named behind the bars, so that he could enjoy the sight of them as prison convicts.

That any person, association, or corporation violating any of the provisions of this act shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor—

[Laughter.]

The penitentiary is "suspended." [Laughter and applause.]

And on conviction thereof shall be punished in the manner provided by the act approved February 19, 1903, entitled "An act to further regulate interstate commerce."

You may recollect, gentlemen, that the act of 1903 repealed the prison penalty of the interstate-commerce act. [Laughter and applause.] I am not quite certain in my mind——

Mr. SULZER. Mr. Chairman——

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman yield to the gentleman from New York?

Mr. HEPBURN. I yield for a question only.

Mr. SULZER. My question is this: If I made an error in regard to the extent of the punishment, why did not the gentleman from Iowa, as chairman of the committee, in the interest of the people, amend my bill and make the punishment fit the crime?

Mr. HEPBURN. There is no trouble about answering that question at all, sir. We had an act passed in 1887 that provided vigorous, severe prison penalties for the violation of many provisions of the interstate-commerce act.

Up to 1903, sixteen years, no conviction had been had under that act. It was said here upon this floor and elsewhere that the reason was obvious—that the men who knew the facts by which convictions before juries could be made possible were all of them railroad men. They were the men familiar with conditions, familiar with facts, the only ones whose testimony would be adequate to secure convictions, and that there was that esprit du corps among them that they would not testify where it meant going to prison on the part of their fellows and that if the punishment were by fine largely increased convictions could be had. This Congress—and I think the gentleman from New York [Mr. SULZER] voted for it——

Mr. SULZER. The gentleman is in error. I voted against it, knowing what the consequences would be.

Mr. HEPBURN. All right. I am willing to admit that he thinks he did. [Laughter.]

Mr. SULZER. The RECORD will show that I voted against it.

Mr. HEPBURN. I may be wrong, but I will look it up. [Laughter.]

Mr. SULZER. The gentleman better look it up, and had better look up some other things, too.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, this bill does not do the things that many gentleman said it would do, and yet I believe that it will do all that is recommended to be done in the annual messages of the President. The committee tried to do no more than that. A year ago we did. At that time the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce presented to this House a bill that met the approval of the membership largely, except the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. MCCALL], and he seemed to think that he might derive some consolation from the broad statement that not more than two Members of this House that voted for that bill would now repeat that vote. I think he was in error. I for one would vote for that bill if that were the pending bill. While I do not believe that its provisions are as safe as this one, yet I think that that was so much better than having no legislation at all that I would cheerfully give it my vote, and I believe that every member of the committee of which I am a member would so act. [Applause.] It was not perfect—no more than this bill. I have no doubt that future legislation will improve upon the measure that we now propose, but it is the best that we can give you. We have harmonized all the differences that stood in the way of an unanimous report.

I do not think the bill is exactly in accord with the views of any one member of the committee, not more than two at all events, but each one has been willing to yield something. Something always has to be done in this way. I understand that my friend on the right [Mr. GROSVENOR] was made unhappy in his remarks the other day by the thought of a preternatural unanimity on the part of the committee. We were trying to get legislation. We were trying to secure a result that we believed would do good, and therefore it was that the minority of the committee waived much of their preference and the majority waived much that they would have preferred would be in the bill or omitted from the bill, and we secured that which we have.

Mr. UNDERWOOD rose.

The CHAIRMAN. Will the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] yield to the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. UNDERWOOD]?

Mr. HEPBURN. Certainly.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Will the gentleman allow me to ask him a question for information?

Mr. HEPBURN. Yes, sir.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. I desire to ask the gentleman, as chairman of the committee, for my information, and I am sure the House would like to have it, whether he claims that the bill as now reported will enable the Interstate Commerce Commission to regulate express companies?

Mr. HEPBURN. I do not.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. They are not included in the terms of the bill, then?

Mr. HEPBURN. I would say not.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Now, I will ask the gentleman another question: Do the terms of the bill include the regulation of Pullman cars?

Mr. HEPBURN. I would say not.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Then, may I ask the gentleman to state to the House why the committee, in its wisdom, saw fit to leave the regulation of those two companies out of the bill?

Mr HEPBURN. I will state that the committee, as I said a little while ago, confined its recommendations solely to the recommendations made by the President of the United States. That is the reason. We wanted to put no more into the bill than would meet the demands of the public that had been crystallized upon two or three propositions by the challenge in the President's message to the attention of the whole American people.

Mr. SHERLEY rose.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Iowa yield to the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. SHERLEY]?

Mr. HEPBURN. I do.

Mr. SHERLEY. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman whether, in his opinion, this bill provides for the review of the action of the Commission by the courts in any other sense than they can always review the constitutionality of any act?

Mr. HEPBURN. I have no doubt, Mr. Chairman, that whatever rights now exist to review the action of the Commission exist under this bill. There have been no changes whatever in the court procedure or court plans; no curtailment of the power of the court, no effort in that direction, and whatever power the courts to-day have they will have and they must have under this bill.

Mr. SHERLEY. If the gentleman will permit another question—I am sure that he realizes that I am asking it for no other purpose than that of obtaining information. You are conferring a new power, a power after a rate is set aside to fix a rate, a maximum rate, that shall be observed by the railroads. I would like to know whether, in your judgment, the court, in reviewing that order, can pass upon the reasonableness of that rate or can only pass upon the question of whether it is so low as to confiscate the property.

Mr. HEPBURN. I have no hesitation in saying that, in my judgment, the court will have the power to determine, first, whether the Commission had jurisdiction of the subject-matter; whether it had the power to act at all. That would be dependent upon the question of whether an unjust or an unreasonable rate was condemned, and whenever it passed upon that they would then seek to know whether the Commission had acted within the scope of its authority. It is authorized to fix a just, a reasonable, and fairly compensatory rate. That is to be the maximum, and the court would inquire—and it would be a legitimate subject of inquiry—as to whether the Commission had confined itself within the limitations that the law had thrown around it.

Mr. SHERLEY. Has the gentleman considered the matter in connection with the view frequently expressed by the courts, that a legislative act can not be reviewed except in regard to its constitutionality?

Mr. HEPBURN. Another question is possibly presented here, as to whether or not the Commission has jurisdiction to act; and then, second, whether or not it has exceeded the authority that was conferred.

Mr. SHERLEY. The gentleman, of course, recognizes the distinction——

Mr. HEPBURN. I do not care to argue this matter further. I have stated my views in regard to it. The gentleman will not understand me as being disrespectful, but simply wanting to proceed.

That is the view I take of this matter. I do not believe that we can take from the courts their power to inquire whether or not a citizen was being bereft of one of his constitutional prerogatives or rights. You must remember, gentlemen, that the courts are a coordinate branch of this Government; that the courts in their sphere are the equals of the legislative branch or the executive branch. You must remember, further, that our action may not be final. We may assume to exercise authority. There is a power, the Supreme Court, that passes upon that, and we, in that respect, are not supreme. The Executive finds that the Supreme Court is above him. It will pass upon the constitutionality of an act of the President; but who passes upon the declaration as to the power of the Supreme Court? They have the final word. When did you hear of any court assenting to a proposition that curtails and puts a limitation upon its jurisdiction?

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman——

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman yield to the gentleman from Massachusetts?

Mr. HEPBURN. Yes, sir.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. I submit a question to the gentleman which I hope he will answer in order to bring out what I am trying to learn as a matter of information about the terms of this bill upon which the court will have to act, and that is whether "unreasonably low" and "confiscatory" are, in your opinion, synonymous terms?

Mr. HEPBURN. If I were a judge, I would say that they were synonymous terms.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Then, in your opinion, the court, under this bill, if it becomes law, will have the right to enjoin a rate fixed by the Commission if it is unreasonably low, but yet does not amount to confiscation?

Mr. HEPBURN. I think there is no doubt about that. I think if there was any doubt about it at all the words "fairly remunerative" would remove the doubt.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Then, if I may ask the gentleman's attention to one more question——

Mr. HEPBURN. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Then in any case where the Commission fixed a rate as a reasonable rate the carrier would have the right to ask the court to enjoin the rate, and that court would have the right to enjoin it if it found that it reduced the profit of the railroad in that particular below a fair reurn upon the capital invested.

Mr. HEPBURN. I do not know just what view the courts may take as to the elements that would be considered when they were construing or ascertaining what was a reasonable rate. They may wonderfully vary; they are infinite in number. It is a difficult proposition, I take it, but I do not understand that it would be wise for us to refuse to impose the duty when it must some time be determined by somebody because of the difficulties involved.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. In view of the opinion as expressed by the gentleman from Iowa, would he be willing, in order to set the matter completely at rest, to accept an amendment to this bill which would give the carrier a right to ask to have a rate enjoined on the ground that it was unreasonably low?

Mr. HEPBURN. I should object to any amendment.

Mr. COCKRAN. Will the gentleman allow a question?

Mr. HEPBURN. Certainly.

Mr. COCKRAN. Would it be possible to deprive the courts of power to enjoin the operation of an order which forced a carrier to transact business at a rate that would not yield a fairly remunerative return?

Mr. HEPBURN. I do not think we could take that power away from the courts.

Mr. COCKRAN. I agree with the gentleman, and therefore there is no necessity for embodying a provision to that effect in the bill.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I was a little surprised at the selfish candor exhibited by the gentleman from Maine [Mr. LITTLEFIELD] in his opposition to this bill. We are apt to be candid when the expressions of candor are complimentary to us. We are not apt to be quite so candid when there is selfishness embraced in the expression. The gentleman from Maine is fearful, apparently, that the extraordinarily unjust and unfair rate on cotton that the people of his community are now receiving may not be continued to them in case the Commission is invested with the power to adjust rates.

Mr. Chairman, I scarcely thought that there was any situation that would justly alarm the gentleman until I investigated the matter slightly, and I found that in the Southern States, in their cotton mills twenty-five years ago, there was invested but $21,000,000. Now there is invested in the same region $225,000,000. In 1880 the spindles in the South were but 667,000. Last year there were 9,205,000 cotton spindles used in the South. Twenty-five years ago they used 225,000 bales of cotton. Last year they used 2,163,000 bales.

Now, if this grand progress had been made under the disadvantages that the gentleman from Maine says the Southern cotton spinner now suffers, what will be the strides of progress, what will be the wonderful growth in manufactures, what will be the beneficent results that will come to that people when fairness is secured, and when their rivals are not built up at their expense by unjust and wicked discrimination? [Applause.]

Mr. Chairman, with reference to the differences of opinion that have prevailed in regard to some features of the bill, I do not now care to say anything, but we were agreed in regard to two fundamental propositions: One was the investment of the Interstate Commerce Commission with the measure of power, the full measure of power, that the President in his message said he thought they ought to have. That we have done. Then to include by changes enlargement of the definition of the word "railroad" and "transportation," to bring in all of those auxiliaries, or aids, or instrumentalities through which so many frauds and wrongs in the nature of rebates and discriminations have occurred. We believe that we have done that. These we regard as the two essential things. The other changes or provisions that there are in this bill are simply changes of existing law, so as to make more easy, more certain, the administration of the power that the Commission now has. We have disposed, we think, successfully of wrongs that are accomplished through what is known as the "midnight tariff," those sudden changes prearranged for, whereby one man would have large discriminations in his favor, and after he had benefited thereby, the rate going back to the old schedule, and things move on placidly, notwithstanding that it is a legally recognized cut in the rate.

We have disposed of that by insisting that changes should not be made without thirty days' notice, and yet, recognizing the fact that there might be an emergency when a notice less than that should be sufficient, we have provided in the bill that the Commission might, in a proper case, alter that rule and so arrange that the schedules may be filed and become operative with less than that notice.

We have modified somewhat that section of the statute that sought to give a wronged shipper the power to be righted through the Commission and through the courts.

Heretofore practically that part of the law has been inoperative. We have now, we think, somewhat smoothed the machinery, so that when damages have been awarded by the Commission the complainant may, by simpler processes in the courts, recover judgment.

Mr. HOGG. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman permit an interruption?

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman yield?

Mr. HEPBURN. Certainly.

Mr. HOGG. Is it the understanding of the committee that this Commission is a judicial tribunal?

Mr. HEPBURN. Well, I know the gentleman from Colorado to be a profound lawyer—constitutional, statutory, common law, and otherwise—and I shall remand that inquiry to him. [Laughter.]

Mr. HOGG. Let me ask the gentleman another question.

Mr. HEPBURN. Oh, Mr. Chairman, I do not care to answer questions of that kind. We have changed somewhat the requirements with regard to the filing of schedules, so that greater certainty may be had. We have relieved the Commission from the necessity of making a full statement of its findings of fact in certain classes of cases, which has been a burdensome labor, of which complaint is made, and so far as we could learn no adequate result followed it. Therefore we have proposed to modify that. We have given to the Commission the power to investigate more fully, more completely, the financial affairs of the different railways, compelling fuller, more complete, more frequent reports to be made to them. We have given them the authority, if they see fit to exercise it, of prescribing a system of bookkeeping, uniform in its character, to apply to all carriers, prescribing the kinds of accounts that shall be kept and prohibiting the keeping of others, making it impossible, it is thought, for a carrier to use any portion of its revenues for purposes of rebates or improper compensation to shippers that will escape the vigilant eye of the Commission. We propose that the Commission should consist of seven members and the compensation should be $10,000 a year and the term of office seven years. These are the changes that have been made in existing law.

Mr. Chairman, I am very grateful for the attention that the House has given me. I regard this question as one of great importance. I think it is the most important single question that we now have to deal with. I do not believe that we will be able by this legislation or any other to prevent rebates in some instances being given, to prevent preferences being shown to some locality, to some person, or to some character of traffic, but it will aid toward minifying a number of wrongs; it will give greater contentment to all the people in the belief that they are not being made the puppet and the football of carriers. I would be glad if certain other enactments might have been a part of this bill, but I contented myself in omitting them with the hope that we could unite upon this measure in the committee with unanimity and secure its passage through this House without amendment, believing that in other places there might be a moral effect from that action that would aid in the completion of the legislation. My friend on my right, the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GROSVENOR], has one proposition that I do not hesitate to say that as an original proposition I would be glad to favor, but as an addendum to this bill—as one of those propositions that I know will secure dissent somewhere and create opposition against the bill—I shall resist as best I can its being projected into this measure. I thank the members of the committee. [Prolonged applause.]

Mr. Chairman, I call for the reading of the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. No other gentleman having sought the floor, the Clerk will read the bill by paragraphs.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That section 1 of an act entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887, be amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 1. That the provisions of this act shall apply to any common carrier or carriers engaged in the transportation of passengers or property wholly by railroad (or partly by railroad and partly by water when both are used under a common control, management, or arrangement for a continuous carriage or shipment) from one State or Territory of the United States, or the District of Columbia, to any other State or Territory of the United States, or the District of Columbia, or from one place in a Territory to another place in the same Territory, or from any place in the United States to an adjacent foreign country, or from any place in the United States through a foreign country to any other place in the United States, and also to the transportation in like manner of property shipped from any place in the United States to a foreign country and carried from such place to a port of transshipment, or shipped from a foreign country to any place in the United States and carried to such place from a port of entry either in the United States or an adjacent foreign country: Provided, however, That the provisions of this act shall not apply to the transportation of passengers or property, or to the receiving, delivering, storage, or handling of property wholly within one State and not shipped to or from a foreign country from or to any State or Territory as aforesaid.

"The term 'railroad,' as used in this act, shall include all bridges and ferries used or operated in connection with any railroad, and also all the road in use by any corporation operating a railroad, whether owned or operated under a contract, agreement, or lease, and shall also include all switches, spurs, tracks, and terminal facilities of every kind used or necessary in the transportation of the persons or property designated herein, and also all freight depots, yards, and grounds used or necessary in the transportation or delivery of any of said property; and the term 'transportation' shall include cars and other vehicles and all instrumentalities and facilities of shipment or carriage, irrespective of ownersip or of any contract, express or implied, for the use thereof and all services in connection with the receipt, delivery, elevation and transfer in transit, ventilation, refrigeration or icing, storage, and handling of property transported; and it shall be the duty of every carrier subject to the provisions of this act to provide and furnish such transportation upon reasonable request therefor, and to establish through routes and just and reasonable rates applicable thereto.

"All charges made for any services rendered or to be rendered in the transportation of passengers or property as aforesaid, or in connection therewith, shall be just and reasonable; and every unjust and unreasonable charge for such service or any part thereof is prohibited and declared to be unlawful."

Mr. GROSVENOR. Mr. Chairman, at the time I spoke upon the subject of this bill I sent to the Clerk's desk and had read in my time an amendment to the bill which I proposed to offer in the form of an independent section. It will be remembered that the subject-matter of that amendment related to the ownership by officers of railroad corporations of property and productive industries along the line of road.

Mr. OLMSTED. Mr. Chairman, I would like to understand whether that amendment is now being debated.

Mr. GROSVENOR. No; it is not, but if the gentleman will wait a moment he will be satisfied with the course that I am taking. As I say, it related to the subject of officers and directors of railroad corporations being the owners of property and productive industries along the line of road, and thereby becoming interested in the subject of the transportation thereof. I have concluded, after a careful study of the subjcet, not to offer that amendment at this time for this reason. I do not care to impede the progress of this bill, nor do I care to delay the progress of the bill. I am of opinion that the subject-matter of my amendment ought to be considered more fully than I have had an opportunity to do so far, and that I should add to it the other side of the Pennsylvania constitution, and I therefore have concluded to introduce as an original proposition into the House at some early day a comprehensive bill upon the subject, have it referred to the appropriate committee, and let the House take such action as it may deem wise.

I think the matter to which I now refer is of the greatest possible interest to the producing industries of the country. I believe that there can be a remedy applied in this direction which will do more to prevent rebates and discriminations than all that this bill contains.

I make this statement because I had said I would offer this amendment, and if any other gentleman wishes to do so, of course, I can not bar his right, but my reason for not offering it is that I am not satisfied that it ought to be offered in connection with the legislation now pending.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Chairman, I desire to send the following amendment to the Clerk's desk, which I offer to the pending section, and have it read.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by inserting, on page 3, at the end of line 13, the following: "That all the provisions of the act to regulate commerce, approved February 4, 1887, and the acts amendatory thereof and supplementary thereto, and the provisions of this act shall extend to and embrace all express companies engaged in the transportation of property from one State or Territory of the United States or the District of Columbia to any other State or Territory of the United States or the District of Columbia, or from any place in the United States to an adjacent foreign country, or from any place in the United States through a foreign country to any other place in the United States, and also to the transportation in like manner of property shipped from any place in the United States to a foreign country and carried from such place to a port of transshipment, or shipped from a foreign country to any place in the United States and carried to such place from a port of entry either in the United States or an adjacent foreign country. And it shall be unlawful for such express companies to act as agents in the sale of property transported by them."

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Chairman, I have agreed heartily with the wishes of the committee, who have presented to this House a most excellent bill, that the bill should pass the House without amendment, if possible, but I believe the proposition of leaving out of the terms of this bill the regulation of express companies is vital to the very proposition that the President of the United States has asked the Congress to legislate upon, and that, therefore, we can not afford to let this bill pass the House without remedying it to that extent. Now, what is the one great proposition from which the country is crying to Congress for relief? It is against rebates; it is against preferences. We passed the Elkins bill and yet the great shippers of the country, the great monopolies of the country, continued to receive rebates and preferences, called by another name. How did they accomplish it? They accomplished it by the use of private cars, by the use of terminal tracks, and by other alternatives they got around and escaped the law. Now, Mr. Chairman, if we do not carry this legislation to the control of the express business of the country we will leave undoubtedly another opening, another gap by which the great monopolistic shippers of this country may avoid the rebate laws and may obtain their preferences and get around the legislation that we are attempting to pass. To-day you can ship as express business certain commodities in the country, but where is the definition of express business? Who decides exactly what express business is? It is fast freight as far as we can decide it so far. If that is the case, who can tell us but that to-morrow all the refrigerator cars will go into an express company, all the meat that is shipped across the country, all the fruits and all the vegetables and marketable stuffs that go from the south to New York, from the Gulf to Chicago, or from the western plains to the eastern market, will not become express business, and instead of having an express car attached to a train we will have an express train moving across the continent controlled and owned by a different corporation from the railroads and controlled and owned for the purpose of giving rebates and special rates and privileges to certain commodities and certain classes of shippers? Now, I agree with the gentleman from Iowa and I do not think the terms of this bill go far enough to control the express business of the country; but I say that if you do not by your legislation control that express business you leave the gap down and a hole open for those who seek to avoid the law as they have avoided the Elkins law to go through and the very object of your bill will be defeated, and for that reason I think it most important that this House shall at this time amend the bill by providing that the express companies and express business of the country shall come within the terms of the bill.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I do not care about discussing the proposition at all. I have already stated the reason why the committee omitted this subject, and I therefore ask for a vote.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Mr. Chairman, I would just like to be recognized for a moment on this proposition. I do not agree with the statement of our distinguished chairman [Mr. HEPBURN] that this bill does not cover the very question which the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. UNDERWOOD] seeks to incorporate in it now. I have never understood it any other way. And the very suggestions which the gentleman offers, it seems to me, make it absolutely necessary that it should be considered as one of the facilities or instrumentalities of commerce. I can not read this section in any other way. Certainly the express company is engaged in interstate commerce over the highways, and it affords an instrumentality of commerce.

I oppose the amendment for the reason that I believe it already contains this. I also believe it covers Pullman cars, and I have also understood it from the beginning. I can not possibly in my own mind separate these various facilities or instrumentalities from those things which are necessarily included in the terms of the bill. I do not know how the language can be construed any wider or to cover more. It is true we have attempted in here to be specific in certain instances, and we have done that because our attention has been called specifically to those matters. I will say to the gentleman that in all of our hearings we have never had one word of testimony, no complainant has been before us, finding fault with the express companies or Pullman-car companies.

Mr. SAMUEL W. SMITH. Why not make it so plain that there can not be any mistake about it, if the gentleman thinks that express companies should be included in the provisions of the interstate-commerce laws?

Mr. TOWNSEND. Because I believe it is in there now, and I believe, with the gentlemen who have spoken before, that we do not want to amend this bill. I believe it covers the case.

Mr. HAMILTON rose.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TOWNSEND] yield to his colleague [Mr. HAMILTON]?

Mr. TOWNSEND. Certainly.

Mr. HAMILTON. Will the gentleman permit a question?

Mr. TOWNSEND. Certainly.

Mr. HAMILTON. Will the gentleman specify the language in the bill which he thinks covers express companies and Pullman cars?

Mr. TOWNSEND. The language has been read. It is very brief. It states that—

The term "transportation" shall include cars and other vehicles and all instrumentalities and facilities of shipment or carriage—

"Carriage" applies as much to passengers, I will say, as it does to freight—irrespective of ownership or of any contract, express or implied, for the use thereof, and all services in connection with the receipt, delivery, elevation, and transfer in transit, ventilation, refrigeration or icing, storage, and handling of property transported.

I do not know how language could be broader than that.

Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin. Mr. Chairman, I think that the question raised by the remark of the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. UNDERWOOD] is a very important one. This question is whether the pending bill does or does not cover express companies. A speech was made during the debate by the gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. ESCH] in which he said that the bill covers express companies. I was not present when, as I am told, the distinguished chairman of the committee [Mr. HEPBURN] asserted that the bill does not cover express companies. I desire to say, Mr. Chairman, in this connection, that to me it is clear that the bill does not cover express companies. I base my contention first upon the construction of the original act by the Interstate Commerce Commission. The original act contains this language:

And the term "transportation" shall include all instrumentalities of shipment or carriage.

That is the exact phraseology, practically, to which the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TOWNSEND] has just called the attention of his colleague from Michigan [Mr. HAMILTON]. But that language, as I said, has been held from the beginning by the Interstate Commerce Commission not to cover express companies. Now, what is the language of the pending bill. It reads:

Transportation shall include cars and other vehicles and all instrumentalities.

And the word "facilities" is added. No other word than "facilities" of any significance, and that has no especial legal significance in this connection, is added to the old statute in defining the word "transportation" to make it applicable to express companies. But what else is there to show, Mr. Chairman, that the pending bill does not cover express companies? The same section (sec. 1) of the pending bill contains this language: "Every carrier;" and the word "carrier" here means a railroad company.

Mr. TOWNSEND. We have enlarged "carrier" and we have enlarged "railroad."

Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin. Just a moment. It says:

And it shall be the duty of every carrier subject to the provisions of this act to provide and furnish such transportation.

Now, that is the transportation in cars. That is not the transportation that comes under the definition of "instrumentalities and facilities," to cover express companies.

Mr. TOWNSEND. How does the gentleman expect to cover express companies?

Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin (continuing). Because an express company is a separate corporation entirely.

Mr. TOWNSEND. It is carried in cars, is it not?

Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin (continuing). And the railroad company does not presume to dictate at the office of an express company what package shall or shall not be carried. The railroad company simply supplies cars for the express company, a separate corporation, to use.

Day before yesterday I said to a member of the present Interstate Commerce Commission that in my judgment the pending bill does not cover express companies and asked him as to his views on this point. Without a moment's hesitation, he replied that it does not cover express companies and that the provisions of the bill do not essentially enlarge the provisions of the original act in this regard.

Mr. STEENERSON. Mr. Chairman, I send up an amendment or a substitute which I offer as an amendment to the amendment proposed by the gentleman from Alabama.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend the bill by inserting after line 12 and before line 13, on page 2, the following words: "including express companies."

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair understood the gentleman to say that he offered an amendment to the amendment. The language he has sent up seems to be an amendment to the bill.

Mr. STEENERSON. It was written before the amendment of the gentleman from Alabama was sent up. I desire to have it modified so as to offer it as an amendment to the amendment or as a substitute.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Mr. Chairman, I would like to make a parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. What portion of the bill does this last amendment propose to amend—that is, where is it proposed to insert it?

Mr. STEENERSON. In section 1, page 2.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota, although germane to the bill, is not in order as an amendment to my amendment. My amendment is offered as a separate section. His amendment is offered to the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The point of order is sustained. The amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota is an independent amendment.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman from Alabama has just stated his amendment is a new section to the bill. I beg to ask, if that is the case, where it comes in?

Mr. UNDERWOOD. I should have said a new paragraph to this section. My words were not well chosen.

Mr. STEENERSON. I desire to inquire what the status of my proposition is?

The CHAIRMAN. The amendment of the gentleman from Minnesota has been ruled out on a point of order.

Mr. STEENERSON. I desire to ask the gentleman to reserve the point of order. [Cries of "Vote!"]

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Alabama, which the Clerk will again report for the information of the committee.

The amendment was again reported.

The question was taken on the adoption of the amendment, and the Chairman announced that the noes appeared to have it.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. I ask for a division.

The committee divided; and there were—ayes 129, noes 129.

Mr. UNDERWOOD. I ask for tellers, Mr. Chairman.

Tellers were ordered.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN] and the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. UNDERWOOD] will please take their places as tellers.

The committee again divided; and the tellers reported—ayes 119, noes 146.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. HARDWICK. Mr. Chairman——

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. STEENERSON] has the first right to recognition.

Mr. STEENERSON. I desire to offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend the bill by inserting after line 12 and before line 13, page 2, the following words: "including express companies."

Mr. ADAMSON. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that we have just voted on that subject-matter, and no other business has been transacted.

The CHAIRMAN. It is not within the right of the Chair to pass upon the subject-matter or the propriety of an amendment offered.

Mr. STEENERSON. So far as I am concerned, I desire to say that I do not introduce this amendment for the purpose of embarrassing the committee.

Mr. MANN. I rise to a parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. MANN. As I understand it, the gentleman must be mistaken about where he is proposing this amendment to be inserted, and therefore I ask where this amendment is proposed to be made?

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair did not hear the gentleman.

Mr. MANN. May I ask that the amendment be reported for information.

Mr. STEENERSON. I desire to explain the amendment.

The amendment was again reported.

Mr. MANN. If the gentleman will pardon me, if the gentleman wants to accomplish anything by offering his amendment he should ask to have it inserted in a place where it will have some relation to the matter.

Mr. STEENERSON. I suppose, Mr. Chairman, I have the floor.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Minnesota has the floor.

Mr. STEENERSON. As I have just stated, Mr. Chairman, I do not offer this amendment because I want to embarrass this committee.

Mr. NORRIS. I want to ask the gentleman a question.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman yield?

Mr. STEENERSON. I yield.

Mr. NORRIS. From what I heard the Clerk read, the amendment of the gentleman from Minnesota does not mean anything.

Mr. MANN. That is just what I said to him, but he didn't pay any attention to it. [Laughter.]

Mr. STEENERSON. Where would the gentleman put it in?

Mr. NORRIS. I would favor the gentleman's amendment if he would put it in where it would do some good.

Mr. STEENERSON. I would put it in anywhere, but this is the place I have selected. The purpose of the amendment, Mr. Chairman, is just the same as that which was intended by the amendment we just voted down, so I do not expect that the committee will reverse itself on that proposition. I desire to say, however, that I think it was a great mistake in framing the bill not to include express companies. The bill loses a good deal of its merit by not including that provision. The most valuable provisions in this bill are those sections which seek to make the present law more effective and invest the Commission with power to execute all existing law with greater efficiency, but to leave out the express companies, it seems to me, leaves a loophole, which makes it ineffective, indeed, so far as that part of the bill is concerned. I think all that is necessary to make the bill cover express companies is to insert it in this part of the section that I have indicated. I will say that I examined the question very carefully, and I am sorry to differ with the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] and the gentleman from Nebraska. The gentleman from Wisconsin [Mr. ESCH] said the other day that it was his opinion that express companies were included by implication. The chairman of the committee [Mr. HEPBURN] has just told us that it does not include express companies, so there seems to be a divided opinion among the members of the committee, and the only way to remedy it, it seems to me, is to make the express provision covering this matter.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following substitute to the gentleman's amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by adding to end of line 12, page 2, the following: "and the term 'common carrier' shall include the business done by postal cars, express and terminal companies."

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that this is not germane to the section, and, besides, that it attempts to place the postal cars of the country under the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I have examined the section, and it strikes me that it is germane. The section provides that "the provisions of this act shall apply to any common carrier or carriers engaged in the transportation of passengers or property wholly by railroad," etc. Now, this amendment defines the term "common carrier," and if this amendment is adopted the charges made for hauling postal cars will be regulated by the Commission and the Government will save many millions of dollars each year.

Mr. MANN. Will the gentleman from Texas yield for a question?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Certainly.

Mr. MANN. Does not the gentleman from Texas think that while we are amending the bill we ought to amend the eight-hour law, too?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. We will reach that in due time.

Mr. MANN. It might as well be put in this bill as anywhere else.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. At the present time we are engaged in trying to amend this bill.

Mr. Chairman, I desire to state that, in my judgment, this amendment is germane to this section of this bill, because a charge is made by railroad companies for hauling mail cars, and the object of this section, and in fact of this bill, is to fix maximum rates for common carriers, and by my amendment I desire to place postal cars, express and terminal cars under the provisions of the act.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will be glad to hear the gentleman from Texas on the question of the point of order—on the question of whether the mail business done by the postal cars is germane to the bill.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Mr. Chairman, this amendment is germane because it will regulate charges made by common carriers for transporting postal, express, or terminal cars. It makes no difference whether the property is mail matter and belongs to the United States, or whether it is something to be carried for hire, and we are by this bill engaged in regulating freight charges. It makes no difference whether it is for the United States or whether it is for a citizen of the United States if it is property and a charge is made for hauling it. Now, this amendment would give the Commission the right to regulate the rates charged for the business done in postal cars, terminal cars, or express cars. I do not understand that any question is raised by the gentleman's point of order about the terminal or express cars, but his objection only relates to the cars carrying mail or postal cars.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair rules that perhaps as the gentleman from Texas has stated it it would very likely be in order, but the proposition as stated in his amendment as read at the desk, the Chair thinks, would not be in order.

The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. STEENERSON].

The question was taken; and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. HARDWICK. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by adding after line 12, page 2, the following:
"The term 'common carrier' as used in this act shall include all Pullman-car companies and sleeping-car companies, and all persons, firms, or corporations engaged in the business of operating Pullman, sleeping, dining, or drawing-room cars."

Mr. HARDWICK. Mr. Chairman, I want to say just a word to the committee about this amendment. The gentleman from Wisconsin stated the case correctly and very lucidly, I thought, when he said that the Interstate Commerce Commission had decided under the provisions of the original Reagan Act that the language therein used was not broad enough to cover express car companies. Of course it would not cover Pullman car companies. The gentleman from Michigan [Mr. TOWNSEND] disagrees with the chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN], about whether or not Pullman car companies are included within the provision of this bill. I think there ought to be no doubt about it, and that they ought to be included in it so that they can not make unreasonable charges. I hope the amendment will pass.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia.

The question was taken; and on a division, demanded by Mr. HARDWICK, there were—ayes 74, noes 143.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. OLMSTED. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by inserting, in line 6, page 2, after the words "United States," the words "not in the same State in which said transportation began;" so that as amended it will read, "from any place in the United States through a foreign country to any other place in the United States not in the same State in which the said transportation began."

Mr. OLMSTED. Mr. Chairman, I desire to call this to the attention of the distinguished chairman of the committee, the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN]. I offer it simply because the Supreme Court of the United States has decided that transportation from a point in one State passing out of the State into another State, but coming back into the same State—the transportation both beginning and ending in the same State—is to be treated as domestic commerce and not within the commerce clause of the Constitution which confers the power of regulation on Congress.

Mr. SHERMAN. Why is it necessary, if the Supreme Court has so held?

Mr. OLMSTED. Mr. Chairman, my idea is to get this portion of the act in harmony with the Supreme Court and the Constitution, and not to complicate the act at all.

Mr. HEPBURN. This is the language of the present law, Mr. Chairman.

Mr. OLMSTED. This is the language of the Supreme Court. That tribunal had decided that transportation from a point in Pennsylvania to a point in New Jersey was interstate commerce, and not subject to regulation or taxation by the State, but subject to regulation by Congress only. In a subsequent case the Supreme Court distinctly decided that transportation from a point in Pennsylvania crossing the Delaware River into New Jersey and passing 50 miles through New Jersey and back into Philadelphia was domestic commerce, subject to regulation by the State and not by Congress.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Chairman, will the gentleman yield for a question?

Mr. OLMSTED. Certainly.

Mr. SHERMAN. Why is it not better to retain the language that has been adjudicated upon?

Mr. OLMSTED. Because the court has adjudicated that the language is unconstitutional and goes beyond the powers of Congress.

Mr. SHERMAN. Not that the language is unconstitutional?

Mr. OLMSTED. That the provision is. The Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, delivering the unanimous opinion of the court, said:

The question is simply whether in the carriage of freight and passengers between two points in one State the mere passage over the soil of another State renders that business foreign business, which is domestic. We do not think such a view can be reasonably entertained.

The case to which I refer is Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, reported in 144 United States, page 192.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

The question was taken; and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

After the word "unlawful," line 19, page 3, insert the following:
"It shall be unlawful for any common carrier subject to the provisions of this act to charge or receive any greater compensation in the aggregate for the transportation of passengers or of the same class or like kind of property for a shorter than for a longer distance over the same line in the same direction, the shorter being included within the longer distance; but this shall not be construed as authorizing any common carrier within the terms of this act to charge and receive as great compensation for a shorter as for a longer distance."

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order on that if it is offered as an amendment to section 1 of this bill.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. It is offered as an amendment to a section of this bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Illinois will state his point of order.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, the point of order is that this section of the bill does not relate to that matter at all; that this is not germane to section 1 of the bill. The bill relates to the original act, and section 4 of the original act relates to that matter. It would be germane as an original section or as an amendment to the original section 4 of the act, but it is not germane as an amendment to this section of the bill.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. Just one word on the point of order, Mr. Chairman. I offer this as an amendment to the end of line 19 on page 3. That immediate paragraph reads as follows:

All charges made for any service rendered or to be rendered in the transportation of passengers or property as aforesaid, or in connection therewith, shall be just and reasonable; and every unjust and unreasonable charge for such service, or any part thereof, is prohibited and declared to be unlawful.

Mr. Chairman, I want to call the attention of this committee distinctly to the fact that the immediate paragraph which I seek to amend is dealing with what shall and what shall not be deemed unreasonable charges, and this defines as a matter of law one of the things that shall be deemed unreasonable.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Missouri offer it as a new paragraph, following the last paragraph in section 1?

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. No, sir. I offer this as an addition to the end of line 19 in section 1. That part of the paragraph treats of unreasonable charges, and I desire to add at the end of line, after the word "unlawful," on line 19, one of the things which shall be declared an unreasonable charge.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is of the opinion that the paragraph is germane offered as a new paragraph to line 19.

The question was taken; and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. PRINCE. Mr. Chairman, I desire to offer the following as a paragraph to follow in line 13, on page 3.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

After line 13, page 3, insert the following:

"That from and after the 1st day of January 1910, it shall be unlawful for any common carrier engaged in interstate commerce by railroad to use or haul or permit to be used or hauled on its line any car not owned by it or some other such common carrier."

Mr. PRINCE. Mr. Chairman, I desire to make a few remarks on this question. It can not well be claimed that I am not in favor of rate regulation. One year ago, when, perhaps, very few men in this House stood up and made speeches upon this question, I was one of the few who spoke out at that time. I am in favor of rate regulation to-day. I would not have offered this amendment had I believed that this bill that is now under consideration fairly covers private car lines. I heard the speeches of two honorable members of this committee, and they declared to Members of this House that this bill did cover private car lines and regulate them. I heard to-day from the honorable Member, the chairman of the committee, in whose judgment I have great confidence, a statement to this House that it did not cover private car lines. Now, if there is any question about private car lines, we ought to settle it here and now. I am informed, when the managers of private car lines are called upon by the Interstate Commerce Commission to tell with regard to their transactions, they fold their arms and say, "We are not common carriers; you have no authority over us; we are private car lines and are not amenable to the law that governs common carriers."

If, then, they are not amenable to the law that governs common carriers, if they are private car lines, they have no authority, in my judgment, to haul their cars or permit them to be hauled upon a public highway any more than I have the right to build a car and have it hauled upon a public highway. The railroads have the power of eminent domain; they can take my property; they can go through a cemetery or go everywhere and anywhere and take property that is needed for public purposes as a public highway. Mr. Armour, with all his great interests, can not take a foot of ground from me to run his cars. If this bill passes, you permit him to be a common carrier to all intents and purposes, and you permit other private car lines in the United States to continue as private car lines and not to be amenable to the law as common carriers. Now, I have offered a simple, plain proposition that needs no parsing, that needs no interpretation, which he who runneth may read, and I have struck at the very root of the whole proposition, and that is to let the common carriers of this country that have the right of eminent domain, that have the power to go where they please, furnish the facilities to the public for transporting passengers and freight, and this will do it. I ask for a vote.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. PRINCE].

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. SHEPPARD. Mr. Chairman, I desire to offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Texas [Mr. SHEPPARD] offers an amendment, which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend section 1, line 8, page 1, by inserting, after the word "railroad," the words "or wholly by water."

Mr. SHEPPARD. As the bill reads now, it applies to transportation wholly by railroad or partly by railroad and partly by water. It does not apply to transportation wholly by water, and the same reasons which make regulation applicable to transportation wholly by railroad ought to make it also applicable to transportation wholly by water. I trust that the amendment will be adopted.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas [Mr. SHEPPARD].

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. THOMAS of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. THOMAS] offers an amendment, which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Line 12, page 3, after the word "therefor," add the words "and to furnish the number of cars necessary for such transportation without delay."

Mr. THOMAS of North Carolina. Mr. Chairman, I desire to say one word on that amendment. I am very heartily in favor of this particular section of the bill, and if this amendment is not necessary I do not want it to pass. The purpose and the effect of the amendment is this: In addition to requiring the private car companies to furnish proper refrigeration, icing, and other facilities of transportation, I want, Mr. Chairman, by this amendment also to require them to furnish the proper number of cars. And if the term "transportation," as used in the bill, covers the proper number of cars, why, all well and good. We had, during the last strawberry season, in my section of the country a car famine, and I want to provide against that. If this bill covers it, why, all right. If it does not cover it, I think this amendment ought to be adopted and that the common carriers ought to be compelled without delay to furnish the proper number of cars for the transportation that is necessary. I know the disposition is not to amend the bill. I offer the amendment out of abundant caution.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from North Carolina [Mr. THOMAS].

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate upon this section and upon amendments offered thereto be now closed.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Chairman, I want to offer an independent paragraph to section 1, and I hope the gentleman will not insist upon closing. We sat here and listened to him for a long time.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Iowa moves that all debate upon this section and amendments be now closed.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Chairman, a parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. JAMES. Does the motion made by the gentleman from Iowa preclude the offering of a new paragraph to section 1?

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair understands the adoption of the motion of the gentleman from Iowa by the committee will not interfere with further amendment, but will stop further debate.

The question is now on the motion offered by the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. HEPBURN].

The question was taken, and the motion was agreed to.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Chairman, I would like to offer this paragraph to which I have referred.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Kentucky offers a paragraph to section 1 of the bill, which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

That all corporations engaged in interstate commerce shall, within ninety days after the passage of this act and every six months thereafter, file with the Interstate Commerce Commission a statement, sworn and subscribed to by the president and secretary of said corporation before an officer with authority to administer an oath in the State in which said corporation resides, setting forth that said corporation has not monopolized, and is not attempting to monopolize, any branch of business or the production of any articles of commerce. Any corporation engaged in interstate commerce which has monopolized any branch of business or the production of any article of commerce shall be denied the right of interstate shipment upon the common carriers mentioned in this bill, and for a violation shall be subject to a fine of not less than $5,000 or confinement in prison for not less than one year nor more than five years, or both such fine and imprisonment.

Any person swearing falsely to such statement aforesaid required of such corporations shall be subject, upon conviction, to a fine of not less than $5,000 and imprisonment for not less than three years nor more than ten years, such penalty aforesaid to be enforced in any court of the United State of competent jurisdiction.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Kentucky [Mr. JAMES].

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the noes seemed to have it.

Mr. JAMES. Division!

The committee divided, and the Chair counted the affirmative vote.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Kentucky demand further count?

Mr. JAMES. No, sir; I see they have outvoted us; I merely wanted to show that all the Republicans would vote against the amendment.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. LAMAR. I offer the following amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

Mr. LAMAR. I offer that amendment for the benefit of the Pennsylvania Railroad and the coal trust.

The Clerk read as follows:

That whenever any common carrier, subject to the provisions of this act, shall fail or refuse, after reasonable notice, to furnish cars to shippers for the transportation of freight as interstate commerce, or to forward and deliver such freight at destination within a reasonable time, such failure or refusal shall be deemed to constitute unjust discrimination and undue and unreasonable prejudice and disadvantage, and in any case or proceeding pending before the Commission or any circuit or district court of the United States based upon such failure or refusal on the part of any such common carrier, proof that in the furnishing of cars or forwarding or delivery of its traffic other shippers have been preferred shall not be required.

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. SAMUEL W. SMITH. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of line 19, page 3, insert: "It shall be unlawful for any common carrier or carriers subject to this act to charge, demand, accept, or receive, for the transportation of passengers as aforesaid, for the sale of so-called 'mileage books,' any sum in excess of the actual value thereof; no deposit shall be required from the purchaser of any such 'mileage book,' and no refund shall be made to such purchaser except for unused mileage."

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. HARDWICK. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by adding after line 12, page 2, the following:

"The term 'common carrier' as used in this act shall include all telephone and telegraph companies, and all persons, firms, or corporations engaged in the telephone or telegraph business."

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 2. That section 6 of said act, as amended March 2, 1889, be amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 6. That every common carrier subject to the provisions of this act shall print and keep open to public inspection schedules showing the rates, fares, and charges for the transportation of passengers and property which any such common carrier has established, and which are in force at the time upon its route. The schedules printed as aforesaid by any such common carrier shall plainly state the places between which property and passengers will be carried, and shall contain the classification of freight in force, and shall also state separately the terminal charges, icing charges, and all other charges which the Commission may require, and any rules or regulations which in any wise change, affect, or determine any part of the aggregate of such aforesaid rates, fares, and charges. Such schedules shall be plainly printed in large type, and copies for the use of the public shall be posted in two public and conspicuous places in every depot, station, or office of such carrier where passengers or freight, respectively, are received for transportation, in such form that they shall be accessible to the public and can be conveniently inspected.

"Any common carrier subject to the provisions of this act receiving freight in the United States to be carried through a foreign country to any place in the United States shall also in like manner print and keep open to public inspection, at every depot or office where such freight is received for shipment, schedules showing the through rates established and charged by such common carrier to all points in the United States beyond the foreign country to which it accepts freight for shipment; and any freight shipped from the United States through a foreign country into the United States the through rate on which shall not have been made public, as required by this act, shall, before it is admitted into the United States from said foreign country, be subject to customs duties as if said freight were of foreign production.

"No change shall be made in the rates, fares, and charges or joint rates, fares, and charges which have been established and published by any common carrier in compliance with the requirements of this section, except after thirty days' public notice, which shall plainly state the changes proposed to be made in the schedule then in force and the time when the changed rates, fares, or charges will go into effect; and the proposed changes shall be shown by printing new schedules, or shall be plainly indicated upon the schedules in force at the time and kept open to public inspection: Provided, That the Commision may, in its discretion and for good cause shown, allow changes upon less than the notice herein specified, or modify the requirements of this section in respect to publishing, posting, and filing of tariffs, either in particular instances or by a general order applicable to special or peculiar circumstances or conditions.

"And when any such common carrier shall have established and published its rates, fares, and charges in compliance with the provisions of this section, it shall be unlawful for such common carrier to charge, demand, collect, or receive from any person or persons a greater or less compensation for the transportation of passengers or property, or for any services in connection therewith, than is specified in such published schedule of rates, fares, and charges as may at the time be in force.

"Every common carrier subject to the provisions of this act shall file with the Commission hereinafter provided for copies of its schedules of rates, fares, and charges which have been established and published in compliance with the requirements of this section, and shall promptly notify said Commission of all changes made in the same. Every such common carrier shall also file with said Commission copies of all contracts, agreements, or arrangements with other common carriers in relation to any traffic affected by the provisions of this act to which it may be a party. And in cases where passengers and freight pass over continuous lines or routes operated by more than one common carrier, and the several common carriers operating such lines or routes establish joint tariffs of rates, fares, or charges for such continuous lines or routes, copies of such joint tariffs shall also in like manner be filed with said Commission. Such joint rates, fares, and charges on such continuous lines so filed as aforesaid shall be made public by such common carriers when directed by said Commission, in so far as may, in the judgment of the Commission, be deemed practicable; and said Commission shall from time to time prescribe the measure of publicity which shall be given to such rates, fares, and charges, or to such part of them as it may deem it practicable for such common carriers to publish, and the places in which they shall be published.

"No change shall be made in joint rates, fares, and charges, shown upon joint tariffs, except after thirty days' notice to the Commission, which shall plainly state the changes proposed to be made in the schedule then in force and the time when the changed rates, fares, or charges will go into effect. The Commission may make public or require the carriers to make public such proposed changes in such manner as may, in its judgment, be deemed practicable and may prescribe from time to time the measure of publicity which common carriers shall give to advances or reductions in joint tariffs.

"It shall be unlawful for any common carrier party to any joint tariff to charge, demand, collect, or receive from any person or persons a greater or less compensation for the transportation of persons or property, or for any services in connection therewith, between any points as to which a joint rate, fare, or charge is named thereon, than is specified in the schedule filed with the Commission in force at the time.

"The Commission may determine and prescribe the form in which the schedules required by this section to be kept open to public inspection shall be prepared and arranged and may change the form from time to time as shall be found expedient.

"If any such common carrier shall neglect or refuse to file or publish its schedules or tariffs of rates, fares, and charges as provided in this section or any part of the same, such common carrier shall, in addition to other penalties herein prescribed, be subject to a writ of mandamus, to be issued by any circuit court of the United States in the judicial district wherein the principal operating office of said common carrier is situated or wherein such offense may be committed, and if such common carrier be a foreign corporation in the judicial circuit wherein such common carrier accepts traffic and has an agent to perform such service, to compel compliance with the aforesaid provisions of this section; and such writ shall issue in the name of the people of the United States, at the relation of the Commission appointed under the provisions of this act; and the failure to comply with its requirements shall be punishable as and for a contempt; and the said Commission, as complainant, may also apply, in any such circuit court of the United States, for a writ of injunction against such common carrier to restrain such common carrier from receiving or transporting property among the several States and Territories of the United States, or between the United States and adjacent foreign countries, or between ports of transshipment and of entry and the several States and Territories of the United States as mentioned in the first section of this act, until such common carrier shall have complied with the aforesaid provisions of this section of this act."

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

At the end of line 17, page 4, add:

"The Interstate Commerce Commission shall, on the 1st day of January, 1907, make and publish a uniform classification of freight articles, which shall thereafter be invariably observed and applied in the transportation of interstate commerce: Provided, That the Commission may at any time after reasonable notice modify such classification, but any such modification shall apply uniformly to all interstate commerce transported by any carrier subject to the provisions of this act."

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. The amendment provides that the Commission shall make a uniform classification of rates to be observed throughout the country. It is not necessary for me to take the time of the House to show how the railroads will be absolutely free from regulation by the Commission without such a provision. We all remember the Hay cases that were decided at Cincinnati something over a year ago, where the railroad raised the rate by simply shifting the class of goods from one class to another. Now, having one classification in one part of the country and making a different classification in a different section of the country by the mere difference of the classification producers are made to pay different freight rates for the transportation of their products. I discussed this at length the other day, and I shall not take the time of the committee now except to say that this is another provision of the Hearst bill, which we presented at the last session, which I desire to have inserted in this bill.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate upon this section and all amendments thereto be now closed.

The question was taken, and the motion was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Missouri.

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Mr. Chairman, I submit the following amendment, which I send to the Chair.

The Clerk read as follows:

Insert after line 5, on page 9, the following section:

"SEC. 3. That section 13 of said act be amended by repealing so much thereof as reads as follows: 'And may institute any inquiry on its own motion in the same manner and to the same effect as though complaint had been made.'"

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. LAMAR. Mr. Chairman, I submit an amendment on page 6, line 6, after the word "force."

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 6, line 6, after the word "force," insert the following:

"That when any notice of advance in rates, fares, or charges shall be filed with the Commission, the said Commission shall have authority to inquire into the lawfulness of such advance and make orders in respect thereof to the same effect as if such advanced rate, fare, or charge were actually in force. The provisions of this section shall also apply to notice of any change in classification of freight or other regulations affecting rates."

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. Another amendment, Mr. Chairman. I ask the Clerk to read them as one amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 7, in line 12, strike out the word "may" and insert "shall;" and in line 15 strike out the words "measure of publicity" and insert in lieu thereof the words "the method by;" and in line 16 strike out the word "to" and insert in lieu thereof the words "notice of;" commencing immediately after the word "carriers," in line 25, on page 6, strike out all to the end of line 6, on page 7, and insert in lieu thereof the following: "fully and completely in such manner as the Commission shall direct."

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. WEISSE. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend section 2, page 7, line 8, by inserting after the word "tariffs" the following: "except on full hearing before the Commission and after thirty days' notice to each shipper by letter before the new rate goes into effect," and by striking out lines 10, 11, and 12.

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

The Clerk, proceeding with the reading of the bill, read as follows:

SEC. 4. That section 15 of said act be amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 15. That the Commission is authorized and empowered, and it shall be its duty, whenever, after full hearing upon a complaint made as provided in section 13 of this act, or upon complaint of any common carrier, it shall be of the opinion that any of the rates, or charges whatsoever, demanded, charged, or collected by any common carrier or carriers, subject to the provisions of this act, for the transportation of persons or property as defined in the first section of this act, or that any regulations or practices whatsoever of such carrier or carriers affecting such rates, are unjust or unreasonable, or unjustly discriminatory, or unduly preferential or prejudicial, or otherwise in violation of any of the provisions of this act, to determine and prescribe what will, in its judgment, be the just and reasonable and fairly remunerative rate or rates, charge or charges, to be thereafter observed in such case as the maximum to be charged; and what regulation or practice in respect to such transportation is just, fair, and reasonable to be thereafter followed; and to make an order that the carrier shall cease and desist from such violation, to the extent to which the Commission find the same to exist, and shall not thereafter publish, demand, or collect any rate or charge for such transportation in excess of the maximum rate or charge so prescribed, and shall conform to the regulation or practice so prescribed. Such order shall go into effect thirty days after notice to the carrier and shall remain in force and be observed by the carrier, unless the same shall be suspended or modified or set aside by the Commission or be suspended or set aside by a court of competent jurisdiction. Whenever the carrier or carriers, in obedience to such order of the Commission, or otherwise, shall publish and file joint rates, fares, or charges, and fail to agree among themselves upon the apportionment or division thereof, the Commission may after hearing make a supplemental order prescribing the portion of such joint rate to be received by each carrier party thereto, which order shall take effect as a part of the original order.

"The Commission may also, after hearing on a complaint, establish through routes and joint rates as the maximum to be charged and prescribe the division of such rates as hereinbefore provided, and the terms and conditions under which such through routes shall be operated, when that may be necessary to give effect to any provision of this act, and the carriers complained of have refused or neglected to voluntarily establish such through routes and joint rates, provided no reasonable or satisfactory through route exists.

"If the owner of property transported under this act directly or indirectly renders any service connected with such transportation, or furnishes any instrumentality used therein, the charge and allowance therefor shall not be more than is just and reasonable, and the Commission may, after hearing on a complaint, determine what is a reasonable charge as the maximum to be paid by the carrier or carriers for the service so rendered or for the use of the instrumentality so furnished, and fix the same by appropriate order, which order shall have the same force and effect and be enforced in like manner as the orders above provided for in this section.

"The foregoing enumeration of powers shall not exclude any power which the Commission would otherwise have in the making of an order under the provisions of this act."

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Mr. Chairman, I submit the following amendment, which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by adding, after the word "prescribed," in line 5, page 11, the following:

"Nothing herein contained shall be construed as authorizing the Commission to hear any complaint based upon an alleged preference given to one locality over another, nor to set aside or substitute any rate because of any alleged preference of one locality over another."

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Mr. Chairman, I have only a word to say. This amendment simply puts the bill in the position in which the committee believe it to be, but as to which there is considerable difference of opinion. It confines the Commission to the provisions of the existing law, and does not allow them to take into account the question of undue or unjust preferences. I merely offer it in order that the committee may have an opportunity to express its opinion on that specific provision.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate upon this section and the amendments thereto be now closed.

Mr. SULZER. I object, Mr. Chairman, and I hope it will be voted down.

Mr. SHERMAN. This does not cut off any amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman can offer any amendment he sees fit. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from New York to close debate.

The question was taken; and the motion was agreed to.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I move an amendment to the amendment. The gentleman from Maine uses the word "illegal" in line 2, and I offer to amend by striking that out and inserting the word "alleged;" so that it will read: "based upon an alleged preference."

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. I will accept the suggestion of the gentleman from Massachusetts.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. Chairman, I would like to have the amendment read as amended by the gentleman from Massachusetts.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read the amendment as it will read when amended.

The Clerk again read the amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts to the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maine.

The question was taken; and the amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The question now is on the amendment as amended.

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the amendment was lost.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Mr. Chairman, I ask for a division.

The House proceeded to divide; and the Chairman announced that there were 20 ayes.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Mr. Chairman, I do not ask for the other side.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. SULZER. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment, which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

In line 15, on page 10, after the word "any," insert "relation of rates or;" and in line 23, after the word "what," insert "relation of rates or."

Mr. SULZER. Mr. Chairman, I want to say one word. It is a shame to rush this bill through the House in this unparliamentary way. The bill is very imperfect. We should endeavor in a decent way to correct the errors in the bill and make it a better bill by amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. Debate has been closed.

The question was taken; and the Chairman announced that the noes had it.

Mr. SULZER. Division, Mr. Chairman!

The House proceeded to divide; and the Chairman announced that there were 30 ayes.

Mr. SULZER. Mr. Chairman, I withdraw the demand for a division and offer the following amendment, which I send to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 11, line 6, strike out the words "thirty days after notice to the carrier" and insert the word "immediately."

In line 8 strike out the words "be suspended."

In line 9 strike out the words "be suspended or" and insert "or modified." Strike out the words "competent jurisdiction" and insert in lieu thereof the words "last resort."

Mr. SULZER. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent to say just a word or two. This is a vital matter, and the amendment should be agreed to—— [Cries of "Vote!" "Vote!"]

The CHAIRMAN. Objection is made. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. SULZER].

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. SULZER) there were—ayes 20, noes 168.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. SULZER. I ask for tellers, Mr. Chairman.

The question was taken, and tellers were refused.

Mr. WEEKS. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment, which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Insert immediately after line 11, page 12, the following:

"Railroad or other corporations engaged in interstate traffic shall issue only such amounts of stock and bonds, coupon notes, and other evidences of indebtedness payable at periods of more than twelve months after the date thereof as the Interstate Commerce Commission shall determine is necessary for the purpose for which such issue of stock or bonds has been authorized. Said corporations shall file with the said Commission a statement showing the amount of stock or bonds which it desires to issue, the purposes to which the proceeds are to be applied, and certified copies of the votes of the board of directors and shareholders authorizing the issue, on receipt of which statement the said Board of Commissioners shall order a public hearing and shall render a decision upon the application within thirty days after the final hearing thereon. Such decision shall be in writing; shall assign the reasons therefor; shall, if authorizing such issue, specify the respective amounts of stock or bonds or coupon notes authorized, and shall define the respective purposes to which the proceeds thereof are to be applied. A copy of this rendering and the vote of the Commissioners making it shall be made a part of the records of the said Commission, and a certified copy of the vote of the Commission, with the statement of the application of the proceeds of the issue, shall be filed with the corporation making the application and shall become a part of its records. A company which is within the provisions of this section shall not apply the proceeds of such stock or bonds or coupon notes or other evidences of indebtedness as aforesaid to any purpose not specified in such certificate.

"Any United States district court shall have jurisdiction in equity upon the application of the Interstate Commerce Commissioners to enforce the provisions of the preceding section and all lawful orders and decisions, conditions, or requirements of said Board of Commissioners made in pursuance thereof.

"An officer, director, or agent of any corporation engaged in interstate commerce who knowingly votes to authorize the issue of or signs, certifies, or issues stock or bonds or other evidences of indebtedness, or who knowingly votes to authorize the application or applies the proceeds of such stock or bonds or other evidences of indebtedness contrary to the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not more than $10,000, or by imprisonment for not more than five years, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

"Whenever it becomes necessary for a corporation engaged in interstate commerce to increase its capital stock, and such increase is authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission, such new shares as are necessary to produce the amount of increased capital stock shall be offered proportionately to its stockholders at not less than the fair market value thereof at the time of increase, which value shall be determined by the Interstate Commerce Commissioners, who shall consider previous sales of the stock of said corporation and other pertinent conditions in determining value. The decision of the Commissioners shall be made in writing, shall be certified to, and shall become part of the records of the Commissioners, and a copy shall be recorded in the books of the corporation.

"The directors, upon the approval of such increase and the determination of the market value as hereinbefore provided, shall cause written notice of such increase to be given to each stockholder who was such at the date of the vote to increase, stating the amount of such increase, the number of shares or fractions of shares to which he, according to the proportionate number of his shares at the date of such vote, is entitled, the price at which he is entitled to take them, and fixing a time, not less than thirty days after the date of such determination, within which he may subscribe for such additional stock. Each stockholder may, within the time limit, subscribe for his portion of such stock, which shall be paid for in cash before the issue of a certificate therefor.

"If after the expiration of the time limit in the notice required by this section any shares remain unsubscribed for by the stockholders entitled to take them, the directors shall sell them by auction to the highest bidder. Such shares shall be offered for sale in any city or town prescribed by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Notice of the time, place, and manner of making the sale, which shall include the amount of stock to be sold in any one lot, shall be published at least three times during the thirty days immediately preceding the sale in each of at least five daily newspapers, as may be prescribed by said Commissioners.

"A railroad or other corporation engaged in interstate commerce may, by vote at a meeting called for the purpose in accordance with the provisions of this section, issue coupon or registered bonds or other evidences of indebtedness, payable at periods of more than twelve months from the date hereof, to provide means for funding its floating debt, lawfully incurred, or for the payment of money borrowed for any lawful purpose, and may mortgage or pledge as security for the payment of such indebtedness a part or all of its road, equipment, or franchise, or a part or all of its real or personal property. Such bonds, coupon notes, or other evidences of indebtedness shall be recorded by its treasurer in books to be kept in his office, but shall not be issued unless approved by a person or trust company appointed by the corporation for that purpose, who shall certify that it is properly issued and recorded."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts.

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by inserting after the word "hearing," in lines 8 and 9, on page 10, the following: "upon its own motion or."

Mr. SMITH of Texas. Mr. Chairman, the status of railroad property in this country is in some respects unique. It has never, in my judgment, been more correctly and lucidly defined than it was by the Supreme Court of the United States in the case of Smyth v. Ames, from the State of Nebraska. In that case the court said:

A railroad is a public highway, and none the less so because constructed and maintained through the agency of a corporation deriving its existence and powers from the State. Such a corporation was created for public purposes. It performs a function of the State. Its authority to exercise the right of eminent domain and to charge tolls was given primarily for the benefit of the public. * * * It can not, therefore, be admitted that a railroad corporation maintaining a highway under the authority of the State may fix its rates with a view solely to its own interests and ignore the rights of the public.

Again, the court says in that case:

A corporation maintaining a public highway, although it owns the property it employs for accomplishing public objects, must be held to have accepted its rights, privileges, and franchises subject to the condition that the government creating it, or the government within whose limits it conducts its business, may by legislation protect the people against unreasonable charges for the services rendered by it. It can not be assumed that any railroad corporation accepting franchises, rights, and privileges at the hands of the public ever supposed that it acquired, or that it was intended to grant to it, the power to construct and maintain a public highway simply for its benefit without regard to the rights of the public. * * *

What the company is entitled to ask—

Says the court—

is a fair return upon the value of that which it employs for the public convenience. On the other hand, what the public is entitled to demand is that no more be exacted from it for the use of a public highway than the services rendered by it are reasonably worth.

Mr. Chairman, the doctrine recognized by the court in that case has been so long, so clearly, and so firmly established in our political economy and jurisprudence that it is inconceivable to me that anyone can be found possessing sufficient audacity to call it in question. But how often do we hear it flippantly proclaimed that the railroad business is private business with which the Government has no right to interfere; that any attempt to regulate that business is socialistic, and only a step toward the regulation of all other private business of the country.

This has been the ceaseless cry of the propaganda which has been so extravagantly carried on by the railroad interests in this country ever since the question of their further regulation began to be agitated in Congress. Those of us who stand for justice to the people through effective regulation of railways might well ignore this fallacious argument engendered by self-interest. We all know that error and sophistry are quite good enough for the monopolist who would, through self-interest, continue to plunder the people and force unjust tribute from them.

But, extraordinary as it may seem, we have heard proclaimed on the floor of this House these same fallacies and sophistries and have heard the doctrine of the true status of railroad property denied by gentlemen of ability and learning who ought to know better.

Mr. Chairman, prior to the construction of steam railroads the public highways were owned by the sovereign and were kept open to the public at all times upon equal terms. Those engaged as common carriers upon the public highways were subject to regulation by law. Their freedom of contract was limited. They were denied the right to make any contract unreasonably limiting their liability as insurers of the safety of the goods carried, and they were not permitted to charge more than a reasonable compensation for the service performed. Under the common law an overcharge could be recovered back at the suit of the shipper. The strong arm of the government was ever ready to protect the shipper from both discrimination and extortion.

These principles and policies have come down to us as a part of the common law, and we have in many forms recognized them and crystallized them into both organic and statutory law. The transportation business, like many other elements of commerce, has undergone radical changes.

Upon the invention of the steam railway the State began the creation of railroad corporations, endowed them with the power of eminent domain and other attributes of sovereignty, surrendered to them the exclusive use of the public highways, and gave them a monopoly of the transportation business.

With this great evolution came the necessity for greater and more effective regulation by the State. The whole transportation business passed into the hands of private monopoly. As was so aptly said by the Supreme Court of the United States:

While shippers of merchandise are under no legal necessity to use the railroads, they are so practically. The demand for speedy and prompt movement virtually forbids the employment of slow and old-fashioned methods of transportation, at least in the case of more valuable articles of traffic. At the same time, the immense outlay of money required to build and maintain railroads and the necessity for resorting in securing the rights of way to the power of eminent domain in effect disable individual merchants and shippers from themselves providing such means of carriage. From the very nature of the case, therefore, railroads are monopolies, and the evils that usually accompany monopolies soon began to show themselves and were the cause of loud complaint.

Mr. Chairman, these remarks of the Supreme Court would be true in a large measure if every railroad in the country was operated independently of every other railroad, but it is especially true now when all the railroads which permeate every part of the country are combined into a few groups and are, to a large extent, under a common management. So while good and sufficient reasons existed at common law for Government supervision of the rates of common carriers an additional very potent reason now exists why the modern carrier shall be subject to rigid regulation by the Government, and that is it is a monopoly holding within its grasp the whole transportation business of this country, an element that enters into our whole commercial and industrial life, and unless this monopoly is restrained or regulated it has the power to charge what it chooses and thus levy whatever tax it pleases upon every form of property.

Mr. Chairman, I have no doubt of the constitutionality, the morality, or the wisdom of the legislation now under consideration in this House. The States, sovereign in their character, possessing the inherent right to regulate the common carriers doing business within their own limits, delegated to the National Government so much of this right as might be required for the regulation of interstate commerce. It is this power that Congress is being called upon to exercise. I have no doubt Congress can adopt whatever means may be necessary, in its judgment, to carry this power into effect. No character of regulation of railroads, in my judgment, is worthy of the name of regulation which does not protect the public from discrimination and extortion in rates. The fixing of any portion of the rates of a railroad necessarily involves, it seems to me, a comprehensive review if not a supervision of all its rates. And therefore when we consider the vast number of railroads engaged in interstate transportation, the great multitude and variety of the rates of each, and the rapidly changing conditions which ought to be considered in the fixing and regulation of rates, it must be admitted by all that it is absolutely beyond the power of Congress to effectively regulate rates except through the instrumentality of an administrative board. The creation of a commission with the power to fix rates, in my judgment, is justified by the very necessities of the case. In no other way can Congress exercise efficaciously the power to regulate interstate commerce. This is well-settled doctrine. Both Congress and the Supreme Court have recognized it. Some years ago Congress passed an act excluding the importation of tea below standards to be fixed by a board to be selected by the Secretary of the Treasury. This act for the regulation of commerce with foreign nations, you will observe, not only left the determination of the quality of the teas to be excluded or admitted to custom-administrative officers, but also delegated the fixing of the standards to an administrative board. The constitutionality of this act was called in question in the case of Butterfield v. Stanahan (192 U. S., 471), and the court held that the act was not unconstitutional, because it delegated authority which belonged exclusively to Congress. In that case the court said:

> Congress legislated on the subject as far as was reasonably practicable, and from the necessities of the case was compelled to leave to executive officials the duty of bringing about the result pointed out by the statute. To deny the power of Congress to delegate such a duty would, in effect, amount but to declaring that the plenary power vested in Congress to regulate foreign commerce could not be efficaciously exerted.

In the bill under consideration it is not proposed to go so far as Congress went in that tea act toward delegating legislative authority to administrative officers. We here propose for Congress itself to fix the standard—to say that a rate or practice of the railroad should be just and reasonable—and we leave to the Commission only the duty of seeing that the rate or practice conforms to the standard thus laid down.

I want to say that, in my humble judgment, to deny that Congress can confer such power upon a Commission is to ignore the decision of the Supreme Court to which I have referred and to declare that the plenary power vested in Congress to regulate commerce between the States can not be efficaciously exerted.

Mr. Chairman, as I have already said, I have no doubt as to the morality of this measure. We are not, as has so often been intimated, attempting to confiscate the property of those whose money is invested in railroads. We are only acting in self-defense. We are not only willing but anxious to accord to them every farthing to which, under the law and the Constitution, they are entitled, but we think the time has come when we should safeguard our own interests, and let them know that they can no longer confiscate our property.

Common carriers have never been entitled to charge a higher rate than was just and reasonable, and whoever has invested his money in railroad property has done so with full knowledge of this principle, and therefore can not now complain if he be required to conform to it. He can not be injured. It is beyond the power of Congress to deprive him of just compensation. Any attempt to do so would contravene a plain guaranty of the Constitution and be null and void, for "the power to regulate is not the power to destroy."

Another thing in this connection I desire to call attention to, and that is that we are not only not attempting to deprive the railroad people of their substantive rights, but we have no desire to deprive them of any of their remedies. Indeed, such a thing would also be beyond our power. The courts of this country are always open alike to every citizen, and he can go there and have his rights, whatever they may be, adjudicated and enforced. All the hue and cry which we have heard about the right of appeal from the orders of the Commission and of having rates fixed by the courts have not been for the purpose of preserving the legitimate rights of the railroads, but of defeating effective and proper regulation. The railroads know as well as we do that the power to fix rates can not be conferred upon the courts, either in an original suit or on an appeal, even if an appeal to the courts could be provided from an administrative order, which is impossible.

Mr. Chairman, I have no doubt that a commission would be better qualified for the business of regulating rates fairly and justly between the railroads and the people than the courts could possibly be. And I believe it is not only right and proper, but absolutely essential to any sort of effective rate regulation, that the findings of the Commission on questions of fact be given not only prima facie, but conclusive effect; that whenever it fixes a rate as just and reasonable such rate shall be accepted as such by all the world, unless it can be shown in a judicial proceeding to be so low as to amount to confiscation. The giving of such effect to acts of an administrative officer is no new doctrine. It has been frequently recognized by the Supreme Court of the United States.

Mr. Chairman, I have said this much upon the general subject of the power of Congress to regulate railroad rates by means of a commission in order to give expression to my belief that this measure is undoubtedly constitutional and valid. I have no doubt it will be upheld by the courts in its present form, and would be if amended so as to give more radical, substantial, and effective relief to the people.

The bill is good as far as it goes. If passed in its present form, it would be a great improvement upon existing law, under which the unbridled railroads plunder the people and demoralize the commercial and industrial interests of the country.

But, sir, I think it is no disrespect to the committee which brought this bill in to say that it might be improved. I believe it could be vastly improved by the adoption of the amendment which I have had read from the Clerk's desk.

Under the bill in its present form the Commission will be permitted to act only upon complaint and, as I understand it, can revise only the rate or rates specified in the complaint. I can not understand how the question can be determined as to whether or not a given rate, or even a group of rates, of a railroad are either "just," "reasonable," "nondiscriminatory," or "fairly remunerative" without a comprehensive review and investigation of all the rates of that railroad in connection with all the other facts which should be taken into consideration as a basis for fixing rates. Upon such a review and investigation I can very well see how the Commission may, and probably will, in almost every instance find the adjustment or revision of some kindred rate or rates other than those embraced in the complaint necessary to the full and complete relief of the public.

Why should not the Commission be given power to act, upon its own motion, in such instances after notice to the railroad and after full hearing? Why should not the public be allowed the full benefit of the knowledge acquired by the Commission in its investigations? I do not believe any good reason can be given in answer to these questions.

Mr. Chairman, as a general rule the consumers of this country pay the freight. The producer or middleman may pay the transportation charges in the first instance, but in the end the burden falls upon the shoulders of the consumer. They may be paid to the railroad by the producer or the jobber in a lump sum, but it is paid back to the jobber little by little in the increased cost of the goods they purchase from him. The jobber rarely ever complains of excessive freight charges. He merely shifts the burden to his customers by adding the freight to the price at which he sells his goods. He will never go to the Commission with a complaint except when the railroad by discrimination gives to his competitor some advantage over him, but never merely to correct an excessive rate.

Likewise the producer takes no notice of excessive freight charges when the burden of paying them can be shifted to the consumer. When the circumstances are such that the producer himself must bear the losses incident to excessive charges he will complain to the Commission, but not otherwise.

So I believe I am safe in saying that much the larger part of the stupendous sum of money paid to the railroads annually in this country as freight charges is paid by the consumers, and therefore the greater part of the injustice resulting from excessive rates has fallen upon their shoulders. They have not paid it to the railroads direct. They have not, it may be, dealt with the railroads at all. They are the millions of plain people in this country who create its wealth, who eat bread by the sweat of their brows, who fill the workshops, and who till the soil and dig the mines.

They pay the freight when they buy food and clothing for their families or material to build, improve, and furnish their homes. They pay it unconsciously. They have had no opportunity to study or investigate freight problems and are without means of informing themselves upon the question as to whether they have been imposed upon. These are the people, Mr. Chairman, in whose behalf I have offered my amendment.

The bill makes ample protection for the producers of the country. It will afford ample relief for the jobber or middleman. But it still leaves the consumer without remedy. Having had no direct transaction with the railroad, he can make no complaint to the Commission, and no one will make such complaint for him.

Let's give the Commission power to take care of him by authorizing that body to act upon its own motion. This we can do by adopting the amendment which I have offered. But, Mr. Chairman, it may be vain for me to indulge the hope or expectation that the powers of the Commission will be further enlarged at this time by this House by the adoption of any amendment. It is an open secret here that the Democratic members of the committee had to make many concessions and had to even go so far as to pledge themselves to resist all amendments that might be offered in order to secure the favorable report and passage of the bill giving the inadequate relief that it does.

For ten years the Democratic party, always the stanch champion of the people, has demanded the enlargement of the powers of the Commission and such control of railroads as would protect the people from robbery and oppression. For ten years the people have petitioned for relief. During all this time the Republican party has been in absolute control of every department of the Government and has had the power to enact any sort of legislation for their relief.

But up to this time the demands of the people have been wholly disregarded by that party, while the oppressions they have suffered have continued. So I suppose under the circumstances the people should be congratulated that you, gentlemen on the other side of this Chamber, have been induced to yield as far as you have. The "big stick" may have influenced you some, but to the insistent, determined demands of an outraged people, who could no longer be turned aside, is due whatever measure of relief this bill affords. You will yet yield further. The masses of this country have awakened to the situation and are demanding their rights. You can no longer continue your policy of fostering private monopoly to plunder the people and remain in power. I warn you now that you must continue the work of reform in which you have been forced to make a small beginning or give place to others who will be sent here to continue it. I speak now not only of reform in legislation with reference to the control of the railroad monopoly, but also of reform in the policy you are maintaining with reference to the great private monopolies of the country. For forty years your legislation has been in the interest of special classes. By a protective tariff in the interest of the manufacturer, which has been so high as to outrage every just principle of international trade, you have protected him from all competition from abroad, while you have permitted him to stifle all competition at home by means of combinations and agreements in restraint of trade in violation of law. Under this vicious policy, under which you have up to this time been "standing pat," have been built up the most gigantic trusts and combinations the world has ever known. They have multiplied in number and grown in power until they hold within their merciless grasp the commercial and industrial welfare of this country. They corrupt our elections, debauch our officials, plunder both the producers and consumers of the country, and defy the Government itself.

Mr. Chairman, the people of this country feel that they have endured quite long enough the oppressions visited upon them by this infamous policy. They are now asking a change—a "square deal." Wanting no special favors from the Government themselves, they demand that none shall be given to others. "Equal rights to all and special privileges to none"—the very corner stone of our Government—has ever been their motto. They feel that this Government is "of the people, by the people, and for the people." They are terribly in earnest. So let those in power beware who would turn a deaf ear to them. As certain as God reigns they are going to have, in due season, by proper legislation, full and complete relief, not only from the abuses and oppressions of the railroads, but from every other form of monopoly.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Texas.

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. LITTLEFIELD. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by inserting after line 9, on page 11, the following:

"Any carrier may, within thirty days from the service upon it of any order, other than an order for the payment of money, begin in the circuit court of the United States for the district in which its principal operating office is situated, proceedings to set aside and vacate such order; and in case such order affects two or more carriers, such proceedings may be brought by them jointly in the district in which the principal operating office of either of them is situated. Such proceedings shall be begun by filing on the equity side of the court a petition or bill in equity, which shall briefly state the matters embraced in such order and the particulars in which it is alleged to be unlawful, and in such proceedings the complainant and the Commission shall be made defendants.

"Upon the filing of such a petition or bill the clerk of such circuit court shall forthwith mail a copy thereof to the Commission, with notice that the same has been filed; and the Commission shall thereupon, within twenty days from the receipt of such notice, cause to be filed in such court a complete certified copy of the record in the proceeding wherein the order complained of was made, including the pleadings, the testimony, and exhibits, the report and opinion of the Commission, and its order in the premises. If it is impracticable to send up a copy of any exhibit, the exhibit itself may be forwarded. The defendant may answer or demur to such petition or bill according to the usual practice in equity cases.

"If upon hearing such petition the court shall be of opinion that the order of the Commission is not a lawful order, it shall set aside and vacate the same; otherwise it shall dismiss the petition. In either case the court shall file with its decision a statement of the reasons upon which the decision is based, a copy of which shall be certified forthwith to the Commission. If the order of the Commission is vacated, and if the defendant does not appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States, the Commission may reopen the case for further hearing and order, or it may make a new order without further hearing, not inconsistent with the decision and opinion of the circuit court. Any such subsequent order shall be subject to the same provisions as an original order.

"Upon the filing of such a petition the circuit court may, upon such notice to the complainant and to the Commission as the court deems proper, extend the time within which such order shall take effect, not to exceed in all sixty days from the date of service of the order upon the carrier. The court may also, if it plainly appears that the order is unlawful, and not otherwise, suspend the operation of the order during the pendency of the proceeding or until the further order of the court.

"Either party may appeal from the judgment or decree of the circuit court to the Supreme Court of the United States; but such appeal shall not operate to stay or supersede the order of the circuit court nor the execution of any writ or process thereon. In the circuit court and in the Supreme Court the cause shall be given preference over all others except criminal causes."

Mr. CLAYTON. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment to the amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by adding to the amendment, between lines 17 and 18, the following: "In the circuit court the petition shall have priority in hearing and determination over all other causes except criminal causes."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment to the amendment, offered by the gentleman from Alabama.

The question was taken, and the amendment to the amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. The question now is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Maine.

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. LAMAR. Mr. Chairman, if it is permissible, I would like to offer two amendments to the same section and have them read at the same time. I send them to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 10, section 4, line 15, after the word "regulations," insert the words "or classifications;" and after the word "regulation," in line 23, insert the words "or classification;" and on page 11, line 5, after the word "regulation," insert the words "or classification."

On page 10, section 4, line 22, after the word "charged," insert the following: "in determining and prescribing what is a just and reasonable and fairly remunerative rate or charge the Commission shall ignore all stocks, bonds, or other obligations of the carriers so far as such stocks, bonds, or other obligations represent amounts in excess of the fair value of the property of the carrier."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendments offered by the gentleman from Florida.

The question was taken; and the amendments were rejected.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Insert after the word "jurisdiction," page 11, line 9, the words "Provided, however, That any party to the proceeding may forthwith appeal from any order of said Commission fixing a rate by petition to the circuit court in the jurisdiction where the controversy arises, under such rules of procedure as may be prescribed by said court, which court shall have the power to determine whether or not said order is just and reasonable, and if found unjust and unreasonable to set it aside, and in such case it shall be the duty of the court to ascertain what is a just and reasonable rate."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Massachusetts.

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. GILBERT of Kentucky. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 11, at the end of line 9, after the word "jurisdiction," insert these words: "And any carrier affected by any such order is authorized to file complaint in any such court, making the Commissioners and shipper at whose instance the complaint was instituted defendants, and seek a rescission or modification of such order."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Kentucky.

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. SHACKLEFORD. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by adding the following to the end of line 16, page 11: "But the Commission shall not in any case have power to require any carrier subject to the provisions of this act to raise any rate which such carrier has duly filed and published."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Missouri.

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. HARDWICK. Mr. Chairman, I offer the amendment which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by striking out all that follows the word "duty," in line 8, page 10, through the word "act," in line 19, page 10; also by striking out all that follows the word "carrier," in line 25, page 10, through the word "and," in line 2, page 11; also by striking out all of line 17, page 11, that follows the word "also" in said line; also by striking out all of page 11 that follows the word "operated" in line 21 of said page; also by striking out all that follows the word "may," in line 5, page 12, through the word "complaint," in line 6, page 12.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Georgia.

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 5. That section 16 of said act, as amended March 2, 1889, be amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 16. That if, after hearing on a complaint made as provided

In section 13 of this act, the Commission shall determine that any party complainant is entitled to an award of damages under the provisions of this act for a violation thereof, the Commission shall make an order directing the carrier to pay to the complainant the sum to which he is entitled on or before a day named.

"If a carrier does not comply with an order for the payment of money within the time limit in such order, the complainant, or any person for whose benefit such order was made, may file in the circuit court of the United States for the district in which he resides or in which is located the principal operating office of the carrier, or through which the road of the carrier runs, a petition setting forth briefly the causes for which he claims damages, and the order of the Commission in the premises. Such suit shall proceed in all respects like other civil suits for damages, except that on the trial of such suit the findings and order of the Commission shall be prima facie evidence of the facts therein stated and except that the petitioner shall not be liable for costs in the circuit court nor for costs at any subsequent stage of the proceedings unless they accrue upon his appeal. If the petitioner shall finally prevail, he shall be allowed a reasonable attorney's fee, to be taxed and collected as a part of the costs of the suit. All complaints for the recovery of damages shall be filed with the Commission within two years from the time the cause of action accrues, and not after, and a petition for the enforcement of an order for the payment of money shall be filed in the circuit court within one year from the date of the order, and not after.

"In such suits all parties in whose favor the Commission may have made an award for damages by a single order may be joined as plaintiffs, and all of the carriers parties to such order awarding such damages may be joined as defendants, and such suit may be maintained by such joint plaintiffs and against such joint defendants in any district where any one of such joint plaintiffs could maintain such suit against any one of such joint defendants; and service of process against any one of such defendants as may not be found in the district where the suit is brought may be made in any district where such defendant carrier has its principal operating office. In case of such joint suit the recovery, if any, may be by judgment in favor of any one of such plaintiffs, against the defendant found to be liable to such plaintiff.

"Every order of the Commission shall be forthwith served by mailing to any one of the principal officers or agents of the carrier at his usual place of business a copy thereof; and the registry mail receipt shall be prima facie evidence of the receipt of such order by the carrier in due course of mail.

"The Commission shall be authorized to suspend or modify its orders upon such notice and in such manner as it shall deem proper, and the orders of the Commission shall take effect at the end of thirty days after notice thereof to the carriers directed to obey the same, unless such orders shall have been suspended or modified by the Commission or suspended or set aside by the order or decree of a court of competent jurisdiction: Provided, however, That the Commission, for good cause shown, may extend the time in which such order shall take effect.

"It shall be the duty of every common carrier, its agents and employees, to observe and comply with such orders so long as the same shall remain in effect.

"Any carrier, any officer, representative, or agent of a carrier, or any receiver, trustee, lessee, or agent of either of them, who knowingly fails or neglects to obey any order made under the provisions of section 15 of this act, shall forfeit to the United States the sum of $5,000 for each offense. Every distinct violation shall be a separate offense, and in case of a continuing violation each day shall be deemed a separate offense.

"The forfeiture provided for in this act shall be payable into the Treasury of the United States, and shall be recoverable in a civil suit in the name of the United States, brought in the district where the carrier has its principal operating office, or in any district through which the road of the carrier runs.

"It shall be the duty of the various district attorneys, under the direction of the Attorney-General of the United States, to prosecute for the recovery of forfeitures. The costs and expenses of such prosecution shall be paid out of the appropriation for the expenses of the courts of the United States. The Commission may, with the consent of the Attorney-General, employ special counsel in any proceeding under this act, paying the expenses of such employment out of its own appropriation.

"If any carrier fails or neglects to obey any order of the Commission, other than for the payment of money, while the same is in effect, any party injured thereby, or the Commission in its own name, may apply to the circuit court in the district where such carrier has its principal operating office, or in which the violation or disobedience of such order shall happen, for an enforcement of such order. Such application shall be by petition, which shall state the substance of the order and the respect in which the carrier has failed of obedience, and shall be served upon the carrier in such manner as the court may direct, and the court shall prosecute such inquiries and make such investigations, through such means as it shall deem needful in the ascertainment of the facts at issue or which may arise upon the hearing of such petition. If, upon such hearing as the court may determine to be necessary, it appears that the order was regularly made and duly served, and that the carrier is in disobedience of the same, the court shall enforce obedience to such order by a writ of injunction, or other proper process, mandatory or otherwise, to restrain such carrier, its officers, agents, or representatives, from further disobedience of such order, or to enjoin upon it, or them, obedience to the same; and in the enforcement of such process the court shall have those powers ordinarily exercised by it in compelling obedience to its writs of injunction and mandamus.

"From any action upon such petition an appeal shall lie by either party to the Supreme Court of the United States, and in such court the case shall have priority in hearing and determination over all other causes except criminal causes, but such appeal shall not vacate or suspend the order appealed from.

"The venue of suits brought in any of the circuit courts of the United States to enjoin, set aside, annul, or suspend any order or requirement of the Commission shall be in the district where the carrier against whom such order or requirement may have been made has its principal operating office. The provisions of 'An act to expedite the hearing and determination of suits in equity, and so forth,' approved February 11, 1903, shall be, and are hereby, made applicable to all such suits, and are also made applicable to any proceeding in equity to enforce any order or requirement of the Commission, or any of the provisions of the act to regulate commerce approved February 4, 1887, and all acts amendatory thereof or supplemental thereto. It shall be the duty of the Attorney-General in every such case to file the certificate provided for in said expediting act of February 11, 1903, as necessary to the application of the provisions thereof, and upon appeal as therein authorized to the Supreme Court of the United States, the case shall have in such court priority in hearing and determination over all other causes except criminal causes.

"The copies of schedules and tariffs of rates, fares, and charges, and of all contracts, agreements, or arrangements between common carriers filed with the Commission as herein provided, and the statistics, tables, and figures contained in the annual reports of carriers made to the Commission, as required by the provisions of this act, shall be preserved as public records in the custody of the secretary of the Commission, and shall be received as prima facie evidence of what they purport to be for the purpose of investigations by the Commission and in all judicial proceedings; and copies of or extracts from any of said schedules, tariffs, contracts, agreements, arrangements, or reports made public records as aforesaid, certified by the secretary under its seal, shall be received in evidence with like effect as the originals."

Mr. CLAYTON. Mr. Chairman, I desire to offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend by inserting, after the word "mandamus," line 17, page 16, the following: "In such circuit court such petition shall have priority in hearing and determination over all other causes except criminal causes."

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. STANLEY. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend amended section 16 by striking out the word "knowingly" in line 8 of page 15.

Mr. STANLEY. Mr. Chairman——

The CHAIRMAN. The debate is closed.

Mr. STANLEY. I do not think debate has been closed on this paragraph. I wish to call the attention of the committee to this word "knowingly," not in any spirit of carping or with any desire to find fault with this bill, but I firmly believe that this matter has been overlooked by the committee.

The word "knowingly" infallibly refers to the order of the Commission, and is not used in the sense of willfully or feloniously. In simple English it means whosoever, knowing the order of the Commission, violates its provisions, shall be subject to its pains and penalties.

It inevitably follows that if the offender is ignorant of the order of the Commission he is not liable to any punishment incident to its violation. Immunity from the severe pains and penalties denounced by this provision of the bill is dependent not upon the obedience of the carrier, but upon its ignorance.

You arraign the agents of the railroads for the most palpable violation of the wise and beneficent provisions of this most necessary law, and behold, they plead not their innocence, but their ignorance, of the law. Yea, more; you penalize the carrier who makes an honest effort to obey the orders of this august Commission, for the carrier who, knowing the law, violates it, is liable to heavy pains and penalties. The railroad which delegates to agents who can neither read nor write the task of defying the law is absolutely immune, for it is only the agent or employee who knows the law and violates it that is liable.

It is the first instance in the criminal jurisprudence of any civilized country that ignorance in the mouth of the malefactor was made a complete defense. The dangerous thing, under this strange provision of the law, the thing punished by heavy fine, is not guilt, but knowledge. It practically emasculates the law, and renders any punishment under it absolutely ineffectual. This section reads:

Any carrier, any officer, representative, or any agent or carrier, or any receiver, trustee, lessee, or agent, or either of them, who knowingly fails or neglects to obey any order under the provisions of section 15 of this act, shall forfeit to the United States the sum of $5,000 for each offense.

Any man can come into court and say that he did not know the law, and you have to prove his knowledge of the law.

The principle that "ignorance of the law excuses no man" is as old as the law. Ignorance of a fact may constitute a valid defense; ignorance of the law never. The accused may show, for instance, that he has no knowledge that money uttered by him is counterfeit, and his ignorance of the fact may constitute a valid defense; but if you passed a law providing that a man could not be punished who passes spurious money unless he knew there was a law against it you would never punish a counterfeiter. So with the word "knowingly" in this bill it is an absolute impossibility to effectually execute its provisions. It is absurd to say that a man shall know the law before he violates it. It is a preposterous proposition, and an anomaly in the law, abhorrent to every principle of common justice and common sense, to solemnly declare that before you punish the violation of this law, which is so necessary, which is demanded by the President, and which is hailed with delight by the people, that you must show that the criminal could read and write; that he not only violated its provisions, but that he did it knowingly.

How in the name of common sense are you going to prove what the accused knew? You can easily establish what an offender has done, but to prove what is hidden in his mind and heart is another question. I urge this committee for once to shake off the silly delusion that wisdom will die with the eighteen men who reported this bill, to for once depart from your unwise and unconsidered determination to regard it as the paragon and perfection of legislation, simply because it embodies a much-needed reform, and to strike out this superfluous, dangerous, and deadly provision which renders absolutely ineffective all the necessary legislation, which without it would be effective, and sheaths the sword of justice, which you pretend to draw. This single word is pregnant with evil; it is a menace to every honest carrier who may attempt to know the law, and it is a bonus and a shield to perjury and ignorance.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate upon this section and all amendments be now closed.

The question was taken, and the motion was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the adoption of the amendment of the gentleman from Kentucky.

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

[Mr. GOLDFOGLE addressed the committee. See Appendix.]

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Kentucky offers an amendment, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Strike out all on page 15, commencing with the word "shall," in line 9, and all thereafter down to and including the word "runs," on page 19, and insert in lieu thereof the following: "shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and shall be subject, upon conviction in any court of the United States of competent jurisdiction, to a fine of not less than $5,000, or imprisonment for a term of not less than one nor more than three years, or both such fine and imprisonment. Every violation shall be a distinct offense."

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Page 15, at the end of line 10, amend by adding the following: "and shall also be imprisoned for a term of not less than two years for each offense."

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. STANLEY. Mr. Chairman, I wish to submit the following amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend section 16a of H. R. 12987 by adding, after the word "thereof," on page 20, at the end of line 20, the following words, viz: "The weight of rails, condition and character of roads and switches, and character of safety appliances employed for prevention of accident or injury to passengers and employees."

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. STANLEY. I also offer the following amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend section 16 of H. R. 12987 by striking out the words "prima facie evidence," in lines 10 and 11, on page 13, and insert in lieu thereof the words "taken as a true statement."

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 6. That a new section be added to said act immediately after section 16, to be numbered as section 16a, as follows:

"SEC. 16a. That after a decision, order, or requirement has been made by the Commission in any proceeding any party thereto may at any time make application for rehearing of the same, or any matter determined therein, and it shall be lawful for the Commission in its discretion to grant such a rehearing if sufficient reason therefor be made to appear. Applications for rehearing shall be governed by such general rules as the Commission may establish. No such application shall excuse any carrier from complying with or obeying any decision, order, or requirement of the Commission, or operate in any manner to stay or postpone the enforcement thereof, without the special order of the Commission. In case a rehearing is granted the proceedings thereupon shall conform as nearly as may be to the proceedings in an original hearing, except as the Commission may otherwise direct; and if, in its judgment, after such rehearing and the consideration of all facts, including those arising since the former hearing, it shall appear that the original decision, order, or requirement is in any respect unjust or unwarranted, the Commission may reverse, change, or modify the same accordingly. Any decision, order, or requirement made after such rehearing, reversing, changing, or modifying the original determination shall be subject to the same provisions as an original order. Whenever an order of the Commission made in pursuance of section 15 as amended, other than an order for the payment of money, shall have been complied with for the period of three years such order shall not thereafter be in force as against the carrier so complying therewith."

Mr. SULZER. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment, which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York [Mr. SULZER] offers an amendment, which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Add new section after line 2, page 20, as follows:

"SEC. 16b. That every common carrier by railroad subject to the provisions of this act shall be liable to any of its employees who are engaged in the transportation of such persons or property, or, in the case of his death, to his personal representative or heirs at law, for all damages which may result from the negligence or mismanagement of any of its officers, agents, or employees, or by reason of any defect or insufficiency in its cars, engines, appliances, machinery, track, roadbed, ways, or works.

"That in all actions hereafter brought against any such common carrier by railroad to recover damages for personal injuries to an employee, or where such injuries have resulted in his death, the fact that the employee may have been guilty of contributory negligence shall not bar a recovery where his contributory negligence was slight in comparison to that of the employer.

"That no contract of employment, insurance, relief benefit, or indemnity for injury or death entered into by or on behalf of any employee, nor the acceptance of any such insurance, relief benefit, or indemnity by the person entitled thereto, shall constitute any bar or defense to any action brought to recover damages for personal injuries to or death of such employee: Provided, however, That upon the trial of such action against any such common carrier by railroad the defendant may set off therein any sum it has contributed toward any such insurance, relief benefit, or indemnity that may have been paid to the injured employee, or, in case of his death, to his heirs at law.

"That nothing in this act shall be held to limit the duty of common carriers by railroads or impair the rights of their employees under the safety-appliance act of March 2, 1893, as amended April 1, 1896, and March 2, 1903."

Mr. SULZER. Mr. Chairman, my amendment simply provides——

Mr. TOWNSEND. Mr. Chairman, a point of order.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. TOWNSEND. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order that the amendment is not germane to the bill.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman from New York [Mr. SULZER] may have five minutes.

Mr. SULZER. Mr. Chairman, I desire to be heard on the point of order.

Mr. ADAMSON. The gentleman had time granted to him yesterday. I think all amendments ought to be limited to at least 9,000 words. [Laughter.]

The CHAIRMAN. In the opinion of the Chair, the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York is out of order.

Mr. SULZER. I desire to be heard on the point of order. In my opinion this point of order is untenable. I think this amendment is germane to the bill.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair would state that he has already ruled on this subject, and is not inclined to hear further on the point of order. The Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 7. That section 20 of said act be amended so as to read as follows:

"SEC. 20. That the Commission is hereby authorized to require annual reports from all common carriers subject to the provisions of this act, and from the owners of all railroads engaged in interstate commerce as defined in this act, to prescribe the manner in which such reports shall be made, and to require from such carriers specific answers to all questions upon which the Commission may need information. Such annual reports shall show in detail the amount of capital stock issued, the amounts paid therefor, and the manner of payment for the same; the dividends paid, the surplus fund, if any, and the number of stockholders; the funded and floating debts and the interest paid thereon; the cost and value of the carrier's property, franchises, and equipments; the number of employees and the salaries paid each class; the accidents to passengers, employees, and other persons, and the causes thereof; the amounts expended for improvements each year, how expended, and the character of such improvements; the earnings and receipts from each branch of business and from all sources; the operating and other expenses; the balances of profit and loss; and a complete exhibit of the financial operations of the carrier each year, including an annual balance sheet. Such reports shall also contain such information in relation to rates or regulations concerning fares or freights, or agreements, arrangements, or contracts affecting the same as the Commission may require; and the Commission may, in its discretion, for the purpose of enabling it the better to carry out the purposes of this act, prescribe a period of time within which all common carriers subject to the provisions of this act shall have, as near as may be, a uniform system of accounts, and the manner in which such accounts shall be kept.

"Said detailed reports shall contain all the required statistics for the period of twelve months ending on the 30th day of June in each year, and shall be made out under oath and filed with the Commission, at its office in Washington, on or before the 30th day of September then next following, unless additional time be granted in any case by the Commission; and if any carrier, person, or corporation subject to the provisions of this act shall fail to make and file said annual reports within the time above specified, or within the time extended by the Commission for making and filing the same, or shall fail to make specific answer to any question authorized by the provisions of this section within thirty days from the time it is lawfully required so to do, such parties shall forfeit to the United States the sum of $100 for each and every day it shall continue to be in default with respect thereto. The Commission shall also have authority to require said carriers to file monthly reports of earnings and expenses or special reports within a specified period, and if any such carrier shall fail to file such reports within the time fixed by the Commission it shall be subject to the forfeitures last above provided.

"Said forfeitures shall be recovered in the manner provided for the recovery of forfeitures under the provisions of this act.

"The oath required by this section may be taken before any person authorized to administer an oath by the laws of the State in which the same is taken.

"The Commission may, in its discretion, prescribe the forms of any and all accounts, records, and memoranda to be kept by carriers subject to the provisions of this act, including the accounts, records, and memoranda of the movement of traffic as well as the receipts and expenditures of moneys. The Commission shall at all times have access to all accounts, records, and memoranda kept by carriers subject to this act, and it shall be unlawful for such carriers to keep any other accounts, records, or memoranda than those prescribed or approved by the Commission, and it may employ special agents or examiners, who shall have authority under the order of the Commission to inspect and examine any and all accounts, records, and memoranda kept by such carriers. This provision shall apply to receivers of carriers and operating trustees.

"In case of failure or refusal on the part of any such carrier, receiver, or trustee to keep such accounts, records, and memoranda on the books and in the manner prescribed by the Commission, or to submit such accounts, records, and memoranda as are kept to the inspection of the Commission or any of its authorized agents or examiners, such carrier, receiver, or trustee shall forfeit to the United States the sum of $500 for each such offense and for each and every day of the continuance of such offense, such forfeitures to be recoverable in the same manner as other forfeitures provided for in this act.

"Any person who shall willfully make any false entry in the accounts of any book of accounts or in any record or memoranda kept by a carrier, or who shall willfully destroy, mutilate, alter, or by any other means or device falsify the record of any such account, record, or memoranda, or who shall willfully neglect or fail to make full, true, and correct entries in such accounts, records, or memoranda of all facts and transactions appertaining to the carrier's business, or shall keep any other accounts, records, or memoranda than those prescribed or approved by the Commission, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be subject, upon conviction in any court of the United States of competent jurisdiction, to a fine of not less than $1,000 nor more than $5,000, or imprisonment for a term not less than one year nor more than three years, or both such fine and imprisonment.

"Any examiner who divulges any fact or information which may come to his knowledge during the course of such examination, except in so far as he may be directed by the Commission or by a court or judge thereof, shall be subject, upon conviction in any court of the United States of competent jurisdiction, to a fine of not more than $5,000 or imprisonment for a term not exceeding two years, or both.

"That the circuit and district courts of the United States shall have jurisdiction, upon the application of the Attorney-General of the United States at the request of the Commission, alleging a failure to comply with or a violation of any of the provisions of said act to regulate commerce or of any act supplementary thereto or amendatory thereof by any common carrier, to issue a writ or writs of mandamus commanding such common carrier to comply with the provisions of said acts, or any of them.

"And to carry out and give effect to the provisions of said acts, or any of them, the Commission is hereby authorized to employ special agents or examiners who shall have power to administer oaths, examine witnesses, and receive evidence."

Mr. GOULDEN. Mr. Chairman, I desire to offer an amendment, which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York [Mr. GOULDEN] offers an amendment, which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Insert after line 5, page 24, the following: "Any person who shall solicit or accept a rebate from a common carrier or a rate lower than that contained in their published schedules shall be guilty of a misdemeanor, and, on conviction thereof in any court of competent jurisdiction, be fined not less than $1,000 or imprisonment for a term not less than one year, or both, at the discretion of the court."

Mr. GOULDEN. Mr. Chairman, no words are necessary. The amendment carries with it a better argument than anyone could possibly give upon the subject. I think the amendment should be adopted.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I move that debate upon this section and all amendments thereto be now closed.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the motion offered by the gentleman from New York, that the debate upon this section and the amendments thereto be now closed.

The motion was agreed to.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. GOULDEN].

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. SOUTHWICK. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment, which I send to the Clerk's desk, and ask for silence on the part of Members during the reading of it.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York [Mr. SOUTHWICK] offers an amendment, which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 25, line 2, after the word "evidence," add the following: "No railroad subject to the provisions of this act shall be allowed to discriminate in accommodations or otherwise between persons on account of their race, color, or previous condition of servitude."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from New York [Mr. SOUTHWICK].

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the noes seemed to have it.

On a division (demanded by Mr. SOUTHWICK) the Chair announced that there were—ayes 11, noes 143.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. HEFLIN. Mr. Chairman, I desire to offer an amendment, which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Alabama [Mr. HEFLIN] offers an amendment, which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

On page 24, line 13, amend by adding at the end of line 13 the following: "And it shall be unlawful for any circuit judge of the United States to accept free passes or free transportation in any form from any railroad, and for each offense shall be fined $500."

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Alabama.

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the noes seemed to have it.

On a division (demanded by Mr. HEFLIN) there were—ayes 46, noes 136.

So the amendment was rejected.

The Clerk read as follows:

SEC. 8. That a new section be added to said act at the end thereof, to be numbered as section 24, as follows:

"SEC. 24. That the Interstate Commerce Commission is hereby enlarged so as to consist of seven members with terms of seven years, and each shall receive $10,000 compensation annually. The qualifications of the Commissioners and the manner of the payment of their salaries shall be as already provided by law. Such enlargement of the Commission shall be accomplished through appointment by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, of two additional Interstate Commerce Commissioners, one for a term expiring December 31, 1911, one for a term expiring December 31, 1912. The terms of the present Commissioners, or of any successor appointed to fill a vacancy caused by the death or resignation of any of the present Commissioners, shall expire as heretofore provided by law. Their successors and the successors of the additional Commissioners herein provided for shall be appointed for the full term of seven years, except that any person appointed to fill a vacancy shall be appointed only for the unexpired term of the Commissioner whom he shall succeed. Not more than four Commissioners shall be appointed from the same political party."

Mr. COUSINS. Mr. Chairman, I offer an amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The amendment of the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. SIBLEY] was first at the desk, and was overlooked by inadvertence. The gentleman from Pennsylvania is recognized.

Mr. SIBLEY. I offer the amendment which I sent to the desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Amend section 24 so it shall read:

"SEC. 24. That the Interstate Commerce Commission is hereby enlarged so as to consist of seven members with terms of seven years, and each shall receive $12,000 compensation annually; one of such Commissioners shall be designated as chairman, whose annual compensation shall be $15,000. The qualifications of the Commissioners and the manner of the payment of their salaries shall be as already provided by law. Such enlargement of the Commission shall be accomplished through appointment by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, of two additional Interstate Commerce Commissioners. Not more than four Commissioners shall be appointed from the same political party.

The question was taken; and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. COUSINS. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

In line 8, page 25, strike out the words "ten thousand" and insert in lieu thereof "seven thousand five hundred."

The question was taken; and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Add a new section, as follows, after section 8.

"SEC. 9. That section 22 of the act of February 4, 1887, entitled 'An act to regulate commerce,' be amended by adding thereto the following:

"'Any officer or employee of any railroad included within the provisions of this act who shall make, issue, or give any free pass or passage ticket, which ticket is not in good faith intended to be paid for, over such railroad, or any railroad connecting therewith, to any person not allowed or authorized to pass free according to the provisions of this section, or who shall pass or cause to pass free over such railroad any such person, and any person not so allowed or authorized to pass free who shall receive and use any such free pass, or free passage ticket, or any evidence thereof, shall be punished by fine not exceeding $1,000 for each offense, and it shall be the duty of the several courts having jurisdiction to charge regularly their grand juries to investigate violations of this section.

"'No free passes, or free passage ticket, or evidence thereof, shall be issued by or in behalf of any railroad corporation unless they are signed by some officer of said corporation authorized by vote of the directors to sign the same; and every railroad corporation shall keep a record showing the date of every free pass, the name of the person to whom it is issued, the points between which the passage is granted, and whether a single trip or time pass, and if the latter, the time for which it is issued; and this record shall at all times be open to every stockholder in said corporation and to the Interstate Commerce Commission; and any railroad or person failing to comply with this provision shall be punished by fine not less than $2,000 nor more than $5,000 for each offense; and it shall be the duty of said Commission to cause prosecutions to be instituted on account of the issue of any free passes, or free passage tickets, or evidence thereof, contrary to law.'"

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I raise the point of order that the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee is not germane to this section.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. It is a new section.

Mr. SHERMAN. It does not purport to apply to this section.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. It is an entirely new section.

Mr. SHERMAN. And it is not in order at this time.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. It is a new section, and so states, and I desire to be heard for a moment. [Cries of "Vote!"]

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York rises to a point of order. The gentleman will please state it.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Chairman, I raise the point of order that this amendment is not germane to the section now under consideration. It does not purport to be. It purports to be a new section, and we have not disposed of this section yet.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair understands that the gentleman from Tennessee offers this as a new section, and not as an amendment to any existing section of the bill.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. That is exactly so. Now, Mr. Chairman——

Mr. SHERMAN. Then, Mr. Chairman, I move that all debate upon this section and all amendments thereto be now closed.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I have the floor, and do not yield it to the gentleman to make any such motion. I hope he will be fair for a moment, and then I will yield the floor. [Cries of "Vote!"]

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the motion of the gentleman from New York, that all debate upon this section and all amendments thereto be now closed.

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the ayes had it.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair will state to the gentleman from Tennessee that this does not apply to the amendment of the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I call for a division, Mr. Chairman.

The question was taken; and the Chair announced that the ayes had it, and the motion was agreed to.

Mr. WILLIAMS. A parliamentary inquiry.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. WILLIAMS. The gentleman from Tennessee had the floor. The gentleman from New York made a point of order that did not take the gentleman from Tennessee off his feet for any other purpose except the point-of-order purpose itself. Then, after that the gentleman from Tennessee, still having the floor, except for the point of order, and that point of order having been overruled, I make the point that the gentleman from New York can not make the motion which he did make in the time of the gentleman from Tennessee. [Applause on the Democratic side.]

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Tennessee seems to be proceeding on the theory that we had finished section 8. The committee has not concluded the consideration of section 8; therefore the gentleman from Tennessee was not in order.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. The Chair, as I heard him, has already ruled that "the gentleman from Tennessee" had offered his amendment in time, and was in order, and when the gentleman made his motion upon that proposition the Chair ruled with "the gentleman from Tennessee." Mr. Chairman, I do not want to impose myself upon the House, but I shall have and demand simple justice; no more and no less.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Tennessee will suspend for a moment.

Mr. SHERMAN. I ask unanimous consent that the gentleman have three minutes.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, I stand on my rights.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is of the opinion that the gentleman from Tennessee will be entitled to five minutes.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Exactly. I hope my friend from New York will suspend for a moment.

Mr. Chairman, this amendment I offered——

The CHAIRMAN. Will the gentleman from Tennessee suspend? The Chair is of the opinion that the gentleman from Tennessee has five minutes upon his amendment when his amendment is in order. We are not through with the consideration of section 8. Now, if anyone wishes to offer an amendment to section 8, it will be in order.

Mr. JAMES. Mr. Chairman, I offer the following amendment to section 8.

The Clerk read as follows:

Add after section 8 the following:

"It shall be unlawful, after the approval of this act, for any officer, director, stockholder, or receiver of any corporation engaged as a common carrier as hereinbefore defined, either for said corporation or for himself, to give or contribute any sum of money or thing of value, either directly or through some one else, to any political party or organization, or to aid in the election of any candidate or candidates of any political party, or for the purpose of in any manner influencing the result of any election; and any person violating the provisions of this paragraph may be prosecuted therefor in any court of competent jurisdiction, and on conviction shall be punished by confinement in the penitentiary for any period not less than one year nor more than five years."

The question was taken, and the amendment was rejected.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Now, Mr. Chairman, I renew the offer of my amendment.

The Clerk again read the amendment offered by Mr. GAINES of Tennessee.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Mr. Chairman, this amendment makes it unlawful, and provides a penalty for violations, for any railroad, or the agent of any railroad, to issue a pass to "any person" who is not entitled to it, under the exemption set out in section 22 of the act of 1887—the commerce law. It also requires the Federal judges to charge their grand juries at every session of their courts as to violations of section 22, which prohibits the giving of passes to persons other than those named in that section, who, in brief, are objects of charity, ministers, railroad officials, and their own employees. The law as it stands is a dead letter.

It also provides that no free passes, or free-passage tickets, or evidence thereof, shall be issued by or in behalf of any railroad corporation, unless they are signed by some officer of said corporation authorized by vote of the directors to sign the same; and every railroad corporation shall keep a record showing the date of every free pass, the name of the person to whom it is issued, the points between which the passage is granted, and whether a single trip or a time pass, and if the latter, the time for which it is issued; and this record shall at all times be open to every stockholder in said corporation and to the Interstate Commerce Commission; and any railroad or person failing to comply with this provision shall be punished by fine—not less than $2,000 for each offense—and it shall be the duty of said Commission to cause prosecutions to be instituted on account of the issue of any free passes, or free-passage tickets, or evidence thereof, contrary to law.

This penalty provision I have added in this paragraph, at the suggestion of the gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. NORRIS].

Every one of the many railroad representatives who testified before the Industrial Commission a few years ago, on this pass abuse, wanted a law that would take this free-pass burden, this imposition, this incubus off the railroads.

In addition to that, the Cullom report of 1886, the Industrial Commission report, the Cooley Commission, and reports by Commissioner Knapp and other men who ought to know, state that the issuance of passes in the promiscuous way that railroads issue them are usually issued because the railroads are compelled to do so by the blackmailers of the country, who hold them up, and they say they want a law that will stop that. This law will stop it if the judges of this country will enforce the law as is proposed in this amendment. Official propriety and common decency demand this law. Let us help the people and the railroads and raise ourselves above criticism and suspicion by enacting this measure. [Applause.]

Now, Mr. Chairman, I call for a vote.

The CHAIRMAN. The question is on the amendment offered by the gentleman from Tennessee.

The question was taken; and on a division (demanded by Mr. GAINES of Tennessee) there were—ayes 111, noes 147.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Tellers, Mr. Chairman!

Tellers were ordered; and the Chair appointed Mr. GAINES of Tennessee and Mr. HEPBURN.

The committee again divided; and the tellers reported—ayes 99, noes 137.

So the amendment was rejected.

Mr. SULZER. Mr. Chairman, I offer the amendment which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The Clerk read as follows:

Add after line 14, page 26, the following: "That there shall be at the seat of government an executive department to be known as the 'Department of Transportation,' and a Secretary of Transportation, who shall be a Cabinet officer and the head thereof, who shall be appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, and who shall receive a salary of $8,000——

Mr. MANN (interrupting the reading). Mr. Chairman, I raise the point of order that that amendment is not germane to the bill.

Mr. SULZER. The gentleman can not tell whether it is germane until the amendment is read.

Mr. MANN. The Clerk has read far enough to develop the fact that it is not germane.

The CHAIRMAN. The Chair is of the opinion, from the reading thus far, that it discloses the fact that it is not germane, and the Chair sustains the point of order.

The question now is on the amendment to the title.

The question was taken, and the amendment to the title was agreed to.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee do now rise and report the bill, with the amended title, to the House with the recommendation that the bill as amended do pass.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. VREELAND, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that committee had had under consideration the bill H. R. 12987—the railroad rate bill—and had directed him to report the same back with an amendment, with the recommendation that the amendment be agreed to, and that the bill as amended do pass.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Speaker, I ask for the previous question on the bill and amendment to its final passage.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee rose.

The SPEAKER. For what purpose does the gentleman rise?

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I move to recommit the bill with instructions.

The SPEAKER. That is not in order at this time.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. A parliamentary inquiry, Mr. Speaker. When will it be in order to recommit the bill with instructions to report a provision against the issuing of free passes?

The SPEAKER. After the engrossment and third reading of the bill. If the previous question is ordered, which is now moved, and the bill is engrossed and read a third time, then a motion to recommit would be in order. The gentleman from Iowa demands the previous question. The question is upon ordering the previous question.

The question was taken, and the previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER. The question now is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The question was taken; and the bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, and was read the third time.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I now move to recommit the bill to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, and upon that motion I demand the previous question.

The SPEAKER. The question is on ordering the previous question on the motion of the gentleman from New York to recommit the bill to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Upon that, Mr. Speaker, I demand the yeas and nays. Mr. Speaker, I desire to make a parliamentary inquiry.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman will state it.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Is that motion subject to amendment?

The SPEAKER. It is not, if the previous question is ordered.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, I hope the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. GAINES] will withdraw his call for the yeas and nays, because there is nothing to be accomplished by it. We do not want to recommit this bill, of course.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I simply want the bill sent back to the committee with instructions, if I can get it, to bring it in with an antifree-pass provision similar to the one I have offered or a better one.

The SPEAKER. Debate is not in order. Does the gentleman from Tennessee withdraw his demand for the yeas and nays?

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I withdraw the demand for the yeas and nays.

The SPEAKER. The question is on ordering the previous question.

The question was taken; and the previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER. The question now is on the motion to recommit.

The question was taken; and the motion was rejected.

The SPEAKER. The question now is on the final passage of the bill.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, upon that I demand the yeas and nays.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to Mr. BINGHAM for one week, on account of sickness.

SENATE BILLS REFERRED.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, Senate bills of the following titles were taken from the Speaker's table and referred to their appropriate committees, as indicated below:

S. 133. An act authorizing the extension of Twenty-third street NW. to Kalorama road—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

S. 54. An act to provide a public park on Georgetown Heights, in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

ENROLLED BILLS PRESENTED TO THE PRESIDENT FOR HIS APPROVAL.

Mr. WACHTER, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that this day they had presented to the President of the United States for his approval the following bills:

H. R. 4177. An act granting a pension to Susan H. Chadsey;
H. R. 5208. An act granting a pension to Susan J. Rounds;
H. R. 5654. An act granting a pension to Moses Eggleston;
H. R. 5779. An act granting a pension to Hannah W. Green;
H. R. 6116. An act granting a pension to John Gainsback;
H. R. 6166. An act granting a pension to Else C. Isachsen;
H. R. 7206. An act granting a pension to Nannie Frazier;
H. R. 7423. An act granting a pension to Rachel A. Dailey;
H. R. 8071. An act granting a pension to Mary Mitchell;
H. R. 8689. An act granting a pension to Frank P. Haas;
H. R. 8832. An act granting a pension to William I. Heed;
H. R. 9092. An act granting a pension to Lucy Walke;
H. R. 9382. An act granting a pension to Mariam T. Shreve;
H. R. 10365. An act granting a pension to Emeline S. Hayner;
H. R. 10573. An act granting a pension to Mariah Baughman;
H. R. 519. An act granting an increase of pension to William C. Stewart;
H. R. 520. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Stern;
H. R. 749. An act granting an increase of pension to Elkanah M. Wynn;
H. R. 1434. An act granting an increase of pension to Eleazar A. Patterson;
H. R. 1435. An act granting an increase of pension to Jason Robbins;
H. R. 1548. An act granting an increase of pension to Emma Leviness;
H. R. 1810. An act granting an increase of pension to James E. Post;
H. R. 1971. An act granting an increase of pension to Melville A. Smith;
H. R. 1972. An act granting an increase of pension to Stephen Gillen;
H. R. 2262. An act granting an increase of pension to John Seymour;
H. R. 2266. An act granting an increase of pension to George H. Hodges;
H. R. 2800. An act granting an increase of pension to Thomas Manahan;
H. R. 2959. An act granting an increase of pension to Amos H. Tenant;
H. R. 3295. An act granting an increase of pension to George W. Knapp;
H. R. 4223. An act granting an increase of pension to Frederick Schultz;
H. R. 4226. An act granting an increase of pension to William Painter;
H. R. 4392. An act granting an increase of pension to Joseph Miller;
H. R. 4393. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry Allen;
H. R. 4643. An act granting an increase of pension to Orlena F. Seaver;
H. R. 4682. An act granting an increase of pension to James Whiteman;
H. R. 4706. An act granting an increase of pension to Anna M. Gardner;
H. R. 4731. An act granting an increase of pension to Robert McMullen;
H. R. 4733. An act granting an increase of pension to John L. Files;
H. R. 4740. An act granting an increase of pension to Ransom L. Logan;
H. R. 4742. An act granting an increase of pension to Edward Coy;
H. R. 4744. An act granting an increase of pension to Thomas O'Connor;
H. R. 4747. An act granting an increase of pension to Joseph C. Robinson;
H. R. 4991. An act granting an increase of pension to William R. Glisan;
H. R. 5158. An act granting an increase of pension to Ephraim N. R. Ohl;
H. R. 5182. An act granting an increase of pension to Robert S. Williams;
H. R. 5236. An act granting an increase of pension to Mary Greene;

H. R. 5237. An act granting an increase of pension to Rebecca Garland;
H. R. 5253. An act granting an increase of pension to Greenberry Suddarth;
H. R. 5546. An act granting an increase of pension to James Eastwood;
H. R. 5631. An act granting an increase of pension to Leonard F. Simmons;
H. R. 5642. An act granting an increase of pension to John W. Bancroft;
H. R. 5643. An act granting an increase of pension to Wells Briggs;
H. R. 5653. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry W. Wells;
H. R. 5831. An act granting an increase of pension to Julius Zuehlke;
H. R. 5845. An act granting an increase of pension to Robert T. Knox;
H. R. 5939. An act granting an increase of pension to James Brody;
H. R. 6113. An act granting an increase of pension to Moses Schoonmaker;
H. R. 6172. An act granting an increase of pension to Abraham K. Vantine;
H. R. 6183. An act granting an increase of pension to Amanuel Russell;
H. R. 6186. An act granting an increase of pension to William Harvey;
H. R. 6191. An act granting an increase of pension to Martin V. B. Bachman;
H. R. 6446. An act granting an increase of pension to Silas N. Bradshaw;
H. R. 6447. An act granting an increase of pension to Mary E. Davenport;
H. R. 6544. An act granting an increase of pension to Buford P. Moss;
H. R. 6916. An act granting an increase of pension to Jacob Meier;
H. R. 6917. An act granting an increase of pension to Edmund R. Strang;
H. R. 6983. An act granting an increase of pension to Chalkley Petitt;
H. R. 7230. An act granting an increase of pension to John M. Wells;
H. R. 7237. An act granting an increase of pension to Philip Bacon;
H. R. 7509. An act granting an increase of pension to John N. Stone;
H. R. 7572. An act granting an increase of pension to Gilbert F. Capron;
H. R. 7662. An act granting an increase of pension to Barney Shultz;
H. R. 7673. An act granting an increase of pension to Homer A. Barrows;
H. R. 7735. An act granting an increase of pension to James Hartzel;
H. R. 7755. An act granting an increase of pension to Adam Wenzel;
H. R. 7758. An act granting an increase of pension to John L. Whitman;
H. R. 7878. An act granting an increase of pension to Ann Betts;
H. R. 7888. An act granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Sutherlin;
H. R. 7889. An act granting an increase of pension to Aaron Noble;
H. R. 7950. An act granting an increase of pension to Emma M. Heath;
H. R. 7952. An act granting an increase of pension to Detrick Norrup;
H. R. 8181. An act granting an increase of pension to Martin B. Noyes;
H. R. 8237. An act granting an increase of pension to Noah Palmer;
H. R. 8374. An act granting an increase of pension to Ellen R. Graham;
H. R. 8403. An act granting an increase of pension to James L. Rector;
H. R. 8404. An act granting an increase of pension to John H. Ferguson;
H. R. 8409. An act granting an increase of pension to George H. Stowits;
H. R. 8532. An act granting an increase of pension to Retta M. Fairbanks;
H. R. 8659. An act granting an increase of pension to James Powers;
H. R. 8799. An act granting an increase of pension to Bartholomew Moriarty;
H. R. 9130. An act granting an increase of pension to John Brinkley;
H. R. 9659. An act granting an increase of pension to Abram V. Smith;
H. R. 9984. An act granting an increase of pension to Samuel McKinney;
H. R. 10142. An act granting an increase of pension to Thomas Bush;
H. R. 10218. An act granting an increase of pension to Melissa Chase;
H. R. 10352. An act granting an increase of pension to Sarah A. Boush;
H. R. 10389. An act granting an increase of pension to John W. Ellsworth;
H. R. 10572. An act granting an increase of pension to Mary A. Hackley; and
H. R. 9757. An act to amend paragraph 34 of section 7 of an act entitled "An act making appropriations to provide for the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1903, and for other purposes," approved July 1, 1902.

ADJOURNMENT.

Mr. HEPBURN. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, a parliamentary inquiry. I understand that after the yeas and nays were ordered and before the roll was called the gentleman from Iowa moved to adjourn. Is that motion in order?

The SPEAKER. Undoubtedly. The question is on the motion to adjourn.

The question was taken, and the motion was agreed to.

Accordingly (at 6 o'clock and 54 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned until to-morrow, at 12 o'clock m.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATION.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, the following executive communication was taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

A letter from the Secretary of War, transmitting, with a letter from the Chief of Engineers, report of examination and survey of Willapa River, Washington—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors, and ordered to be printed.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII, bills and resolutions of the following titles were severally reported from committees, delivered to the Clerk, and referred to the several Calendars therein named as follows:

Mr. McCARTHY, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to which was referred the bill of the Senate (S. 983) to validate certain certificates of soldiers' additional homestead right, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1062); which said bill and report were referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. CAPRON, from the Committee on the Territories, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 7139) legalizing the removal of the county seat of Washita County, Oklahoma Territory, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1065); which said bill and report were referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. BONYNGE, from the Committee on Mines and Mining, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13550) to establish mining experiment stations, to aid in the development of the mineral resources of the United States, and for other purposes, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1066); which said bill and report were referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. HENRY of Texas, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 436) establishing a United States court and recording district at Duncan, Ind. T., and conforming other districts therewith, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1067); which said bill and report were referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. MORRELL, from the Committee on Militia, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 7136) to increase the efficiency of the militia and promote rifle practice, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1068); which said bill and report were referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were severally reported from committees, delivered to the Clerk, and referred to the Committee of the Whole House, as follows:

Mr. SULLOWAY, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 4202) granting an increase of pension to John C. Umstead, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1058); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. HAUGEN, from the Committee on War Claims, to which was referred the bill of the House H. R. 3959, reported in lieu thereof a resolution (H. Res. 261) referring to the Court of Claims the papers in the case of the trustees of the Methodist Episcopal Church South, of Pine Bluff, Ark., accompanied by a report (No. 1059); which said resolution and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. FULKERSON, from the Committee on War Claims, to which was referred the bill of the Senate (S. 567) authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to make an examination of certain claims of the State of Missouri, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1060); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. HASKINS, from the Committee on War Claims, to which was referred the bill of the Senate (S. 2872) for the relief of the French Trans-Atlantic Cable Company, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1061); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. CHANEY, from the Committee on Invalid Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 8233) granting an increase of pension to Charles A. Power, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1063); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. CLAYTON, from the Committee on War Claims, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 14206) to carry out the findings of the Court of Claims in the case of James A. Paulk, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1064); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

PUBLIC BILLS, RESOLUTIONS, AND MEMORIALS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills, resolutions, and memorials of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. McGUIRE: A bill (H. R. 14304) to provide for the readjustment and settlement of accounts between certain Osage Indians and traders of the Osage Reservation—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. BEDE: A bill (H. R. 14305) to authorize the Wisconsin and New Duluth Bridge Company to construct a bridge over the St. Louis River, between the States of Wisconsin and Minnesota—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. EDWARDS: A bill (H. R. 14306) making an appropriation for the completion of Locks and Dams Nos. 19 and 20, on the Cumberland River, in Kentucky—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. COOPER of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 14307) to provide for the erection of a public building at Waynesburg, Pa.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. REID: A bill (H. R. 14308) to authorize the construction of a bridge at or near Van Buren, Ark.—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14309) to authorize the construction of a bridge across Fourche la Fave River, in Perry County, Ark.—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. CLARK of Missouri: A bill (H. R. 14310) appropriating money for certain work on the Missouri River—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. BURLESON: A bill (H. R. 14311) authorizing a survey of the Colorado River, in Texas, from its mouth to the city of Austin—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. McNARY: A bill (H. R. 14312) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide revenue for the Government and to encourage the industries of the United States," approved July 24, 1897, as to import duties on band or belting leather (finished), dressed upper leather, patent and japanned leather, leather cut into shoe uppers or vamps, and boots and shoes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. JONES of Washington: A bill (H. R. 14313) to recognize the claim of the Colville and confederated tribes of Indians, State of Washington, and providing for the payment thereof—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14314) to authorize the sale and disposition of surplus or unallotted lands of the diminished Colville Indian Reservation, in the State of Washington, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. JENKINS: A bill (H. R. 14315) to regulate appeals in criminal prosecutions—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. WILLIAMS: A bill (H. R. 14316) to further enlarge the powers and authority of the Public Health and Marine-Hospital Service, and to impose further duties thereon—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. PEARRE (by request): A bill (H. R. 14317) to amend section 183 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, giving authodity to officers of the Departments to administer oaths to witnesses in investigations—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. MORRELL: A bill (H. R. 14318) to prohibit shanghaiing in the United States—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. MEYER: A bill (H. R. 14394) to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors near the Government Hospital for the Insane and the District Almshouse—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. RAINEY: A bill (H. R. 14395) to prohibit corporations from making money contributions in connection with political elections—to the Committee on Election of President, Vice-President, and Representatives in Congress.

By Mr. DALZELL: A bill (H. R. 14396) to incorporate the Lake Erie and Ohio River Ship Canal, to define the powers thereof, and to facilitate interstate commerce—to the Committee on Railways and Canals.

By Mr. HAMILTON: A joint resolution (H. J. Res. 97) authorizing assignment of pay of teachers and other employees of the Bureau of Education in Alaska—to the Committee on the Territories.

Mr. HAUGEN, from the Committee on War Claims: A resolution (H. Res. 261) referring to the Court of Claims H. R. 3959—to the Private Calendar.

By Mr. WANGER: A resolution (H. Res. 262) directing the Clerk of the House to pay Mrs. Annie L. Harmer a certain sum of money—to the Committee on Accounts.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred, as follows:

By Mr. ANDREWS: A bill (H. R. 14319) granting to the town of Gallup, McKinley County, Territory of New Mexico, 160 acres of land—to the Committee on the Territories.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14320) granting an increase of pension to Gottlieb Honzaker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BANKHEAD: A bill (H. R. 14321) granting a pension to Daniel G. Harrison—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BRADLEY: A bill (H. R. 14322) granting a pension to Abbie L. Hanford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14323) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Thornton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BRICK: A bill (H. R. 14324) granting an increase of pension to Charles T. Murray—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BROWNLOW: A bill (H. R. 14325) granting an increase of pension to Wesley A. Hampton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14326) for the relief of William H. Taylor—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BOWERSOCK: A bill (H. R. 14327) granting an increase of pension to Amelia Nichols—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CHANEY: A bill (H. R. 14328) granting an increase of pension to Charles M. Mears—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COLE: A bill (H. R. 14329) granting a pension to Mary M. Strong—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CROMER: A bill (H. R. 14330) granting a pension to Sarah J. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14331) granting an increase of pension to Jefferson R. Martin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DALE: A bill (H. R. 14332) for the relief of John Depew, late of Battery E, Fifth United States Artillery—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14333) granting a pension to Elizabeth Jeremiah—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14334) granting a pension to Helen F. Hoffman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14335) to remove the charge of desertion from the record of Patrick F. McDermott—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14336) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Alexander Todd—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. DAWES: A bill (H. R. 14337) granting an increase of pension to Gabriel Y. Palmer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DEEMER: A bill (H. R. 14338) granting an increase of pension to William A. Rice—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. EDWARDS: A bill (H. R. 14339) for the relief of John Tucker—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14340) granting a pension to Mary A. S. Campbell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14341) granting a pension to Nancy A. Baker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14342) granting an increase of pension to London C. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FITZGERALD: A bill (H. R. 14343) for the relief of James C. Slaght—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. FOSTER of Vermont: A bill (H. R. 14344) for the relief of Col. Medad C. Martin—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. FULKERSON: A bill (H. R. 14345) granting an increase of pension to Peter Noblet—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14346) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Edmiston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14347) granting an increase of pension to Jarvis Sherman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14348) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Hoy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HAYES: A bill (H. R. 14349) authorizing the appointment of William I. Reed, a captain on the retired list of the Army, as a major on the retired list of the Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HINSHAW: A bill (H. R. 14350) granting an increase of pension to Theodore W. Allen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOLLIDAY: A bill (H. R. 14351) granting an increase of pension to Susan Sewell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14352) granting an increase of pension to Samuel J. Rhoades—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14353) granting an increase of pension to John A. Bryan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14354) granting an increase of pension to Samuel F. Anderson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14355) granting an increase of pension to George W. Florey—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14356) to correct the military record of Sylvester Weaver—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14357) to correct the military record of George Pile—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HUFF: A bill (H. R. 14358) granting an increase of pension to William H. Morrow—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14359) granting a pension to James H. Stone—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. JENKINS: A bill (H. R. 14360) for the relief of John McDonald, alias John Shannon—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. KENNEDY of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 14361) granting an honorable discharge to David Harrington—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14362) to authorize payment of commutation to David Jones—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. CHARLES B. LANDIS: A bill (H. R. 14363) granting a pension to Mary Z. Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14364) for the relief of James M. Blankenship—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. LEE: A bill (H. R. 14365) for the relief of William D. Law—to the Committee an War Claims.

By Mr. LESTER: A bill (H. R. 14366) for the relief of the Jerusalem Evangelical Lutheran Church, Ebenezer, Ga.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. McGAVIN: A bill (H. R. 14367) granting an increase of pension to Lemuel O. Gilman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14368) granting an increase of pension to Margaret F. Hogan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MARTIN: A bill (H. R. 14369) granting an increase of pension to Sumner P. Wyman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MAYNARD: A bill (H. R. 14370) granting an increase of pension to Theodore Hogener—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 14371) granting an increase of pension to William H. Capehart—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14372) to carry out the findings of the Court of Claims in the case of James E. Meacham—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. MOUSER: A bill (H. R. 14373) to remove charge of desertion and grant honorable discharge to John A. Boston, alias John Boston Irwin—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. RHODES: A bill (H. R. 14374) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin B. Cahoon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14375) granting an increase of pension to Edmond R. Haywood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RIXEY: A bill (H. R. 14376) for the relief of William Bushby—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SAMUEL: A bill (H. R. 14377) granting an increase of pension to William Stephens—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SIBLEY: A bill (H. R. 14378) granting an increase of pension to Charles Settle—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STEPHENS of Texas: A bill (H. R. 14379) for the relief of Sylvanus Cobble, of Gainesville, Tex.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14380) to authorize the Court of Claims to consider the claims of Charles F. Winton, deceased, and others, against the Mississippi Choctaw Indians for services rendered and expenses incurred—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. WEEKS: A bill (H. R. 14381) authorizing and directing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to the Holtzer-Cabot Electric Company the amount due said company from the Post-Office Department—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. WOOD of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 14382) granting an increase of pension to William Antes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FRENCH: A bill (H. R. 14383) granting an honorable discharge to Jonas O. Johnson—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14384) granting an increase of pension to John Miller—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14385) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Daniels—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14386) granting an increase of pension to Anthony L. Bledsoe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14387) for the relief of John Nelson—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. MEYER: A bill (H. R. 14388) granting an increase of pension to A. L. Barthelemy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WILLIAMS: A bill (H. R. 14389) granting an increase of pension to Amos Hart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14390) granting an increase of pension to William F. Burnet—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CAPRON: A bill (H. R. 14391) granting an increase of pension to Franklin Cooley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FRENCH: A bill (H. R. 14392) for the relief of Thomas Hanlon—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14393) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of William P. Edmonson—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

CHANGE OF REFERENCE.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXII, committees were discharged from the consideration of bills of the following titles; which were thereupon referred as follows:

A bill (H. R. 8891) granting a pension to Mrs. R. C. Rogers—Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 14196) for the relief of Bessie McAlester McGuirk—Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads discharged, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

A bill (H. R. 2224) granting an increase of pension to Henry

L. Karns--Committee on Invalid Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

A bill (H. R. 13339) granting a military bounty land warrant to John B. Anderson—Committee on Pensions discharged, and referred to the Committee on the Public Lands.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By the SPEAKER: Petition of Elgin J. Cole et al., for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of William H. Burns et al., for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ACHESON: Petition of citizens of Wampum, Pa., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the Pennsylvania Dairy Union, indorsing bill H. R. 345—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of the National Board of Trade, for improvement of the merchant marine—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. ALEXANDER: Petitions of Chapin Post, No. 2, Grand Army of the Republic, and Emerson H. Liscum Camp, Sons of Veterans, of Buffalo, N. Y., for bill H. R. 13090—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. ALLEN of New Jersey: Petition of the National Board of Trade, favoring bill S. 529—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. BARTLETT: Petition of Macon Council, No. 290, Order of United Commercial Travelers of America, for amendment to the bankruptcy law—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. BRADLEY: Petition of Bullville Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Orange County, N. Y., for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BELL of Georgia: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Cora A. Booth—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Margaret E. Foster—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of William T. Edwards—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Jobery Mullinax—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BURLEIGH: Petition of citizens of Maine, against amendment of the Grout law—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. CAPRON: Petitions of the Manton Baptist Mission; the First Baptist Church of Hope Valley; the Free Evangelical Church of Providence; the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Carolina; the Arlington Free Baptist Church, of Manton; the Centerville Methodist Episcopal Church, of Cumberland; the Warren Baptist Church, of Phoenix; the Exeter Baptist Church, of Woonsocket; the Warwick Central Free Baptist Church; the People's Free Baptist Church, of Auburn; the Methodist Episcopal Church of East Greenwich, and of sundry citizens of Rhode Island, favoring the Hepburn-Dolliver bill—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petitions of the State board of agriculture of Rhode Island and the Newport County Agricultural Society, favoring placing basic-slag meal on the free list—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of West Kingston (R. I.) Grange, No. 10, Patrons of Husbandry, favoring bill H. R. 345—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of the Newport County (R. I.) Agricultural Society, for bill H. R. 345—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of the Rhode Island State board of agriculture, favoring bill H. R. 345—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of the Rhode Island Lumber Dealers' Association, for national forest reserves—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of many citizens of New York and vicinity, for relief for heirs of victims of General Slocum disaster—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, petition of the Chamber of Commerce of New York, in favor of Chinese exclusion (bill H. R. 12973)—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, petition of the Japanese and Korean Exclusion Society, favoring strict observance of Chinese-exclusion act—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, petition of Commodore Perry and Pawtucket councils, Junior Order United Amercan Mechanics, of Rhode Island, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. DALE: Petition of the Union League Club of New York, favoring the President's policy relative to the Philippines and urging passage of the bill H. R. 3—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Union League Club of New York City, for repeal of the duty on art works—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Garfield Council, No. 354, Order United American Mechanics, of Scranton, Pa., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the American Mining Congress, for working sundry mines on Spanish and Mexican land grants—to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

Also, petition of the American Mining Congress, for assistance to schools of mines—to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

Also, petition of the American Mining Congress, for a Department of Mines and Mining—to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

Also, petition of the Western Fruit Growers' Association, relative to abuses of the private car companies—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of Father Whitty Young Men's Total Abstinence and Benevolent Society, of Scranton, Pa., against bill H. R. 7079—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Hon. J. A. Scranton and 50 other citizens of Scranton, Pa., and vicinity for relief for heirs of victims of General Slocum disaster—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, petition of State Grange No. 1199, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of George E. Briggs, against free alcohol of all kinds—to the Committee on Alcoholic Liquor Traffic.

Also, petition of Sam Sloan Division, No. 276, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of Scranton, Pa., for bill H. R. 9328—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Sam Sloan Division, No. 276, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of Scranton, Pa., for passage of bills H. R. 239 and S. 1657—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the National German-American Alliance of the United States and a million and a half of German citizens, against franking scientific literature on beer—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of the Japanese and Korean Exclusion League, for strict enforcement of Chinese-exclusion act—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the Luzerne Chemical Company, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Pennsylvania Dairy Union, indorsing bill H. R. 345—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 47—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 221—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Ezra C. Griffin Camp, No. 8, Sons of Veterans, Pennsylvania Division, against the Morrell bill—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of Strong Vincent Post, No. 67, Grand Army of the Republic, of Erie, Pa., for bill H. R. 8989—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of the Commercial Law League, favoring the Lodge bill, relating to the consular service—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, petition of Lackawanna Division, No. 12, Order of Railway Conductors, of Scranton, Pa., for passage of bills H. R. 239 and 9328—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. DAVIS of Minnesota: Petition of many citizens of New York and vicinity, for relief for heirs of victims of General Slocum disaster—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. DOVENER: Affidavits in support of bill (H. R. 5388) for the relief of Silas Garrison—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ESCH: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Theodore Groezinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of the National Board of Trade, for bill S. 529—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. FITZGERALD: Petition of the Newport Produce Exchange, for modification of the Chinese-exclusion act—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. GOULDEN: Petition of the National Board of Steam

Navigation, favoring bills H. R. 369 and 370—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of the Board of Steam Navigation, favoring lighting of Statue of Liberty, New York Harbor—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. GRAFF: Petition of the State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Illinois, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Illinois, for the Interstate Commerce Commission to control railway rates—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Illinois, favoring reciprocal trade relations with foreign countries—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, petition of the State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Illinois, for control of freight rates by the Interstate Commerce Commission—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the State Grange of Illinois, Patrons of Husbandry, for a parcels-post law—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of the State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Illinois, against ship subsidies—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of the State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Illinois, for election of United States Senators by popular vote—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Illinois, favoring the referendum to legalize all important enactments—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Illinois, against the present method of seed distribution—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of the State Grange of Illinois, Patrons of Husbandry, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GRANGER: Petition of the North Congregational Church, of Providence, for prohibition of liquor selling in Indian Territory and Oklahoma as States—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. GROSVENOR: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Albert C. Roach—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HINSHAW: Petition of Russell Post, No. 77, Department of Nebraska, Grand Army of the Republic, for relief of George C. Vance—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HITT: Petition of citizens of Rochelle, Ill., for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HUFF: Paper to accompany bill for relief of William H. Altmain—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of the Charleroi Merchants' Association, of Washington County, Pa., favoring bill H. R. 8106—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of William H. Morrow—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of the National Board of Trade, of Philadelphia, favoring bill S. 529—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of Excelsior Council, No. 366, Order United American Mechanics, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. KAHN: Petition of S. Foster & Co., of San Francisco, for the ship-subsidy bill—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of the San Francisco Labor Council, for bill H. R. 12472—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of the Sacramento Valley Development Association, for an appropriation for roads, etc., in Yosemite Valley—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. KENNEDY of Nebraska: Papers to accompany bills H. R. 11686, granting a pension to William C. Berghahen; H. R. 11689, granting a pension to Byard H. Church; H. R. 11690, granting a pension to Lewis Lowry; H. R. 11692, granting a pension to John P. Wishart; H. R. 12797, granting a peinsion to Alvin Denning; H. R. 13342, granting a pension to Morris W. Clark; H. R. 11140, granting a pension to Henry Russell; H. R. 11142, granting a pension to James McQuade; H. R. 11360, granting a pension to John Sylvester; H. R. 11363, granting a pension to Elizabeth McCormick; H. R. 11364, granting a pension to Richard Allbery; H. R. 11365, granting a pension to Robert D. Williamson, and H. R. 11687, granting a pension to Matt Fitzpatrick—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LINDSAY: Petition of the National Board of Trade, favoring bill S. 529—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of the New York Produce Exchange, against the Interstate Commerce Commission having control of railway rates—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the New York Produce Exchange, for modification of the Chinese-exclusion law—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. McCALL: Petition of the First Baptist Church of Cambridge, Mass., against sale of liquor at Army posts—to the Committee on Alcoholic Liquor Traffic.

Also, petition of citizens of Massachusetts, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Women's Clubs of Massachusetts, for forest reserve in the White Mountains—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. MAHON: Petition of Lodge No. 736, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, for bill H. R. 239—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. MAYNARD: Petition of J. E. White et al., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. MOON of Tennessee: Paper to accompany bill for relief of William H. Capehart—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. MORRELL: Petition of F. O. Raymond et al., against religious legislation in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, petition of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 221—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of many citizens of New York and vicinity, for relief for heirs of victims of General Slocum disaster—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, petition of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 47—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. NEEDHAM: Petition of the Merchants' Association, for an appropriation to improve the Yosemite Valley—to the Committee on Appropriations.

Also, petition of the Sacramento Valley Development Association, for improvement of the Yosemite Valley—to the Committee on Appropriations.

Also, petition of the Azusa-Covina-Glendora Fruit Exchange, of Azusa, Cal., relative to abuses of private car lines—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the Fresno County Chamber of Commerce, favoring bills H. R. 9753 and 9754—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of the San Francisco Labor Council, for an improved merchant marine—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. OLCOTT: Petition of citizens of New York, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. OVERSTREET: Petition of the Indianapolis Live Stock Association, for an appropriation for live-stock inspection—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of Henry Schurman, favoring improvement in the merchant-marine service—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. POLLARD: Petition of the Swine Breeders' Association of Nebraska, for bill H. R. 345—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. RHODES: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Benjamin B. Cahoon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RICHARDSON of Alabama: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Roy F. Walker—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. RYAN: Petition of the National Board of Trade, favoring bill S. 529—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of the New York Produce Exchange, against the rate bill—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. SCHNEEBELI: Petition of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 221—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Kilpatrick Camp, No. 233, Sons of Veterans, of Easton, Pa., favoring bill H. R. 12085—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of Packer Lodge, No. 85, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Easton, Pa., favoring bills H. R. 239 and 9325 and S. 1657—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Lehigh Lodge, No. 403, Association of Merchants, of Easton, Pa., favoring bill H. R. 10046—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of Council No. 159, Order United American Mechanics, of Easton, Pa., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of Henry Gabriel's Sons, against any increase of duty on aniline colors and salts—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of J. H. Romig, of San Francisco, favoring establishment of a Government hospital at Bristol Bay, Alaska—to the Committee on the Territories.

By Mr. SHACKLEFORD: Petition of the Missouri Corn Growers' Association, for reciprocal commercial relations with other countries—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SPERRY: Petition of citizens of New Haven, Conn., for establishment of a forest reserve in White Mountains—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of Massachusetts Council, No. 42, Middletown, Conn., for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Elm City Division, No. 317, Order of Railway Conductors, for bill H. R. 239—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of citizens of New Haven, Conn., for investigation of affairs in the Kongo Free State—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. STEENERSON: Petition of J. W. Noffsinger et al., for repeal of revenue tax an denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of dairymen of Minnesota, protesting against the Grosvenor bill—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. STEPHENS of Texas: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Andrew L. Hook—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. SULZER: Petition of the New York Produce Exchange, for modification of the Chinese-exclusion law—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. YOUNG: Petition of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 47—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the Boyne City Charcoal Iron Company, against the free-alcohol bill—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

SENATE.

THURSDAY, February 8, 1906.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. EDWARD E. HALE.

The Secretary proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday's proceedings, when, on request of Mr. CULBERSON, and by unanimous consent, the further reading was dispensed with.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, the Journal stands approved.

ARMY QUARTERS, PHILIPPINE ISLANDS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a letter from the Secretary of War submitting an emergency estimate of appropriation for barracks and quarters, Philippine Islands, $100,000, being additional to the urgent deficiency estimate of like amount transmitted to Congress on the 1st instant; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. W. J. BROWNING, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the bill (S. 2582) to authorize the American National Bank, of Graham, Va., to change its location and name.

The message also announced that the House had passed the following bills; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

H. R. 12987. An act to amend an act entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887, and all acts amendatory thereof, and to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commission; and

H. R. 13372. An act to authorize the sale of timber on certain of the lands reserved for the use of the Menominee tribe of Indians in the State of Wisconsin.

COAL-MINING INTERESTS IN WEST VIRGINIA.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, some days ago I presented to the Senate a communication from the Red Rock Fuel Company, of West Virginia, relating to some abuses or outrages that had been perpetrated upon them by the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. In connection with that document I said that I presumed there was redress for the particular grievance complained of, which was that this coal company had lands contiguous to the Baltimore and Ohio road and had opened their coal lands—their mines—and had constructed a railroad track, so as to get within touch of the Baltimore and Ohio, and had been refused connections, so that they were stopped up, or bottled up, so to speak, and not allowed to ship their product. I indicated that it appeared to me there was a chance for the company to get redress and to secure its rights under State laws or else the State was disgraced. The senior Senator from West Virginia [Mr. ELKINS] declared that there was such a law, and that the coal company could get redress.

I dismissed the subject from my mind, supposing, of course, that the statement was entirely accurate, but last evening I received a letter on this whole question of the situation in regard to the transportation of coal in West Virginia which is so illuminating that I feel it obligatory on me to ask to have it read in the nature of a petition. I send it to the desk for that purpose.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, the communication will be read. The Secretary will read it.

The Secretary read as follows:

STATE OF WEST VIRGINIA, GOVERNOR'S OFFICE,
Charleston, W. Va., February 6, 1906.

Hon. BENJAMIN R. TILLMAN.
United States Senate, Washington, D. C.

DEAR SENATOR: I do not know that you remember me. I met you at a dinner given by Senator SCOTT at the New Willard two years ago. I have read with interest and satisfaction your remarks in the Senate a few days ago in presenting the letter of Mr. Bullitt, of the Red Rock Coal Company, of Upshur County, this State. You said that "that such things could be in this State was a disgrace to the State." Senator ELKINS said that we had a law in this State providing a remedy for the outrageous treatment of shippers by railroads. You are nearer right than Senator ELKINS. We have some law in this State bearing on that subject, but it is inadequate, and we have no means of enforcing it. I have been trying since 1881 to get a railroad commission in West Virginia, but the railroad lobby would never let us have it. I regret to have to admit that there is much truth in what you say, that this state of things is a disgrace to West Virginia.

The case that you presented to the Senate of the said coal company is only a sample of many. The Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company has been a great sinner in this respect for many years. For a while, when the late John K. Cowan was in charge of the company, there was a good state of affairs. I think an investigation would show that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company is interested in the production of coal; not directly, perhaps, but indirectly and substantially. It makes little difference as to the effect upon our people whether the corporation itself is directly interested in the production of coal in competition with other producers of coal or whether officers or directors or controlling stockholders are so interested. The result is the same. I have heard of cases where this company has attempted to say who shall ship coal and who shall not, and when they should ship it, and where they should ship it and where they should not. It may be that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company does not legally own a controlling part of the stock of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company or the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company or the Norfolk and Western Railway Company, but I have no doubt that an investigation will show that the Pennsylvania Railroad Company practically controls these three great trunk lines which traverse West Virginia, and which are the only means whereby the products of this State, including coal, can be shipped either to the Lakes in the West or other markets in the East. Hence it is a fact that West Virginia to-day is in the grasp of a railroad trust which practically says what part of the State shall be developed and what shall not be developed, how much coal shall be shipped out of this State, to what points or parts it shall be shipped, and when it shall be shipped.

Of course, it makes its own rates, and our people are helpless. The Pennsylvania Railroad is very largely interested itself in the production or shipment of bituminous coal. It will naturally look after its own interest and the interest of the people along its lines in Pennsylvania and elsewhere first of all, and therefore the interests of West Virginia are subordinated to the interests of these others, and our railroads, upon which we are dependent, as before stated, are controlled by an alien corporation practically in direct competition with us. The State authorities stand ready to do everything in their power, and are anxious to do that, to protect our people from these intolerable conditions.

You will be doing a great public benefit if you succeed in having a thorough investigation made of the conditions referred to existing in this State.

Very respectfully, yours,

WM. W. W. DAWSON, Governor.

Mr. TILLMAN. I wish to remark, by way of brief comment, that the statements made by the governor of West Virginia are of such transcendent importance and relate to a subject of such vital moment at this time, and coming as they do, too, from a man who is a Republican in the best standing and from a State which has a Republican legislature, I do not see how we can refuse to have the conditions investigated. I would move along that line but for the fact that there is something of the sort on foot in the House. Mr. GILLESPIE has been endeavoring to secure the information in regard to the merger or control of the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Baltimore and Ohio, and the Norfolk and Western by the Pennsylvania, and I do not want to appear to take jurisdiction of a question that is now pending there. There is no need of two investigations; there might be a joint one of both Houses; but I will wait until I see what developments shall come. Unless the House shall move actively in a way to secure the facts I shall be compelled to ask the Senate a little later to take some action itself.

Mr. ELKINS. Mr. President, I listened to the communication from the governor of West Virginia read at the desk. The only reason that I made any reference to the remarks of the Senator from South Carolina a few days ago was because he stated that if such a state of affairs existed it was a disgrace to West Virginia. I felt obliged to resent that to the extent of saying——

Mr. TILLMAN. I hope the Senator will do me the justice to say that I thought the State of West Virginia must necessarily have laws on its statute book that would give redress, and the Senator said they did have, and I took him at his word. Now, the governor comes forward and says it has not got it, and can not get it because of the railroad lobby that is there, or the influences which govern the State.

Mr. ELKINS. The governor does not say that there is no redress. He states that the Senator from South Carolina was partly right and that I was partly right in our statements.

The facts are, Mr. President, that under the laws of West Virginia there is an adequate remedy by mandamus to compel the physical connection of a switch lateral or branch road with the main line, or between any two roads. In resorting to that remedy it is claimed that the shippers hesitate by reason of the long time and the expense, and incurring probably the hostility of the railroad with which they seek connection. But the law is plain and it is on the statute book.

Now, as to the State not having a railroad commission, my colleague and myself have earnestly favored for years the passage of a law creating a railroad commission in West Virginia, but it has failed. There are a great many States in the Union that have no railroad commissions.

Now, Mr. President, as to the allegations about the state of affairs in West Virginia, unless the Senator wants to make the governor's letter the basis of a resolution for investigation it probably should go to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, which is considering this very question of abuses growing out of the refusal to grant connecting running arrangements and other things; and if the Senator does not propose to make it the basis of an inquiry, which I think, perhaps, was in his mind, then I will ask that it be referred to the committee having these matters in hand now.

Mr. TILLMAN. I have no objection to the reference of the communication to the Committee on Interstate Commerce, of which I am an humble member. I merely meant to state my position in the event that the efforts now being made in the House by a gentleman from Texas to investigate this whole question, not with regard to the bottling up of competing coal mines or miners, but the question of merger, shall fail. If that investigation shall fail of being ordered, I shall then endeavor to get the Senate to order an investigation of the whole question, both as to the merger and as to this particular grievance of the railroad trust in West Virginia, which presumes to say who shall ship coal, where they shall ship coal, when they shall ship coal, and whether they shall ship coal at all, and also refuses to allow men to make connection with their railroads, and also, as I have understood, has torn up spur tracks leading to mines so as to bottle up the mines entirely, with a view, I suppose, to their purchase, or something like that.

I do not want to do anything to-day. I am perfectly willing to allow the petition to go to the Committee on Interstate Commerce; but I say I shall feel compelled a little later to ask the Senate to do something unless the House does something.

Mr. ELKINS. If the Senator is willing to allow the communication of the governor to go before the Committee on Interstate Commerce, I shall be glad, because we are considering this very subject.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The communication will be referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. FORAKER. I was out of the Chamber—detained by a committee meeting—when the communication was read. It will appear, I presume, in the RECORD.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It has been read, and will appear in the RECORD.

Mr. TILLMAN. It is a letter from the present Republican governor of West Virginia, in which he makes a disclosure or statement as to the situation there that is appalling to any man who has any conception of a free government.

Mr. FORAKER. I gathered, from what I heard the Senator from South Carolina say, the nature of the communication, and I only rose to state that I am in hearty sympathy with the suggestion he makes, that there should be an investigation with a view to arriving at some means of remedying just what is complained of. This communication, if it is of the character I understand it to be, goes to the very heart of the trouble that is causing all the disquiet and all the contention in the country; and if we can arrive at a just apprehension of just what that condition is, and then find a legitimate remedy for it, we will do a great deal more to benefit and promote the interests of the country than in any other way which has yet been suggested.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented a petition of the National Board of Trade, of Philadelphia, Pa., praying for the passage of the so-called "ship subsidy bill;" which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. PLATT presented a memorial of the Lake Seamen's Union of Buffalo, N. Y., remonstrating against the abolishment of the United States marine hospitals now located at various points in the United States; which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also presented a memorial of the Atlantic Coast Seamen's Union, of New York City, N. Y., remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "ship subsidy bill;" which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a memorial of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Yonkers, N. Y., and a memorial of the First Baptist Church of Rhinebeck, N. Y., remonstrating against the repeal of the present anticanteen law; which were referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented a petition of Local Council No. 165, United Commercial Travelers, of Brooklyn, N. Y., praying for the adoption of an amendment to the present bankruptcy law to include employees employed as traveling or city salesmen as preferred creditors; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of the Commercial Club, of Pawhuska, Okla., praying for the adoption of a clause in the statehood bill making the Osage Reservation one county; which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the petition of Charles Gibson and sundry other citizens of Albany, N. Y., praying for an investigation of the conditions now existing in the Kongo Free State; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

He also presented the petition of Richard A. Bindhardt and sundry other citizens of New York City, N. Y., praying for the enactment of legislation for the relief of the victims of the General Slocum disaster in New York Harbor; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also presented a petition of Milton-on-Hudson Grange, No. 884, Patrons of Husbandry, of Milton, N. Y., praying for the passage of the so-called "pure-food bill;" which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the Lake Seamen's Union of Buffalo, N. Y., praying for the enactment of legislation relating to the complement of crews of vessels; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a memorial of the Columbia County Department of the Mohawk and Hudson River Humane Society, of Hudson, N. Y., remonstrating against the enactment of legislation extending the time in the interstate transportation of live stock; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the Chautauqua County Pomona Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Chautauqua County, N. Y., and a petition of the New York Hay Exchange, of New York City, N. Y., praying for the enactment of legislation to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission; which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a memorial of the Manufacturers' Association of Jamestown, N. Y., remonstrating against the enactment of legislation to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented petitions of sundry citizens of Buffalo, Rochester, and New York City, all in the State of New York, praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah; which were referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

He also presented petitions of Canadawaran Division, No. 341, Order of Railway Conductors, of Norwich; of Trojan Lodge, No. 90, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Troy; of Local Lodge No. 417, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of East Buffalo; of Metropolitan Lodge, No. 363, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, of New York City; of Local Division, Order of Railway Conductors, of Buffalo; of Local Division, Order of Railway Conductors, of Corning; of Local Lodge No. 164, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Utica, and of Local Lodge No. 623, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Central Valley, all in the State of New York, praying for the passage of the so-called "employers' liability bill;" which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of sundry employees of Dunn & McCarthy, of Auburn, N. Y., praying for the enactment of legislation to remove the duty on imported hides and leather; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. GALLINGER presented a memorial of Granite State Lodge, No. 306, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, of Concord, N. H., remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "Esch-Townsend railroad rate bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the legislative committee of the American Federation of Labor of Washington, D. C., praying for the enactment of legislation granting relief to ship keepers of the Mare Island Navy-Yard, Cal.; which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also presented a memorial of the Labor Council of San Francisco, Cal., remonstrating against the enactment of legislation relating to the complement of the crews of vessels; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented the petition of F. E. Barber, of Billings, Okla., and the petition of John P. Algie, of Pondcreek, Okla., praying for the enactment of legislation to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors in that Territory when admitted to statehood; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. PENROSE presented a petition of the clergy of the diocese of Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of the so-called "pure-food bill;" which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. BURNHAM presented the petition of Mary E. Rowe, of Henniker, N. H., praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah; which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

He also presented a petition of the Organization of the General Slocum Survivors, of New York City, N. Y., praying for the enactment of legislation granting relief to the victims of the General Slocum disaster in New York Harbor; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also presented a memorial of Granite State Lodge, No. 306, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, of Concord, N. H., remonstrating against the enactment of legislation to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented the petition of G. O. Shields, of New York City, N. Y., praying for the enactment of legislation to establish game refuges in national forest reserves; which was referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

Mr. ANKENY presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Spokane, Wash., praying that more liberal appropriations be made for the support of agricultural experiment stations; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Spokane, Wash., praying for the enactment of legislation to increase the salaries of postal clerks; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also presented a memorial of the Washington Inland Empire Retail Dealers' Association, remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "parcels-post bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. NELSON presented a memorial of the Labor Council of San Francisco, Cal., remonstrating against the enactment of legislation relating to the complement of crews of vessels; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a petition of sundry homesteaders of the Red Lake Indian Reservation of Minnesota, praying for the enactment of legislation extending the time for payment of their homesteads within that reservation; which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. HOPKINS presented a petition of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, of Chicago, Ill., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for the construction of a deep waterway between the Great Lakes and the Gulf of Mexico; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a memorial of the Retail Merchants and Business Men's Association of Hoopeston, Ill., remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "parcels-post bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. WETMORE presented a petition of the congregation of the Universalist Church of Woonsocket, R. I., and a petition of the congregation of the First Methodist Episcopal Church of Woonsocket, R. I., praying for the enactment of legislation to regulate the interstate transportation of intoxicating liquors; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. FLINT presented a petition of the congregation of the Church of the Unity of Santa Barbara, Cal., praying for an investigation of the existing conditions in the Kongo Free State; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

He also presented sundry petitions of citizens of Los Angeles, Cal., and of Fred L. Ingraham, of Yuma, Ariz., praying for the enactment of legislation to remove the duty on linotype and composing machines; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a memorial of sundry citizens of Bruceville, Cal., remonstrating against any increase of the tax on sweet wines; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco, Cal., praying for the enactment of legislation appropriating for a period of twenty years 75 per cent of the internal revenue and customs receipts from the Territory of Hawaii as a special fund to be expended in that Territory for Territorial and Federal purposes; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Los Angeles, Cal., praying for the passage of the so-called "pure-food bill;" which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a memorial of the Labor Council of San Francisco, Cal., remonstrating against the enactment of legislation relating to the complement of crews of vessels; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the Shipowners' Association of the Pacific Coast, praying for the enactment of legislation to abolish the use of Government transports for carrying troops and freight in time of peace; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE presented petitions of sundry citizens of Mattoon, Suring, Madison, and Phlox, all in the State of Wisconsin, praying for the enactment of legislation to authorize the sale of timber on certain of the lands reserved for the use of the Menominee tribe of Indians in that State; which were referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also presented memorials of sundry citizens of the State of Wisconsin, remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "Philippine tariff bill;" which were referred to the Committee on the Philippines.

He also presented petitions of sundry citizens of Mayville, Prairie du Chien, and Wausau, all in the State of Wisconsin, praying for the enactment of legislation to remove the duty on linotype and composing machines; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a memorial of sundry citizens of Fond du Lac, Wis., remonstrating against the ratification of the Isle of Pines treaty; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

He also presented memorials of sundry citizens of Neenah, Watertown, Appleton, and Westley, and of Local Union No. 61, Cigar Makers' International Union, of La Crosse, all in the State of Wisconsin, remonstrating against any reduction of the duty on cigars and tobacco imported from the Philippine Islands; which were referred to the Committee on the Philippines.

Mr. STONE presented a memorial of the Mercantile Association of St. Louis, Mo., remonstrating against the adoption of the proposed amendment to the copyright law to prevent the importation of foreign publications by libraries; which was referred to the Committee on Patents.

He also presented a memorial of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Kansas City, Mo., remonstrating against the repeal of the present anticanteen law, and praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah; which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

He also presented a petition of Robertson & Ball, of Gallatin, Mo., praying for the enactment of legislation for the removal of the tariff on linotype and composing machines; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. MILLARD presented a petition of the Commercial Club of Grand Island, Nebr., praying for the enactment of legislation for the holding of the United States court at that place; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

THE FIVE CIVILIZED TRIBES OF INDIANS.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, I rise to something that is in the nature of a question of personal privilege, but not so much personal as official.

It was called to my attention last night for the first time that an important bill—House bill 5976—dealing with the affairs of the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians had been prepared in the House and had passed that body and been sent to the Senate, and by some inadvertence on the part of the presiding officer the bill was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs. As I am chairman of the Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians, having previously been chairman of the Committee on Revolutionary Claims, and during the two years I occupied that honorable position never having had but one bill sent to that committee, which almost took my breath away, I had not expected to have much to do as chairman of the Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians. But as such a bill has come to this body and has been sent to the wrong committee, I merely rise to ask that that error be corrected, and that the bill, with the accompanying papers, shall be sent to the committee to which it justly belongs—that is, the committee of which I have the honor to be chairman.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state that a similar bill had been introduced in the Senate and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and——

Mr. TILLMAN. Still that was another inadvertence, because otherwise the Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians has no reason for being in existence.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs at the request of the Senator introducing it——

Mr. TILLMAN. I can not help that. Suppose I were to get up here and introduce a bill relating to the Army——

Mr. LODGE. I suggest that we have order, Mr. President. I should like to hear the Chair complete his statement.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will complete his statement, if the Senator from South Carolina will suspend for a moment.

Mr. TILLMAN. I will try to do so, sir.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senate bill was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs at the request of the Senator introducing it. There was no objection then made to the reference, or after the reference had been made. When a similar bill came from the House the same reference was made, and it was made without objection until this moment. If the Senator desires to have the bill recalled from the Committee on Indian Affairs and referred to the Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes, it may be done if there is no objection. Is there objection?

Mr. CLARK of Wyoming. Mr. President——

Mr. TILLMAN. Will the Senator now permit me to finish what I was trying to say when my kind guide and friend from Massachusetts took charge of the affairs of the Senate?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Wyoming?

Mr. TILLMAN. Oh, with pleasure.

Mr. CLARK of Wyoming. The announcement having been made by the Chair that the bill would be withdrawn from the Committee on Indian Affairs unless objection were made, I desire to say that it has been the custom in this body for many years to refer all bills relating to the affairs of the Indian Territory, including the affairs of the Five Civilized Tribes, to the Committee on Indian Affairs. The bill followed the regular course in the Senate in that matter.

In the absence of the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. CLAPP], the chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs, I would suggest to the Senator from South Carolina that he defer his request until that Senator shall be present.

Mr. TILLMAN. I am perfectly willing. I do not want to have any unseemly wrangle as to who shall take charge of the bill, but I simply want to say again that there is no excuse or reason for this body to have a Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians and put five or seven Senators on it—I have forgotten which—and then have bills relating to those Five Civilized Tribes referred, at the request of Senators introducing them, to some other committee, because—let me suppose for an instant, that I shall introduce a bill relating to the Army and ask that it be referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs, of which I happen to be a member, is it to be thought for a moment that the bill would go that way, or would it go where it belongs—to the Committee on Military Affairs?

I am merely contending for decent and orderly procedure in referring measures that relate to a specific subject to the committee charged with looking after such matters. The Chair, inadvertently, I suppose, of course—I do not blame the Chair at all—referred both these bills erroneously. I am merely asking the Senate to correct the mistake.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state to the Senator from South Carolina that the Chair made each reference advisedly and according to the practice of the Senate.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. HALE. I am directed by the Committee on Appropriations, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 12320) making appropriations to supply urgent deficiencies in the appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, and for prior years, and for other purposes, to report it with amendments. I submit a report thereon, and give notice that I will try to call up the bill to-morrow morning at the expiration of the routine morning business.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be placed on the Calendar.

Mr. FRYE, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 4095) to establish a light and fog-signal station at or near Isle au Haut Harbor, Maine, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. GALLINGER, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2703) to establish a light-house and fog signal on Cape Hinchinbrook, Hinchinbrook Island, Prince William Sound, in the district of Alaska, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2704) to establish a light-house and fog signal on Ocean Cape, Yakutat Bay, in the district of Alaska, submitted an adverse report thereon, which was agreed to; and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. SCOTT, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 35) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Dover, in the State of New Hampshire, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 961) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Alexandria, in the State of Minnesota, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2801) to withhold from sale a portion of Fort Brady Military Reservation, at Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. HOPKINS, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 3044) to promote the efficiency of the Revenue-Cutter Service, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PILES, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2705) to establish a light-house and fog signal on Cape Spencer, at the entrance to Cross Sound, in the district of Alaska, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. NELSON, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 26) to promote the efficiency of the Life-Saving Service, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. FORAKER, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1304) for the construction of a driveway and approaches to the national cemetery at Salisbury, N. C., reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. ALGER, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2056) to correct the military record of David Horner, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 2054) authorizing the Secretary of War to place the name of Joseph F. Ritcherdson on the rolls of Company C, One hundred and twenty-second Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and issue him an honorable discharge;

A bill (S. 728) to correct the military record of James W. Houser; and

A bill (S. 729) for the relief of George H. White.

Mr. ALGER, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1700) to remove the charge of desertion appearing against the military record of David W. Trumpeller, submitted an adverse report thereon; which was agreed to, and the bill was postponed indefinitely.

Mr. SIMMONS, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1305) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Salisbury, in the State of North Carolina, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. TALIAFERRO, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 661) for the relief of Levi J.

Billings, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. FOSTER, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 659) granting an honorable discharge to William S. Dunn, reported it with an amendment.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 8773) granting an increase of pension to William H. Joslin, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. WARNER, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1430) for the relief of George Stoll and the heirs of Charles P. Regan, Marshall Turley, Edward Lannigan, James Manley, and John Hunter, asked to be discharged from its further consideration, and that it be referred to the Committee on Claims; which was agreed to.

Mr. CULBERSON, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 338) making an appropriation for a public building at Houston, Tex., reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PERKINS, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 3724) to amend section 4400 of the Revised Statutes, relating to inspection of steam vessels, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. HOPKINS, from he Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads, reported an amendment proposing to appropriate $60,000 for additional clerk hire in the city post-office at Chicago, Ill., intended to be proposed to the urgent deficiency appropriation bill, and moved that it be referred to the Committee on Appropriations and printed; which was agreed to.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT FERNANDINA, FLA.

Mr. SCOTT. I am directed by the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1724) providing for the erection of a public building at the city of Fernandina, Fla., and for other purposes, to report it favorably with an amendment.

Mr. TALIAFERRO. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read for the information of the Senate.

The Secretary read the bill; and there being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

The amendment of the committee was, in line 8, after the word "city," to strike out the words "with fireproof vaults extending to each story;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to purchase a site and to cause to be erected at the city of Fernandina, in the State of Florida, a suitable building for a custom-house and for the use and accommodation of the post-office, the United States courts, and other Government offices in said city, the site and the building thereon, when completed according to plans and specifications, to be previously made and approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, not to exceed the cost of $100,000: Provided, That there shall be an open space of not less than 40 feet upon every side of said building, including streets and alleys.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DAM AT GRAND DETOUR, ILL.

Mr. HOPKINS. I am directed by the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 8442) permitting the building of a dam across the Rock River, at Grand Detour, Ill., to report it favorably without amendment, and I ask unanimous consent for the immediate consideration of the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read for the information of the Senate.

Mr. LODGE. I suggest that we finish the morning business before that is done.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There is objection, and the bill will be placed upon the Calendar.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. BLACKBURN introduced a bill (S. 4253) for the relief of Hetterman Brothers Company; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4254) to incorporate the East Washington Heights Railroad Company; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. McENERY introduced a bill (S. 4255) for the relief of Charles E. Fenner, executor of George E. Payne, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. PATTERSON introduced a bill (S. 4256) for the relief of The Alaska Short Line Railway and Navigation Company's Railroad; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Territories.

Mr. McCREARY introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 4257) granting an increase of pension to Mary R. Dobyns;

A bill (S. 4258) granting an increase of pension to James F. Hackney; and

A bill (S. 4259) granting a pension to A. P. Gadd.

Mr. McCREARY introduced a bill (S. 4260) for the relief of the estate of George W. Taylor, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. PLATT introduced a bill (S. 4261) granting an increase of pension to Samuel C. White; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4262) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth M. J. Meagher; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PENROSE introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 4263) for the relief of Hamilton D. South;

A bill (S. 4264) for the relief of Emaline Johns; and

A bill (S. 4265) providing for reopening and readjustment of the accounts of Herbert Cushman, captain, United States Army, retired, and for other purposes.

Mr. PENROSE introduced a bill (S. 4266) granting a pension to Matilda C. Heilman; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 4267) to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors near the Government Hospital for the Insane and the District Almshouse; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4268) changing the name of Douglas street to Clifton street; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. BURNHAM inroduced a bill (S. 4269) granting an increase of pension to Martin White; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4270) granting a pension to Williette L. Norton; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. ELKINS introduced a bill (S. 4271) for the establishment of a national park and forest reserve in the Appalachian Mountains, and to provide for the conservation of the water that flows down the Potomac watershed, and to provide laws for its sanitary policing, and so forth; to include all parts of the States of West Virginia, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia that contribute to form the complete watershed of the Potomac River from its head to and including the District of Columbia; and for the primary purposes of providing a sufficient and pure water supply for the District of Columbia; also to embrace the western slope of the Appalachian Mountains to the Ohio River included in the States of West Virginia, Pennsylvania, and Kentucky, and embracing the watersheds of the Monongahela, Big Kanawha, Little Kanawha, and Big Sandy rivers and their tributaries, and to prevent overflows and denudation of soil; for the establishment of reservoirs, canals, lakes, ponds, and ditches, and for all other useful purposes to which water can be put when supplied in abundance; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 4272) granting a pension to John H. Crumbaugh;

A bill (S. 4273) granting an increase of pension to William J. Martin;

A bill (S. 4274) granting a pension to George W. Mullins; and

A bill (S. 4275) granting a pension to John W. Smith.

Mr. ELKINS introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 4276) for the relief of Lorenzo D. Corrick, administrator of William Corrick, deceased; and

A bill (S. 4277) for the relief of St. Clair Nicely.

Mr. LODGE introduced a bill (S. 4278) to establish a library post; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. McCUMBER (by request) introduced a bill (S. 4279) granting an increase of pension to Fannie E. Malone; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. NELSON introduced a bill (S. 4280) granting a pension to Amelia Cotten; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HOPKINS introduced a bill (S. 4281) granting an increase of pension to Lycurgus D. Riggs; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4282) to correct the military record of Francis M. Price; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. LA FOLLETTE introduced a bill (S. 4283) to prohibit public officers from asking, accepting, or using a free pass, frank, or privilege withheld from other persons for the traveling accommodation or transportation of any person or property or the transmission of any message or communication; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4284) granting to the State of Wisconsin the residue of unappropriated and unreserved public lands within said State as an addition to the State forest reserve of said State; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4285) to establish a fish-cultural station in the State of Wisconsin; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Fisheries.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4286) granting an increase of pension to Thomas J. Davis; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. STONE introduced a bill (S. 4287) granting an increase of pension to George W. Tilman; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. OVERMAN introduced a bill (S. 4288) granting an increase of pension to William E. Anderson; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BACON introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 4289) for the relief of Mary E. Forrester and Alexander B. Duncan;

A bill (S. 4290) for the relief of Mary A. F. Preston (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 4291) for the relief of the heirs of W. S. Brown, deceased (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 4292) for the relief of the heirs of Eliza Ann Davis, deceased (with accompanying papers); and

A bill (S. 4293) for the relief of Mrs. Susanna M. Clay (with accompanying papers).

Mr. FORAKER introduced a bill (S. 4294) for the relief of Frank M. Wyant; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. MORGAN introduced a bill (S. 4295) to carry out the findings of the Court of Claims in the case of James A. Paulk; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Claims.

PHILIPPINE TARIFF BILL.

Mr. ELKINS submitted an amendment intended to be proposed by him to the bill (H. R. 3) to amend an act entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenue for the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes," approved March 8, 1902; which was referred to the Committee on the Philippines, and ordered to be printed.

METROPOLITAN POLICE OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA.

On motion of Mr. PENROSE, it was Ordered, That there be printed for the use of the Senate document room 500 copies of Senate bill No. 3644, first session, Fifty-ninth Congress.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED.

H. R. 12987. An act to amend an act entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887, and all acts amendatory thereof, and to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

H. R. 13372. An act to authorize the sale of timber on certain of the lands reserved for the use of the Menominee tribe of Indians in the State of Wisconsin, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

LOUISIANA PURCHASE EXPOSITION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Select Committee on Industrial Expositions, and ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a communication from the Secretary of State submitting the final report of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition, furnished in pursuance of section 11 of the "Act to provide for celebrating the one-hundredth anniversary of the purchase of the Louisiana territory," etc., approved March 3, 1901.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, February 8, 1906.

THE FIVE CIVILIZED TRIBES OF INDIANS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there be no further concurrent or other resolutions, the morning business is closed, and the Calendar under Rule VIII is in order.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, some days ago——

Mr. TILLMAN. Will the Senator yield to me for a moment?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from West Virginia yield to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. SCOTT. I do.

Mr. TILLMAN. At the suggestion of the chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs [Mr. CLAPP], I will ask the Senate to determine the question as to the jurisdiction over the bill (H. R. 5976) to provide for the final disposition of the affairs of the Five Civilized Tribes in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes.

A moment ago I called the attention of the Senate to the fact that I had not before known that this bill had come here. As it relates indubitably to the affairs of the Five Civilized Tribes, and does not relate to general Indian affairs at all, I felt constrained to claim jurisdiction of it for the committee of which I have the honor to be chairman.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator ask unanimous consent?

Mr. TILLMAN. Why is it necessary to have unanimous consent for the Senate to correct an error that has come about by some strange inadvertence or something like that? Of course, however, if that is the rule, I will ask for unanimous consent.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question can be easily reached either by asking unanimous consent or by moving that the Committee on Indian Affairs be discharged from the further consideration of the bill and that it be referred to the Select Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians.

Mr. TILLMAN. I make that motion, Mr. President.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair will state that the consideration of the motion would have to lie over one day unless by unanimous consent.

Mr. CLAPP. Mr. President, if there is no objection to the consideration of the motion, why can it not be disposed of this morning?

Mr. FRYE. It can by unanimous consent.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from South Carolina asks unanimous consent that the Committee on Indian Affairs be discharged from the further consideration of the bill (H. R. 5976) to provide for the final disposition of the affairs of the Five Civilized Tribes in the Indian Territory, and for other purposes, and that it be referred to the Select Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians. Is there objection?

Mr. NELSON. I object. I raise the question, and, therefore, it must be decided by motion.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Minnesota [Mr. NELSON] objects. Now, then, the Chair understands the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. TILLMAN] to move that the Committee on Indian Affairs be discharged from the further consideration of the bill, and that it be referred to the Select Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians. Under objection, that motion would lie over until to-morrow.

Mr. CLAPP. Mr. President, can not that motion by unanimous consent be also taken up and considered, so that we may have this question disposed of? I have just left the work of the Committee on Indian Affairs on this bill to come here to explain the status of it. I think it can be just as well disposed of now as at any other time.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Yes; by unanimous consent the motion may be now considered.

Mr. TILLMAN. I ask unanimous consent. I hope the Senator from Minnesota [Mr. NELSON] will not object to our disposing of the question. We may as well dispose of it on one day as another.

Mr. NELSON. My objection does not go to the consideration of the motion. It simply goes to the request for unanimous consent to change the reference. As to the motion, I have no objection to its consideration at this time, but I object to unanimous consent.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question is on the adoption of the motion of the Senator from South Carolina. Is there objection to the consideration of it at this time? [Putting the question.] The motion is agreed to.

Mr. CLAPP. The motion was not to make the transfer, but for unanimous consent to consider it at this time. If the motion which has been stated has been agreed to, I ask that the vote by which it was agreed to may be reconsidered.

Mr. TILLMAN. I hope the chairman of the Committee on Indian Affairs will make his statement and restore the status quo. As soon as the Senator from Minnesota withdrew his objection, I made the motion to have the Committee on Indian Affairs discharged from the further consideration of the bill. My friend here misunderstood the situation, and instead of putting in his explanation, the motion was put which took the matter out of his hands and left him with nothing to speak about.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, I believe I have the floor——

Mr. CLAPP. The Senator from South Carolina does not understand me. A motion was not made, but a request was made for unanimous consent.

Mr. SCOTT. I had the floor, Mr. President, and yielded to the Senator from South Carolina.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from West Virginia, when he yielded the floor, lost it.

Mr. CLAPP. Mr. President, I should like, so long as this question has been raised, to have it disposed of this morning. When the Chair suggested that unanimous consent would be necessary, I asked the Senator from South Carolina to request unanimous consent. On that vote the Chair ruled on the motion itself, undoubtedly not understanding the request of the Senator from South Carolina.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Will the Senator from Minnesota kindly state what is his specific object?

Mr. CLAPP. The object is this, Mr. President: A proposition has been made this morning to transfer this bill from one committee to another. I was called from the work of the Committee on Indian Affairs to come up to the Senate and meet this proposition. Having come here, it occurred to me, if there was no objection in the Senate, the question might as well be disposed of this morning.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. What question, the Chair would ask?

Mr. CLAPP. The question of discharging the Committee on Indian Affairs from the further consideration of this bill, which I want to oppose and to say a few words by way of explanation.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. In the absence of objection, that motion will be regarded as still before the Senate. Is there objection to the request for the present consideration of the motion to discharge the Committee on Indian Affairs from the consideration of the bill and refer it to the Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians? The Chair hears no objection.

Mr. CLAPP. Now, Mr. President, I should like to make a statement concerning this matter. In the first place, two bills on this subject were introduced, one in the Senate and one in the House of Representatives. They were bills prepared by the Department and turned over to members of the Committee on Indian Affairs in each House for their management. When I introduced the bill in the Senate I expressly called attention to the fact that the Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians was practically a nominal committee, which never had given this subject any consideration whatever, and that all the legislation which had been enacted by this body in regard to the Five Civilized Tribes had been in the hands of the Committee on Indian Affairs. I doubt if the Senator can refer to a single bill which has been considered by the Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes. All such legislation has been worked out, analyzed, reported, and passed upon by the Committee on Indian Affairs.

When the House bill came here it was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs. That committee has sat for eight or nine days taking testimony, and a subcommittee has prepared a bill to present to the full committee. It would therefore be simply absurd at this time to transfer that bill to any other committee.

This is a matter about which I should have personally cared nothing, but I have been obliged to refrain from sitting here and listening to debates to which I should have been glad to have listened because I was engaged in working out this measure through a subcommittee. After the bill has gone that far, it is a mere waste of time now to refer it to a committee which never has passed upon a single measure in regard to the Five Civilized Tribes, and which would have to start in from the very beginning, except in so far as some of its members may be familiar with the subject by having been members of the Committee on Indian Affairs.

If, under those circumstances, the Senate desires to take this bill from the Committee on Indian Affairs and transfer it to a committee that is practically a nominal committee, a committee which the records will show has never passed upon legislation nor wrought out any of the features of the legislation for the Five Civilized Tribes, personally I have no objection to it; but it seems to me that it is boys' play at this stage, when a subcommittee has sat day after day working out the details of this measure when they would much have preferred to have been present in this Chamber, to now throw their work to the winds for a mere technicality and refer this matter to another committee.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, my friend displays a great deal of unnecessary fervor and earnestness in regard to this matter. I have no desire to add to the already enormous amount of work I feel compelled to try to do——

Mr. CLAPP. Will the Senator pardon me for an interruption?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Minnesota?

Mr. TILLMAN. I do.

Mr. CLAPP. I confess it was very difficult for me to decide whether the Senator was really in earnest or not in making the motion, and I may have expended some unnecessary energy in meeting it.

Mr. TILLMAN. The Senator will judge for himself whether I am in earnest or not after I get through. He ought not to cut me off before I get fairly started.

I have been looking over the list of committees of the Senate. I find that there are select committees and standing committees, and I find that the Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians, to whose chairmanship I was recently promoted, is composed of one BENJAMIN R. TILLMAN, HENRY M. TELLER, ALFRED B. KITTREDGE, JULIUS C. BURROWS, and REDFIELD PROCTOR. It is natural to assume that Mr. KITTREDGE, who lives in South Dakota, knows more about Indians than I do, and it is very natural to me to suppose that HENRY M. TELLER, who was at one time in the Cabinet as the head of the Interior Department, knows as much about Indians as anybody in this Chamber.

Mr. CLAPP. Will the Senator pardon an interruption?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Minnesota?

Mr. TILLMAN. Oh, certainly.

Mr. CLAPP. We get the benefit of the valuable services of Senator HENRY M. TELLER as a member of the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. TILLMAN. But he did not know until a minute ago that this bill had gone to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. TELLER. Oh, yes; I knew the bill had been referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, but I did not know the Senator from South Carolina desired that it should be referred to his committee.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, the committee of which I have the honor to be chairman may be a purely ornamental affair, but as the affairs of the Five Civilized Tribes are now being administered on finally, and they will soon be citizens either of the Indian Territory or of the State of Oklahoma, I want to get the last chance I shall have while I preside over this important committee of sitting at the head of the table. I have been here for eleven years. During all that time I have been sitting down toward the foot of the table and taking service from the plates as they were passed around, after everybody else had been helped, and getting the crumbs that were handed to me. [Laughter.]

My only desire in now asking that this bill—it is the last one that will ever come to my committee while I or anybody else is on it—shall be sent to it is because otherwise the Committee on the Five Civilized Tribes of Indians has no reasonable excuse for existence, unless it be for the purpose of giving me a committee room, for which I am very thankful.

I have not the slightest feeling in this matter. If the Senator from Minnesota and his colleagues have devoted a great deal of time and labor in trying to legislate intelligently on this subject, as I know they have, I do not want to stickle for the dignity of presiding over the destinies of the Five Civilized Tribes, as they are about to expire as such. I will therefore withdraw the motion to have the transfer made. I merely wanted to have the Senator from Minesota understand, if he does preside over the great Committee on Indian Affairs, that I have some conception of my dignity as a chairman of a committee, and I do not like to have anything which belongs to me or to my committee taken by anybody else. That is the whole truth about it.

Mr. CLAPP. Mr. President, I will see to it that some bill is introduced that can be referred to the Senator's committee. I think we have one now that we want to indefinitely postpone, and I will ask the Senator to have his committee consider that bill. [Laughter.]

Mr. TILLMAN. The Senator can do that kind of work for himself, but not for me. I do not want to have any bill sent to my committee just for the purpose of having it indefinitely postponed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from South Carolina has withdrawn his motion, and the bill stands as originally referred.

PENSIONS TO MILITARY TELEGRAPHERS.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, after the battle between the giants, such as we all witnessed on yesterday, I certainly approach the delivery of the essay that I shall read to you now with a great deal of fear and trembling. I am sure if there is any Senator here who has any work to do in his committee room this would be a very good time for him to go there and attend to it. I shall probably consume twenty-five minutes in reading this essay.

I ask unanimous consent for the consideration at this time of the bill (S. 2165) extending the provisions of the pension laws of the United States to persons engaged in the operation and construction of military telegraph lines during the war of the rebellion.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill.

Mr. SCOTT. I now ask for the reading of the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read.

The Secretary read the bill, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That all persons placed upon the roll of military telegraph operators under the provisions of an act approved January 26, 1897, entitled "An act for the relief of telegraph operators who served in the war of the rebellion," and who have been granted suitable certificates of honorable service as provided in said act, are hereby declared to have been a part of the Army of the United States; and the provisions of all laws granting pensions to the officers and enlisted men who served in the war of the rebellion, their widows, minor children, and dependent relatives, are hereby extended so as to apply to the said persons: Provided, That the rates of pensions hereunder shall be the same as that granted to private soldiers.

Mr. SCOTT. I see that the majority of my colleagues have taken me at my word and have either gone to lunch or to committee work, which I commend them for doing.

Mr. President, I now desire to call the attention of the Senate to the bill which has just been read.

It is a bill, in my judgment, Mr. President, that ought to pass; one that is intended to correct a great injustice and wrong that, I think, has been perpetrated on a deserving class of men who served during the late war between the two sections of our country.

It was my privilege, on December 7, 1904, to advocate the passage of a similar bill, and in my advocacy at that time I urged that these men be put on a pensionable status, because of the very dangerous and hazardous positions in which they were placed during the time of our civil war. I at that time took occasion to say that not only was I in favor of the passage of this or a similar bill, but I stood ready at any time to give my vote to any special bill that would pension any man, whether he was mustered into the United States service or otherwise, if he was doing duty for his country and endangered his life or was crippled, or by any other reason incapacitated from taking care of himself or his family; that I was willing at all times to make it possible for him to be put upon the pension rolls, or in case of his death that his widow or his orphans might be cared for by this Government. Mr. President, we are too rich, too great, and, I believe, to patriotic a country to allow any man, woman, or child to suffer whose suffering is caused by the patriotism of the husband or father.

In advocating the passage of this bill as an act of long-delayed justice to as brave a soldiery as was ever embraced in any army, your attention is invited to the epitome of the history of the United States Military Telegraph Corps.

Upon the opening of the war of the rebellion, with perhaps the exception of one untried corps in Germany, no army system in the world embraced a telegraphic department, and it was reserved for mere boys—American boys—to inaugurate that arm of the service and demonstrate amid the din and carnage of war its immeasurable value. To-day every nation, ours among the number, following that demonstration, operates a military telegraph as an integral part of its army. At the opening of May, 1861—we were all boys then, though there are some of us who now wear the Grand Army button who have wrinkles in our faces, and the ex-governor of Ohio [Mr. FORAKER], now sitting at my left, when he enlisted in 1861 did not have the gray hair that he has to-day—at the opening of May, 1861, on the call of Simon Cameron, Secretary of War, Thomas A. Scott, of Pennsylvania, appeared in Washington, was commissioned colonel of the First Regiment District of Columbia Volunteers, and placed in charge of the military telegraph and railroads. The powers the President and Secretary of War clothed him with were unlimited and practically made him dictator, at least so far as the military telegraph was concerned. Within a week after his arrival military telegraph lines were run around and through Washington, connecting the War Department with the arsenal, the navy-yard, the Capitol, the railroad station, Georgetown, Chain Bridge, Long Bridge, and the various camps as they were formed, and operators were placed at those points day and night. Simultaneous with the crossing of the Potomac by the Government forces the military telegraph and its operators crossed that river, stations were opened in the Arlington House at Alexandria, at Camp Upton, Camp McDowell, and Camp Trenton. Thus it was that a new factor in war was ushered in, and necessity made essential its spread throughout the Union armies. Henceforth it became an indispensable adjunct to each of our armies and every post, and in its fuller development also of every army corps.

It was no fault of these 1,200 men that they were not enlisted. They were willing to be enlisted, but they were not permitted. They were regarded as a special class of confidential men, and they were compelled to take the following oath:

I do solemnly swear that I will bear true allegiance to the United States of America, and that I will support and sustain the Constitution and laws made in pursuance thereof as the supreme law of the land, anything in any State constitution or laws to the contrary notwithstanding; that I will not take up arms against the United States, or give aid and comfort to the enemies thereof, or to any authority or pretended authority that is or may hereafter be engaged in armed hostility thereto; and that I disclaim all fellowship with the so-called "Confederate States and Confederate armies." I do further swear that I will not reveal to any person or persons the contents of any dispatch, report, or other communication, either directly or indirectly, that may come to my knowledge through my connection with the telegraph, in any manner whatever; that I will not reveal or divulge to any person or persons any cipher that may be given me for United States military purposes; and that I will faithfully keep and observe this my solemn oath of secrecy and allegiance to the Government of the United States of America.

Now, Mr. President, I believe that if any Senator will read that oath carefully he will come to the conclusion that these men were by their acts, and that of the Government, when they took this oath actually mustered into the military service of the United States.

The telegraphers at the various departments were under the military orders of special commissioned officers, who were given rank in the Army solely with a view of such a command. Not one of these telegraphers ever had any other duties assigned to him. The reports on file in the War Department go to show that General Grant and other distinguished generals required these operators to send their reports to them and to them only.

As the Army expanded so did the Military Telegraph Corps, and at the close of the war it had, like the Army, become a finely organized, well-equipped, well-disciplined force, with a history unexcelled for bravery, fidelity, and heroism. The military telegraph had assumed large proportions and penetrated every portion of the Union where a Union Army was to be found, and its delicate yet potent power was felt by every department of the Government. It was in fact the very nerves of the Army and so considered by all those who came in contact with it. The position of these military telegraphers was peculiar, whether as enlisted men or volunteers, and there were both classes in the service. They were not subject to the orders of active officers of the Army, but came under the immediate direction of President Lincoln as Commander in Chief through the Secretary of War. They were in effect field couriers with enlarged responsibilities. The secrets of the nation were intrusted to them, and the countersign of the Army was often in their possession a week or more in advance of its promulgation. All the movements of the Army, all the confidence of the commanders, were intrusted to them, and yet not one was ever known to betray that knowledge and confidence in the most remote degree.

They came under the rules of war, and whilst independent of the commanding officer in the field they could not leave without running the risk of being shot.

In the front when the Army was advancing, in the midst of battle, and bringing up the rear in case of the Army's retreat, the corps left upon the battlefields, in the hospitals, and war prisons hundreds of its numbers who were never restored to family, home, and friends, nor were their services officially recognized by the Government for which they had laid down their lives.

The survivors battled for many years to have the wrong righted and achieved a partial success in the act of January 26, 1897, which whilst recognizing them as an integral part, a corps, of the United States Army, denied them the rights such relation entitled them to. They now come to the doors of the present Congress, firm in the belief that the patriotism of its Members will accord them the long-delayed justice by removing the bar sinister which the act of 1897 placed against them. Less than 180 survive, and the lengthened shadows admonish them that their days are few and short.

It is incontestable that the military telegraphers operated their wires upon the field of battle in every Territorial department; that every important cavalry movement was accompanied by one or more of their number; that in the great movements, especially from the fall of 1863, every section of the armies in near proximity to the enemy, even on the march, was kept in constant intercommunication; that unparalleled facilities for communicating with distant forces were provided by them; that thousands of lives and millions of treasure were saved by the timely aid of the corps; that the war was shortened, perhaps years, by the concertive and cooperative use of the military telegraph, which first declared victory or defeat, the need of troops, or munitions of war, of quartermaster, commissary, and medical supplies; which patrolled the seacoast and the whole Army front, keeping every post and division in constant touch, and, in emergencies, beat the "long roll" to arms. Theirs was the mystic chord which alone enabled Grant to command a million of men and brought assurance and repose to many a commander during all hours of the day and night, for they kept vigils day and night in the fort, in the tent, in the lonely bivouac, on the ground, in the malaria of the Chickahominies or the Yazoos, in unprotected guerrilla countries, and upon the battlefields; always in posts of danger, but as secretive and confidential as are the bolts and bars of the Federal Treasury.

The survivors have seen their comrades shot down in battle, torn to pieces by buried torpedoes, imprisoned in Libby, Anderville, Cahaba, and other bastiles, where some died and others became helpless wrecks. They have seen them in the delirium of smallpox and other fevers, seen them at work when weak and emaciated by chronic diarrhea or other camp diseases until the hospital or the grave brought relief. They have seen them in later years in the county poorhouses, absolute paupers, because there was no pension for them save what comrades donated, and they know that five-sixths of all those who formed the corps are in their graves, unthanked and unhonored.

The Army commanders originated plans of operation, but the Army operator was the safety vault where they were kept. Sherman at Atlanta formed his purposes to march to the sea, but he was powerless to move without the consent of Grant at City Point. Thomas was in peril in middle Tennessee, but Smith could not go to his help unless Grant so telegraphed. Grant was in imminent danger at Shiloh, and Buell could not be gotten there in time but for wire. Thomas was being starved at Chattanooga, but the two corps from the eastern army could not clear the way without the telegraph. Pope was in greatest danger at Culpeper Court House, so the telegraph reenforced him from McClellan's army and Burnside's command. Lee and Jackson pressed Pope across the Rappahannock, bent upon the destruction of the Federal Army and capture of Washington; the telegraph had ordered the Army of the Potomac from Harrisons Landing; Cedar Mountain and the fords of the Rappahannock had decimated the army which was scattered from Centerville, via Manassas Junction, to Gainesville, and while Longstreet was pouring through Thoroughfare Gap, Franklin's Porter's, and Sumner's corps of McClellan's army had come and the Army and capital were safe, due largely to the telegraph, which wrote emergency in every sentence and sent messages upon lightning's wings. From the field of Antietam McClellan telegraphed for ammunition and men whilst the battle raged, and subsequently rejoiced the nation by telegraphing: "The enemy is driven back into Virginia; Maryland and Pennsylvania are now safe."

About these times the Union Army had 919 miles of telegraph lines between the Tennessee and Mississippi rivers. When Price threatened Rosecrans at Corinth and cut the wires, operator Beckwith escaped the enemy's vigilance, and, passing the break, telegraphed Grant at Jackson in time to bring Ord's forces from Bolivar to the aid of Rosecrans after he had repulsed the enemy's many desperate assaults.

Vicksburg was surrounded by wires. Every move along the whole front was at once indicated by the electric nerves centering at Grant's headquarters. No commander ever had sentinels so efficient unless he duplicated Grant's. On a larger scale, owing to the example our military operators set, the German investment of Paris doubtless presented a more scientific exhibition of telegraphic achievements for war purposes, but it was not in any sense more efficient.

Fredericksburg and Chancellorsville were followed by Gettysburg. The telegraph, of course, took a prominent part, but not so important as thence on to the close of the war, when every corps, and ofttimes divisions, of the Army were kept in constant communication with each other and the general in chief. What had originated as a doubtful experiment in my own State of West Virginia in McClellan's campaign to Cheat Mountain ended in absolute perfection from the Rapidan to Appomattox, from Chattanooga to Atlanta, about the Capitol at Washington, along the Army front when Bragg's army, as such, was destroyed before Nashville, and many other places in Louisiana, Alabama, South Carolina, North Carolina, Virginia, and elsewhere.

History records no other war where the armies were so widely scattered, and, prior to ours, where they were so well informed of each other's movements.

Whether Sheridan, Stoneman, Rousseau, Kilpatrick, Wilson, or other great riders pushed rapidly, and even deeply into the enemy's territory, or slower, like Sherman to the sea, or northward, like Banks up Red River, or Curtis to Little Rock, the telegrapher went with his instrument and cipher key, that greatest of all secrets except the secrets it hid and, in proper hands only, disclosed.

Every campaign had its victims, and every Confederate prison had its representative from the ranks of the telegraph corps. Every great battle had telegraphers within range of the enemy's small arms. Every great raid was aided by one or more telegraphers. Every pressing want was heralded and every victory or defeat, great or small, was first told by the boys of the telegraph.

An erroneous estimate has heretofore been made and a wrong opinion formed as to the true status of these men. To quote from the committee's report at the second session of the Senate in the last Congress:

> It appears from a careful examination of the duties of the men whom this bill seeks to pension that their services were of an irregular character, there never having been previous to the war of the rebellion a use of the telegraph as an agency for disseminating intelligence from the battlefield; connecting the different armies, much less placing the Commander in Chief of the Army himself at Washington in touch with all the commanding generals of the Army, as this agency enabled President Lincoln to do during the war of the rebellion.
>
> There was at that time a mystery about the art of telegraphy that surrounded it with a peculiar charm. The men who controlled the telegraph keys manipulated an agency under the conditions of the war powerful for good or evil. Great care was necessary in the selection of the men, not alone because they were familiar with this new art, but it was also necessary to carefully select men in whom special confidence would be reposed. Their posts were at places of extreme danger; their duties were almost continuous, unrelieved by the excitement and relaxation of ordinary camp life.
>
> It is surprising that so important an arm of the service during that war should have been organized on a civil basis and its members only regarded as employees of the Quartermaster's Department. Their duties were purely of a military character. They were directed and commanded by officers of military title and rank. As stated above, their duties were performed at points of great danger in nearly every instance, and with the same exposure to dangers of the field and disease as fell to the lot of the ordinary military officer and private soldier. They constituted an integral and vitally essential part of the Army and brought the telegraph, as used by armies in the field, to a state of perfection never before equaled in military science. Their duties required the service of persons of peculiar intelligence, and their members were picked from among the great number of operators on account of special prominence acquired in the mysterious art.

Mr. President, as I said before, the services of these men were analogous to those of the Signal Corps, and that they were not enlisted men was no fault of theirs. They wanted to enlist, but the War Department not only discouraged enlistments of telegraphers in other branches of the service, and by general order prohibited their conscription, but permanently detailed or discharged to enter the military telegraph service 175 telegraphers who had already enlisted. As has been stated, there were about 1,200 who served a greater or less time during the war. Of these many died in service or shortly after the war closed, unmarried. Of the remainder, less than 200 survive. In the nine years since the act of 1897 was passed but 189 certificates have been issued under the provisions of that act to members of the corps or to their heirs, and of these certificate holders a number have since died. It is estimated that, exclusive of those already on the pension rolls by reason of their enlistment, not more than 200 persons would be eligible to pensions under this bill. As to the pay of the military telegrapher, while it was higher than that of the private soldier, it was not augmented like that of the private by local or Government bounties, was less than that of the commissioned officer whose rank he assimilated, and less than he could have received at the time from employment by the commercial telegraph companies.

Soldiers de facto, they did a soldier's part, endured the soldier's sacrifices and sufferings, and are entitled to the soldier's reward. It behoves the American Congress to complete their record by passing this bill and making them soldiers de jure.

Mr. President, I ask that the little pamphlet I hold in my hand be printed as a part of my remarks.

The PRESIDING OFFICER (Mr. CLARK of Wyoming in the chair). Is there objection to the request of the Senator from West Virginia? The Chair hears none.

The pamphlet referred to is as follows:

SOCIETY OF THE UNITED STATES MILITARY TELEGRAPH CORPS,

New York, December, 1889.

Your committee on Congressional action believe that if the facts herein shown are made known to the Senators and Representatives with whom you may be acquainted, there will be no doubt of their favorable consideration of the bill now before Congress for the relief of telegraph operators during the war.

The Secretary of War in 1862 reported to the President "that in diligence, fidelity, and important aid the telegraph corps has been unsurpassed by any branch of the service;" and in an order, November 13, 1862, to the telegraphers, says: "In no case will you allow the original ciphers to be given up or destroyed, except to prevent their falling into the hands of the enemy."

In his report to the President, December 5, 1863, submitted to the first session of the Thirty-eighth Congress, he says:

"The military telegraph, under the general direction of Colonel Stager and Major Eckert, has been of inestimable value to the service, and no corps has surpassed, few have equaled, the telegraph operators in diligence and devotion to their duty."

In January, 1864, he issued an order that even staff officers should not be permitted to interfere with operators in their duties, and in construing this order General Halleck wrote that no one, no matter what his rank, was to know the cipher except the operator in whose custody it was placed.

Secretary Stanton said if operators were commissioned it would enable their superior officers to command them, a result he was most anxious to avoid; he wanted them entirely under his own control.

General Grant, in the second volume of his memoirs, says of the military telegraph operators: "Nothing could be more complete than the organization of this body of brave and intelligent men;" again, "No orders had ever to be given to establish the telegraph;" and again, "In very many instances our offices were worked in the very front lines of battle."

One hundred and ninety-nine United States military telegraph operators were killed, died of disease, or captured while in the line of duty, and more than 100 others suffered from the casualties of the service.

General Halleck's special field order No. 156, from headquarters Army of the Mississippi, July 14, 1862, says: "Telegraph operators and employees are, as a general rule, subject only to the officers of their corps or orders communicated to them by the Secretary of War or commanding general of the department."

Although paid as civilians, the telegraph operators were military men, and history shows they did a high order of military duty.

The Army, by means of the telegraph, was in constant communication in all its parts, not only while encamped but while actually moving, and the telegraph was confidently relied on by the commanders, the Army, and the people.

General Haupt, referring to a service in East Tennessee, in which Confederate wires were tapped, said: "I can not speak in too strong terms of commendation of the zeal and courage of the telegraph operators who, with a full understanding that the service was very hazardous, volunteered for the occasion," and he added that nearly all the information given to the War Department at Washington for the remaining days of the fight was received through this channel; and, in connection with this same matter, Secretary Stanton encouragingly telegraphed two of the operators as follows: "I have mentioned your valuable services to the President, and am assured by him that they are appreciated."

General Banks has written that "the military telegraph was in truth an electric nerve that united the armies, consolidated their powers, inspired them with courage and hope, and finally led them to victory. It was the trusted agent in all great movements."

General Stager's report to the Secretary of War, 1863, says:

"Follow the army where you will, there you will find the telegraph exercising its vigilance and its protection over the surrounding camps; at the foremost pickets, in the rifle pits, and in the advance parallels, at any hour of the day or of the night, you can listen to the mysterious yet intellectual click of the telegraph instrument; amidst the strife of battle and the whistling of bullets, its swift, silent messages pass unseen and unharmed."

From the beginning to the close of the war the Army operator was made the medium of the most secret communications. He frequently held the countersign a week in advance. These great confidential trusts, on which the fate of armies rested, were never betrayed, but were fulfilled with zeal, devotion, and ability.

It was officially reported that during the operations at Spottsylvania, on the North Anna, in the march from Cold Harbor to City Point, and in the battles in front of Petersburg, the telegraph worked with great success, and invaluable aid was thus rendered to the Army. Lines were constructed and worked—many times in the face of the enemy—exposed to the fire, without shelter day and night.

General Sheridan says:

"In my own experience I found the telegraph operators invariably active, brave, and honorable."

Maj. Gen. J. B. Sanborn says:

"There can be no doubt that in the late war thousands of lives and millions of treasure were saved by the field telegraph operators; so far as my operations extended they were, as a class, brave, energetic, and faithful young men, and deserve well of their country."

General Logan said:

"No part of the Army during the war discharged its duties more intelligently and faithfully than the telegraphic corps."

Comte de Paris, of General McClellan's staff, in his History of the Civil War in America (Vol. I, 280), says, referring to the telegraph corps:

"Sufferings and dangers were not spared those men, whose merit was the greater in that it was less conspicuous. More than one among them, shivering with fever in an unhealthy station, lay down with his ear against the instrument to write with a trembling hand, under dictation, some important dispatches, whose secret he would confide to no one. Many paid with their lives for their boldness in setting up their instruments under the very fire of the enemy; and one fact, almost incredible, bears testimony to the dangers to which they were exposed. During the siege of Charleston the wire which connected the besieging batteries ran so close to the rifle pits of the Confederate skirmishers that it was frequently cut by their balls."

General Franklin said:

"I know of no class of men in the Army who were more faithful and energetic than the telegraph operators. The fact that they were not military men who depended upon proper notice from their commanding generals for their reputation and protection, is probably the reason for this neglect of the Government to recognize them. In my own case I testify that I always found them alert, intelligent, and courageous, and it gives me pleasure to testify to this fact even at this late day. * * * I recall that it was always a surprise to me, and a very pleasant one too, to learn—often within an hour or two after getting into camp, after a long day's march—that telegraphic communication was open with headquarters, several days' march in the rear, thus saving the lives and time of couriers and horses and giving a comfortable feeling of security, which would otherwise have been wanting, as well as enabling the commanding general to receive and impart important information." And on another occasion he wrote: "The duties of the telegraph operators who accompanied armies in the field during the late war were so well performed and the men themselves were so modest and unobtrusive that their merits have not received sufficient notice from the generals with whom they served."

General McClellan said:

"I do not think that anyone appreciates more than I do the value of those services, and the loyal and invaluable devotion so constantly displayed by the men of whom Caldwell [his chief operator] was so excellent an example. It affords me sincere pleasure to bear testimony to my appreciation of the great value of the services rendered by the members of the United States military telegraph corps during the war. I had ample occasion to recognize the devotion to duty which so often kept them at their posts in the midst of danger, the patience, intelligence, and thorough honesty they displayed, and the great debt—still unpaid and too little recognized—due them by the country. I sincerely trust that they may receive the recognition they so richly merit, and can not doubt that upon a presentation of the case Congress will take favorable action."

General Burnside said:

"I have no hesitation in saying that the telegraph corps was of infinite service during the late war, and I am free to say that I never knew a body of men who possessed more integrity, industry, and efficiency than the operators with whom I was thrown."

General Palmer, reporting from headquarters army and district of North Carolina, Newberne, February 17, 1864, to General Butler, says:

"The attack had scarcely commenced at the outposts than the telegraph had not only informed me of all that was going on in front, but the whole line of posts to Morehead was put upon its guard."

Major-General Thomas, in General Orders, No. 51, headquarters Department of Cumberland, March 26, 1864, authorized the military telegraph operators to wear an undress uniform—blouse, dark blue; trousers, dark blue with silver cord one-eighth of an inch in diameter along the outer seam; vest, buff, white, or blue; forage cap, like that worn by commissioned officers, but without any distinctive mark or ornament; buttons, like those worn by officers of the general staff.

General McPherson, commanding the Department of the Tennessee, issued a similar order July 5, 1864, and other generals, by such orders, recognized that the military telegraph operators, though paid as civilians, were nevertheless military men, entitled to commissioned rank.

The success of Major-General Sherman's raid into western Virginia in December, 1864, was acknowledged by him to be "attributable in a great degree to the information derived by his operator, E. T. Chapman, from the rebel telegraph line."

Gen. G. K. Warren wrote:

"I was intimately connected with the telegraph operators, and felt a kind interest in their faithful work and long vigils at their posts. I often talk with those who were with me of the operator who, in the first of our attacks on Petersburg, brought his wire to the front under musket range of the enemy and operated it behind a tree that proved to be hollow and which any one of the cannon shot, which were at close range flying fast, would have gone clear through with little loss of force; and, again, one on the Welden Railroad on the Sunday morning we were shelled out of it both from the north and west and who worked his recorder in the southeast angle and outside under the musketry fire that, by its sound so near and the pattering of the balls around, confused the records of his sounder, and many others on many other occasions. I have always felt a great deal of regard for their heroism. I don't want to see the telegraph operator of the war neglected as far as I can have anything to say."

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE UNITED STATES,
Washington, D. C., August 31, 1882.

R. B. HOOVER, Esq., Mansfield, Ohio:

I am always glad to bear testimony to the services of the young gentlemen who had charge of the military telegraph during the civil war. They were, as a class, so far as they fell under my observation, most efficient, clever, and worthy. As a matter of course, but few of them were personally near me, and to those I have given the highest testimonials. The greater number were distributed among the lines; had to work day and night, and were as much a part of the Army as though armed with muskets in the ranks, for before the discovery of the magnetic telegraph the sending of messages back and forth, to and fro, was always done by armed cavalry messengers and escorts, consuming a large portion of the active army. In fact, there should have been in the civil war a regular corps of telegraph operators with regular muster roll, so that the wounded and disabled could be entitled to the same pension as other staff soldiers and officers. Whether it now be too late or not I do not know, but I will take pleasure in aiding you to correct this mistake at this late day if it be practicable. But this will need a law of Congress, so that you will do well in interesting Senators and Representatives in your scheme. With great respect,

Your friend,

W. T. SHERMAN, General.

"The value of the magnetic telegraph in war," says General Sherman, "can not be exaggerated, as was illustrated by the perfect concert of action between the armies in Virginia and Georgia during 1864. Hardly a day intervened when General Grant did not know the exact state of facts with me, more than fifteen hundred miles away, as the wires ran."

Patrick Mullarkey and F. S. Van Valkenburg, two telegraph operators with General Rosecrans's army, were in the enemy's country, between Chattanooga and Richmond, for thirty-three days tapping wires, and after repeated narrow escapes, returned to Nashville and reported.

In the Department of the Gulf, Army telegraphers blew two sunken gunboats and two other vessels out of the waters of the Bayou Teche.

At the Milwaukee encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic the following was adopted:

"Whereas the United States military telegraph corps of the late war of the rebellion constituted, in fact, a part of the Union Army, and partook largely of its hardships and dangers while rendering invaluable aid; and,

"Whereas Congress has wholly ignored this branch of the service, though many of its members were killed, wounded, or died at their post of duty: Therefore, be it

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the Grand Army of the Republic, in national encampment assembled, that Congress should promptly recognize the status and services of said corps by appropriate legislation."

The Society of the Army of the Tennessee, at its Cincinnati reunion, adopted the following:

"Whereas the telegraphers of the war of the rebellion were dismissed at the close of the war without any recognition by the Government of their faithful, devoted, and vitally important services from the beginning to the close of the war; and

"Whereas several succeeding Congresses have referred the matter to committees, and said committees have reported favorably upon the subject, and no action has been taken by Congress upon said report: Therefore,

"Resolved, That it is the sense of the Society of the Army of the Tennessee that Congress should take immediate action upon this subject, and adopt measures that will give speedy and substantial recognition to all telegraphers who served in the Army during the war of 1861–1865."

Army telegraphers were with every cavalry expedition into the enemy's country, tapping Confederate wires.

Before the Confederates encamped in front of Chattanooga the telegraphers had run wires outside of the town, just above the ground, to throw the enemy in charging, and thus confuse and break the assault, as they did afterwards at Fort Saunders.

Many telegraphers were retained in the service at important points in reconstructing the States.

Fraternally yours,

COMMITTEE ON CONGRESSIONAL ACTION:
W. J. DEALY, Chairman,
195 Broadway, New York.
E. ROSEWATER, Omaha.
W. B. WILSON, Holmesburg, Pa.
J. H. EMERICK, Field Building, New York.
L. C. WEIR, Supt. Adams Express,
Cincinnati, Ohio.

Mr. SCOTT. I hope the bill will now be placed upon its passage.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JESSE W. ELLIOTT.

Mr. GALLINGER. Let the Calendar be considered.

The PRESIDING OFFICER. The Calendar is in order.

The bill (S. 3402) granting an increase of pension to Jesse W. Elliott was announced as the first business in order on the Calendar, and the Senate as in Committee of the Whole proceeded to its consideration. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Jesse W. Elliott, late of Company M, First Regiment New Mexico Volunteer Cavalry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN W. SEEBER.

The bill (H. R. 3216) granting an increase of pension to John W. Seeber was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of John W. Seeber, late of Company I, Thirty-seventh Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MAGGIE PARKER.

The bill (H. R. 3214) granting a pension to Maggie Parker was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Maggie Parker, widow of Stephen Parker, late of Company C, Twelfth Regiment United States Infantry, and to pay her a pension of $8 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HENRY LOGAN.

The bill (S. 1799) granting an increase of pension to Henry Logan was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 6, after the word "late," to strike out "of" and insert "captain;" and in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "fifty" and insert "thirty-six;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Henry Logan, late captain Company G, Sixty-fourth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $36 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ROBERT K. SMITH.

The bill (S. 1798) granting an increase of pension to Robert K. Smith was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Robert K. Smith, late of Company A, Fifteenth Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LYMAN E. FARRAND.

The bill (S. 201) granting an increase of pension to Lyman E. Farrand was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Lyman E. Farrand, late of Company B, Seventh Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM W. BENEDICT.

The bill (S. 984) granting an increase of pension to William W. Benedict was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of William W. Benedict, late of Company A, First Regiment Dakota Volunteer Cavalry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JAMES BUGGIE.

The bill (S. 2797) granting an increase of pension to James Buggie was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of James Buggie, late of Company G, Sixty-fourth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BENJAMIN FRANKLIN BIGELOW.

The bill (S. 2328) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin Franklin Bigelow was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Benjamin Franklin Bigelow, late of Company G, Twentieth Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARION F. HOWE.

The bill (S. 207) granting an increase of pension to Marion F. Howe was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Marion F. Howe, late of Company G, Eighteenth Regiment Michigan Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SIDNEY G. SMITH.

The bill (S. 1414) granting an increase of pension to Sidney G. Smith was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Sidney G. Smith, late of Company K, Seventeenth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Cavalry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY DRISCOLL.

The bill (S. 3120) granting an increase of pension to Mary Driscoll was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary Driscoll, widow of Daniel Driscoll, late of Company I, Thirty-first Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving, and $2 per month additional on account of the minor child of said Daniel Driscoll until she reaches the age of 16 years: Provided, That in the event of the death of Ellen Driscoll, helpless and dependent child of said Daniel Driscoll, the additional pension herein granted shall cease and determine.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY L. MILLER.

The bill (S. 2975) granting a pension to Mary Z. Miller was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 6, after the name "Mary," to strike out the initial "Z" and insert "L;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary L. Miller, widow of Abram O. Miller, late colonel Seventy-second Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $30 per month.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting a pension to Mary L. Miller."

KNUTE TORGESON.

The bill (S. 2329) granting an increase of pension to Kund Targerson was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 6, after the word "of," to strike out "Kund Targerson" and insert "Knute Torgeson;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Knute Torgeson, late of Second Battery, Minnesota Volunteer Light Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Knute Torgeson."

SIDNEY F. MULLIN.

The bill (S. 2327) granting an increase of pension to Sidney F. Mullen was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 6, before the word "late," to strike out the name "Mullen" and insert "Mullin;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Sidney F. Mullin, late of Company E, Eleventh Regiment Michigan Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Sidney F. Mullin."

PATRICK FALLIHEE.

The bill (S. 1465) granting an increase of pension to Patrick Fallihee was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 6, after the word "Company," to insert the letter "B;" in line 7, before the word "Volunteer," to insert "Minnesota;" and in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "fifty" and insert "forty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Patrick Fallihee, late of Company B, First Regiment Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

Mr. GALLINGER. I move to amend the amendment by inserting before the word "forty," in line 8, the word "of;" so as to read, "at the rate of."

The amendment to the amendment was agreed to.

The amendment as amended was agreed to.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM H. ALBAN.

The bill (S. 3123) granting an increase of pension to W. H. Alban was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 6, after the word "of," to strike out the initial "W." and insert "William;" and in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "forty" and insert "thirty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William H. Alban, late of Company I, Twenty-sixth Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to William H. Alban."

ELLEN S. LARNED.

The bill (S. 2337) granting an increase of pension to Ellen S. Larned was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "fifty" and insert "twenty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Ellen S. Larned, widow of Sylvester Larned, late lieutenant-colonel Second Regiment Michigan Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY J. CAMPBELL.

The bill (S. 2257) granting an increase of pension to Mary J. Campbell was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 9, before the word "dollars," to strike out "fifty" and insert "twelve;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary J. Campbell, widow of Michael J. Campbell, late of Company G, Twenty-eighth Regiment, and Company K, Thirteenth Regiment, Connecticut Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM T. WILEY.

The bill (H. R. 4708) granting an increase of pension to William T. Wiley was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "twenty" and insert "thirty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William T. Wiley, late of Company H, Eighty-eighth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

JOHN T. JONES.

The bill (S. 3240) granting an increase of pension to John T. Jones was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "fifty" and insert "thirty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John T. Jones, late of Company H, Fifth Regiment West Virginia Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN P. WINGET.

The bill (S. 2405) granting an increase of pension to John P. Winget was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 6, after the word "late," to strike out "of" and insert "first lieutenant;" in line 9, before the word "and," to insert "and late of Company E, Forty-seventh Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry;" and in the same line, before the word "dollars" to strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty-four;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John P. Winget, late first lieutenant Company K, Thirty-fourth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and late of Company E, Forty-seventh Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

NELLIE RAYMOND.

The bill (S. 1883) granting an increase of pension to Nellie Raymond was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 6, after the word "late," to strike out "colonel" and insert "captain Company F, and lieutenant-colonel;" and in line 9, before the word "dollars," to strike out "fifty" and insert "thirty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Nellie Raymond, widow of Henry S. Raymond, late captain Company F, and lieutenant-colonel Twenty-third Regiment Michigan Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HAMILTON SECHEVERELL.

The bill (H. R. 4195) granting an increase of pension to Hamilton Secheverell was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Hamilton Secheverell, late of Company M, Second Regiment Ohio Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY M. C. MANNING.

The bill (H. R. 4713) granting an increase of pension to Mary M. C. Manning was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Mary M. C. Manning, widow of William C. Manning, late captain, Twenty-third Regiment United States Infantry, and to pay her a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE W. SHEPHERD.

The bill (H. R. 4765) granting an increase of pension to George W. Shepherd was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of George W. Shepherd, late of Company K, Thirty-fourth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY VAN BLARCOM.

The bill (H. R. 9352) granting a pension to Mary Van Blarcom was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Mary Van Blarcom, widow of Lewis Van Blarcom, late captain Company C, Fifteenth Regiment New Jersey Volunteer Infantry, and to pay her a pension of $20 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FRANK BUNCHER.

The bill (H. R. 2394) granting an increase of pension to Frank Buncher was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Frank Buncher, late of Company G, Sixth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HIRAM E. MONROE.

The bill (H. R. 1467) granting an increase of pension to Hiram E. Monroe was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Hiram E. Monroe, late of Company E, Eleventh Regiment Michigan Volunteer Cavalry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

TOWN SITES IN CONNECTION WITH IRRIGATION PROJECTS.

The bill (S. 87) providing for the withdrawal from public entry of lands needed for town-site purposes in connection with irrigation projects under the reclamation act of June 17, 1902, and for other purposes, was announced as the next business in order on the Calendar.

Mr. GALLINGER. Let the bill go over.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Under objection, the bill will go over, retaining its place on the Calendar.

Mr. GALLINGER subsequently said: A moment ago I objected to Senate bill 87. I desire to withdraw the objection, having examined the bill and the report.

Mr. ANKENY. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on Irrigation with an amendment, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the Secretary of the Interior may withdraw from public entry any lands needed for town-site purposes in connection with irrigation projects under the reclamation act of June 17, 1902, not exceeding 160 acres in each case, and survey and subdivide the same into town lots, with appropriate reservations for public purposes.

SEC. 2. That the lots so surveyed shall be sold at not less than their appraised value at public auction to the highest bidders, from time to time, for cash, and the lots offered for sale and not disposed of may afterwards be sold at not less than the appraised value under such regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may prescribe. Reclamation funds may be used to defray the necessary expenses of appraisement and sale, and the proceeds of such sales shall be covered into the reclamation fund.

SEC. 3. That the public reservations in such town sites shall be improved and maintained by the town authorities at the expense of the town; and upon the organization thereof as municipal corporations the said reservations shall be conveyed to such corporations by the Secretary of the Interior, subject to the condition that they shall be used forever for the purposes for which they were reserved.

SEC. 4. That the Secretary of the Interior may sell and dispose of rights to the use of water available under the provisions of the said reclamation act for municipal, domestic, fire, and other necessary purposes, to any city, town, or village, established as herein provided, and also to any other cities, towns, or villages, in or near irrigation projects under the reclamation act. Such water rights shall be applied for by the proper town authorities subject to the provisions of the reclamation act, in so far as the same may be applicable, and the charges therefor shall be paid by such town authorities in sums not less and upon terms not more favorable than those fixed by the Secretary of the Interior for the irrigation project from which the water rights are taken.

SEC. 5. That whenever there is a development of power for use in connection with any irrigation project under the said reclamation act, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to lease, for municipal or other purposes, the right to use surplus power developed, or which can be developed, in such manner and upon such terms as he may deem proper, and any moneys received therefor shall be covered into the reclamation fund and credited to such project: Provided, That the use of surplus water for power may be discontinued on one year's notice whenever, in the opinion of the Secretary of the Interior or his successors in the control of the project, the same can be more profitably used for irrigation purposes.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FRANCIS M. MUNSON.

The bill (S. 533) granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Munson was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Francis M. Munson, late of Company D, Seventh Regiment California Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS ADAIR.

The bill (H. R. 4735) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Adair was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Thomas Adair, late of Company I, Second Regiment Missouri Volunteer Light Artillery, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ODILIA LOGAN.

The bill (H. R. 4737) granting an increase of pension to Odilia Logan was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Odilia Logan, widow of William Logan, late captain Company A, Seventh Regiment United States Infantry, and to pay her a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE W. WILBURN.

The bill (H. R. 3380) granting an increase of pension to George W. Wilburn was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of George W. Wilburn, late of Company K, Second Regiment District of Columbia Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN G. ROWAN.

The bill (H. R. 8618) granting an increase of pension to John G. Rowan was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of John G. Rowan, late of Company I, Twenty-fifth Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JAMES H. COLE, ALIAS JOHN V. COLE.

The bill (H. R. 1797) granting a pension to James H. Cole, alias John V. Cole, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of James H. Cole, alias John V. Cole, late of Company H, Fortieth Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $12 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE W. DIGHTMAN.

The bill (S. 2702) granting an increase of pension to George W. Dightman was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of George W. Dightman, late of Company A, Sixth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ANTHONY W. PRESLEY.

The bill (S. 3537) granting an increase of pension to Anthony W. Presley was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, to strike out all ofter the enacting clause and insert:

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Anthony W. Presley, late of Capt. C. Bennett's company F, First Regiment Oregon Mounted Volunteers, and first lieutenant Capt. B. Miller's company J, Second Regiment Washington Territory Volunteers, Oregon and Washington Territory Indian war, and pay him a pension at the rate of $16 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH SMITH.

The bill (S. 3039) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Smith was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Joseph Smith, late captain Company A, Fifth Regiment California Volunteer Infantry, and major First Regiment California Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WALDO W. PAINE.

The bill (S. 1753) granting an increase of pension to Waldo W. Paine was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 6, after the word "late," to strike out "of" and insert "captain;" and in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "fifty" and insert "thirty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Waldo W. Paine, late captain Company K, Twenty-ninth Regiment Michigan Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ALBERT E. LYON.

The bill (S. 992) granting a pension to Albert E. Lyon was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty-four;" and in the same line, after the word "month," to insert "in lieu of that he is now receiving;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Albert E. Lyon, late of Company H, Third Regiment California Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Albert E. Lyon."

MARTIN L. BARBER.

The bill (S. 3630) granting an increase of pension to Martin L. Barber was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Martin L. Barber, late of Company H, Fifty-second Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM M'NABB.

The bill (S. 1670) granting an increase of pension to William McNabb was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of William McNabb, late of Company K, Seventeenth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FLORENCE A. SEWELL.

The bill (S. 894) granting an increase of pension to Mrs. Sewall was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Florence A. Sewell, widow of Thomas Sewell, late second lieutenant Company G, One hundred and twenty-seventh Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $25 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Florence A. Sewell."

SETH RAYMOND.

The bill (S. 3643) granting an increase of pension to Seth Raymond was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 6, after the word "late," to strike out "of" and insert "first lieutenant;" and in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "forty" and insert "thirty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Seth Raymond, late first lieutenant Company A, Third Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN J. GRANT.

The bill (H. R. 1124) granting an increase of pension to John J. Grant was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of John J. Grant, late of Captain Fowler's company, Second Regiment Georgia Volunteers, Cherokee Indian disturbances, and to pay him a pension of $16 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FRANCES ANN BATCHELOR.

The bill (H. R. 1125) granting an increase of pension to Frances Ann Batchelor was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Frances Ann Batchelor, widow of James C. Batchelor, late of Captain Nott's company, Alabama Volunteers, Florida Indian war, and to pay her a pension of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SARAH EMALINE FINKLEA.

The bill (H. R. 1123) granting an increase of pension to Sarah Emaline Finklea was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Sarah Emaline Finklea, widow of James Finklea, late of Company H, Fifth Regiment Louisiana Volunteers, war with Mexico, and to pay her a pension of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN E. HADSALL.

The bill (S. 125) granting an increase of pension to John E. Hadsall was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of John E. Hadsall, late of Company C, Twelfth Regiment West Virginia Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CLARA T. LEATHERS.

The bill (S. 2377) granting a pension to Clara T. Leathers was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Clara T. Leathers, widow of Alexander T. Leathers, late of Company C, Fourth Regiment United States Volunteer Infantry, war with Spain, and to pay her a pension of $12 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH W. WILLARD.

The bill (S. 1433) granting an increase of pension to Joseph W. Willard was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Joseph W. Willard, late of Company E, One hundred and twenty-second Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CURTIS B. M'INTOSH.

The bill (S. 124) granting an increase of pension to Curtis B. McIntosh was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Curtis B. McIntosh, late of Company I, Twenty-third Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARTHA G. ARCHER.

The bill (S. 4029) granting an increase of pension to Martha G. Archer was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 6, after the word "late," to strike out "of" and insert "captain;" and in line 7, after the word "Infantry," to insert "war with Mexico;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Martha G. Archer, widow of Fletcher H. Archer, late captain Company E, First Regiment Virginia Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DAVID B. M'CREARY.

The bill (S. 2380) granting an increase of pension to David B. McCreary was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 6, after the word "late," to strike out "colonel" and insert "lieutenant-colonel;" in line 8, after the word "Infantry," to insert "and brevet brigadier-general, United States Volunteers;" and in line 10, before the word "dollars," to strike out "one hundred" and insert "fifty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of David B. McCreary, late lieutenant-colonel One hundred and forty-fifth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry and brevet brigadier-general, United States Volunteers, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

Mr. McCUMBER subsequently said: I move that the vote by which Senate bill 2380 was passed be reconsidered.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from North Dakota moves that the votes by which Senate bill 2380 was ordered to a third reading and passed be reconsidered.

The motion to reconsider was agreed to.

Mr. McCUMBER. I move that the bill be indefinitely postponed. The claimant under the bill has died since it was reported.

The motion was agreed to.

JOHN A. ROBERTS.

The bill (H. R. 4215) granting an increase of pension to John A. Roberts was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of John A. Roberts, late of Company K, First Regiment Georgia Volunteers, war with Mexico, and to pay him a pension of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DANIEL M. ROSE.

The bill (H. R. 4217) granting an increase of pension to Daniel M. Rose was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Daniel M. Rose, late of Company F, Fifth Regiment Tennessee Volunteers, war with Mexico, and to pay him a pension of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN M. WILLIAMSON.

The bill (H. R. 4218) granting an increase of pension to John M. Williamson was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of John M. Williamson, late of Company A, Third Regiment United States Dragoons, war with Mexico, and to pay him a pension of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HENRY ROBERTS.

The bill (H. R. 4738) granting an increase of pension to Henry Roberts was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Henry Roberts, late of Company B, First Regiment North Carolina Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and to pay him a pension of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LAWRENCE B. SMITH.

The bill (H. R. 4739) granting an increase of pension to Lawrence B. Smith was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Lawrence B. Smith, late of Company I, First Regiment North Carolina Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and to pay him a pension of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LOCKEY STUARD.

The bill (H. R. 5238) granting an increase of pension to Lockey Stuard was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Lockey Stuard, widow of William R. Stuard, late of Company D, First Regiment North Carolina Volunteers, war with Mexico, and to pay her a pension of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EPSY ANN AUSTIN.

The bill (H. R. 1283) granting an increase of pension to Epsy Ann Austin was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Epsy Ann Austin, widow of John A. Austin, late of Captain Coleman's company, Alabama Volunteers, Creek Indian war, and to pay her a pension of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ELISHA WHITE.

The bill (H. R. 2169) granting an increase of pension to Elisha White was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Elisha White, late of Company F, One hundred and twenty-ninth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM ELMES.

The bill (H. R. 2291) granting an increase of pension to William Elmes was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of William Elmes, late of Company F, One hundred and seventy-eighth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and Company I, Second Regiment Pennsylvania Provisional Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ALGERNON LIGHTCAP.

The bill (H. R. 2289) granting an increase of pension to Algernon Lightcap was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Algernon Lightcap, late of Company E, Ninety-fifth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARY K. LEWIS.

The bill (H. R. 1280) granting a pension to Mary K. Lewis was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Mary K. Lewis, widow of Green B. Lewis, late of Captain Dennard's company, First Regiment Georgia Mounted Volunteers, Creek Indian War, and to pay her a pension of $8 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JONATHAN C. S. TWITCHELL.

The bill (H. R. 3678) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan C. S. Twitchell was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Jonathan C. S. Twitchell, late of Company B, and captain Company H, Fifth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JAMES G. DOANE.

The bill (S. 1835) granting an increase of pension to James G. Doane was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, before the word "dollars" to strike out "forty" and insert "twenty-four;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James G. Doane, late of Company A, Eighth Regiment Kansas Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ELIZABETH S. LAW.

The bill (S. 620) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth S. Law was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, before the word "dollars" to strike out "twenty" and insert "twelve;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Elizabeth S. Law, widow of Thomas W. Law, late of Company H, Sixth Regiment West Virginia Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PROPOSED ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY.

Mr. ALDRICH. I move that when the Senate adjourns today it adjourn to meet on Monday next.

The motion was agreed to.

Mr. ALLISON subsequently moved to reconsider the vote by which the Senate ordered an adjournment until Monday next; and the motion to reconsider was agreed to.

HUGH P. BUFFON.

The bill (S. 640) granting an increase of pension to Hugh P. Buffon was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "twenty-five" and insert "twenty-four;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Hugh P. Buffon, late of Company K, Fifty-fourth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARTHA J. BRISCO.

The bill (S. 3667) granting an increase of pension to Martha J. Brisco was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 6, after the word "late," to strike out the letter "a;" in line 7, before the words "United States," to strike out "in the;" and in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "twenty-five" and insert "twenty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Martha J. Brisco, widow of John A. Brisco, late boatswain, United States Navy, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DRAINAGE OF LANDS IN NORTH DAKOTA.

The bill (S. 3687) providing for the segregation of $1,000,000 from the reclamation fund created by the act of June 17, 1902, and for other purposes, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Irrigation with an amendment, to strike out all after the enacting clause and to insert:

That $1,000,000 of the moneys hereafter arising from the sale of public lands in the State of North Dakota, and which, under the act of June 17, 1902, would otherwise become a part of the reclamation fund, may be used for the purpose of constructing a suitable and comprehensive system of drainage of lands in the counties of Pembina, Walsh, Grand Forks, Traill, Cass, and Richland, in the said State of North Dakota, under the supervision of the Secretary of Agriculture: Provided, That all the expense of such construction, including salaries and the maintenance of works for a period not exceeding ten years, shall be assessed against the lands proposed to be drained in proportion to benefits, said assessments to be levied and the moneys to be paid in not to exceed ten annual installments, under such laws and regulations duly enacted by the legislature of said State of North Dakota as in the judgment of the President of the United States shall be adequate to insure the repayment to the United States of all moneys expended under the terms of this act: Provided further, That all moneys derived from such assessments shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States by the said State of North Dakota, and when so paid shall be covered into the reclamation fund to be used under the provisions of said act of June 17, 1902: And provided further, That any moneys paid in by said State of North Dakota in excess of the total amount paid out by the United States when the said works are completed, including the maintenance of the works, shall be returned to the said State of North Dakota.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill providing for the use of $1,000,000 of the moneys that would otherwise become a part of the reclamation fund for the drainage of certain lands in North Dakota, and for other purposes."

SCHOOLS AND ROADS IN ALASKA.

The bill (S. 3522) to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for the construction and maintenance of roads, the establishment and maintenance of schools, and the care and support of insane persons in the district of Alaska, and for other purposes," approved January 27, 1905, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THE MERCHANT MARINE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair lays before the Senate the unfinished business, which will be stated.

The SECRETARY. A bill (S. 529) to promote the national defense, to create a force of naval volunteers, to establish American ocean mail lines to foreign markets, to promote commerce, and to provide revenue from tonnage.

Mr. GALLINGER. I understand that certain Senators very much desire an early executive session, but as many Senators are now at their luncheon, I ask unanimous consent that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside for the period of thirty minutes.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. MALLORY. Before that is done, I desire to offer an amendment to the pending bill. I ask that it be read and printed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Florida offers a proposed amendment to the pending bill, which will be read, printed, and lie on the table.

The amendment was read, ordered to lie on the table, and to be printed, as follows:

Strike out all of paragraph "Fifth," on page 13, beginning at and including the word "Fifth," in line 3, down to and including the word "year," in line 7, on said page, and insert the following in lieu thereof, viz:

"Fifth. From a port of the United States on the Atlantic coast south of Cape Hatteras, and from a port on the Gulf of Mexico to Cuba, on steamships of the United States of not less than 14 knots speed for a weekly service, at a maximum compensation not exceeding $75,000 a year, or for a semiweekly service, at a maximum compensation not exceeding $125,000 a year."

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Calendar will be proceeded with.

JAMES C. BABER.

The bill (S. 3309) granting an increase of pension to James C. Baber was announced as next in order on the Calendar, and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of John C. Baber, late of Company K, Fifteenth Regiment Missouri Volunteer Cavalry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ROBERT S. MOORE.

The bill (S. 2752) granting an increase of pension to Robert S. Moore was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "fifty" and insert "thirty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Robert S. Moore, late colonel Eighty-fifth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN WHITE.

The bill (S. 590) granting a pension to John White was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 6, after the word "of," where it occurs the second time, to strike out "Company" and insert "Troop;" and in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "fifty" and insert "twelve;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John White, late of Troop M, Ninth Regiment United States Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM R. P. FOALE.

The bill (H. R. 1974) granting an increase of pension to William R. P. Foale was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of William R. P. Foale, late of Company D, Sixteenth Regiment Connecticut Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, reading the third time, and passed.

SARAH E. MACGOWAN.

The bill (H. R. 11324) granting an increase of pension to Sarah E. MacGowan was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "twenty-five" and insert "thirty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Sarah E. MacGowan, widow of Alexander B. MacGowan, late captain, Twelfth Regiment United States Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

MICHAEL WREN.

The bill (H. R. 7420) granting an increase of pension to Michael Wren was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Michael Wren, late of Company G, Third Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Cavalry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FRITZ MULLER.

The bill (H. R. 7418) granting an increase of pension to Fritz Muller was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Fritz Muller, late of Company E, Second Regiment Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $60 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EDWARD J. MILLS.

The bill (H. R. 6192) granting an increase of pension to Edward J. Mills was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Edward J. Mills, late of Company H, Two hundred and first Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FRANCIS CAREY.

The bill (H. R. 5016) granting an increase of pension to Francis Carey was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Francis Carey, late of Company L, Fiftieth Regiment New York Volunteer Engineers, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EDWIN R. GOODELL.

The bill (H. R. 5015) granting an increase of pension to Edwin R. Goodell was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Edwin R. Goodell, late of Company I, First Regiment New York Veteran Volunteer Cavalry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN W. ROACHE.

The bill (H. R. 4879) granting an increase of pension to John W. Roache was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of John W. Roache, late of Company E, Eighth Regiment United States Infantry, Florida Indian war, and to pay him a pension of $16 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ANNIE ROHR.

The bill (H. R. 4607) granting a pension to Annie Rohr was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Annie Rohr, former widow of Frederick A. H. Gaebel, late first lieutenant, Forty-fifth Regiment, United States Infantry, and to pay her a pension of $17 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ELIZA ORR.

The bill (S. 3587) granting an increase of pension to Eliza Orr was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "twenty-four" and insert "twenty," and in line 9, after the word "receiving," to insert the following proviso:

Provided, That in the event of the death of Ida Orr, helpless and dependent child of said David Orr, the additional pension herein granted shall cease and determine: And provided further, That in the event of the death of Eliza Orr the name of the said Ida Orr shall be placed on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, at the rate of $12 per month from and after the date of death of said Eliza Orr.

So as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Eliza Orr, widow of David Orr, late of Company I, Forty-eighth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving: Provided, That in the event of death, etc.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ISAAC VAN VOLKENBURGH.

The bill (S. 3507) granting an increase of pension to Isaac Van Valkenburg was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 6, before the word "late," to strike out "Valkenburg" and insert "Volkenburgh; in line 8, before the word "Heavy," to insert "Volunteer;" and in line 9, before the word "dollars," to insert "thirty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Isaac Van Volkenburgh, late of Company E, Thirteenth Regiment, and Company K, Sixth Regiment, New York Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Isaac Van Volkenburgh."

MATTHEW D. RAKER, JR.

The bill (S. 3291) granting an increase of pension to Mathew D. Raker was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Matthew D. Raker, jr., late of Captains Burney and Mews's companies, Florida Militia, Seminole Indian war, and pay him a pension at the rate of $16 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Matthew D. Raker, jr."

FRANCIS W. USHER.

The bill (S. 1298) granting an increase of pension to Francis W. Usher was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Francis W. Usher, late first lieutenant Company B, Thirty-fourth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and landsman, U. S. S. Ohio and Connecticut, United States Navy, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM O. COLSON.

The bill (S. 1731) granting an increase of pension to William O. Colson was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William O. Colson, late of Capt. A. D. Johnston's company, Florida Mounted Volunteers, Seminole Indian war, and pay him a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH B. PAPY.

The bill (S. 1744) granting an increase of pension to Joseph B. Papy was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Joseph B. Papy, late of Captain Mickler's company, Florida Volunteer Mounted Infantry, Seminole Indian war, and pay him a pension at the rate of $15 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FISH-CULTURAL STATION AT FARGO, N. DAK.

The bill (S. 132) to establish a fish-culture station at the city of Fargo, in the State of North Dakota, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to appropriate $25,000 for the establishment of a fish-culture station at the city of Fargo, in the State of North Dakota, including purchase of site, construction of buildings and ponds, and equipment, at some suitable point to be selected by the Secretary of Commerce and Labor.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PROTECTION OF SALMON FISHERIES OF ALASKA.

The bill (S. 967) to amend section 2 of an act entitled "An act to amend an act entitled 'An act to provide for the protection of the salmon fisheries of Alaska,'" approved June 9, 1896, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to amend section 2 of the act so as to read:

SEC. 2. That it shall be unlawful to fish, catch, or kill any salmon of any variety, except with rod or spear, above the tide waters of any of the creeks or rivers of less than 500 feet width in the Territory of Alaska, except only for purposes of propagation, or to lay or set any drift net, set net, trap, pound net, or seine for any purpose across the tide waters of any river or stream for a distance of more than one-third of the width of such river, stream, or channel, or lay or set any seine or net within 100 yards of any other net or seine which is being laid or set in said stream or channel, or to take, kill, or fish for salmon in any manner or by any means in any of the waters of the Territory of Alaska, either in the streams or tide waters, except Cook Inlet, Prince William Sound, Bering Sea, and the waters tributary thereto, from midnight on Saturday of each week until midnight of the Sunday following; or to fish for or catch or kill in any manner or by any appliance, except by rod or spear, any salmon in any stream of less than 100 yards in width in the said Territory of Alaska between the hours of 6 o'clock in the evening and 6 o'clock in the morning of the following day of each and every day of the week.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DAM AT GRAND DETOUR, ILL.

Mr. HOPKINS. I desire to take from the Calendar, out of its order, the bill (H. R. 8442) permitting the building of a dam across the Rock River at Grand Detour, Ill., and I ask for its present consideration.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill will be read for the information of the Senate.

The Secretary read the bill; and there being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JONATHAN TERRELL.

The bill (H. R. 6228) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan Terrell was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Jonathan Terrell, late of Company F, First Regiment North Carolina Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and to pay him a pension of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ROBERT M. WHITSON.

The bill (H. R. 10765) granting an increase of pension to Robert M. Whitson was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Robert M. Whitson, late of Company A, First Regiment Tennessee Volunteers, war with Mexico, and to pay him a pension of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

LYDIA B. JACKSON.

The bill (H. R. 2113) granting an increase of pension to Lydia B. Jackson was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Lydia B. Jackson, widow of Barzillia N. Jackson, late of Company F, First Regiment North Carolina Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and to pay her a pension of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CHRISTOPHER PLETZKE.

The bill (H. R. 4224) granting an increase of pension to Christopher Pletzke was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Christopher Pletzke, late of Company B, Eighth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

NATHANIEL COOPER.

The bill (H. R. 4225) granting an increase of pension to Nathaniel Cooper was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Nathaniel Cooper, late of Company E, Sixth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EMMA M. BOYER.

The bill (H. R. 4727) granting a pension to Emma M. Boyer was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Emma M. Boyer, widow of Paul K. Boyer, late of Company I, Fourth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, war with Spain, and to pay her a pension of $12 per month, and $2 per month additional on account of each of the minor children of said Paul K. Boyer until they reach the age of 16 years.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MESHACK L. JONES.

The bill (H. R. 4730) granting an increase of pension to Meshack L. Jones was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Meshack L. Jones, late of Company F, Seventh Regiment Illinois Volunteer Cavalry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JAMES SCROGUM.

The bill (H. R. 4732) granting an increase of pension to James Scrogum was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of James Scrogum, late of Company C, Sixth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN A. ENSMINGER.

The bill (H. R. 10436) granting an increase of pension to John A. Ensminger was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of John A. Ensminger, late second lieutenant Company C, One hundred and twenty-eighth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS E. MORROW.

The bill (H. R. 4827) granting an increase of pension to Thomas E. Morrow was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Thomas E. Morrow, late of Company F, Eleventh Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

NANCY STILLWELL.

The bill (H. R. 4964) granting an increase of pension to Nancy Stillwell was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Nancy Stillwell, widow of George W. Stillwell, late of Company F, Thirty-third Regiment, and Company E, Thirty-fourth Regiment, Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and to pay her a pension of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SAMUEL A. SHAW.

The bill (H. R. 6448) granting an increase of pension to Samuel A. Shaw was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Samuel A. Shaw, late of Company C, Second Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN BOKART.

The bill (H. R. 4884) granting an increase of pension to John Bokart was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of John Bokart, late of Company A, Tenth Regiment Vermont Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

TRAVIS W. TICHENOR.

The bill (H. R. 5254) granting an increase of pension to Travis W. Tichenor was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Travis W. Tichenor, late Company L, Thirteenth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Cavalry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ADAM WUCHER.

The bill (H. R. 6451) granting an increase of pension to Adam Wucher was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Adam Wucher, late of Company D, Thirteenth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ELIJAH SPANGLER.

The bill (H. R. 1059) granting an increase of pension to Elijah Spangler was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Elijah Spangler, late of Company C, Ninety-third Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN BREDEN.

The bill (H. R. 1213) granting an increase of pension to John Breden was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of John Breden, late of Company K, Thirty-eighth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS MAGINLEY.

The bill (H. R. 2084) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Maginley was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Thomas Maginley, late of Company B, Tenth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry; Company H, Thirty-seventh Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and One hundred and fifth company, Second Battalion Veteran Reserve Corps, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS A. SLACK.

The bill (H. R. 2083) granting an increase of pension to Thomas A. Slack was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Thomas A. Slack, late captain Company C, Twenty-ninth Regiment New Jersey Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

HENRY B. JORDAN.

The bill (H. R. 8222) granting an increase of pension to Henry B. Jordan was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Henry B. Jordan, late of Company E, Thirtieth Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

MARION H. LONG.

The bill (H. R. 11596) granting a pension to Marion H. Long was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Marion H. Long, widow of John C. Long, late first lieutenant and adjutant, One hundred and forty-seventh Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and to pay her a pension of $17 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ANGIE A. MARVIN.

The bill (H. R. 2811) granting a pension to Angie A. Marvin was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Angie A. Marvin, widow of Mathew Marvin, late of Company K, First Regiment Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, and to pay her a pension of $12 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EDWARD MAXWELL.

The bill (H. R. 1201) granting an increase of pension to Edward Maxwell was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 6, after the word "late," to strike out "of" and insert "second lieutenant;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Edward Maxwell, late second lieutenant Company C, Fifty-ninth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

OSCAR WILLIAMSON.

The bill (H. R. 5597) granting an increase of pension to Oscar Williamson was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "twenty-four" and insert "thirty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Oscar Williamson, late of Company C, Ninety-third Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

CASWELL D. FERGUSON.

The bill (H. R. 1057) granting an increase of pension to Caswell D. Ferguson was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "twenty-four" and insert "thirty;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Caswell D. Ferguson, late of Second Battery, Iowa Volunteer Light Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed, and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

HENRY PHILIPPS SEED AND IMPLEMENT COMPANY.

The bill (S. 1236) to authorize payment to the Henry Philipps Seed and Implement Company for seed furnished to, and accepted by, the Department of Agriculture during the fiscal year 1902, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It directs the Secretary of the Treasury to pay to the Henry Philipps Seed and Implement Company, of Toledo, Ohio, for seeds furnished to the Department of Agriculture during the fiscal year 1902, accepted by the Department, and distributed by order of the Secretary of Agriculture, $3,633.11.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DAVID R. PRINGLE.

The bill (H. R. 5170) granting an increase of pension to David R. Pringle was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of David R. Pringle, late of Company E, Second Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE SARGENT.

The bill (H. R. 1131) granting an increase of pension to George Sargent was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of George Sargent, late of Company D, One hundred and ninety-fifth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM D. STAUFFER.

The bill (H. R. 1136) granting an increase of pension to William D. Stauffer was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of William D. Stauffer, late of Company H, One hundred and ninety-fifth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BENJAMIN FAGLEY.

The bill (H. R. 1382) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin Fagley was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Benjamin Fagley, late of Company E, One hundred and thirty-first Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EMMA ALDRED.

The bill (H. R. 11310) granting a pension to Emma Aldred was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Emma Aldred, widow of James Aldred, late of Company B, Fourth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and to pay her a pension of $12 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN FISHER.

The bill (H. R. 1072) granting an increase of pension to John Fisher was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of John Fisher, late of Company A, First Regiment Pennsylvania Reserve Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

IDA L. AND CLARA E. WINTERS.

The bill (H. R. 1958) granting a pension to Ida L. and Clara E. Winters was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the names of Ida L. and Clara E. Winters, helpless and dependent children of James Winters, late of Company G, Two hundredth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and to pay them each a pension of $12 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DAVID E. LONGSDORF.

The bill (H. R. 11403) granting an increase of pension to David E. Longsdorf was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of David E. Longsdorf, late first lieutenant and regimental quartermaster One hundred and fifty-eighth Regiment Pennsylvania Drafted Militia, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

GABRIEL SMITH.

The bill (H. R. 4822) granting an increase of pension to Gabriel Smith was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Gabriel Smith, late of Company C, Fourth Regiment United States Artillery, war with Mexico, and to pay him a pension of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SARAH A. J. TAYMAN.

The bill (H. R. 8217) granting an increase of pension to Sarah A. J. Tayman was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Sarah A. J. Tayman, widow of Jacob Tayman, alias Jacob Tarman, late of Captain Trysinger's company, Pennsylvania Militia, war of 1812, and to pay her a pension of $16 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SAMUEL C. LONG.

The bill (H. R. 10299) granting an increase of pension to Samuel C. Long was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Samuel C. Long, late of Company F, Twenty-second Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry, and Company G, Third Regiment Pennsylvania Provisional Volunteer Cavalry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JAMES GRAHAM.

The bill (H. R. 10296) granting an increase of pension to James Graham was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of James Graham, late of Light Battery, Mississippi Marine Brigade, and Company E, First Regiment Missouri Volunteer Light Artillery, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

BENJAMIN F. MARSH.

The bill (S. 176) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Marsh was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Benjamin F. Marsh, late of Company B, First Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Cavalry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE P. HOWE.

The bill (S. 186) granting an increase of pension to George P. Howe was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of George P. Howe, late of Company D, Twelfth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

STEPHEN B. TARLTON.

The bill (S. 3126) granting an increase of pension to Stephen B. Tarlton was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Stephen B. Tarlton, late of Company K, Thirteenth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CUTLER A. CHAMBERLIN.

The bill (S. 2482) granting an increase of pension to Cutler A. Chamberlin was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Cutler A. Chamberlin, late of Company K, Third Regiment Vermont Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

NAPOLEON D. O. LORD.

The bill (H. R. 5808) granting an increase of pension to Napoleon D. O. Lord was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Napoleon D. O. Lord, late of Company K, Fourteenth Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JENNIE L. OVERTON.

The bill (H. R. 5955) granting an increase of pension to Jennie L. Overton was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Jennie L. Overton, widow of Clough Overton, late captain, Fifteenth Regiment United States Cavalry, and to pay her a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE E. ROSS.

The bill (H. R. 530) granting an increase of pension to George E. Ross was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of George E. Ross, late of Company E, Seventeenth Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM JOHN STEWART, ALIAS JOHN SCOTT.

The bill (H. R. 4391) granting an increase of pension to William John Stewart, alias John Scott, was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of William John Stewart, alias John Scott, late of Company K, Twentieth Regiment Connecticut Volunteer Infantry, and Company K, Fifth Regiment Connecticut Veteran Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EMMA AUGER.

The bill (H. R. 2795) granting a pension to Emma Auger was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Emma Auger, dependent mother of Hector Auger, late ship's cook, third class, United States ship Dixie, United States Navy, and to pay her a pension of $12 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS M'CABE.

The bill (H. R. 2771) granting an increase of pension to Thomas McCabe was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Thomas McCabe, late of Company G, Seventh Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ANSON K. CARR.

The bill (H. R. 3400) granting an increase of pension to Anson K. Carr was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Anson K. Carr, late of Company F, Ninth Regiment Vermont Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ALBERT SMITH.

The bill (S. 3605) granting an increase of pension to Albert Smith was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Albert Smith, late of United States ship Lodona, United States Navy, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CHARLES H. TUCK.

The bill (S. 717) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Tuck was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty-four;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Charles H. Tuck, late of Company F, Seventeenth Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

CHARLES LANDER.

The bill (S. 853) granting an increase of pension to Charles Lander was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty-four;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc.; That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Charles Lander, late of Company B, Fifth Regiment Vermont Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM M. HALL.

The bill (S. 8) granting an increase of pension to William M. Hall was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty-four;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William M. Hall, late of Company K, Tenth Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

INDIANA A. PAUL.

The bill (S. 1538) granting a pension to Indiana A. Paul was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 10, after the word "month," to insert "in lieu of that she is now receiving;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Indiana A. Paul, widow of Edward A. Paul, late captain Company F, First Regiment Massachusetts Volunteers, war with Mexico, and captain and volunteer aid-de-camp on staff of General Kilpatrick, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Indiana A. Paul."

MARY E. WOLF.

The bill (S. 789) granting a pension to Mary E. Wolf was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 8, after the word "month," to insert "in lieu of that she is now receiving;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary E. Wolf, widow of Henry Wolf, late of Company E, Eighteenth Regiment Connecticut Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Mary E. Wolf."

WILLIAM W. GAUTHIER.

The bill (S. 854) granting a pension to W. W. Gauthier was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with amendments, in line 6, after the word "of," to strike out the letter "W." and insert the name "William;" and in line 8, before the word "dollars," to strike out "thirty" and insert "twelve;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William W. Gauthier, late of United States Marine Corps, and pay him a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting a pension to William W. Gauthier."

ALBERT LATHROP.

The bill (H. R. 3605) granting an increase of pension to Albert Lathrop was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Albert Lathrop, late of Company L, Twenty-fourth Regiment New York Volunteer Cavalry, and Company L, First Regiment New York Provisional Volunteer Cavalry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ELI BRAZELTON.

The bill (H. R. 6144) granting an increase of pension to Eli Brazelton was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Eli Brazelton, late of Company B, Thirtieth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JAMES EIFFERT.

The bill (H. R. 6143) granting an increase of pension to James Eiffert was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of James Eiffert, late of Captain Powell's company, Tennessee Volunteers, Cherokee Indian disturbances, and to pay him a pension of $16 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE J. WILCOX.

The bill (H. R. 5644) granting an increase of pension to George J. Wilcox was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of George J. Wilcox, late of Company I, Thirty-seventh Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $36 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JONATHAN J. BOYER.

The bill (H. R. 6157) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan J. Boyer was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Jonathan J. Boyer, late of Company F, Eleventh Regiment Illinois Volunteer Cavalry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

RICHARD M'CARTHY.

The bill (H. R. 6338) granting an increase of pension to Richard McCarthy was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Richard McCarthy, late of Company D, Eighty-sixth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SAMUEL J. JONES.

The bill (H. R. 6227) granting an increase of pension to Samuel J. Jones was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Samuel J. Jones, late of Fourth Battery Wisconsin Volunteer Light Artillery, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ROBERT PURCELL.

The bill (H. R. 1884) granting an increase of pension to Robert Purcell was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Robert Purcell, late of Company K, Fourteenth Regiment New York Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

FLORENCE D. RAFFERTY.

The bill (H. R. 1545) granting a pension to Florence D. Rafferty was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Florence D. Rafferty, widow of Malcolm A. Rafferty, late captain of Company F, Seventy-first Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, war with Spain, and to pay her a pension of $20 per month and $2 per month additional on account of the minor child of said Malcolm A. Rafferty until he reaches the age of 16 years.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

AXEL A. M. NATT OCH DAG.

The bill (H. R. 1952) granting an increase of pension to Axel A. M. Natt och Dag was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Axel A. M. Natt och Dag, late of Company C, Fifteenth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SAMUEL F. KING.

The bill (H. R. 10434) granting an increase of pension to Samuel F. King was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Samuel F. King, late of Company C, Third Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and to pay him a pension of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

THE MERCHANT MARINE.

Mr. GALLINGER. I now ask that the regular order, which is the unfinished business, may be laid before the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. At the request of the Senator from New Hampshire, the Chair lays before the Senate the unfinished business, the title of which will be stated.

The SECRETARY. A bill (S. 529) to promote the national defense, to create a force of naval volunteers, to establish American ocean mail lines to foreign markets, to promote commerce, and to provide revenue from tonnage.

Mr. GALLINGER. I am not informed that any Senator desires to be heard on the bill, and, unless some Senator does desire to speak to it, I will move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. WARREN. Will the Senator withhold his motion for a moment until I can secure the passage of a short bill?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from New Hampshire yield to the Senator from Wyoming?

Mr. GALLINGER. With pleasure.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT RAWLINS, WYO.

Mr. WARREN. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 611) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Rawlins, in the State of Wyoming.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds with an amendment, on page 2, after line 16, to strike out the following:

If, upon consideration of said report and accompanying papers, the Secretary of the Treasury shall deem further investigation necessary, he may appoint a commission of not more than three persons, one of whom shall be an officer of the Treasury Department, which commission shall also examine the said proposed sites, and such others as the Secretary of the Treasury may designate, and grant such hearings in relation thereto as they shall deem necessary; and said commission shall, within thirty days after such examination, make to the Secretary of the Treasury written report of their conclusion in the premises, accompanied by all statements, maps, plats, or documents taken by or submitted to them, in like manner as hereinbefore provided in regard to the proceedings of said agent of the Treasury Department; and the Secretary of the Treasury shall thereupon finally determine the location of the building to be erected.

The compensation of said commissioners shall be fixed by the Secretary of the Treasury, but the same shall not exceed $6 per day and actual traveling expenses: Provided, however, That the member of said commission appointed from the Treasury Department shall be paid only his actual traveling expenses.

So as to make the bill read:

That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to acquire, by purchase, condemnation, or otherwise, a site and cause to be erected thereon a suitable building, including fireproof vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, and approaches, for the use and accommodation of the United States post-office, court, and other Government offices in the city of Rawlins and State of Wyoming, the cost of said site and building, including said vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, and approaches, complete, not to exceed the sum of $100,000.

Proposals for the sale of land suitable for said site shall be invited by public advertisement in one or more of the newspapers of said city of largest circulation for at least twenty days prior to the date specified in the said advertisement for the opening of said proposals.

Proposals made in response to said advertisement shall be addressed and mailed to the Secretary of the Treasury, who shall then cause the said proposed sites, and such others as he may think proper to designate, to be examined in person by an agent of the Treasury Department, who shall make written report to said Secretary of the results of said examination and of his recommendation thereon and the reasons therefor, which shall be accompanied by the original proposals and all maps, plats, and statements which shall have come into his possession relating to the said proposed sites.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ORDER OF BUSINESS.

Mr. McENERY. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 1532) for the relief of the legal representatives of the late firm of Lapène & Ferré.

Mr. WARREN. I ask the Senator from New Hampshire, who gave notice that he would move an executive session, if he will not withhold that motion until we can complete the Calendar, which will include the bill which has just been called up by the Senator from Louisiana [Mr. McENERY]. There are not many bills left, and it will probably not take more than ten minutes to dispose of them.

Mr. GALLINGER. I think, Mr. President, that is a reasonable request, and I will withhold my motion, so that the Senate may proceed with the consideration of the Calendar.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will state the next bill on the Calendar.

DAVID L. DAVIDSON.

The bill (H. R. 5925) granting an increase of pension to David L. Davidson was announced as next in order, and the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to its consideration. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of David L. Davidson, late of Company C, One hundred and sixteenth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN A. COULTER.

The bill (H. R. 724) granting an increase of pension to John A. Coulter was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of John A. Coulter, late second lieutenant Company E, One hundred and forty-fourth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ALANSON B. THOMAS.

The bill (H. R. 10192) granting an increase of pension to Alanson B. Thomas was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Alanson B. Thomas, late of Company C, Third Regiment Illinois Volunteers, war with Mexico, and to pay him a pension of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JOHN H. CASSIDY.

The bill (H. R. 611) granting an increase of pension to John H. Cassidy was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of John H. Cassidy, late of Company B, Third Regiment Rhode Island Volunteer Cavalry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JAMES G. HEAD.

The bill (H. R. 7302) granting an increase of pension to James G. Head was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Pensions with an amendment, in line 4, after the word "roll," to insert "subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James G. Head, late of Company K, Seventh Regiment Illinois Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The amendment was ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

JAMES H. OLIVER.

The bill (S. 1864) for the relief of James H. Oliver, a commander on the retired list of the United States Navy, was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Naval Affairs with amendments, on page 2, line 6, after the word "Navy," to strike out "to take rank at the foot of said grade next after Commander Frank M. Bostwick;" and in line 11, after the word "grade," to insert the following proviso:

Provided further, That the said James H. Oliver shall be carried as additional to the number of the grade to which he may be appointed under this act or at any time thereafter promoted: And provided further.

So as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the President be, and he is hereby, authorized to appoint James H. Oliver, now a commander on the retired list of the United States Navy, to the grade of commander on the active list of the United States Navy: Provided, That the said James H. Oliver shall establish to the satisfaction of the Secretary of the Navy, by examination pursuant to law, his physical, mental, moral, and professional fitness to perform the duties of that grade: Provided further, That said James H. Oliver shall be carried as additional to the number of the grade to which he may be appointed under this act or at any time thereafter promoted: And provided further, That said James H. Oliver shall not by the passage of this act be entitled to back pay of any kind.

The amendments were agreed to.

Mr. DANIEL. Mr. President, this is a somewhat extraordinary bill, it seems to me, and it should be explained to the Senate. It is for a promotion out of the ordinary course of events. I do not know who is the patron of the bill.

Mr. SCOTT. I did not understand the Senator from Virginia.

Mr. GALLINGER. Let the bill go over, Mr. President. The Senator who reported it is absent.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Objection being made, the bill will go over, retaining its place on the Calendar.

INSIGNIA OF THE GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.

The bill (H. R. 58) to prevent the unlawful wearing of the badge or insignia of the Grand Army of the Republic or other soldier organizations was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on the District of Columbia with an amendment, on page 1, line 8, after the word "Veterans," to insert "of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution;" so as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That whoever, in the District of Columbia, not being a member of the Military Order of the Loyal Legion of the United States, of the Grand Army of the Republic, of the Sons of Veterans, of the Woman's Relief Corps, of the Union Veteran's Union, of the Union Veteran Legion, of the United Spanish War Veterans, of the National Society of the Daughters of the American Revolution, and not entitled under the rules of the order to wear the same, willfully wears or uses the insignia, distinctive ribbon, or badge of membership, rosette, or button thereof, or who uses or wears the same to obtain aid or assistance thereby, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $20 or by imprisonment for not more than thirty days, or by both such fine and imprisonment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. MALLORY. I should like to inquire if that bill is limited in its application to the District of Columbia?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill reads "That whoever, in the District of Columbia, not being a member," etc.

Mr. MALLORY. "Whoever, in the District of Columbia?"

Mr. SCOTT. Its application is not limited to the District of Columbia, as I understand.

Mr. GALLINGER. Yes, it is.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill is still before the Senate as in Committee of the Whole and open to amendment.

Mr. SCOTT. Mr. President, it is not the intention, as I understand, to limit the bill to the District of Columbia, but that it shall be general in its application.

Mr. MALLORY. If that is the case, I shall have to object to it.

Mr. SPOONER. Does the Senator from West Virginia think that Congress can prohibit a man from wearing a badge in a State?

Mr. MALLORY. I think the Senator from West Virginia, if he will let the bill go through as it is, will find it to his advantage.

Mr. GALLINGER. Will the Senator yield to me for a moment?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from West Virginia has the floor. Does he yield to the Senator from New Hampshire?

Mr. SCOTT. I yield to the Senator from New Hampshire for just a moment.

Mr. GALLINGER. The bill reads, "That whoever, in the District of Columbia." That is the form in which it passed the House and came to the Committee on the District of Columbia, and I think the Senator had better let it pass in that form.

Mr. SPOONER. It could be amended to include the Territories.

Mr. GALLINGER. We might include the Territories, if we chose, but we could not include the States.

Mr. SCOTT. I will let the bill pass confining it to the District of Columbia, but I think it is an insult to the uniform of the United States that it should be put upon those who are members of musical organizations and those who are members of theatrical troupes who wear the United States uniform for the purpose of personal gain. I am perfectly willing that this bill shall pass in its present form, but I do hope that it will be the pleasure of the Senate of the United States and of the Congress of the United States to pass a bill that will prohibit the wearing of the United States uniform, either that of a private or of a commissioned officer, except by one who is an officer or a private soldier.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill is still before the Senate as in Committee of the Whole and open to amendment.

Mr. SPOONER. Is it a House bill?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It is a House bill.

Mr. SPOONER. Is it regularly before the Senate?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. It is regularly before the Senate on the call of the Calendar.

Mr. SPOONER. I ask that it may go over.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Under objection, the bill will go over, retaining its place on the Calendar.

Mr. SCOTT. Why does the Senator object to the bill?

Mr. SPOONER. I want it to go over in order to help the Senator to broaden it, if it can be done.

Mr. SCOTT. I thank the Senator.

FISHING IN ALASKAN WATERS.

The bill (S. 267) to prohibit aliens from taking fish in the waters of the district of Alaska was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported from the Committee on Foreign Relations with an amendment, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That it shall be unlawful for any person not a citizen of the United States, or who has not declared his intention to become a citizen of the United States in the manner provided by law, or any person not a native of Alaska, to catch or kill, or attempt to catch or kill, except with rod or spear, any fish of any kind or species whatsoever, in any of the waters of Alaska, or in any of the waters within the jurisdiction of the United States, within 1 marine league of any of the coasts, bays, creeks, rivers, or harbors of the territory known as Alaska, ceded to the United States by Russia by the treaty of March 31, 1867: Provided, however, That nothing contained in this act shall prevent citizens of the United States or natives of Alaska, or any company or corporation lawfully taking fish in the said waters, from selling the same, fresh or cured, to any alien person, company, or vessel complying with the laws of the United States defining the rights and duties of aliens while in United States waters or territory: And provided further, That nothing contained in this act shall prevent American citizens from employing alien labor, either at a stated wage or by piecework, in connection with Alaskan fisheries.

SEC. 2. That every person guilty of a violation of the provisions of this act, or of any regulations made thereunder, shall, for each offense, be fined not less than $100 nor more than $500, which fine shall be a lien against the vessel on which the offense was committed. And every vessel used or employed in violation of this act, or the regulations made thereunder, shall be liable to a fine of not less than $100 or more than $500, and may be seized and proceeded against by way of libel in any court having jurisdiction of the offense.

SEC. 3. That any violation of the provisions of this act, or of any regulation made thereunder, may be prosecuted in any district court of Alaska or in any district court of the United States in California, Oregon, or Washington.

SEC. 4. That the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall have power to authorize any officer of the Navy or of the Revenue-Cutter Service, or any agent of the Department of Commerce and Labor or officer of the District of Alaska, to search and seize any foreign vessel and arrest any person violating the provisions of this act or the regulations made thereunder. If any foreign vessel shall be found within the waters to which this act applies, having on board fresh or cured fish and apparatus or implements suitable for killing or taking fish, it shall be presumed that the vessel and apparatus were used in violation of this act until it is otherwise sufficiently proved. And every vessel, its tackle, apparatus, or implements so seized shall be given into the custody of the United States marshal of either of the districts mentioned in section 3 of this act, and shall be held by him subject to the proceedings provided for in section 2 of this act. The facts in connection with such seizures shall be at once reported to the United States district attorney for the district to which the vessel so seized shall be taken, whose duty it shall be to institute the necessary proceedings.

SEC. 5. That the Secretary of Commerce and Labor shall have power to make rules and regulations not inconsistent with law to carry into effect the provisions of this act, and such rules and regulations shall have the force and effect of law. And it shall be the duty of the Secretary of Commerce and Labor to enforce the provisions of this act and the rules and regulations made thereunder, and for that purpose he may employ, through the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of the Navy, the vessels of the United States Revenue-Cutter Service and of the Navy: Provided, however, That nothing contained in this act shall be construed as affecting any existing treaty or convention between the United States and any foreign power.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill to prohibit aliens from fishing in the waters of Alaska."

LEGAL REPRESENTATIVES OF LAPÉNE & FERRÉ.

The bill (S. 1532) for the relief of the legal representatives of the late firm of Lapéne & Ferré was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill had been reported from the Committee on Claims with an amendment, to insert at the end of the bill the following additional proviso:

Provided further, That any judgment recovered pursuant to this act shall only be paid out of the funds derived from the sale of cotton under the act of March 12, 1863, known as "the captured and abandoned property act."

So as to make the bill read:

Be it enacted, etc., That the legal representatives of Jules Lapène, late of New Orleans, La., deceased, and the legal representatives of Auguste Ferré, late of Pau, France, deceased, formerly partners in trade engaged in a general mercantile business in said city of New Orleans and State of Louisiana, under the firm name of Lapène & Ferré, be, and they are hereby, authorized and empowered to bring suit in the Court of Claims against the Government of the United States for the net proceeds of the sale by the agents of the United States, of 179 bales of cotton, now in the Treasury of the United States, claimed to be the property of said firm of Lapène & Ferré; and jurisdiction is hereby conferred on said Court of Claims to hear and determine said suit in the same manner and under the same rules of procedure as if the said suit now authorized had been originally commenced in said court under the provisions of the act of March 12, 1863, and amendments thereto, within the period of limitation provided in said act, the bar of the statute of limitations and the bar of any previous adjudication of said claim being hereby expressly removed, and to enter final judgment in said cause, subject to the right of appeal by either party to the Supreme Court of the United States; and the evidence heretofore taken and used by either party in the Court of Claims shall in a certain cause and proceeding heretofore brought and heard in said court by the said firm of Lapène & Ferré for the determination and allowance of the claim hereinbefore specified, under the provisions of the said act of 1863 and amendments thereto, be competent in this suit and considered with such other evidence as either party may introduce: Provided, That the suit hereby authorized shall be commenced by petition filed in said Court of Claims within six months from the passage of this act, and the Government shall, upon notice served according to the rules and practice of said court, appear and defend against said suit: Provided further, etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. SPOONER. Is there a report accompanying the bill?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Chair is informed there is a report, but that it has not yet come from the Government Printing Office.

Mr. SPOONER. I have no objection to the passage of the bill, if I may enter a motion to reconsider and examine into it a little.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator will have that right.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

Mr. SPOONER subsequently said: I enter a motion to reconsider the votes by which Senate bill 1532 was ordered to a third reading and passed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The motion to reconsider will be entered.

PROPOSED EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. ALDRICH. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. McCUMBER. I ask the Senator from Rhode Island to withhold that motion for five minutes. There are only a few more bills on the Calendar.

Mr. MORGAN. Only a few.

Mr. ALDRICH. Are they all pension bills?

Mr. McCUMBER. All but one.

Mr. ALDRICH. I withdraw the motion.

DECORATION OF PROF. SIMON NEWCOMB.

The bill (S. 4198) granting permission to Prof. Simon Newcomb, United States Navy, retired, to accept the decoration of the order "Pour le Mérite, für Wissenschaften und Kunste," was considered as in Committee of the Whole.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

Mr. SPOONER subsequently said: I enter a motion to reconsider the votes by which Senate bill 4198 was ordered to a third reading and passed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The motion to reconsider will be entered.

DARIUS J. BROWN.

The bill (H. R. 1437) granting an increase of pension to Darius J. Brown was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Darius J. Brown, late of Company E, One hundred and twenty-third Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

ANTOINETTE HANNAHS.

The bill (H. R. 2345) granting an increase of pension to Antoinette Hannahs was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Antoinette Hannahs, widow of Franklin Hannahs, late captain Company C, Eighty-first Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and to pay her a pension of $30 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

DAVID A. CARPENTER.

The bill (H. R. 4666) granting an increase of pension to David A. Carpenter was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of David A. Carpenter, late of U. S. S. Sunflower and North Carolina, United States Navy, and Company E, First Regiment Rhode Island Volunteer Light Artillery, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SAMUEL B. SPINNING.

The bill (H. R. 1554) granting an increase of pension to Samuel B. Spinning was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Samuel B. Spinning, late of Second Battery, Connecticut Volunteer Light Artillery, and to pay him a pension of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

WINIFRED E. LEWIS.

The bill (H. R. 2342) granting a pension to Winifred E. Lewis was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Winifred E. Lewis, late nurse, Medical Department, United States Army, and to pay her a pension of $12 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EVELYN S. BEARDSLEE.

The bill (H. R. 2340) granting an increase of pension to Evelyn S. Beardslee was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Evelyn S. Beardslee, widow of Lester A. Beardslee, late rear-admiral, United States Navy, and to pay her a pension of $30 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

SARAH J. DICKENS.

The bill (H. R. 4644) granting an increase of pension to Sarah J. Dickens was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Sarah J. Dickens, widow of Ira S. Dickens, late of Company E, Second Regiment Rhode Island Volunteer Infantry, and to pay her a pension of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving, and $2 per month additional on account of the minor child of Ira S. Dickens until it arrives at the age of 16 years.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

JESSIE MARIE HESTER.

The bill (H. R. 3229) granting a pension to Jessie Marie Hester was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Jessie Marie Hester, widow of William W. Hester, late first lieutenant Company L, Third Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Cavalry, and lieutenant-colonel Forty-eighth Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Infantry, and to pay her a pension of $30 per month.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EMMA H. BENHAM.

The bill (H. R. 8090) granting an increase of pension to Emma H. Benham was considered as in Committee of the Whole. It proposes to place on the pension roll the name of Emma H. Benham, widow of Andrew E. K. Benham, late rear-admiral United States Navy, and to pay her a pension of $50 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT HOUSTON, TEX.

Mr. CULBERSON. I notice that the Calendar has been completed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. This completes the Calendar.

Mr. CULBERSON. I should like to ask for the present consideration of a bill reported this morning. It is the bill (S. 338) making an appropriation for a public building at Houston, Tex.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds with an amendment, to strike out all after the enacting clause and insert:

That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to cause to be erected upon the site already selected and purchased by him in the city of Houston, Tex., a building to be used as and for a post-office building, as a place for holding United States courts, and for other purposes of the Federal Government at the said city of Houston, Tex., which said building shall cost, complete, not to exceed the sum of $500,000.

SEC. 2. That the plans, specifications, and full estimate for said building shall be made and approved according to law before work thereon shall be commenced. Until this is done none of the money so appropriated shall be used.

SEC. 3. That the building shall contain such fireproof vaults as may be necessary to protect from destruction by fire the funds and post-office, court, and other records, and it shall also be provided with proper heating and ventilating apparatus.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendment was concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill providing for the erection of a public building in the city of Houston, Tex."

PUBLIC BUILDING AT DOVER, N. H.

Mr. GALLINGER. I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (S. 35) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Dover, in the State of New Hampshire.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill. It proposes to appropriate $100,000 for the acquisition of a site and the erection thereon of a suitable building for the use of the United States post-office and other Government offices in the city of Dover, N. H.

The bill had been reported from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds with amendments. The first amendment was, on page 2, beginning with line 16, to strike out all of the bill down to and including line 15, on page 4, as follows:

If, upon consideration of said report and accompanying papers, the Secretary of the Treasury shall deem further investigation necessary, he may appoint a commission of not more than three persons, one of whom shall be an officer of the Treasury Department, which commission shall also examine the said proposed sites and such others as the Secretary of the Treasury may designate, and grant such hearings in relation thereto as they shall deem necessary; and said commission shall, within thirty days after such examination, make to the Secretary of the Treasury written report of their conclusion in the premises, accompanied by all statements, maps, plats, or documents taken by or submitted to them, in like manner as hereinbefore provided in regard to the proceedings of said agent of the Treasury Department; and the Secretary of the Treasury shall thereupon finally determine the location of the building to be erected.

The compensation of said commissioners shall be fixed by the Secretary of the Treasury, but the same shall not exceed $6 per day and actual traveling expenses: Provided, however, That the member of said commission appointed from the Treasury Department shall be paid only his actual traveling expenses.

So much of the appropriation herein made as may be necessary to defray the expenses of advertising for proposals, actual traveling expenses of said agent, and the compensation and actual traveling expenses of said commissioners, and other expenses incident to the selection of the site, and for necessary survey thereof shall be immediately available.

So much of said appropriation as may be necessary for the preparation of sketch plans, drawings, specifications, and detailed estimates for the building by the Supervising Architect of the Treasury Department shall be available immediately upon the approval by the Secretary of the Treasury of such site.

No money appropriated by this act shall be available, except as hereinbefore provided, until a valid title to the site for said building shall be vested in the United States, nor until the State of New Hampshire shall have ceded to the United States exclusive jurisdiction over the same, during the time the United States shall be or remain the owner thereof, for all purposes except the administration of the criminal laws of said State and the service of civil process therein.

After the said site shall have been paid for and the sketch plans and detailed estimates for the building shall have been prepared by the Supervising Architect and approved by the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of the Interior, and the Postmaster-General, the balance of said appropriation shall be available for the erection and completion of the building, including fireproof vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, elevators, and approaches.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 4, line 17, to strike out "thirty" and insert "forty;" so as to read:

The building shall be unexposed to danger from fire by an open space of at least 40 feet on each side, including streets and alleys.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC BUILDING AT ALEXANDRIA, MINN.

Mr. NELSON. I ask unanimous consent for the consideration of the bill (S. 961) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Alexandria, in the State of Minnesota.

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill, which had been reported from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds with amendments. The first amendment was, in line 12, page 1, to strike out "fifty" and insert "forty;" so as to read:

That the Secretary of the Treasury be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to acquire, by purchase, condemnation, or otherwise, a site and cause to be erected thereon a suitable building, including fireproof vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, and approaches, for the use and accommodation of the United States post-office and other governmental offices in the village of Alexandria and State of Minnesota, the cost of said site and building, including said vaults, heating and ventilating apparatus, and approaches, not to exceed the sum of $40,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, after line 3, to strike out all of the bill down to and including line 10 on page 3, as follows:

Proposals made in response to said advertisement shall be addressed and mailed to the Secretary of the Treasury, who shall then cause the said proposed sites, and such others as he may think proper to designate, to be examined in person by an agent of the Treasury Department, who shall make written report to said Secretary of the results of said examination and of his recommendation thereon, and the reasons therefor, which shall be accompanied by the original proposals and all maps, plats, and statements which shall have come into his possession relating to the said proposed sites.

If, upon consideration of said report and accompanying papers, the Secretary of the Treasury shall deem further investigation necessary, he may appoint a commission of not more than three persons, one of whom shall be an officer of the Treasury Department, which commission shall also examine the said proposed sites, and such others as the Secretary of the Treasury may designate, and grant such hearings in relation thereto as they shall deem necessary; and said commission shall within thirty days after such examination make to the Secretary of the Treasury written report of their conclusion in the premises, accompanied by all statements, maps, plats, or documents taken by or submitted to them, in like manner as hereinbefore provided in regard to the proceedings of said agent of the Treasury Department; and the Secretary of the Treasury shall thereupon finally determine the location of the building to be erected.

The compensation of said commissioners shall be fixed by the Secretary of the Treasury, but the same shall not exceed $6 per day and actual traveling expenses: Provided, however, That the member of said commission appointed from the Treasury Department shall be paid only his actual traveling expenses.

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. GALLINGER. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After twenty minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 3 o'clock and 22 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Friday, February 9, 1906, at 12 o'clock meridian.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate, February 8, 1906.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS.

Myron H. McCord, of Arizona, to be collector of customs for the district of Arizona, in the Territory of Arizona, to succeed Edwin Baker, removed.

SURVEYOR OF CUSTOMS.

Mahlon M. Garland, of Pennsylvania, to be surveyor of customs for the port of Pittsburg, in the State of Pennsylvania. (Reappointment.)

COLLECTOR OF INTERNAL REVENUE.

Griffith T. Davis, of Pennsylvania, to be collector of internal revenue for the twelfth district of Pennsylvania, to succeed Thomas F. Penman, removed.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate February 8, 1906.

SECRETARY OF LEGATION.

U. Grant Smith, of Pennsylvania, now second secretary of the legation to Turkey, to be third secretary of the embassy of the United States to Great Britain.

REGISTERS OF THE LAND OFFICE.

Luke M. Bates, of Long Pine, Nebr., to be register of the land office at Valentine, Nebr.

Stephen J. Weekes, of Nebraska, to be register of the land office at O'Neill, Nebr.

DISTRICT ATTORNEYS.

Erastus J. Parsons, of Alabama, to be United States attorney for the middle district of Alabama.

RECEIVERS OF PUBLIC MONEYS.

Sanford Parker, of Spencer, Nebr., to be receiver of public moneys at O'Neill, Nebr.

Elof Olson, of Bassett, Nebr., to be receiver of public moneys at Valentine, Nebr.

POSTMASTERS.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Frank N. Donahue to be postmaster at Carrolltown, in the county of Cambria and State of Pennsylvania.

Charles J. McGill to be postmaster at Dawson, in the county of Fayette and State of Pennsylvania.

Joseph S. Paul to be postmaster at South Fork, in the county of Cambria and State of Pennsylvania.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

THURSDAY, February 8, 1906.

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. HENRY N. COUDEN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

MESSAGES FROM THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES.

Sundry messages, in writing, from the President of the United States were communicated to the House of Representatives by Mr. BARNES, one of his secretaries, who also informed the House of Representatives that the President had approved and signed bills of the following titles:

On February 5, 1906:

H. R. 8994. An act to provide for a land district in Yellowstone, Carbon, and Rosebud counties, in the State of Montana, to be known as the Billings land district; and

H. R. 5023. An act granting an increase of pension to Augustus Westfield.

AUTHORIZING THE AMERICAN NATIONAL BANK OF GRAHAM, VA., TO CHANGE ITS LOCATION AND NAME.

Mr. FOWLER. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill S. 2582.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New Jersey asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

An act (S. 2582) to authorize The American National Bank of Graham, Va., to change its location and name.

Be it enacted, etc., That The American National Bank of Graham, now located at Graham, Tazewell County, State of Virginia, is hereby authorized to change its location, or place where its operations of discount and deposit are carried on, to the town of Bluefield, Mercer County, State of West Virginia, and its corporate title to The American National Bank of Bluefield, by and with the consent of the Comptroller of the Currency, whenever the shareholders owning two-thirds of the stock of said bank, at a meeting called for that purpose, determine to make such change: Provided, That there shall be sent to the Comptroller of the Currency a duly authenticated notice of the vote for removal and change of title. The change of location and title, however, shall not be valid until the Comptroller of the Currency shall have issued his certificate of approval.

SEC. 2. That all debts, liabilities, rights, provisions, and powers of said association under its old name shall devolve upon and inure to the said association under its new name.

SEC. 3. That nothing in this act contained shall be so construed as in any manner to release the said bank under its old name or at its old location from any liability, or affect any action or proceeding in law in which said bank may be or become a party or interested.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. KEIFER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to inquire of the gentleman if what is sought to be accomplished by that bill can not be accomplished under the general banking laws of the United States now?

Mr. FOWLER. No, sir.

Mr. KEIFER. Why not?

Mr. HUGHES. If the gentleman will allow me, I will explain why this bill is necessary.

Mr. KEIFER. Certainly.

Mr. HUGHES. The present law does not give this right, for the reason this changes this bank from one State to another. It is now located in Graham, Va., and this bill seeks to change it to Bluefield, W. Va., a distance of only 7 or 8 miles, and that is the necessity for this bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The bill was ordered to be read a third time; was read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. FOWLER, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

CERTAIN LANDS IN OKLAHOMA TERRITORY TO BE OPENED FOR SETTLEMENT.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill H. R. 431. The bill has been before the Speaker for some time.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Texas asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of a bill which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read the title, as follows:

A bill (H. R. 431) to open for settlement 505,000 acres of land in the Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache Indian reservations, in Oklahoma Territory.

The bill was read at length.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to have an explanation of the bill.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, I think this is too important a measure to be taken up at this time under the circumstances, and I will object.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. If the gentleman will permit——

Mr. MANN. At some other time I will be glad to hear the gentleman.

ARMY APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. HULL, from the Committee on Military Affairs, reported the bill (H. R. 14397) making appropriations for the support of the Army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, which was read the first and second time, referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, and, with the accompanying report, ordered to be printed.

Mr. SULZER. Mr. Speaker, I reserve all points of order upon the bill.

REGULATION OF RAILROAD RATES.

Mr. SHERMAN. Mr. Speaker, I demand the regular order.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New York demands the regular order, which is the question upon the passage of the bill H. R. 12987, the title of which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 12987) to amend an act entitled "An act to regulate commerce," approved February 4, 1887, and all acts amendatory thereof, and to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The SPEAKER. Upon the passage of the bill the gentleman from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] demanded the yeas and nays.

The yeas and nays were ordered.

The question was taken; and there were—yeas 346, nays 7, answered "present" 3, not voting 29, as follows:

YEAS—346.

Acheson	Driscoll	Kennedy, Ohio	Reeder
Adams, Pa.	Dunwell	Ketcham	Reid
Adams, Wis.	Dwight	Kinkaid	Reynolds
Adamson	Edwards	Kitchin, Claude	Rhinock
Aiken	Ellerbe	Kitchin, Wm. W.	Rhodes
Alexander	Ellis	Klepper	Richardson, Ala.
Allen, Me.	Esch	Kline	Richardson, Ky.
Allen, N. J.	Fassett	Knapp	Rives
Ames	Field	Knowland	Roby
Andrus	Finley	Lacey	Roberts
Babcock	Fitzgerald	Latimer	Robertson, La.
Bankhead	Fitzk	Lamar	Robinson, Ark.
Barchfeld	Flood	Lamb	Rodenberg
Bartholdt	Floyd	Landis, Chas. B.	Rucker
Bartlett	Ferdney	Landis, Frederick	Ruppert
Bates	Foes	Law	Russell
Beall, Tex.	Foster, Ind.	Lee	Ryan
Bede	Foster, Vt.	Le Fevre	Samuel
Beidler	Fowler	Legare	Schneebell
Bell, Ga.	French	Lester	Scroggy
Bennet, N. Y.	Fulkerson	Lever	Shackleford
Bennett, Ky.	Fuller	Lewis	Shartel
Birdsall	Gaines, Tenn.	Lilley, Conn.	Sheppard
Bishop	Gaines, W. Va.	Lilley, Pa.	Sherman
Blackburn	Garber	Lindsay	Sims
Bonynge	Gardner, Mass.	Littauer	Slayden
Boutell	Gardner, Mich.	Livingston	Slemp
Bowers	Gardner, N. J.	Lloyd	Small
Bradley	Garner	Longworth	Smith, Cal.
Brick	Garrett	Lorimer	Smith, Ill.
Broocks, Tex.	Gilbert, Ind.	Loud	Smith, Iowa
Brooks, Colo.	Gilbert, Ky.	Loudenslager	Smith, Ky.
Brown	Gill	Lovering	Smith, Md.
Brownlow	Gillespie	McCarthy	Smith, Samuel W.
Brundidge	Gillett, Cal.	McCleary, Minn.	Smith, Wm. Alden
Buckman	Glass	McCreary, Pa.	Smith, Pa.
Burgess	Goebel	McGavin	Smith, Tex.
Burke, Pa.	Goldfogle	McKinlay, Cal.	Smyser
Burke, S. Dak.	Goulden	McKinley, Ill.	Snapp
Burleigh	Graff	McKinney	Southard
Burleson	Graham	McLachlan	Sparkman
Burnett	Granger	McLain	Sperry
Burton, Del.	Greene	McMorran	Spight
Burton, Ohio	Gregg	McNary	Stafford
Butler, Pa.	Griggs	Macon	Stanley
Butler, Tenn.	Gronna	Madden	Stevenson
Byrd	Grosvenor	Mahon	Stephens, Tex.
Calder	Hale	Mann	Sterling
Calderhead	Hamilton	Marshall	Stevens, Minn.
Campbell, Kans.	Haskins	Martin	Stilloway
Campbell, Ohio	Haugen	Meyer	Sulzer
Candler	Hay	Michalek	Talbott
Capron	Hayes	Miller	Tawney
Cassel	Hearst	Minor	Taylor, Ala.
Chaney	Hedge	Mondell	Taylor, Ohio
Chapman	Heflin	Moon, Pa.	Thomas, N. C.
Clark, Fla.	Henry, Conn.	Moon, Tenn.	Thomas, Ohio
Clark, Mo.	Henry, Tex.	Moore	Tirrell
Clayton	Hepburn	Morrell	Towne
Cockran	Hermann	Mosser	Townsend
Cocks	Higgins	Mudd	Trimble
Cole	Hill, Conn.	Murdock	Tyndall
Conner	Hill, Miss.	Murphy	Underwood
Cooper, Pa.	Hinshaw	Needham	Van Winkle
Cooper, Wis.	Hogg	Nevin	Volstead
Cousins	Holliday	Norris	Wachter
Cromer	Hopkins	Olcott	Wadsworth
Crumpacker	Houston	Olmsted	Waldo
Currier	Howard	Otjen	Wallace
Curtis	Howell, N. J.	Overstreet	Wanger
Cushman	Howell, Utah	Padgett	Watkins
Dale	Hubbard	Page	Webb
Dalzell	Huff	Parker	Webber
Darragh	Hughes	Parsons	Weems
Davey, La.	Hull	Patterson, N. C.	Weisse
Davidson	Humphrey, Wash.	Patterson, Pa.	Welborn
Davis, Minn.	Humphreys, Miss.	Patterson, S. C.	Wharton
Davis, W. Va.	Hunt	Payne	Wiley, Ala.
Dawes	James	Pearre	Wiley, N. J.
Dawson	Jenkins	Pollard	Williams
Deemer	Johnson	Pou	Wilson
Denby	Jones, Va.	Powers	Wood, N. J.
Dickson, Ill.	Jones, Wash.	Prince	Woodyard
Dixon, Ind.	Kahn	Pujo	Young
Dixon, Mont.	Keifer	Rainey	The Speaker
Dresser	Kelliher	Randell, Tex.
	Kennedy, Nebr.	Ransdell, La.

NAYS—7.

Littlefield	Perkins	Southwick	Weeks
McCall	Sibley	Vreeland

ANSWERED "PRESENT"—3.

Hardwick	Sherley	Sullivan, Mass.

NOT VOTING—29.

Bannon	Draper	Little	Van Duzer
Bingham	Fletcher	McDermott	Watson
Bowersock	Gillett, Mass.	Maynard	Williamson
Bowie	Gudger	Palmer	Wood, Mo.
Brantley	Hitt	Patterson, Tenn.	Zenor
Broussard	Hoar	Scott
Castor	Knopf	Southall
De Armond	Lawrence	Sullivan, N. Y.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will call my name.

The Clerk called the name of the Speaker, and he voted "yea."

So the bill was passed.

The following pairs were announced:

For the rate bill:

Mr. BOWERSOCK with Mr. LITTLE.

For the day:
Mr. HOAR with Mr. MCDERMOTT.
Mr. KNOPF with Mr. MAYNARD.
Mr. FLETCHER with Mr. SULLIVAN of New York.
Mr. BINGHAM with Mr. BRANTLEY.
Mr. BANNON with Mr. SOUTHALL.
Mr. GILLETT of Massachusetts with Mr. BROUSSARD.
Mr. PALMER with Mr. GUDGER.
Mr. HITT with Mr. DE ARMOND.
Mr. LAWRENCE with Mr. ZENOR.
Mr. HOAR with Mr. VAN DUZER.
Until further notice:
Mr. SCOTT with Mr. HARDWICK.
Mr. DRAPER with Mr. BOWIE.
Mr. WATSON with Mr. SHERLEY.

The result of the vote was then announced as above recorded.

[Loud applause.]

On motion of Mr. HEPBURN, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

REPRINT OF BILL.

Mr. RANDELL of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for a reprint of the bill H. R. 13943.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Texas asks unanimous consent for a reprint of the bill H. R. 13943. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

LEAVE TO PRINT.

Mr. BROOKS of Colorado. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to extend remarks in the RECORD on the bill we have just voted on, H. R. 12987, the railroad-rate bill.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Colorado asks unanimous consent for leave to print remarks in the RECORD upon the railroad-rate bill (H. R. 12987). Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

FINAL REPORT OF LOUISIANA PURCHASE EXPOSITION.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, referred to the Select Committee on Industrial Arts and Expositions, and, with accompanying papers, ordered to be printed:

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

I transmit herewith a communication from the Secretary of State submitting the final report of the Louisiana Purchase Exposition Commission, furnished in pursuance of section 11 of the "act to provide for celebrating the one-hundredth anniversary of the purchase of the Louisiana territory," etc., approved March 3, 1901.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, February 8, 1906.

SPECIAL IMMIGRANT INSPECTOR MARCUS BRAUN.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the following message from the President of the United States; which was read, and, with accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, and ordered to be printed:

The House of Representatives:

In response to the resolution of the House of Representatives of January 16, 1906, I transmit herewith a report by the Secretary of State, with accompanying papers, regarding the case of Special Immigrant Inspector Marcus Braun.

THEODORE ROOSEVELT.

THE WHITE HOUSE, February 8, 1906.

PENSION APPROPRIATION BILL.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H. R. 13103) making appropriations for the payment of invalid and other pensions of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, and for other purposes; and pending that motion I ask unanimous consent that general debate be limited to three hours, one hour and a half on a side, one-half to be controlled by the gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. SULLIVAN] and the other half by myself.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Michigan asks unanimous consent that general debate be closed on the pension appropriation bill in three hours, one-half to be controlled by himself and one-half by the gentleman from Massachusetts. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none. The gentleman moves that the House resolve itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill H. R. 13103—the pension appropriation bill.

The question was taken, and the motion was agreed to.

The House accordingly resolved itself into Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, Mr. MADDEN in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The House is in Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill H. R. 13103, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 13103) making appropriations for the payment of invalid and other pensions of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, and for other purposes.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen mous consent that the first reading of the bill be dispensed with.

There was no objection.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Mr. Chairman and gentlemen of the House, in presenting the bill which provides for the largest single annual appropriation from the National Treasury, save only that for the mail service, and for which latter the postal revenues almost wholly provide, it seems proper to say that in no single respect is the appreciation of our countrymen better manifested nor the measure of their gratitude made more apparent than in the ungrudging manner with which year after year they pay the vast sum which this interest entails upon the national resources. The pending bill carries $139,000,000 with which to pay for the ensuing year the claims of almost an even million of pensioners. On the roll are claimants representing every war in our history, from the Revolution to the Philippine insurrection, inclusive. All of these but 53,424 are the heritage of the war for the Union. It is now full forty years since the termination of that war, and it seems an opportune time to forecast, with some degree of accuracy, the probable future drain upon the Treasury of the United States from this and kindred sources. The youngest of the men who served in the Union Army are fast approaching 60 years of age, while the average is believed to be not far from 65. It would seem in the course of nature that in the near future there must inevitably be a rapid decline in the number of civil war pensioners. Twenty years ago it was commonly remarked that forty years after the war there would be but few of the Federal soldiers left and that long before that time there would be a marked decline in the annual appropriation for pensions. As a matter of fact, the average for the last fifteen years, including the deficit for the current year, has been about one hundred and forty millions, and the amount asked for the ensuing year is one hundred and thirty-nine millions.

Forty years after the close of the struggle for national existence we have not only the maximum number of pensioners, but are nearly up to the maximum amount of pension appropriations. This is due in comparatively small part to the more recent war with Spain and to the troubles in China and the Philippine Islands. The civil war was estimated to have cost the nation six thousand millions of dollars. Already $3,222,414,578, or more than one-half of the first cost of the war, has been paid out on account of pensions, and I confidently make the prediction that before death has removed from the rolls the last pensioner on account of the civil war an aggregate will have been paid equal to the entire first cost, in which event, the two combined would total twelve thousand millions of dollars, or three-fourths of the property valuation of the entire country at the beginning of the conflict. I desire to make another prediction, and that is, that twenty years from now, if in the meantime we have no war at home or abroad, there will be on the pension roll of the nation approximately a half million names. I am aware that this is contrary to all preconceived notions, but I think the truth of these two propositions can be shown. We are now removed in time one hundred and twenty-three years from the close of the war of the Revolution, and yet there were on the rolls June 30 last the names of five persons pensioned on account of that war. Granted the same degree of longevity on the part of individuals and the same measure of liberality on the part of the Government, and if we may rely on the same ratio (which is as 1 to 12) of soldiers in the two wars, there will be in the year 1989 sixty civil-war pensioners. In other words, a child that was born on the 30th of last June and lives to be 83 years old will find sixty persons drawing pensions from the Government on account of the war that ended now full forty years ago.

Eighty-one years have passed since our second war with Great Britain terminated. The last participant in that conflict has been but a few months in his grave, while of widows of soldiers who served in that war 776 are now drawing pensions. Granting like conditions and estimating the same per cent of surviving widows, and there will be in 1947, 6,208 persons who will be receiving pensions chargeable to the war of 1861–1865. It is fifty-eight years since the conclusion of our war with Mexico, and there are at this time the names of 4,540 soldiers and 7,653 widows of soldiers who served in that war, making a total of 12,293 pensioners on account of a war that ended ten years before the present President of the United States was born. In the war for the Union there were more than twenty-eight times as many soldiers as in the war with Mexico. Assuming that like conditions as to marriage and longevity will obtain—certainly not an unwarranted assumption—and it follows that in 1924 there will be 346,662 civil war pensioners. At that time twenty-six years will have intervened since the cessation of hostilities in the war with Spain. If the army in that war furnishes the same ratio of pensioners as the Union army in the civil war, there will be 132,414 chargeable to the Spanish-American war, making, from these two sources alone, a total of 479,076. Add to these a reasonable per cent from our enlarged regular establishment and from a constantly increasing Navy, and it is entirely within the probabilities that twenty years from now—that is, in 1931—the nation will have, from the material now on hand and in prospect, without any more wars, nearly, if not quite, 500,000 pensioners.

I trust I shall not be misunderstood either by my comrades or my countrymen when I ask you to stop and consider the possibilities that lie in this direction in the event of other wars, for we can only judge the future by the past. During the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905, the total expenses of the Government, including the deficit in postal revenues, was $567,278,913. During the same time there was expended for pensions $141,773,961—that is, almost exactly one-fourth of every dollar paid by the Government last year was for pensions. In 1867, one year after the close of the war, there was expended for pensions $20,933,551. That same year the interest on the public debt reached its maximum at $143,781,591. That year these two sums equaled $164,715,142. In 1905 the amount from the same sources was $166,364,908. The combined sum paid last year for pensions and for interest on the public debt is but one and one-half million dollars more than in 1867, when interest and principal reached their maximum. In other words, as the public debt has been reduced and the interest charge lessened the appropriations for pensions have increased, so that what may be called the fixed current expenses of the war remain practically the same now as thirty-eight years ago.

One of the first acts of the first Congress under the Constitution was to provide pensions for the soldiers and the sailors who made possible our independence. From that Congress to this the whole tendency of pension legislation has been toward greater liberality. No government on the earth approaches that of the United States in the generosity with which it treats the men who fight its battles.

In proof of this, it may be stated that France, which most nearly approaches our Government in the sum total for pensions, pays but $26,189,800. Germany follows next in order, with an annual expenditure for this purpose of $21,658,000, Austria-Hungary is third, with $10,723,482, and Great Britain is fourth, with $9,856,405. These four great powers, whose soldiers have fought some of the bloodiest battles in modern warfare, pay an aggregate of $68,427,687, which is less than one-half that paid by the United States. It may not be uninteresting, by way of comparison, to mention the fact that the annual cost of maintaining the standing army of Russia, numbering more than a million men, is not as much by over $7,000,000 as our Government paid last year for pensions. France maintains her army of 608,293, on a peace footing, and at the same time pays the largest pension appropriation of any Government in Europe, with less than $10,000,000 more than the United States pays for pensions alone. Germany has in her standing army 605,976 soldiers, and the annual cost of these, together with what she pays for pensions, is less than $17,000,000 more than our Government pays for pensions. The united cost of Great Britain's standing army, the most expensive among foreign governments, and her pensions is but fifteen millions more than our pension bill, while Austria-Hungary maintains a standing army of 409,771 soldiers and pays the third largest pension allowance of any European government with $65,757,350, which is less than half the amount of our pension appropriations.

But, sir, when this has been said, it still remains an indisputable fact, and one which reflects unfading luster on the valor of the American soldier, whether he wore the blue or the gray, that the pension roll of the Union Army represents more hard fighting and more battlefield casualties than all the soldiers in all the armies of Europe since the standards of Napoleon went down at Waterloo.

It is due to the veterans of the civil war, to the Members of this House, and to the country to say that there is a general misapprehension as to the relative amount which the Union soldiers receive as compared with those who served in other wars. The average monthly value of each invalid pension in the Regular Army is $13.86. The average monthly value of each invalid pension in the Mexican war is $12.31. The average monthly value of each invalid pension in all our wars is $12.08. The average monthly value of each invalid pension in the civil war is $12.04. The average monthly value of each invalid pension in the war with Spain is $8.91. The average monthly value of each invalid pension under the law of 1890 is $9.82. The average monthly value of each invalid civil-war pension under the general law is $16.75. Out of the nearly round million pensioners there are but 219,384 enrolled under the general law, while under the act of June 27, 1890, there are 465,224. A large per cent of the latter class served for three years or during the war. Physically speaking, they constituted the very flower of the Federal Army. They were men of such superb constitutions that they largely endured to the end without a hospital record. They fought heroically in many fierce battles and yet were so fortunate as to not receive disabling wounds. They were generally men of this class who marched in the grand review, and the historic Avenue never echoed to the tread of more heroic men. In all her splendid history the nation can point to no equal number of her sons who are to be preferred before these for unselfish patriotism, steadfast devotion, and consummate heroism. They exemplified the loftiest spirit of self-sacrifice, for again and again they counted not their lives dear unto themselves that they might save the life of the nation. These men are receiving at this time an average of but $9.82 per month. This is less on the average than the Spanish war soldiers are receiving, materially less than the average in all our wars, and but about three-fourths of the amount received by the soldiers in the war with Mexico. It is because of the great number rather than the relatively high rating that the civil-war pension budget is so great.

It has been asked how much additional to the present appropriation would be required if all civil-war soldiers now receiving less were brought up to $12 per month. I answer $15,383,094, and if all widows receiving $8 were increased to $12 it would add $8,362,066 more, or together a total increase of $23,709,160, making the appropriation for the ensuing year $163,000,000. As men charged with the responsibility of disposing of the Government's revenues, we may well pause and consider before giving assent to such a proposition at this time.

The whole pension business has grown with that upon which it feeds. In all our history prior to the civil war there were but 1,700 special pension bills enacted into law. Now, more than half that number are passed in a single session of Congress, while the total since 1861 is 13,708. Every such bill which becomes a law is like a fruitful seed cast into good soil, bringing forth an abundant harvest of applicants, until in the first six weeks of this session there were introduced in the two Houses, of private pension bills, a total of 8,905, a number for the same length of time far in excess of any previous Congress. The demand upon Members for the introduction of bills looking to this kind of legislation has become almost constant and irresistable. Again, what may be termed class legislation for specific disabilities has led to a multiplication of measures discriminatory in their nature and often unjust in their operation. Special legislation and class legislation are sources of discontent and unrest among the great body of equally deserving men and women who have not and will not be affected otherwise than injuriously by this species of discrimination.

The pension results of the Spanish-American war illustrate another phase of this subject. That war furnished a total of 312,000 enlistments. To-day there are more pensioners on the rolls from the Spanish-war soldiers than the maximum number of men in Shafter's army in Cuba. During the war there were killed and died of wounds received in action a total of 698 officers and enlisted men. The entire number killed and wounded was 3,457, and the deaths from all causes were 6,610, or a small fraction over 2 per cent of the aggregate enrollment. The deaths and casualities of every sort and kind of both officers and enlisted men foot up a total of 9,378, or 3 per cent of the enrollment.

From that army there have already been filed with the Bureau 69,687 applications for pensions. In a corresponding length of time after the war for the preservation of the Union the Federal soldiers, numbering 2,213,365, furnished but 102,493 applications. Had they applied at the same rate as the soldiers in the war with Spain the number would have been almost 500,000. During the civil war there died on the battlefield and from wounds received in action, from disease and in prison, 359,000 Union soldiers, or almost 50,000 more than the entire Spanish-American war enrollment.

Since the close of the war with Spain there have been pensioned 5,416 widows of soldiers in that war, while in a corresponding length of time after the civil war there was a total of but 10,695, while of soldiers the ratio has been as two to one in favor of the war in later years. It is easily within the memory of many now here when a determined but unsuccessful effort was made to put teamsters who served with the army in the war with Mexico upon the roll as pensioners at $12 per month—men who never mustered into the United States service, but who were hired as civilians, worked as civilians, and were paid as civilians. It simply illustrates the tendency in this matter of pensions. It shows the perils to which the Government may be subjected in its noble purpose to be just and even generous to those who serve it in time of war.

This bill by an amendment makes age a permanent and specific disability within the meaning of the pension laws. It will be recalled that when Order No. 78 was issued it provoked a great deal of discussion, not so much because of any material advantage the veterans who came within the scope of its provisions might have under its operation as that the issuance of the order by Executive authority was claimed by some to be virtually an assumption of a legislative function which is lodged only in the legislative branch of the Government.

When Order No. 78 was issued it was understood by the then Pension Commissioner, by the Secretary of the Interior, by the President, by the Congress, and the country that it would act automatically; that under its provisions every Union soldier of requisite service would, on arriving at 62 years of age, receive $6 per month on account of age only; at 65, $8; at 68, $10, and at 70, $12, which latter sum was to be the maximum under the law of June 27, 1890, just as the Mexican war soldiers were put on the rolls at $8 per month on arriving at 62, and later a law was enacted giving them $12 per month on reaching 70 years of age. In other words, it was intended that Order No. 78 would, as the statute relative to the Mexican war veterans did, make age a specific disability. Commissioner Ware so held, and I think his construction of the law has never been publicly questioned. When Commissioner Warner came to interpret Order 78 he found it in conflict with section 4698½ of the Revised Statutes, which defines the commencement of disabilities which are permanent or specific, and which says:

> Except in cases of permanent specific disabilities, no increase of pension shall be allowed to commence prior to the date of the examining surgeon's certificate establishing the same, made under the pending claim for increase, and in this, as well as all other cases, the certificate of an examining surgeon, or of a board of examining surgeons, shall be subject to the approval of the Commissioner of Pensions.

No one, so far as I know, challenges the correctness of Commissioner Warner's interpretation of the now famous Order No. 78, and your committee asks by the proposed amendment to have the Congress put a legislative construction upon the order which will be final and which will be in harmony with the original intent and with the universal understanding in Congress and out. The effect of this amendment will be to make age in and of itself a permanent specific disability within the meaning of the statutes, and that when a soldier arrives at 62, 65, 68, and 70 years of age, respectively, he shall draw the sum named under each of these periods on proof of age and service without an examination.

It is believed that the adoption of this amendment will result in an actual saving to the Government.

As a result of an examination of thousands of cases instituted for the purpose of finding out the proportions of rejections of those who were 65 or over, it was estimated that not over 2 per cent of those who were 62 years old were finally rejected and not over 3 per cent of those who were 70 were denied pensions for total disability. In addition to the Bureau expense, the average field cost to the Government each time a soldier goes before a board of pension examiners is $5. There are 267,000 eligibles—that is, men who are drawing less than $12 per month, and hence may avail themselves of this order. Many of these would be examined three and some even four times under Commissioner Warner's interpretation of the law. It will readily be seen that the expense of examination of all would be more than the saving from the very small number of rejections. In view of the probable passage of this amendment the estimated appropriation for fees to examining surgeons has been reduced $100,000 below the estimate for the ensuing year, and it is expected that the saving will be more than that.

There is another phase of this question which I trust the Congress will not overlook, and that is that the men affected by this order are getting old, a large per cent of them are feeble in body, and very many are poor in purse. In some sections of the country pensioners have to go from 50 to 200 miles to be examined, necessitating a journey not only wearisome and expensive, but in some cases perilous even to life. The passage of this amendment will do away with the necessity of further physical examinations of this class of veterans. Proof of the requisite service and age, which is a matter of record, will be all that is necessary. Given these and the law becomes automatic in its operation.

If this amendment prevails it will in time place every honorably discharged soldier of the civil war who has ninety days or more of service to his credit on the rolls at a maximum of $12 per month, in reality making it a service-pension law. [Applause.]

As time bears them toward life's evening the men who served in the Spanish-American army may reasonably anticipate as much. They can hardly ask for more. If, unhappily, other wars shall come, let the standard set for the men who saved the nation's life mark the limit of the nation's generosity. [Applause.] Let it ever be borne in mind that to the true soldier and patriot in any war, infinitely above the paltry sum he may receive as a pension is the consciousness of having served his country faithfully and deserved well of his countrymen and of mankind. [Loud applause on the Republican side.]

Now I yield to the gentleman from Tennessee.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. The gentleman has spoken along the line of frugal expenditure of public moneys. I take it in a great many ways that can be done. I want to call the gentleman's attention to a press statement I saw not long ago, that you may look after that and see if something can not be done to prevent it. The statement was that a millionaire—I know the word millionaire was used—had just received a pension which amounted to a thousand dollars, or up to that time it had amounted to that—I think the former. I think it was furthermore stated that he asked for it for the purpose of rounding out his military record. He did not need it and did not want it for any other reason but to round out his military record, and the statement went on, as I recollect it, that Mr. Warner, the Commissioner, whom we all respect, stated that such a pension had been issued and that there were other similar cases possibly. Now, it seems to me that no millionaire should want a pension, and that no real soldier should want to round out his military record in such a way as that; and I suggest to my friend, from this bit of information, seeming to come pretty straight, if he does not think that that sort of pension ought to be stopped?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. In the first place, that does not come within the purview of the pending bill. In the next place, I know a very wealthy man who applied for a pension that his name might appear on the rolls and then, after the allowance, stopped his pension.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Now, that kind of a case is all right.

Mr. SAMUEL W. SMITH. And I know, too, of some soldiers who are wealthy getting pensions, and they pay these pensions to other soldiers who are not getting as much as they think they ought to.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. That is right and wrong, too.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. I will say a soldier does not draw his pension on the basis of pauperism, and there is only one way that the gentleman's suggestion can be carried out, and that is to require a man to prove poverty, and then he can get on the pension list, and soldiers do not want to do that.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Not at all. The gentleman has unintentionally misconstrued my question. He has misconstrued both the purpose of my inquiry and my statement. I am in favor of an honorable pension roll, and of even raising some pensions, but I do not want to pay a pension to any millionaire.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. How can you exclude a millionaire from getting a pension except by requiring applicants to prove poverty?

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. How can you pension a millionaire on his poverty?

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. We can pension on service and without any reference to financial condition of the man who draws it.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Do you think that a millionaire should have a pension?

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. I say the only way a millionaire can be excluded from the roll is by requiring proof of poverty and making the right to draw a pension dependent on poverty.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Why would you want to pension any millionaire in this country?

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. I do not want to pass any law whereby a millionaire would be excluded from the pension roll by requiring every soldier applicant to prove his poverty.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Does the gentleman want to pension any millionaire? Will he answer that question?

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. I would not vote for a law that a man, in order to draw a pension, must make proof of his poverty.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. Then you decline to answer my question whether we ought to pension a millionaire?

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. I have answered the gentleman's question.

Mr. GAINES of Tennessee. I do not think you have.

Mr. GOULDEN. I would like to ask the chairman of the subcommittee if he can tell me the amount carried under Special Order No. 78, if he has ascertained?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. I think it is between two and three millions of dollars—not a very large sum.

Mr. GOULDEN. I want to say to the gentleman that this is the first time I have heard it required an examination under that order. However, the bill now under consideration is proposed to be amended so as to make examinations unnecessary under Special Order No. 78.

I remember a gentleman who served ably and efficiently as colonel of the Fifty-ninth New York Regiment, now a clergyman, wanting to know if I could not get him a pension under the special order. I said, "No; you can't get it; you are 70 years of age, it is true, but you have a comfortable bank account, and this is intended only for men who are really disabled on account of old age. You are not disabled; you are drawing a salary of $1,000." He made his application and came in within three weeks and handed me a notice that his pension had been granted under Special Order 78 and without an examination.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. But he couldn't get an increase under this order.

Mr. GOULDEN. I understood the chairman to say that after he had reached the age of 65 he was obliged to submit to an examination in order to have it increased.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. That is right. Under Commissioner Warner's ruling, if a man was admitted to the pension roll at the age of 62, he had to be again examined when he reached the age of 65, again examined when he reached the age of 68, and again when he reached the age of 70, at each step in the progress of his increase of age.

Mr. GOULDEN. If the gentleman can tell me, how much is carried on the pension roll for the pensioners of the Spanish-American war?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. I think about $3,000,000.

Mr. GOULDEN. Can the gentleman also give me an idea how much would be carried if the 70,000 applications for this war now on file in the Pension Office were granted?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Oh, no; I could not.

Mr. GOULDEN. Now, the gentleman says that this year we have 9,000 special pension bills before the Committee on Invalid Pensions and the Committee on Pensions?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Yes; that is, in both House and Senate.

Mr. GOULDEN. Can the gentleman give me any idea how much that would carry, approximately, if those bills were law?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. No; I could not estimate that. If the gentleman will allow me, I will refer to the official figures for pensioners of the Spanish-American war. It is $3,409,000.

Mr. GOULDEN. I only want to say a word, Mr. Chairman, in reference to the special order, that after it was issued, I presented, in behalf of the Grand Army of the Republic, of New York, resolutions thanking the President for that order, and in reply he gave us to understand that it was simply an age service pension, and was not intended to meet any case that could be granted under the general law.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. That was the understanding in the House.

Mr. GOULDEN. I make that statement because I wanted to know whether the intent and purpose of the order had been carried out—whether it is now carried out in accordance with the intent and purpose as defined by the President.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. That is the intent of the amendment.

Mr. KEIFER. That is not all of the intent of the amendment.

Mr. NORRIS. Now, if the gentleman will yield to me——

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Certainly.

Mr. NORRIS. Some of the information that I was about to ask for has been elicited by the questions of the gentleman from New York. I want to know when it was that the Pension Department changed the rule in reference to Order 78.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. It never has changed it.

Mr. NORRIS. Is it not true that for a while at least after the promulgation of that order soldiers who had arrived at the age of 62 and got $6, when they got to be 65 their pension would be raised without any examination? Have they not been doing that?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. There has been no case of that kind because time enough has not intervened since Order 78 went into effect. Commissioner Ware ruled that age was a specific disability. Now Commissioner Warner rules that, under the statute referred to in my remarks, in order to get an increase you must have an examination, and that was based upon this. I will read:

The Attorney-General has decided that permanent disability is one authorized by Congress in which they fix a given rate of disability such as Congress has fixed a rate for, as for example, the loss of a leg or an arm.

Mr. NORRIS. But has it not been true, has it not been the practice since the promulgation of that order that the soldier arriving at the age of 70 years who is getting a less pension than $12 could make application and be allowed a pension of $12 without any examination? I want to say to the gentleman that I have personal knowledge of a good many instances of that kind, where they have arrived at the age of 65, 68, and 70; I am almost positive that there never was an examination of any kind. In many cases the applicants have told me that they had never had any examination, and from conversation with officials in the Department I have understood that that was the rule.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. I think I can make myself clear to the gentleman. If a man has reached the age of 70 years and alleges age only, he will be put upon the rolls at $12 a month without any examination, but if he alleges age and rheumatism and heart disease, or other disabilities, he will be examined as to whether or not they exist.

Mr. NORRIS. I understand that. I have known that to be done a good many times where he put in nothing but age, but allow me to ask this question: Suppose a soldier arrives at the age of 62, we will say, or 68, and then he makes an application and he puts in nothing but the claim on account of his age. He is granted a pension of $10, and then he reaches the age of 70 and he makes another application and bases it only upon the ground of his age. Would he not then be given $12 a month without examination?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Not under the ruling of Commissioner Warner.

Mr. NORRIS. I have had this occur. I would like to call the gentleman's attention to this, that I have made applications for soldiers under one limit, we will say, one age limit, when they had nearly reached the next step, and within three or four months of the time the first pension was granted had it increased to the next step without any examination at all.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Allow me to say to my friend right there that I am sorry, but he is certainly mistaken.

Mr. NORRIS. Of course it is possible I am.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. I will show the gentleman why. This law did not go into effect until two years ago next April, so that no man could have been advanced on account of age at the time, and can not until next April.

Mr. NORRIS. But the gentleman does not get my idea. To give it to him I will illustrate. If the gentleman will give me his attention, suppose the soldier comes into my office and he is 69 years old. He is getting $6 a month pension. Now, under that rule he ought to be getting $10. I make the application and he gets ten. By the time the pension gets around, or within a few months afterwards, he arrives at the age of 70 and I make an application and he gets $12—all this within a year, going from one step to the other. Of course the gentleman is putting the proposition on the theory that we wait these two years, which, of course, we could not have done since the order went into effect, but in the case I put they might both happen in one year.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. The way the gentleman puts it it is all right under the law, but he would have to have his examination.

Mr. NORRIS. Well, I do not want to dispute the gentleman, of course. Now, I desire to ask the gentleman another question. This law or amendment which he proposes in this bill will make unnecessary these examinations.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. That is the object of it.

Mr. MARSHALL. Mr. Chairman, if the gentleman from Michigan will pardon me, I will offer this suggestion in explanation of what the gentleman from Nebraska [Mr. NORRIS] has in his mind. I think it is quite possible that the man or men to whom the gentleman from Nebraska refers might have been examined under some other law and that examination was taken in lieu of the one which the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. GARDNER] claimed has to be had now. I have had some cases of that kind, and that must be the explanation.

Mr. NORRIS. They said to me they had no examination whatever.

Mr. MARSHALL. But under some previous application they may have had.

Mr. NORRIS. Oh, they probably had been examined before.

Mr. MARSHALL. And that examination stood in lieu of the one that the gentleman from Michigan claims is necessary under the present rule, which would explain why they did not have to have an examination.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman from Michigan a question.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman yield?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Certainly.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. Do I understand that if this provision contained in this bill should in any way go out that that would leave the fund for examinations approximately $100,000 short?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Yes; this House would have to make the appropriation here $100,000 more, or else make up the deficit.

Mr. SMITH of Iowa. So that if this provision that the gentleman desires in the bill goes out we have got to immediately appropriate $100,000 more for examinations by amendment to this bill, or else have a deficiency in that item, or have men go unexamined for want of money to pay for it.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. That is the situation, as I understand it.

Mr. WEBBER. Mr. Chairman, I rise to ask for information solely. As I understand the pension law, when a special act is passed the pension the soldier has been getting is taken away by virtue of the special act which takes its place.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. If the special act carries more than the other. If it carries the same amount, he can elect.

Mr. WEBBER. I am assuming that it carries more.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Surely; he can draw but one pension.

Mr. WEBBER. About how much does it augment the appropriation necessary, we will say, this term, in round numbers, to meet the special pension acts that have been passed?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. The chairman of the Committee on Invalid Pensions, the gentleman from New Hampshire [Mr. SULLOWAY], is present, and he may be able to answer that inquiry. I can not.

Mr. SULLOWAY. That would be a mental impossibility. Nobody knows how many bills will be passed or at what rate.

Mr. WEBBER. Judging from the past, about how much?

Mr. SULLOWAY. Oh, I think it amounted to $250,000, or something of that kind, in the course of a Congress—about as much as we pay for cigars and knicknacks down in the restaurant during a session.

Mr. WEBBER. Now, Mr. Chairman of the subcommittee, with no reflection upon the committee, because the committee on special cases is limited by the appropriation, is it not a fact that only about one-third or one-fourth the number of worthy bills that are placed before that committee can be granted because of the appropriation?

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Mr. Chairman, with the gentleman's permission, I would like to say to the gentleman that the Pensions Committee feels an obligation to examine every bill closely that is presented to it. It would be a physical impossibility for that committee to do the necessary work and make an honest report upon all the bills that are introduced into Congress. The committee does report as many bills as they can find time to give the necessary examination to, and it is impossible without critical examination to determine whether a bill contains sufficient equity to entitle it to pass. Bills have been presented to the committee wholly inequitable, bills which we thought absolutely certain on reading the record the men were getting as much pension and in some cases more than that to which they were entitled. In order to make a report that will bear the scrutiny of this House and which could be carried through this House we must give an enormous amount of careful consideration to these bills, and we do consider as many bills as we can properly consider.

Mr. GOULDEN. Are you not limited by the appropriation?

Mr. HOLLIDAY. Oh, no.

Mr. WEBBER. Then why should there not be three times as much of the present force to examine into pension claims regarded as just?

Mr. HOLLIDAY. I suppose they might make the committee three times as big. We never thought about that.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. The whole thing resolves itself into this: How far will you go? Now, as a matter of fact, when it comes to paying men or compensating them for their suffering it is simply out of the question. You can not do it. You might just as well undertake to pay a mother for the suffering she has endured for her child as to undertake to pay for the suffering of the men who served in the war, or in any war for that matter; but the Government must draw the line somewhere. It has drawn the line more liberally, as I have shown in previous remarks, than any other government on the earth, and it is our duty as we look at it, and I say, with the consciousness of my obligations to my comrades by whose side I marched for three years, we must draw the line as the guardians of the country's interests, and it is for this House to do it. [Applause.]

Mr. WEBBER. One more question, please, and I will——

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Just a moment. How much time has this side consumed?

The CHAIRMAN. One hour and one minute so far has been occupied by that side.

Mr. WEBBER. If it is a fact that not more than one-third can be considered, because, as I understand the workings before the committee, one member ordinarily can get through about five special pension acts; now, if he ought to get through fifteen cases which are worthy, why should not there be some legislation or reorganization of the committees in some way and an added force to give this relief to these worthy old soldiers, who are by reason of age and disabilities crippled or impoverished so that they can not live without its help?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. If I may repeat myself, I endeavored to show during my statement that whenever a special bill is passed it brings forth a lot of applications in that neighborhood, and if you pass fifteen you will have five times as many applications as you have now, and then you would not get all the necessitous cases.

Mr. BLACKBURN. The gentleman from Tennessee suggested he would not vote for a pension for a man if he was a millionaire. Now, my idea has always been of the law of the land that a man is granted a pension because he has served the Union, and the primary object was to give a pension to a man who deserved it and needed it. Now, it is not a question to my mind whether a man has made a million dollars since that time or whether he has not, I would vote for that pension just the same; but the question I want to ask is this: Are not the pension laws of this country originally framed for the purpose of providing for men who have given their services to the Union, who by that fact had been disabled afterwards? Is not that the fundamental reason?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Oh, yes; the whole theory of the pension system is that it is a supplemental financial aid to what the soldier might otherwise have been able to do for himself.

Mr. BLACKBURN. Certainly. And then if it happens afterwards that he makes a million dollars by hard work, would he not be just as much entitled to a pension as the man who had not been so fortunate as to make a million dollars?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. There is no question about that. If a man had an arm shot off, and subsequently accumulated a million dollars, under the law he is entitled to a pension just as much as the other soldier who was equally disabled and who is not worth a dollar.

Mr. GOULDEN. Does not Special Order No. 78 relieve the House and the committee and the Pension Department from much additional work?

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. It will if this bill passes; yes, sir.

I think, Mr. Chairman, if you will allow me to say so, we ought to give the other side time now. Therefore, we will for the present suspend on this side.

I yield, first, Mr. Chairman, to the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. SAMUEL W. SMITH].

[Mr. SAMUEL W. SMITH addressed the committee. See Appendix.]

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, nothing shows more clearly the necessity of people to consider calmly the cost of wars than the pension rolls of the United States. No man objects to the payment of a pension to any valiant soldiers who have served their country. But the amount of the pension roll to-day is sufficient in size to give men of judgment pause in determining whether that country should embark in the hazardous enterprise of war. The gentleman from Michigan [Mr. GARDNER] made a very interesting computation, which he gave me in private conversation, which illustrates this point. He informed me that the total cost of the civil war, including the cost of pensions, would amount to about $12,000,000,000; that the total physical property of the United States at the time of the outbreak of the rebellion, including the value of slaves, was only $16,000,000,000; and that, excluding the value of slaves—namely, $4,000,000,000—the remainder, being $12,000,000,000, would be only enough to pay the nation's bill for the war which the nation waged. In other words, if the men of that generation were called upon to pay out of their own resources the cost of that war, then, if you exclude the value of the slaves, the cost of the war would have exhausted the entire physical property of the country. Now, we find that there are men upon the pension roll whose ancestors served in the war of the Revolution, so that for a century and a quarter after the close of the war people are found paying the bills of that war. This committee has done its best to reduce the cost of pensions not by taking from the soldier anything that he ought to have, but by effecting economies in the administration of the pension law. One amendment that has been offered provides that age is a permanent specific disability within the meaning of the pension laws, and that amendment has reference to what has been called "Order No. 78"—the order of the late Pension Commissioner Ware.

I remember the interesting speech of the gentleman from New York after that order had been issued by the Pension Commissioner. It was declared then that that order was not valid, because it was illegal, and that it was an attempt by one in an Executive Department of this Government to usurp the functions of the legislature. The House at that time was not in a mood to pass the resolution which was offered by the gentleman, and we have had no decision by any competent authority on the question whether that order was within the powers of the Commissioner or whether it usurped the functions of the legislature. It is of no great consequence to-day. The amounts which were estimated would have to be expended because of this order have been found by results to be grossly exaggerated. It was thought that something like $30,000,000 would have to be spent by this Government because of Special Order No. 78. It has been estimated by the Pension Commissioner that only a little over one-half a million of dollars has been expended in the first six months during which that order was in operation. So that the amount expended has been but slight after all. That, however, does not affect the question whether, at the time the order was framed and promulgated, a Department of this Government was usurping the function of the legislature.

I was of the opinion then, and I have not changed that opinion, that it was an usurpation of the functions of the legislature. But the committee has decided upon an amendment which reduces that proposition to an academic one merely. It has decided to amend the law. I am glad that it has decided to do it, because it puts the question beyond a possibility of doubt hereafter. It will give to those soldiers who attain the ages of 65, 68, and 70 years, who desire increases of pension, the right to have those increases without passing medical examinations. The results of that order have justified themselves and confirmed the order, so far as the saving of money to the Government was concerned. The Commissioner estimates that there are 267,000 men who will be eligible, under the act of June 27, 1890, to increases of pension under this order. The medical board receives $6 for the examination of each applicant for increase of pension. If all of those who are eligible were subjected to a medical examination, the total amount expended by the Government for examinations would reach $1,602,600. The Commissioner of Pensions says that the results of the examinations of men who have attained the ages of 65, 68, and 70 years confirm the view taken by his predecessor, that there would be very few rejections under this order. In other words, that there are very few men who attain the ages of 65, 68, and 70 years who are not actually found to be disabled from the performance of manual labor. This amendment will save the cost of medical examination in such cases.

Now, I believe that the economy attempted by the committee will be ratified by this House, and an order which was of doubtful validity when it was first laid down will be made valid now by the action of the legislature itself. There is one thing more in this bill which the committee considered, but did not act upon.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas. I want to make this inquiry of the gentleman just for information. I have had a number of letters lately to the effect that the Attorney-General had declared this order invalid. These letters, however, have been unofficial. Has the committee any information as to that matter?

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. I think the committee is divided in opinion, and perhaps pretty sharply on political lines, as to the validity of that order.

Mr. KEIFER. But the gentleman is asking about the Attorney General declaring it invalid.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas. My question was as to whether or not the Attorney-General had declared the order invalid?

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. I thought you were asking what is the opinion of the committee on that subject. I did not know that the Attorney-General had expressed an opinion upon that subject.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas. I do not know whether he has, but I have letters to the effect that he had made such a decision, though I never had heard of it.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. I have not the slightest doubt that if the Attorney-General were asked for an opinion he would declare that the order is illegal, because I have a very great deal of respect for the legal attainments of the Attorney-General.

Mr. GOULDEN. Do you think that the present bill will legalize Special Order No. 78?

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. I have no doubt that the present bill will legalize Special Order No. 78.

Now, another matter which was considered by the committee and which was not acted upon was the proposed consolidation of pension agencies. Under the law the President has the right to establish pension agencies, and the law limits the salaries of those pension agents to $4,000 a year. There are eighteen of them now, and the salaries amount to $72,000. The Pension Commissioner stated to the committee that there are not needed eighteen pension agents for the administration of the pension business of this country through these agencies. He said that, in his judgment, six pension agents would be sufficient. If a law were passed consolidating these agencies, making six where eighteen exist now, a saving of $48,000 annually would be made to the country. It was thought by the committee, however, that it would be well to permit the President to make the consolidation himself, or at least call that to his attention, and as he has the power to do so it is hoped that he will exercise the power and save this country $48,000 annually. If, however, for any reason the Executive should not see fit to consolidate these agencies, then it would be a proper subject for this House itself to consider at a later time, for the Pension Commissioner undoubtedly has the best reason in the world for his statement that eighteen agencies are not necessary, and that much money can be saved to this country by the consolidation of those agencies. Now I yield thirty minutes to the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. GARRETT.]

Mr. GARRETT. Mr. Chairman, while the House, in Committee of the Whole on the state of the Union, is considering this general pensions appropriation bill, I ask its indulgence for just a few moments in which to discuss a matter incident to the general subject of pensions, which is that of increasing the allowances to survivors of the Mexican war now on the rolls or that may hereafter be placed on the rolls under the general laws applicable to that class of pensioners.

At present, as we know, surviving soldiers and sailors entitled to a pension under the existing provisions and limitations of the general law receive $12 per month and widows receive $8. The first general act granting pensions to Mexican war veterans was that of January 29, 1887, whereby it was provided that soldiers and sailors, and their widows, for service of as much as sixty days, if 62 years of age or disabled or dependent, should receive $8 per month.

In 1893, by act of January 5, the amount allowed the survivors who were then on the rolls under the act of January 29, 1887, was increased to $12 per month when such survivor was totally disabled for manual labor and was in such destitute circumstances that $8 per month were insufficient to provide him the necessities of life. The act of April 23, 1900, extended the provisions of the act of 1893 to all who were placed on the rolls after the passage of the 1893 act. That is to say, the increase provided by the act of 1893 applied only to such as were on the rolls at the time of the pasage of said act, and the act of 1900 amended the law so as to provide for increase to all subsequently placed on the rolls whose condition and circumstances meet the test as to disability, destitution, etc., as fixed by the general law.

The act of March 3, 1903, still further enlarged and rounded out the law so as to give to all survivors on the rolls under preexisting general statutes $12 per month.

The total number of survivors of the Mexican war on the pension rolls, under the general laws, and under special enactments, on June 30, 1905, was 4,540.

Of these, 4,323 were enrolled under the general law and were receiving $12 per month, a total of $51,876 per month, or $622,512 per annum.

In addition to these 4,323 who were on the rolls at $12 per month, there were, as I have stated, 217 who were either originally placed on the roll by a special act of Congress, or else, being on the roll under the general law, had an increase of allowance by special act. These 217 were at that date (June 30, 1905) receiving pensions as follows:

4 were receiving $8 each per month, or a total per month of	$36
36 were receiving $12 each per month, or a total per month of	432
2 were receiving $15 each per month, or a total per month of	30
28 were receiving $16 each per month, or a total per month of	448
2 were receiving $18 each per month, or a total per month of	36
137 were receiving $20 each per month, or a total per month of	2,740
2 were receiving $24 each per month, or a total per month of	48
3 were receiving $25 each per month, or a total per month of	75
2 were receiving $30 each per month, or a total per month of	60
1 was receiving $45 per month, or a total per month of	45
Making the total per month for the 217 so on the rolls	3,950

Or a total of $47,400 per annum. So that the total amount being expended for pensions to survivors of the Mexican war June 30, 1905, was $660,912 per annum.

At the same date there were 7,506 widows on the rolls under the general law receiving at the rate of $8 per month, or a total of $60,048, or $720,576 per annum. There were also by special acts—

42 who were receiving $8 per month each, or a total per month of	$336
86 who were receiving $12 per month each, or a total per month of	1,032
2 who were receiving $15 per month each, or a total per month of	30
4 who were receiving $16 per month each, or a total per month of	64
1 who was receiving $18 per month each, or a total per month of	18
3 who were receiving $20 per month each, or a total per month of	60
2 who were receiving $25 per month each, or a total per month of	50
7 who were receiving $30 per month each, or a total per month of	210
Making the total of these classes per month	1,800

Or $21,600 per annum. So the total being paid to widows of Mexican war survivors June 30, 1905, was $742,176. The total amount being paid to both survivors and widows was therefore on June 30, 1905, $1,412,088.

These figures are taken from the Report of the Commissioner of Pensions for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1905.

Exhibit 10 to that report shows that there was, in fact, paid to survivors for the fiscal year from June 30, 1904, to June 30, 1905, the sum of $739,823.41 and to widows $780,895.31, or a total of $1,520,718.72. The discrepancy between these figures and those I have just given is due, of course, to the deaths of pensioners during the year from June 30, 1904, to June 30, 1905, who were paid pensions for a portion of the year.

The total number of survivors on the rolls at the close of the fiscal year 1904 (June 30) was 5,214, as compared with 4,540 in 1905, a decrease of 674 in a single year. The number of widows on the rolls at the close of the fiscal year 1904 was 7,821, as compared with 7,653 in 1905, a decrease of 168.

The total amount paid out for pensions on account of the Mexican war from January 29, 1887, when Mexican war pensions were first allowed, to June 30, 1905, was $36,682,848.87. Of this $22,928,123.60 was paid to survivors and $13,754,725.27 was paid to widows. The following table shows the amount per annum which has been paid on this account.

Year.	Survivors.	Widows.	Total disbursements.
1887	$53,148.68	$2,458.08	$55,606.76
1888	1,861,756.07	583,056.28	2,444,812.35
1889	1,756,899.30	693,572.45	2,450,471.75
1890	1,728,027.54	695,054.90	2,423,082.44
1891	1,682,114.75	695,314.52	2,377,429.27
1892	1,425,258.18	686,733.57	2,111,991.75
1893	1,396,392.38	736,173.41	2,132,565.79
1894	1,388,707.07	803,345.91	2,192,052.98
1895	1,433,030.86	802,032.96	2,235,723.82
1896	1,368,085.95	814,096.14	2,182,782.09
1897	1,299,188.31	818,563.78	2,097,752.09
1898	1,213,508.63	846,590.26	2,060,098.89
1899	1,107,594.63	818,067.58	1,925,662.21
1900	1,011,503.74	804,308.31	1,815,812.05
1901	921,052.18	794,320.27	1,715,372.45
1902	874,942.13	785,208.75	1,660,150.88
1903	820,449.35	801,522.99	1,621,972.34
1904	885,280.44	793,440.00	1,678,820.44
1905	739,823.41	780,895.11	1,520,718.52
Total	22,928,123.60	13,754,725.27	36,682,848.87

In other words, Mr. Chairman, the whole amount paid to Mexican war survivors and their widows, as pensions during our entire history, is but little more than one-fourth of the amount carried in this bill for a single year.

These figures have been set out, Mr. Chairman, to the end that the financial status of the case may first appear.

It is safe to assume that 90 per cent, at least, of the survivors of the Mexican war are now on the pension rolls of the Government—perhaps more. There were 78,718 soldiers and sailors engaged in that war. Of this number certainly not more than 5,000 now remain. It is safe to say that not 500 of those remaining are now under 75 years of age. Three-fourths of them, I dare say, are more than 80. Within ten years they will all be gone.

I can not conceive of a more graceful act which could be performed by this Congress than to pass a bill providing that the pensions of each of these old men shall be increased to $20 per month. To pay them this additional amount, even should everyone on the roll at the close of the fiscal year 1905 continue to live, would cost but $415,000 per annum, not one-half the amount now being expended for pensions to civil war veterans under the famous pension order No. 78. It has just been stated, however, that there was in 1904–5 a decrease of 674 in the number of survivors. Each succeeding year will see a still greater decrease—it will be, Mr. Chairman, almost in geometric progression.

These men are old. The records, already made up, show their dependence upon their pensions for support. They have passed the age when it is possible for them to contribute in any material degree to their own support by their own labor. The Government has been, and will continue to be, liberal to the veterans of the civil war. There is no disposition to treat them other than generously and fairly. Is it in vain to appeal for a more generous treatment of the 4,000 Mexican veterans remaining? Why, Mr. Chairman, consider what their condition is—old, decrepit, dependent, bent with the burdens that three-fourths of a century has laid upon them.

I saw him once before,
As he passed by the door.
And, again,
The pavement stones resound
As he totters o'er the ground,
With his cane.

They say that in his prime,
Ere the pruning knife of time
Cut him down,
Not a better man was found
By the crier on his round
Through the town.

But now he walks the streets,
And he looks at all he meets
Sad and wan;
And he shakes his feeble head,
That it seems as if he said,
"They are gone."

The mossy marbles rest
On the lips that he has prest
In their bloom,
And the names he loved to hear
Have been carved for many a year
On the tomb.

Let me go back, Mr. Chairman, to the second stanza:

They say that in his prime,
Ere the pruning knife of time
Cut him down,
Not a better man was found
By the crier on his round
Through the town.

Ah, yes, Mr. Chairman; how true that is of the Mexican war survivor. In the prime of his splendid youth the clarion call of his country came, and, flushed with pride and buoyant life, he responded. Out from the cities, up from the valleys, they came, their feet beating rhythmic time to the patriotism that swelled within them. They gathered about the flag and pledged their lives to the purpose that it should float triumphant in the southern heavens.

On the golden slope with Fremont and Stockton they rallied, thrilling with the splendid purpose that moved their youthful souls. In New Mexico, with Kearney, they offered the supremest gift of human life—that life itself. With Taylor on the Rio Grande they marched, and at Palo Alto, at Resaca de la Palma, at Matamoras, and at Monterey added to the luster of American arms, while at Buena Vista, fighting one to four, they covered the land with a glory which gleams even through the drifted mists of the gathered years with a splendor as of the noonday.

Gathering with Scott, they invested Veracruz, captured what had been regarded as an impregnable fortress within less than a month, pressed into the interior, and seized Cerro Gordo, Jalapa, Perote, Puebla. A little farther and the capital city of Mexico loomed before them. Contreras and Churubusco, Molino del Rey, and then Chapultepec, and they entered the city and hung the flag above the walls of the Montezumas. [Applause.]

Sir, what were the results of those splendid campaigns? Measure them, if you will, by the most grossly materialistic standards; forget, if you desire, all the panoply and glory of war per se; count sacrifices as sacrifices nothing; let the inclination to reward the brave who fight at their country's call, without reference to results, but simply because they did their duty in the way that beseemeth men—let this have no influence if you will, and look solely to results. What were those results? Ask Texas, and Texas will tell you that with their blood and sweat they sealed forever what Texas valor had won at San Jacinto, as she remembered the Alamo. [Applause.] Ask New Mexico and Arizona, and their answer will be "they brought us to this nation with our prodigious resources, our salubrious climates, our vast capacities for the development of a splendid empire."

Ask California, and she will tell you, "They gave you me, with all my splendor, my glorious past, my magnificent future, my vast wealth of forest and fruit and golden store." [Applause.] They gave to this country, sir, more than 500,000 square miles of land, an empire four times larger than Great Britain itself. They brought as the fruitage of their toils and marches the three largest (if pending Territorial legislation shall be enacted) States of this Union, Texas, California, Arizona, each of which has within itself resources and men capable of creating in itself an empire vaster and more powerful than ever was Rome in the supremest heights of her imperial glory, and in each of which there will be cities fairer far than was Athens of the violet crown. [Applause.]

Sir, measure the merits of the surviving veterans of the Mexican war by the most materialistic standards; forget that for the fact they fought alone, irrespective of results, it is a duty to serve them now; consider nothing but what they accomplished, can this great, rich Government—richer by an unmeasurable quantum on account of their toils—afford to say to the 4,000 now left of that splendid, courageous band anything other than that "we will minister to your comfort during the few years you have remaining?" Ah, no, Mr. Chairman, surely not; surely not. In the heyday of their lives they fought for generations yet unborn. Our children's children will not see the full fruitage of the seeds they planted before you or I, sir, was born. Beyond our bounds, in a distant land, in the sweet sensuous summer land of the Montezumas, they upheld the glory of American arms and bore aloft the American flag.

The soldiers marched across plain and desert; the sands of a foreign land drank the blood they shed for the integrity of American prestige, and liberty blossomed where they fell—blossomed, sir, in a vast empire which their valor won for us all. The sailors going down to the sea in ships likewise did their duty to their country, justified that country's boasts, illumined that country's history, glorified that country's traditions and tales.

In that war, as had been shown before, as has often been shown since, as will, please God, be always shown, American men

Showed again and again
That on sea or sod
They could meet their God
In the way that beseemeth men.

[Applause.]

Sir, I know that all along our national history there have been critics of that Mexican war. It was bitterly opposed in some sections of this country, and historians have not always indorsed it since. I certainly have no intention of going into that question now. If there be in this House, after all the long years that have elapsed, any lingering antipathy to that part of our history, I shall certainly not try to argue against it. I only speak of it to the end that if any such sentiment exists I may suggest to those who entertain it that, measured by all the rules of patriotism, their displeasure should not be shown by refusing to contribute to the comfort of the individual soldiers who fought in it. They had but little to do with its inception. Their part was to fight at their country's call. They did their duty, and did it, as I have tried to show, wondrously well. It is a sin against the past and the future to refuse to patriotism its full and just reward. [Applause.]

Sir, within very recent years there has been a warfare in which American soldiers were engaged that I did not indorse. The contests in the Philippine Islands have been less tasteful to us all, I presume, than any warfare which has marked our history; but, sir, I shall never visit my displeasure upon any soldier who, responding to his country's call, went where his country asked him to go to help bear aloft his country's flag. I stand ready as one of the humblest Members of this great body to vote every time for any act of justice to any man who wears or has worn this country's uniform and given his best and bravest at his country's call and in behalf of her flag, in whatever war, in whatever cause, on sea or on land, in sunshine or in shadow. [Applause.]

It would not require, sir, a tithe of a tithe of what the valor of those Mexican war veterans won for this country to render easy the last years of the few who are left. May I ask again, is it vain to hope that this will be done? [Loud applause.]

Mr. GOULDEN. Mr. Chairman, I desire to add just a word or two upon the bill now under consideration. First, I wish to extend my hearty congratulations to the gentleman from Tennessee [Mr. GARRETT] for the very able and patriotic speech which he has made upon the floor of this House, and to predict for him a bright future in the halls of legislation. I also desire to extend to the great State of Tennessee my most hearty congratulations upon having discovered so able and so patriotic a young man for the halls of legislation at Washington. [Applause.]

I desire to call the attention of the House just for a minute or two to the fact that the high-water mark was reached in pensions in 1894, twelve years ago, when the sum of $166,581,787.35 was appropriated. The bill for this year calls for $140,245,500, but that includes $3,000,000 of a deficit for the year ending June 30, 1906. It is well understood that this amount will decrease from year to year very rapidly indeed, for the men who saved the Union, the men who in the dark days of 1861 to 1865 followed the flag to victory and saved the nation, are rapidly dying, and the rosters of the different veteran organizations show a rapidly decreasing number each year. It is well, therefore, that the committee has suggested the addition of an amendment to the present law, namely, that age is a "permanent specific disability" within the meaning of the pension laws. I most heartily indorse the proposed amendment and trust that it will prevail by a unanimous vote of this House.

The veterans of the civil war are growing old rapidly and are not able to travel the long distances often required in order to appear before the various medical boards. It is indeed a very great hardship and entirely uncalled for, Mr. Chairman.

When this age service pension, as it has been called by the chairman of the subcommittee, provides that they shall be pensioned when arriving at the age of 62—the age being accepted as a partial disability—at the sum of $6 per month; upon arriving at the age of 65, increase it to $8 per month; 68, to $10 per month, and at 70 to $12 per month. This is eminently fitting and proper and in the interest of humanity and patriotism. I am delighted to know that the committee have introduced this proposed amendment. They have also changed the wording on page 10 from $800,000 to $700,000 for the examinations, which, I think, is entirely justified. All the veterans—in fact, the entire country—will rejoice when this amendment is adopted, so that there may be no further difficulty, no further delay or suffering on the part of men who are now aging and dying so rapidly. I am therefore heartily in favor of not only the amendment but of the amount carried in the bill itself, and believe that the Committee on Appropriations have acted well and wisely.

I think there is no disposition, Mr. Chairman, on the part of anyone to question the right, the propriety, or the patriotism of granting to the men of 1861 to 1865 what they in saving the Union have so richly earned. And I am glad to hear my young friend from Tennessee [Mr. GARRETT] allude especially to the old veterans of the Mexican war. It is a strange fact that a number of those veterans, carried away by their patriotism, are also veterans of the civil war, and I shall be delighted to see those men amply rewarded and to the full meed of their deserts.

I can only say, therefore, Mr. Chairman, in conclusion, that this excellent provision in the pending bill is entitled to our most favorable consideration, and trust that it will pass this House and become a law in the interest of a most deserving and patriotic class of men who saved the nation. [Loud applause.]

I now recognize the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. KLINE] for such time as he may wish.

Mr. KLINE. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman from New York [Mr. GOULDEN], who has presently charge of the time, has taken me very much by surprise in granting me time during this debate. I know that the gentleman is always courteous and liberal, and thank him for his consideration on this occasion in granting me a minute or two. We have been told that during the present session of Congress approximately 9,000 bills for pension or increase of pension have been introduced. I have no doubt that of said number more than one-half were introduced during the sessions of the Fifty-eighth Congress, and during said Congress failed consideration. We are also told that the Invalid Pension Committee is overworked and overcrowded with pension bills, and that it is unable to consider all the bills that are introduced periodically. I have no hesitancy in saying that many of the bills introduced are not meritorious and are not worthy the consideration of the Invalid Pension Committee.

Every Member of Congress is constantly pressed by his soldier constituents for pensions, for increase of pension, and for the introduction of special bills for said purpose. I think I have a remedy by which the Invalid Pension Committee may be relieved from a portion of this work, namely, the consideration of special bills for pension, and increase of the same.

At the beginning of the present session I introduced a bill known as H. R. 393, and I request that the Clerk read the same.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 393) granting pensions to soldiers and sailors who have lost both eyes or who have become totally blind from causes not occurring while in the military or naval service of the United States.

Be it enacted, etc., That from and after the passage of this act all soldiers and sailors who have served ninety days or more in the military or naval service of the United States during the late war of the rebellion and the Spanish-American war, who have been honorably discharged therefrom, and who are now or who may hereafter be suffering from the loss of sight of both eyes, or who have become totally blind from causes not occurring while in the service of the United States, not the result of vicious habits, shall upon making due proof of the fact of blindness, according to such rules and regulations as the Secretary of the Interior may provide, be placed upon the list of pensioners of the United States and receive and be entitled to receive a pension of $30 per month, which said pension shall be in lieu of any amount such person or persons are now receiving for disabilities not of service origin: Provided, however, That no person thus afflicted shall receive more than one pension for the same period: And also provided, however, That this act shall not be construed to reduce any pension under any act, public or private.

Mr. TAWNEY. May I ask the gentleman a question? Is he offering that for information of the House in connection with his remarks, or is he offering it as an amendment?

Mr. KLINE. I am offering it only for information in connection with my remarks.

Mr. Chairman, I understand that similar bills upon this subject were introduced in former years, during former sessions of Congress, and that they did not receive favorable consideration in both branches of Congress. During the present session of Congress I introduced eighteen bills for increase of pension, which were referred to the Committee on Invalid Pensions, and of the eighteen bills that I introduced five of the subjects therein referred to are soldiers who have lost their sight and totally blind, disabilities not of service origin, but a condition which resulted subsequent to their service. I have no doubt that every Member of Congress has introduced similar bills, with similar experiences, and that the proportion of blindness is approximately the same in every locality. In my judgment it is not right, it is not just and fair to the soldiers who are thus afflicted with blindness, that one or two be favored and selected by Members of Congress (by reason of the limited number of pension bills allowed to each Member during a session), while others similarly afflicted, who are equally deserving and just as patriotic soldiers, must wait and stand back until some subsequent Congress or some future time when their meritorious claims for relief can be considered.

We have experienced that each Member of Congress is allowed only favorable consideration of four or five bills for pension, or increase of pension, at each session. If the bill just read and referred to were enacted into law, I believe that the Pension Committee would be relieved of at least one-fourth part of its present labors, and if it were relieved from the consideration of bills for increase of pension where the parties are blind a great many others who are growing old and enfeebled could receive relief at the hands of the Invalid Pensions Committee. I also understand——

Mr. MAHON. Mr. Chairman, I desire to ask the gentleman a question. Why do you confine it to blind men alone? Now, there are a great many men who are blind, but otherwise in good health, and there are thousands of old soldiers in the country who are bedfast, utterly helpless, have to have attendants, have had a paralytic stroke, or something of that kind. These men can not work and can not make a livelihood; they are in a far worse condition than a blind man. Now, my suggestion is that the act of 1899 ought to be amended where a man is totally blind, or is bedfast, or utterly helpless, perhaps a paralytic man, whose condition may have been brought on by exposure in the service. That act should be amended, and the Commissioner of Pensions should have the right to raise the penison of that class of man to $30 a month.

Mr. KLINE. I will answer the gentleman that the reason I selected this class of men for relief by general bill was because of the fact that those soldiers suffering from total blindness have been brought more prominently and noticeably to my attention for consideration. I do not object to any meritorious amendment to this bill, such as the gentleman from Pennsylvania suggests. My experience has been, and I apprehend it has been the experience of every other Member of Congress, that the bill of each soldier suffering from blindness which is presented and is considered by the Invalid Pensions Committee receives a favorable consideration and report, and such bills usually carry $30 per month. I can not see any reason why a general bill of the character which I introduced should not be passed.

Mr. MAHON. I want to say that this House did pass a bill of that kind.

Mr. SULLOWAY. It was an amendment to what is known as the "limbless bill," where they increased the pensions of this class of men, and the House passed the bill giving to that class of pensioners already blind, bedridden, and paralytic $24 and $30 a month. It passed the House unanimously, as I remember, without a dissenting voice.

Mr. KLINE. But they never received the benefits of it.

Mr. SULLOWAY. The Senate defeated the bill.

Mr. KLINE. The Senate defeated it. Introduce such a bill, pass it through the House, and send it to the Senate again for their consideration.

Mr. MAHON. I think that there ought to be an amendment made to the act of 1890, providing that men who are totally blind, bedridden men from disability resulting not from their vicious habits, giving the Commissioner of Pensions the right to raise their pensions to $30 a month.

Mr. KLINE. I certainly would accept an amendment of that kind. On the other hand, I must heartily indorse the bill introduced by the gentleman from Pennsylvania [Mr. SAMUEL]. [Applause.]

Mr. GOULDEN. Mr. Chairman, how much time is remaining for this side?

The CHAIRMAN. Fifty minutes.

Mr. GOULDEN. We will reserve that time and yield to the other side.

The CHAIRMAN. The other side has twenty-five minutes.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. I yield to the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. KEIFER].

Mr. KEIFER. Mr. Chairman, the highest compliment that has been paid to the Committee on Appropriations that reported this bill is the fact that while the committee propose to appropriate $140,245,500, and the subject is up for consideration, the great body of the Members of the House flee from it, knowing that there would be no harm come to the country in their absence. [Applause.] The bill is one, in the main, that has met the approval of all the different influences and political opinions as well as of the members of the subcommittee on appropriations, and, as I understand it, of the whole committee. I do not intend to occupy any considerable time in discussing the measure. I want to say a word, however, Mr. Chairman, about the proposed amendment which is said to be new law. I do not expect anybody to make a point of order against the amendment on the ground that it is new legislation, because the gentlemen on the other side of the House thought it was a good thing, at least to make a portion of the Order No. 78 law, and put an end to all this talk about executive usurpation.

Whatever may have been the opinions at one time of individuals in the Congress of the United States, as to whether Order 242, which I believe was the first one of that character, and later Order 78, being a usurpation, it is not worth while to go over that now. For my part, I believe both orders were such as the statute authorizes the officer having the matter in charge, with the approval of the President of the United States, to issue by the express terms of the act of 1890. I believe that then President Cleveland and the Secretary of the Interior and his Commissioner of Pensions were right about the interpretation they put on the law, and I understand they have never changed their minds since.

I believe that those who were instrumental in issuing Order No. 78, in fixing the question of age as a matter of presumptive disability, were right in following ex-President Cleveland's administration on that subject.

More than that, I believe both orders were right in principle. Order No. 78, as it stands now, and as it has always stood, only raises a presumption that the party who was 62 years of age was under that sort of physical disability—presumptively—which entitled him to a pension of $6 a month because of inability to perform manual labor; at 65, with three years more added, to $8, and at 68 to $10 per month; and when the old soldier had reached the psalmist's limit for a lifetime, three score years and ten, he should be presumed, at least, to have disability for performing manual labor sufficient to entitle him to $12 a month. Now, the order has worked well and nobody seems to be particularly disturbed about it, but it was proposed that we should put a clause in this bill that would put an end to certain things, especially the matter of examination when applications were made for an increase.

There were two objects that took hold of the minds of the members of the Committee on Appropriations, and especially those who heard our excellent Commissioner of Pensions testify. First, we wanted to have the order and the principle of the order recognized by law, so that we should not be on the rostrum or here, from year to year, going over this question of usurpation. Second, and quite as important in one sense, because I think the first question was fairly thrashed out on the political rostrum in 1904 all over this country, and the people approved of the order—as I say, the next important one was that we are assured by the Commissioner of Pensions that if we put this little short clause in this bill and say in the provision that age is a permanent, specific disability within the meaning of the pension laws, we shall save annually to the United States at least $250,000 in the matter of medical examiners' fees. The Commissioner stated the reason why. In his interpretation of Order No. 78 a man who applied for a pension when he reached the age of 62 and put in as the ground of his application solely that of age would be granted, if 62 years of age, without an examination under the law, a pension of $6. Now, by reason of another provision of the statute, when the same pensioner reaches the age of 65 and makes an application for an increase of pension, under Order 78, to $8 a month, the Commissioner was bound to refer his application to a pension board for examination. So on every increase of pension. The Commissioner says there will be saved by this single short paragraph annually $250,000 to the Government.

Mr. PRINCE. Will the gentleman allow me a question?

Mr. KEIFER. Certainly.

Mr. PRINCE. Right on that line, do I understand the gentleman from Ohio to state to the House and the country that when a man arrives at the age of 62 and makes that statement in writing to the Commissioner, that without any further evidence or examination thereupon he is entitled to a pension of $6 a month?

Mr. KEIFER. Oh, no; not without evidence, but without examination before a medical board. His evidence must be otherwise. A medical board could not find anything more about his age than anybody else. The rolls of the War Department, as the Commissioner of Pensions said, furnishes the information largely—that is, that he served ninety days, and all this matter of age is largely settled there. But I am speaking now of dispensing with the examination as to disability. Let us take this case: A man has been pensioned at $6 because he was 62 years old. Under the order he applies, when he is 65 years old, for an increase to $8. He is obliged to be referred to a pension board. Suppose the pension board in this case, as has happened, according to the testimony of the Commissioner, reports on the capacity and capability and physical qualities of the applicant and says to the Commissioner that his ability to perform physical labor is just as good now at 65 years as it ever was. They then strike him off the rolls altogether. They are obliged to do so under the present law, and so all along the line. This clause makes age under this order, if you please, a specific permanent disability, entitling him to a pension so that he does not have to be referred to a medical board at all, because whatever they might report, the law of the country would say that age is a permanent disability.

Therefore we will have gotten rid of the necessity or possibility of the report of a medical examining board affecting the question of the right of the pensioner at all, and we get rid of it in this way. We examined the Commissioner carefully about this, and said to him: "What will you do?" He said that the pensioners would all keep track of the matter of their age, and when they got to be 65 years old, if they wrote to him and called attention to it he would send them a circular to sign and return stating that they desired their pension increased, and it would be increased without the pensioner having to employ an attorney at all. So as to other age periods. He could send out a simple slip and have it signed, on which the increase would be granted, and the only people that would be affected seriously by this amendment will be the pension attorneys and the medical examining boards of the country. Now, I do not care to follow that further unless some gentleman wants to make some inquiry. The testimony is all here. We heard it all patiently on both sides. The gentleman from Massachusetts [Mr. SULLIVAN] was especially careful in asking questions, and I think we understand the matter substantially alike. That is about all I ought to or need to say. The bill should pass. It is not quite as large as the bill last year, as I understand it, taking into account the deficiency that we provided for the year ending June 30 next. The old soldiers are dying. I myself have offered here a few bills—not many, compared to the number my colleagues and others have offered—for special acts to relieve certain persons who think that under the general law they are not getting enough or who do not come within the general laws or rules of the Pension Bureau. Within the few weeks that I have been a Member of this House I have been notified by members of the families that two of them are dead for whom I have offered bills and there is no need of pressing the bills any further. We are being relieved of the special applications rapidly. The war is over. It closed with Appomattox on the 9th day of April, 1865, in effect, for the surrenders of Joe Johnston, Kirby Smith, and others that followed were the natural and logical result of Appomattox. The country has done its duty well to the old soldier. In individual instances, I have no doubt, there are cases where the soldier has felt that the country has not done all that it ought to have done, and there have been exceptions here and there where there may be room for complaint, but no country, organized as our great country is, has been so generous to its soldiers in the way of pensions, Soldiers' Homes, and all that.

Now, something has been said about increasing the pensions of the Mexican war veteran. He has long been on the roll without reference to age, service, disability, or anything of that kind. I favored that long ago; I favor it still. These old soldiers fought for their country in the years of the Mexican war from 1846 to 1848. It is not a question as to whether the war was justifiable or not. It is a question of patriotism. These Mexican war soldiers, I agree with my friend from Tennessee [Mr. GARRETT], are entitled to be taken care of, because they fought for their country. [Applause.] We need not stop to measure the value of California and New Mexico that we bought with that war. We might have reflections that would be somewhat peculiar. We remember in looking to history that when the commissioner on the part of the United States, Mr. Trist, met the Mexican commissioners to make the treaty that gave us that great and vast territory, the Mexican commissioner said to Mr. N. P. Trist, who represented our Government, "Mr. Commissioner, this territory here has been free under Mexican law, and we want to stipulate in the treaty that it shall forever after be free." Mr. Trist wrote a letter to the Secretary of State, saying that he replied that he would do no such thing; that he would not submit that proposition to his country, even though all the territory was covered all over 1 foot thick in gold, for it was to be slave territory; but, thank God, no foot of it ever became slave territory or ever will. There is nothing to be said against the soldier who fought under Scott at the City of Mexico, or under Taylor at Buena Vista. We are here to do our duty to these patriotic people who answered to the call of their country and fought for it.

Something has been said by the chairman of our subcommittee who has charge of this bill to-day about the Spanish war soldiers, and I have heard, not here, but elsewhere, a good deal of talk about the degeneracy of the day and about the Spanish war soldiers not standing up as well as the old soldiers of the civil war. I do not have any sympathy with any such talk or sentiment.

The Spanish war came naturally, and it is the first one in the history of all the ages where war was declared primarily for the reason that one nation was oppressing its own subjects; in other words, it is the first war ever declared for humanitarian reasons alone. The result justified it all, but the soldiers went from fields, from shops, from office to battle. They went into a sickly country. They had to meet disease and death as all new soldiers do without battle. At one time—I would be ashamed to give the number—there were many thousands of our soldiers sick in hospitals at Chickamauga, on that great battlefield of the civil war, and there were many sick at other places. I remember of seeing at one time in tents over twenty-two hundred men sick with typhoid fever alone. They confronted yellow fever in Cuba. They had to be seasoned from their home lives, and while only a few of the volunteers went to battle they went there proving that they were the equals of their fathers and of their grandfathers in battle and in courage and in skill. [Applause.] I had the honor to command troops from Texas, Alabama, Louisiana, South Carolina, and other States. Most of them were sons of ex-Confederates; many of them were commanded by ex-Confederate officers. They were as fine a body of men as ever mustered for battle in the world. I do not place them above those of the North, but they were their equals and as ready and as willing to do their duty as any others. [Applause.] And to-day we are not here to draw any distinction on account of the cause of war, or of the nature of it. We must look at the conditions and situation, and do our duty to all alike. I have no further remarks to make. I think the bill a just one, and I do not think there is anything serious that we should attempt to legislate about on this bill that is not included in it. There are many things suggested by questions here that belong to general legislation and that ought not to go into an appropriation bill. The very little that we put here is in the interest of economy and in the interest, I believe, of the pensioner. [Applause.]

Mr. WEBBER rose.

The CHAIRMAN. There is one minute remaining of the time of the gentleman from Michigan.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I would say the gentleman from Ohio would like to have five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the other side yield that amount of time?

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. How much time have we remaining?

The CHAIRMAN. Forty-three minutes.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. I will yield the gentleman five minutes.

The CHAIRMAN. That will give the gentleman six minutes.

Mr. WEBBER. Mr. Chairman, we are told that the wealth of this nation is fabulous. No nation on the face of the globe can compare—ever has and the prospect is never will—in riches and material progress to the United States of America, and this has all been made certain to our people by the bravery of our soldiers, living and dead, through the outcome of the civil war. I do not believe, as liberal as our pension laws are, that they begin to be commensurate or in keeping with the ability of this country to pay. The pension laws under which and by which every old soldier must prove his claim in the Department (unless he has reached a certain age) were passed many years ago when the conditions were different, when proof was easy, when the testimony was alive. I appeal to all the members of this House if it is not common knowledge among us by the character of letters we receive from the old soldiers that it is almost impossible under the pension laws to make connection to-day between the disability now existing and its cause in conection with the war of the rebellion.

We have passed that point. Hence, the needy old soldiers and their widows and dependents who are not able to make proof in order to procure or raise their pensions are driven to the Congressional Committee on Invalid Pensions, of which our distinguished Member and grand character, Mr. SULLOWAY, is chairman, as their last and final hope, but even here tardy justice affords but slow and partial relief, as the committee is too small to cope with the business, so that not more than one-fourth of the worthy cases presented get investigated for the lack of working force. To relieve this congested condition and bring relief to the old soldier and his widow and dependents who are without the comforts of life or the health to secure them, the committee's force should be quadrupled at once and the pension laws revised.

As the years come and go more difficulties on the part of the needy veteran and his widow to make the requisite proof under the existing laws will arise. Then, again, the pensions now paid under the law are inadequate to supply the necessaries of life to either the old soldier without means and health or his widow in like circumstances. I believe the time is fully ripe for a radical revision of our pension laws, to the end that every old veteran or his widow or unfortunate dependent without means of subsistence or the health to attain the same shall be cared for in comfort, without being compelled to find shelter and bread among strangers in a Soldiers' Home. To bring about this better condition to these noble defenders of the flag it will of necessity require a large increase in the pensions appropriations. Should we hesitate over the propriety of a debt of honor because of dollars and cents?

Is it any excuse for refusing to double the pension appropriation because this Government already pays more liberal pensions than any other country on the globe? I answer, not when we consider the results attained. The victory won by our veterans gave liberty to every downtrodden child of the race the wide world round, and a peace and commercial prosperity to all under the flag such as men never knew. So great and good is this country, thus consecrated by their valor and blood, that the struggling of every nation are pressing toward our shores to enjoy its blessings. Double the pensions of the needy soldier and his widow and let the coming generations, whose tread we hear, pay the debt. Legislation that will do this should not be haltingly enacted. The graves of these defenders are rapidly multiplying; their circle is closing in.

Some say if they can no longer keep the wolf from the door let them seek a Soldiers' Home. What cold comfort there! True, ample food and good beds await them at these institutions, but what of the one who has a humble house for which he has provided till his hands and feet no longer answer their bidding? In justice, can this billion-dollar Government so far forget his services on the field of battle as to drive him by necessity from his only home to a public institution in order to hold the nation's pension appropriation within certain bounds? No, a thousand times no, if justice is to prevail. No widow of a veteran should want for the necessities of life among her old neighbors. Congress votes uncounted millions for war ships, bridges, mail service, highways, expositions, and a standing Army and are careful to see that the sums are fully adequate to make them effective, while the defenders of the nation's honor that made these possible are but half paid. How easy to lose sight, in the hurry of life, of our benefactors. As children forget the sacrifices of their parents, so nations in their mad rush for gains and glory remember not the struggles of those who made their success possible. In no way can this Christian nation better show its appreciation of the blessings now its own than by making haste to place in positions of comfort in their old homes any dependent defender of the flag. No longer should it be necessary for such or their widows to adduce evidence they can not secure.

I call upon the Members of this House to consider the letters of touching appeal that are daily coming to you from the soldiers and their widows of your districts, asking for relief.

How powerless you feel, by reason of the law, to alleviate their necessities. I am preparing a bill to correct these injustices. Will you give your vote and influence to hasten the day when every one of these unprovided-for heroes and their widows may for the rest of their days sit down under their own vine and fig tree, and not wonder wherewithal shall they be clothed and fed? I shall give my efforts to bring about this happy condition.

Where is now the hope of the veteran without the ability to work and no income save a $14 pension if not in this body?

Where is there a ray of hope for his destitute widow when he has responded for the last time to the roll call of his comrades, if not with us?

The time is past when the old soldier can seek a home on a Government land claim. Age and the infirmities of years have rendered him unfit for a pioneer. Why not give them title to the same without going upon the same?

Of all the frailties of human nature ingratitude stands first. The glitter of to-day overshadows the past. A halt must be called to correct this injustice. Multiply the working force of the Invalid Pension Committee till all claims filed there may be examined. Sweep away the law requiring proof to secure or increase pensions that all know can not be found, and so adjust this system that all needy worthy soldiers and their widows shall have the comforts of life, and add another star to the glory of our Republic. [Applause.]

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I yield to the gentleman from New York [Mr. OLCOTT].

Mr. OLCOTT. Mr. Chairman, there is only one suggestion I wish to make in connection with this matter. I fear that the bill will not accomplish the end that is especially desired. As I understand the real object of the clause that is under discussion is to make advancing age cause an automatic increase of pension. Such object I entirely agree with, but it seems to me, from the wording of the proposed bill, the committee's object will be annulled—the committee seeks to enact what is now a ruling of the Pension Commissioner—the clause in question reads:

That age is a permanent specific disability within the meaning of the pension law.

Section 4698½ provides:

Except in cases of permanent specific disabilities no increase of pension shall be allowed to commence prior to the date of the examining surgeon's certificate.

If that be so, if that language means anything, it means that no pension for a permanent specific disability can be had until the surgeons examination has been made.

Under those circumstances, if you make advancing age, whether it be 62, 65, 68, or 70, a permanent specific disability, and section 4698½ already provides that no pension for permanent specific disability can be had until after the medical examination, do you not compel a man reaching a certain age to submit to a medical examination in order to start the date when his pension commences? He not only has got to reach his sixty-fifth birthday, he has got to have a medical examination in order to make his pension begin. Under those circumstances it seems to me that the last sentence could be very easily amended by the addition of a very few words, and at the proper time, if the committee consider that my argument is correct, I should be glad to offer the amendment, which, I think, would make it clear and not, as I fear it is now, ambiguous.

Mr. KEIFER rose.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from New York [Mr. OLCOTT] yield to the gentleman from Ohio?

Mr. OLCOTT. Certainly.

Mr. KEIFER. I will ask the gentleman to look again at the section that he refers to, and see if that does not require the medical board to report a permanent disability before they can grant a pension? That is just what it requires, is it not?

Mr. OLCOTT. I think it is; yes, sir.

Mr. KEIFER. Now, then, if we say that age is a permanent disability, no report is necessary at all, because all that other section means is that we shall have a medical examination in order that we may have a report to the effect that there is a permanent disability.

Mr. OLCOTT. But it says at the same time that the pension shall not commence until the date of the examination and surgeon's certificate.

Mr. KEIFER. This only relates to increase any way. Gentlemen will see that no medical examination is necessary to fix it as a permanent disability. If there were a hundred examinations it would not change the statute, because the statute says age shall be a permanent disability. That statute simply provides for cases other than those that are made by law, cases of permanent specific disability.

Mr. OLCOTT. I would only say in answer to that, Mr. Chairman, that I believe if under peculiar circumstances, or by any chance we had a Commissioner of Pensions antagonistic to the general idea, he might make the ambiguity in this bill that we are discussing now an opportunity to decline to allow this automatic rule of increase of pension to work in the manner evidently desired by this committee.

Mr. KEIFER. Mr. Chairman, the gentleman yields me time. I just wish further to say that this clause, short as it is, was drafted by the present Commissioner of Pensions, and he gives that interpretation that I am trying to give to the committee.

Mr. OLCOTT. In response to that, Mr. Chairman, I am fearful that some other Commissioner will at some other time think it is ambiguous, as I do, and, therefore, why not make it so clear that no two minds can differ about it?

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from Massachusetts desire to use the balance of his time?

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Not just now, Mr. Chairman. I agree with the gentleman from Ohio, that the present law requires no examination in case of permanent specific disabilities, and this proposed amendment will make age of itself a permanent specific disability, and therefore include it in the law. But in regard to the statement of the gentleman from New York upon the other point, I must say that I am of the same opinion that he is, and I suggested that in the committee, but the committee was of a different opinion. I simply deferred to the opinion of my associates. It seems to me still, however—my opinion is unchanged—that an amendment which says simply "age" leaves it uncertain what age is meant; and in order to ascertain what age is meant we will be obliged to refer to the order of the Commissioner. Then we will ascertain that the ages meant are 62, 65, 68, and 70 years; and the question I had in mind was this: If at some later period another Commissioner should frame another order and make the age 60 years, we will see the law we are enacting now automatically applied under the new ruling of the Commissioner of Pensions to that age. If so, it would seem to me that the Commissioner would be again usurping the functions of the legislature. It seems to me that if an age is fixed at which no examination shall be required for an increase of pension, that age should be fixed by the act of Congress and not by an act of an executive officer of the Government.

In order to secure that end I proposed that the ages be definitely mentioned, and that they should be put in an amendment, but, as I said before, my associates on the committee disagreed with me. They thought there was no necessity of enumerating the ages. I am obliged to state that I am still of the opinion that I was correct, and now that the matter has been pointed out by the gentleman from New York. I would be very glad to hear some one advance a reason that would prove to me that I am not correct in that opinion.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman has twenty-five minutes of his time remaining.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I would like the gentleman from Michigan, if he desires, to use part of his time.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. The time on this side is exhausted.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Is there anyone on your side who desires to have some time?

Mr. LACEY. I would like to have a few minutes—five minutes.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. LACEY. Mr. Chairman, I want to speak on the subject to which the gentleman from Massachusetts has just referred, as to the necessity for the passage of this law, and the vague character of the law. When this General Order No. 78 was issued, it was a construction put upon the question of age disability by the Department. Under Mr. Cleveland's Administration a similar order was issued fixing 75 as an age which was presumptive evidence of a total disability. This Order 78 was simply a modification of that order, which had already been once more modified under Mr. McKinley's Administration. Under McKinley, 65 had been also fixed as an age creating a presumption of half disability. While there was no specific law confirming the action of the Department as to the scale of rates based upon age as a disability, this Congress immediately ratified the action of the Commissioner by passing an appropriation expressly covering the amounts allowed by the order; and from that time on two appropriation bills have been passed recognizing this construction put upon the law by the Pension Department. It therefore became a Congressional act. Of course, long experience in the Pension Office has taught the medical officers there that age is a disability, and has given a basis of measuring its degree. Our own experience has taught us, unfortunately, too, it is a continuing disability, and when we take account of our assets at the end of each year we find that age is the only asset that always fails to show any diminution. So that experience in the examination of thousands and tens of thousands of cases has demonstrated that age as an element of disability is of a satisfactory character.

No doubt there are exceptions, where age has not had the effect that in general the reports the medical officers make to the Pension Office show in that respect.

But these exceptions are so comparatively few, and the advantage of relieving the office from making a medical examination where disability was predicated wholly upon age was so obvious, that it was thought better to allow those few cases to pass by than to require a medical examination in all. So Congress considered this question, and has, in effect, on two different occasions, passed appropriation bills the legal effect of which is certainly as controlling, certainly as full and complete, as that involved in the proposition in this bill, namely, that age is a permanent disability within the meaning of the pension law. And I see no objection to this further declaration of the intention of Congress in more specific terms to approve of that which the Department has found by experience to be correct.

Let me call attention to the further fact that the Department from year to year is having still additional examinations—medical reports from various boards—which might justify some further modification or Order 78, making the rate a little different from that in the order, and this proposition simply recognizes that age is a specific disability, leaving to the Department the power of graduating that disability as based upon its experience covering a term of years and hundreds of thousands of medical examinations.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. LACEY. Certainly.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. I would like to ask the gentleman in what manner the passage of an appropriation bill ratified the order of the Commissioner?

Mr. LACEY. In this: We had a similar question up in various treaties of annexation, as to whether a treaty could be made by the President with the consent of the Senate annexing territory without the consent of the House of Representatives. That has been an interesting constitutional question. But immediately following every one of these treaties there has been an appropriation made to carry it out, so the Congress of the United States, acting through both Houses, has passed upon the question by making the appropriation. A similar principle applies in this case. Here we have a report made, an estimate made, saying that they have adopted a certain rule in regard to disabilities based upon age—the specific disability—and graduating it from six up to twelve dollars a month under the act of June 27, 1890; that was fully reported in the House of Representatives through the estimates of the Department. Immediately following that an appropriation is made for the sum that the Department asked for. What more specific recognition of the propriety or legality of this adjudication of age as a disability could you want than that? Now, this, in a little more extended way, amplifies what Congress has done heretofore.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, how much time have I remaining?

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman has twenty-three minutes.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Before yielding I want to say, in answer to the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LACEY], that I can not agree with his doctrine that the passage of an appropriation bill under the circumstances mentioned was a ratification of the Pension Commissioner's order. If the gentleman remembers, at the time that order was framed and put into operation it created a great deal of comment in the House and in the country. It was just prior to a Congressional election, and party feeling ran high concerning it. A resolution was offered by the gentleman from New York investigating the whole question and for the purpose of having an investigation of the question and having a report made to this House as to whether the Executive order did not amount to a usurpation of the rights of the legislator. As I remember it, the House, although strongly Republican, defeated that order by a bare margin of three or four votes.

Now, we are not attempting to inject any politics into this discussion. I must say that there are no politics in this question. The question has been settled as to the desirability of granting this increase of pension to the men who have arrived at the specific ages without a medical examination, and the only question that has occurred to anyone here is whether the amendment offered by the committee is fit to accomplish the intention of the committee. As I tried to point out a moment ago, when this law will be construed the age that is said to be a permanent, specific disability will have to be ascertained by referring, not to a law of Congress, but to an order of an executive officer of this Government, and by referring to that order it will be seen that ages provided in the law are 62, 65, 68, and 70, which are enumerated in the Pension Commissioner's order, and what I fear may result from that is this: That we will be putting a law on a shifting basis, namely, the order of an executive officer of the Government. We have the power and, I think, the inclination to put it on a firm, stable basis; put it upon the foundation of the law itself, so that hereafter if a Commissioner chooses to reduce the age to 60 years no one will be able to say in this House or this country that an executive officer of the Government by a mere stroke of the pen has appropriated millions of the people's money. All I ask is that the law be made clear and definite in terms, so that there will not be any possibility of a doubtful construction.

Mr. LACEY. Mr. Chairman, I would like to suggest one thing more to the gentleman from Massachusetts.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman yield?

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Yes.

Mr. LACEY. That is, as to whether or not he has reflected upon the fact that Order No. 78 became merged into thousands of certificates, which have been delivered to the pensioners and which are continuing drafts upon the Treasury and without any further action, and that Congress in legislating and making an appropriation did so in the light of the fact that these certificates had thus been issued and permanent charges had been made upon the Treasury.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from Minnesota [Mr. TAWNEY].

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Chairman, I do not intend to discuss the general proposition of granting pensions or the question of whether or not we should legislate specifically at this time as to the age that shall be considered a permanent disability within the meaning of the pension law. Order No. 78, promulgated by the Chief Executive, is, by statute, given the force and effect of law. It is as much the law to-day as though Congress enacted the order, and we can't change it on this bill. But, Mr. Chairman, there is some misunderstanding with respect to the construction that may hereafter be placed upon the amendment to existing pension laws proposed by the Committee on Appropriations. This amendment expressly provides that hereafter age shall be construed to mean a permanent specific disability within the meaning of the pension law. The necessity for this is the fact that under Order No. 78 when a pension has been granted on account of age alone, without medical examination, the pensioner can not secure an increase when he reaches the age of 65, 68, or 70 except upon a medical examination. Now, under section 4698½ of the Revised Statutes there are classes of disabilities which do not require a medical examination in order to secure an increase. These cases are cases of permanent specific disabilities, which term has been construed by the Attorney-General to mean the loss of a leg or the loss of an arm. These are construed to be permanent specific disabilities, and to obtain an increase of pension upon that ground there is no medical examination required.

Now, this proposed amendment makes age a permanent specific disability, not for the purpose of securing a pension, but only for the purpose of obviating the necessity of a medical examination in order to secure an increase. Some gentlemen have claimed that this bill will not accomplish the purpose intended. The doubt arises from the way in which this section has been framed. The author of this law placed the exception first, instead of writing the exception after the general legislation enacted in this particular section. I will read it first as it is written and then read it as the Commissioner and everybody else would construe it, and I think the House will readily see that under this section of the law this amendment will obviate entirely the necessity for medical examinations in order to secure an increase of pension on account of age. It reads:

Except in cases of permanent specific disabilities, no increase of pension shall be allowed to commence prior to the date of the examining surgeon's certificate establishing the same, made under the pending claim for increase.

Now, if you read it the other way:

No increase of pension shall be allowed to commence prior to the date of the examining surgeon's certificate establishing the same, made under the pending claims for increase, except in cases of permanent specific disabilities—

It removes all doubt as to what is intended by the law, and what application the pending amendment will have or what construction must be placed upon it by the Commissioner, if it is enacted as proposed by the Committee on Appropriations.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Chairman, I would ask the gentleman, Is the present requirement for a medical examination a matter of regulation?

Mr. TAWNEY. A matter of law.

Mr. MANN. Or a matter of law according to what the gentleman has just read.

Mr. TAWNEY. Yes.

Mr. MANN. Certainly age is a permanent disability if it is a disability at all. A man can not ever get any younger after he has reached a certain age.

Mr. KEIFER. But he may be capable of doing work.

Mr. MANN. If age is a disability, it is a permanent disability.

Mr. TAWNEY. Certainly.

Mr. KEIFER. But it is not specific in the sense that it prevents him from doing as much work as formerly.

Mr. TAWNEY. It is not a permanent disability, however, which, as construed by the Attorney-General, can entitle a pensioner to an increase of pension without a medical examination; and it is to cure that that we propose to make it a permanent specific disability, within the meaning of the law. Certificate for increase of pension will then be issued upon establishing the fact of age without a medical examination.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I would like to ask the gentleman from Minnesota this question: Suppose the Secretary of the Interior should make an order which would be adopted by the Pension Commissioner, providing that when a soldier reached the age of 60 he would be entitled to a rating as being disabled one-half to perform manual labor. Would this law we are passing now apply to that order of the Pension Commissioner fixing the lower age at 60?

Mr. TAWNEY. Undoubtedly it would, just the same as it would apply to 62, 65, 68, and 70, and if a future Commissioner should issue or execute an order of that kind, and in the judgment of Congress it was not a proper order or a proper fixing of a certain age, Congress, of course, could correct it in a future appropriation bill or by other appropriate legislation.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. In other words, that the Commissioner may take the initiative, and then Congress, which is the legislative body of this country, would solemnly ratify the action of that executive officer of this Government?

Mr. TAWNEY. I would say to the gentleman from Massachusetts if we were to adopt the amendment which the gentleman suggests it would not prevent a future Commissioner from issuing an order fixing the age of 60 at which a pensioner would be conclusively presumed to be one-fourth incapacitated and allow a pension on that basis, so that the law authorizing the making of the order still exists, notwithstanding the fact that we may put upon it the limit which the gentleman proposes.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. But the gentleman will concede that the right of the Pension Commissioner to make an order at all is somewhat doubtful; at least honest men may differ in the opinion?

Mr. TAWNEY. The right to do it is questioned.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Now, if this Congress mentions the ages, does not the gentleman think that that would be serving notice upon an executive officer of the Government that hereafter the Congress intended to legislate, and that he would better keep off the legislative grass?

Mr. TAWNEY. It might have a deterrent effect, no doubt, but the necessity for it I do not concede, as the gentleman from Massachusetts seems to think the necessity exists.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. If I may ask the gentleman one further question. The gentleman concedes the Commissioner would have the right to fix the age of 60, and this law would then apply to it automatically. Does not that involve the further concession upon his part that the Commissioner may repeal all existing orders and make the age 80, if he chooses?

Mr. TAWNEY. Well, I presume that he can.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Now, that illustrates the whole proposition. We leave the business of legislating concerning the ages at which soldiers may receive increases without medical examination to the discretion of an executive officer of this Government, and if this is not an abdication by Congress of its sole function I would like to know what it is.

Mr. TAWNEY. Well, Mr. Chairman, we deal with conditions as we find them in the statutes at the present time. If the Commissioner should abuse the power which Congress in the past has conferred upon him, the remedy is in our hands and would unquestionably apply it without any delay.

Mr. MAHON. May I ask the gentleman a question?

Mr. TAWNEY. I yield to the gentleman from Pennsylvania.

Mr. MAHON. Why not put in at the end of line 7, "provided this act shall not apply to any pensioner under the age of 62?" That will end the whole controversy.

Mr. TAWNEY. That would not obviate the difficulty complained of by the gentleman from Massachusetts, for the reason that if a future Commissioner should fix by order a lower limit of age at which the pensioner could obtain an increase without medical examination, when he applied for a future increase, why, of course, the law that we are proposing to pass would apply and he would receive an increase without medical examination.

Mr. MAHON. I would fix it so that age is a permanent specific disability and that the pensioner upon proof of his age would have his pension raised without further examination, provided this act shall not apply to a pensioner under the age of 62 years. That would be the law; I do not care what the Commissioner does.

Mr. TAWNEY. Well, Mr. Chairman, the Committee on Appropriations endeavored to correct by this proposed amendment a mistake or failure to note an existing statute in issuing Order 78, which has prevented the automatic increase of pension on account of age. We do not enter upon the domain of revising our pension laws or the orders which have been lawfully issued under those laws. We want to make this Order 78 what it was intended to be and what it was supposed to be, automatic in its operation, so as to permit a pensioner or an old soldier to obtain his pension under that order without going to the expense of a medical examination, and save the Government of the United States $250,000 annually which is now being expended for medical examinations.

I have nothing further to say, except to repeat that it is the desire of the Committee on Appropriations to accomplish by this amendment what everybody supposed Order No. 78 provided.

Mr. CURTIS. It was not the intention to prevent examinations when other disabilities were alleged?

Mr. TAWNEY. Not at all.

Mr. CURTIS. If a claimant alleged old age, which would only entitle him to $6 a month, and other disabilities in his application that would entitle him to a larger rating, there is nothing in the gentleman's amendment to prevent the claimant being examined?

Mr. TAWNEY. No.

Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts. Mr. Chairman, I yield five minutes to the gentleman from New York [Mr. BENNET].

Mr. BENNET of New York. Mr. Chairman, in connection with the Spanish war pensions, one of the saddest things to me has been the statement that so many of our soldiers died because of unskillful medical attention, and we have been taunted by foreigners since the Japanese-Russian war with the fact that that nation—so lately sprung from a semibarbaric condition, but so splendidly sprung, it is true—has excelled us in that one branch of the service, when we ought from all of our training and experience to excel them. We seem to have forgotten that they shrouded in the densest mystery all of the initial horrors of war. It is with a great deal of satisfaction that I have heard recently that the experts who are now coming back from the Japanese front, even with such limited information as they were able to get, are, even with that, demonstrating that in the Spanish-American war the efficiency of our medical arm excelled that of the Japanese, and particularly in our percentage of recoveries from bullet wounds. I think perhaps in connection with the remarks of the gentleman from Michigan [Mr. GARDNER] in relation to the Spanish-American war and the casualties resulting therefrom this statement may be important. [Applause.]

We find on the authority of Surgeon-General Forward that in Cuba and the Philippines in 1898 there were 1,682 wounded under treatment, of whom but 87 died, or 5.16 per cent. In the Philippines in 1899 there were under treatment 1,759 wounded, of whom even in that tropical climate but 116 died, or but 6.59 per cent. According to Major Seaman, who testified at length before a Congressional committee, the number of wounded under treatment in the Japanese-Russian war was 145,527, of whom at the latest reports 10,970 had died, or 7.53 per cent.

Apparently there are no reliable statistics at hand as to the number of deaths from disease in the Japanese armies or as to the loss of effectiveness through disease, though the American minister at Tokyo reported that at one time 25,000 Japanese were disabled through beriberi in front of Port Arthur. The disease from which a large number of our soldiers died in the Spanish-American war was typhoid fever, and the Japanese surgeons reported that there were no typhoid germs in Manchuria. Our soldiers were also exposed to the anopheles mosquitoes in Cuba. The fact that yellow fever was conveyed by mosquitoes was not fully understood at the time of the Spanish-American war, and it is not the least of the results of that war that such men as Gorgas and others have been enabled to do their work of experiment and cleansing in some heretofore hotbeds of yellow fever.

We can, I think, in view of these figures, feel some degree of confidence that though the unskilled surgeon has been to some degree and always will be one of the perils to be faced in any war, yet, as a whole, and compared with the latest medical department to be tested, that branch of our own service stands comparison well.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I call for the reading of the bill.

The bill was read at length.

Mr. EDWARDS. Mr. Chairman, I desire to offer an amendment which I send to the Clerk's desk.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from Kentucky offers an amendment which the Clerk will read.

The Clerk read as follows:

At end of line 7, page 2, add: "And that the Commissioner of Pensions is directed to add to the pensions of all pensioners $6 at the age of 62; $8 at the age of 65; $10 at the age of 68, and $12 at the age of 70. Provided, however, That no pension on account of age disability shall be more than $24 a month.

Mr. TAWNEY. Mr. Chairman, I make the point of order on that amendment that it changes existing law.

The CHAIRMAN. The bill having been read as a whole, and the paragraph therefore having been passed, it will be impossible for the committee to return to the paragraph sought to be amended unless by unanimous consent. The Chair, therefore, rules the point of order well taken and the amendment out of order.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Mr. Chairman, I move that the committee do now rise and report the bill to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly the committee rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. MADDEN, chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that committee had had under consideration the bill H. R. 13103, and had directed him to report the same to the House, with a recommendation that the bill do pass.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I move the previous question on the bill to its passage.

The question was taken, and the previous question was ordered.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the passage of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; was accordingly read a third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. GARDNER of Michigan, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, leave of absence was granted to Mr. MICHALEK for ten days, on account of important business.

LAND OFFICE AT KINGFISHER, OKLA.

Mr. LACEY. Mr. Speaker, I call up a privileged resolution—House resolution 202.

The Clerk read as follows:

House resolution No. 202.

Resolved, That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, requested to send to the House of Representatives of the United States, for its information, if not inconsistent with public interest, the report of the findings and recommendations made by Inspector E. B. Linnen, who in June, 1905, investigated and reported upon the condition of the land office at Kingfisher, Okla.

Second. That the Secretary of the Interior shall further submit to the House of Representatives of the United States all records, reports, and correspondence of all parties connected with the investigation of the charges of official misconduct against the then register and receiver of the United States land office at Kingfisher, Okla.

Third. That the Secretary of the Interior shall also submit to the House of Representatives a report setting forth his order or rulings relating to the charges against the said register and receiver of the said United States land office.

Fourth. That the Secretary of the Interior shall submit to the House of Representatives a copy of his order abolishing the United States land office at Kingfisher, Okla., and a copy of the records of his office showing the receipts of all of the United States land offices in Oklahoma during the last year preceding the date of his order abolishing the Kingfisher office.

Mr. LACEY. Mr. Speaker, the committee report back a substitute.

The Clerk read as follows:

Substitute for House resolution No. 202.

Strike out all after the word "Resolved" and insert the following:

"That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, requested to furnish the House of Representatives of the United States, for its information, if not inconsistent with the public interest, copies of all correspondence, records, orders, and a statement of the findings and recommendations of any inspector relative to the recent investigation of charges of official misconduct against the late register and receiver of the United States land office in Oklahoma for the year preceding such discontinuance, and such other information, if any there be, as the Secretary may deem pertinent and important to this inquiry."

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the amendment in the nature of a substitute.

The question was taken; and the amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER. The question is on the resolution as amended.

The question was taken; and the resolution as amended was agreed to.

CERTAIN LANDS IN OKLAHOMA TO BE OPENED FOR SETTLEMENT.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I desire to renew my request for unanimous consent for present consideration of the bill H. R. 431.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Texas renews his request, made this morning, for unanimous consent for the present consideration of a bill, which was read this morning, of which the Clerk will report the title.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 431) to open for settlement 505,000 acres of land in the Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache Indian reservations, in Oklahoma Territory.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection.

Mr. MANN. Reserving the right to object, I would like to have the gentleman make an explanation of the bill.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, a bill was passed in 1900, I think it was, opening the territory known as the "Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache reservations in Oklahoma," comprising 4,000,000 acres of land. It went to the Senate and there was an amendment put on the bill reserving the 480,000 acres named in this bill for pasturage purposes for the Indians. Since that time it has been ascertained that the Indians desire, and also the people of Oklahoma desire, that this pasture reserve should be opened for settlement. It is now used for that purpose, mainly, and a great deal of the land is fine agricultural land. There are two or three railroads built through that part of Oklahoma, and there is a great demand for these lands for homes and there is no objection to opening up the country; in fact, the Indians as well as the white people demand it.

This bill passed the House last year, but too late in the session to pass the Senate. It has the unanimous recommendation of the Committee on Indian Affairs. There have been several amendments made to the bill. The bill as introduced by me provided that the land should be sold on twenty years' time by paying one-twentieth in advance; the balance in twenty installments, covering twenty years. The committee amended the bill and have cut down the time to five years. We have placed the same restrictions and limitations in this bill that have been placed upon other bills opening other Indian Reservations. There is no material difference between the manner of opening this and the other reservations that have been recently opened.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. I would like to ask the gentleman a question.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Certainly.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. What privileges are allowed to ex-soldiers in regard to settling on this land?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Under this bill purchasers are required to live on the land five years, but if a soldier should be the purchaser, the time that he served in the Army would be taken out of the five years they are required to live upon the land before they can pay it out. The bill provides that the land shall be sold under rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior, conforming to the homestead laws.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. In their location?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Yes. They can purchase under this bill 160 acres of land, and are required to live on it five years and comply with the homestead laws of the United States.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. Can they locate and enter by agent or attorney?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. The locations or purchases will be made under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. That is left to the Department?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Yes; it is left to the Department.

Mr. KEIFER. I would like to ask the gentleman a question.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Certainly.

Mr. KEIFER. There is a provsiion in the bill which says that the Department have the sale of a certain proportion of the land.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. The whole of the pasture lands in the reservation are to be sold under this bill.

Mr. KEIFER. I may not have understood the Clerk when he read the bill. Is there a provision in it that limits the amount of land to be sold to one party to 260 acres?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Yes; only a quarter of a section, 160 acres, conforming to the homestead law, can be sold to one individual.

Mr. KEIFER. I did not hear the reading aright.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. It is a hundred and sixty acres that could be purchased by each individual.

Mr. KEIFER. I thought it was 260 acres, and I was going to inquire why that odd number of acres.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. MANN. There is one of the provisions in the bill here in reference to the leasing of lands.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. That has been amended, I would say to the gentleman, and stricken out.

Mr. MANN. The report does not so state. The report says that they are to be leased in quarter-section tracts, and that not more than one——

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. It seems to me that is another proposition. I would say to the gentleman he will find the bill on page 2 of the report as amended.

Mr. LACEY. The gentleman has the wrong bill.

Mr. MANN. This is the original bill.

Mr. LACEY. That is another subject—as to the leasing of coal lands.

Mr. MANN. Now, may I ask the gentleman from Texas as to the method of disposing of these lands?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. They are put up and sold by the Secretary of the Interior, under such rules and regulations as he may prescribe, in 160-acre blocks, to the highest bidder. The bidders will have to conform to the United States land laws and make settlement and remain on the land for five years, and make a payment of one-fifth down and one-fifth each year thereafter.

Mr. MANN. We are constantly asked by people, constituents and others, how it is possible to acquire lands that are thrown open to settlement this way. Now, I have never been able to ascertain myself, either from the Land Office or from the Committee on Indian Affairs or any other. Perhaps the gentleman who proposed the bill can tell us.

Mr. LACEY. If my friend from Texas will allow me——

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. I yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. LACEY. I would like to suggest to my friend that he has omitted an important provision as to the disposition of this land. It is to be sold at public auction under sealed bids. Parties who have a right to bid must be qualified homesteaders and can only purchase 160 acres.

Mr. MANN. Well, Mr. Speaker, I happened to be out West last summer and talking with gentlemen about the opening of the Uncompahgre Reservation. These gentlemen had been about the different reservations, and they all laughed at the idea of any of these reservations being opened on the square. I do not know what the facts are, but it seems to me that there ought to be some provision thrown around the opening of this new territory, so that the men who simply want to speculate out West should not be permitted to do that.

Mr. LACEY. This land is Indian land, and the man that pays the most for it will get it. It is to be sold under sealed bids, and the Indians are entitled to what it will bring. This land was reserved for them for pasture land, and it is no longer needed for that purpose. When sold the money will go to the Indians. No man will be allowed to bid on it unless he is a qualified homesteader, and he must live on it in order to get title to it.

Mr. MANN. I can see grave objections to putting up 480,000 acres of land in 160-acre tracts at auction under sealed bids. Nobody can tell what anybody else is going to bid or on what land they are going to bid.

Mr. LACEY. That is the object of it.

Mr. MANN. They might all bid on the same piece of ground, and very likely on some lots somebody may have no opposition. Why is it not put up in the open?

Mr. LACEY. Because it brings more under sealed bids.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Perhaps the gentleman from Illinois does not understand the methods by which these lands are opened.

Mr. MANN. That is what I am trying to get at.

Mr. FITZGERALD. The President issues a proclamation through the Department of the Interior, announcing that certain parts of this land may be bid upon. They do not invite bids upon the entire tract at one time; they carry it over different periods. They restrict, if I understand the operation correctly, the amount of land on which bids are invited at one time, and this has been found absolutely to be the best way to prevent the greatest abuses that the gentleman from Illinois and others complain about. Where they have an open public auction the result has been inevitably that syndicates obtain control of the entire tract.

Mr. MANN. Has the gentleman investigated this himself?

Mr. FITZGERALD. I examined the bill in a previous Congress, and there were changes made to satisfy me, and I feel that if they have fixed an Indian bill to satisfy me it would pretty nearly satisfy the gentleman from Illinois.

Mr. MANN. I think so myself, and therefore I make no objection.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the amendments.

The amendments were considered and agreed to.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; was read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. STEPHENS of Texas, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

LAND ALLOTTED TO INDIANS UNDER THE MOSES AGREEMENT.

Mr. JONES of Washington. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 10697) providing for the issuance of patents for lands allotted to Indians under the Moses agreement of July 7, 1883.

The Clerk read the bill as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to issue patents to such Indians as have been allotted land under and by virtue of the agreement concluded July 7, 1883, by and between the Secretary of the Interior and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and Chief Moses and other Indians of the Columbia and Colville reservations, commonly known as the Moses agreement, accepted, ratified, and confirmed by the act of Congress approved July 4, 1884 (23 Stats., pp. 79 and 80), which patents shall be of legal effect and declare that the United States does and will hold the land thus allotted for the period of ten years from the date of the approval of this act in trust for the sole use and benefit of the Indian to whom such allotment was made, or in case of his decease, either prior or subsequent to the issuance of such patent, of his heirs, according to the laws of the State of Washington, and that at the expiration of said period the United States will convey the same by patent to the said Indian, or his heirs as aforesaid, in fee, discharged of said trust and free of all charge or incumbrance whatsoever. And if any conveyance shall be made of the lands so held in trust by any allottee or his heirs, or any contract made touching the same, except as hereinafter provided, before the expiration of the time above mentioned, such conveyance or contract shall be absolutely null and void.

SEC. 2. That any allottee to whom any trust patent shall be issued under the provisions of the foregoing section may sell and convey all the lands covered thereby, except 80 acres, under rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior. And the heirs of any deceased Indian to whom a patent shall be issued under said section may in like manner sell and convey all of such inherited allotment except 80 acres, but in case of minor heirs their interests shall be sold only by a guardian duly appointed by the proper court upon the order of such court, made upon petition filed by the guardian, but all such conveyances shall be subject to the approval of the Secretary of the Interior, and when so approved shall convey a full title to the purchaser the same as if a final patent without restrictions upon alienation had been issued to the allottee. All allotted land alienated under the provisions of this act shall thereupon be subject to taxation under the laws of the State of Washington.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the present consideration of the bill?

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I think we ought to have some explanation.

Mr. JONES of Washington. Mr. Speaker, in 1883 an agreement was made with several Indians along the valley of the Columbia River, known as Chief Moses and others, by which they were to receive certain allotments. This agreement was ratified by Congress in 1884, and under that thirty-seven allotments have been made. The Department held in a decision rendered some time ago that under the agreement and act ratifying it they had no authority to issue patent; that the Indians were entitled to the land, to the use and occupation, but that there was no express direction to issue a patent. Now, this bill directs them to issue a patent to the land. The allotments cover about 640 acres each and they have been held by the Indians for twenty-odd years. This bill is recommended by the Commissioner of Indian Affairs and allows each Indian to sell of his allotment all the land except 80 acres, which he holds for ten years and can not dispose of it until the expiration of that time. These sales are to be under the rules and regulations prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior and must be approved by him. There are thirty-seven allotments. These are among the best Indians we have. They are self-supporting, nothing is given to them by the Government, and there is no reason in the world why they should hold 640 acres without the right to dispose of or sell any of it, and that is what this bill provides for.

Mr. MANN. We have had similar bills, or the gentleman has had similar bills to this in the House before?

Mr. JONES of Washington. I have never had any similar bill to this.

Mr. MANN. There have been similar bills in that neck of the woods, I think.

Mr. JONES of Washington. I think the gentleman has in mind the Colville Indian Reservation, which is entirely different from this. These are simply scattered Indians throughout the country. They are not in a compact body at all. Their lands are scattered here and there throughout the upper Columbia River Valley.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none. The question is on the engrossment and third reading of the bill.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time, read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. JONES of Washington, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

REPRINT OF BILL.

Mr. GRAHAM. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for a reprint of the bill (H. R. 9337) to amend sections 1 and 2 of the act of March 3, 1903, to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

TOWN SITES, ETC., IN CERTAIN INDIAN LANDS IN OKLAHOMA.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill (H. R. 11783) for the establishment of town sites and for the sale of lots within the common lands of the Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache Indians, in Oklahoma, which I send to the desk and ask to have read.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior, subject to the consent of three-fourths of the adult male Indians of the Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache tribes, to be obtained in such manner as he may designate, be, and he is hereby, authorized to set aside and reserve from allotment or leasing such of the common grazing lands of said tribes as he shall deem necessary for the establishment of town sites.

SEC. 2. That the lands so set aside and reserved shall be laid off and surveyed into lots, blocks, streets, and alleys, under rules and regulations to be prescribed by said Secretary, business lots to be 25 feet wide and residence lots 50 feet wide. The lots in said town sites shall be appraised, and after due advertisement shall be sold at public auction to the highest bidder, at not less than the appraised value, under such rules and regulations as the Secretary may prescribe: Provided, That in each of said town sites there shall be reserved from sale or other disposition, at the discretion of the Secretary, not to exceed one block for the establishment of common schools under the laws of Oklahoma: Provided further, That no malt, spirituous, or vinous liquors shall be kept or disposed of on the land sold and conveyed by the provisions of this act, and any violation of this condition, either by the grantee or any person claiming rights under him, shall render the conveyance void and cause the premises to revert to the Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache Indians.

SEC. 3. That the surveys, appraisals, and sales herein provided for shall be made by such person or persons connected with the Indian Service as the Secretary of the Interior may designate, and all of the expenses connected with the survey, appraisal, and sale of the lots shall be paid out of the proceeds of the sales. The net proceeds of the sales shall be deposited in the Treasury to the credit of the Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache Indians, or shall be paid to them per capita, in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior.

With the following amendments:

Strike out, after the word "Interior," line 3, page 1, all down to and including the word "he," in line 6, same page.

Strike out all of the proviso on page 2 after the word "further," in line 9, and insert in lieu thereof:

"That no person shall sell or give away any intoxicating liquor or other intoxicants upon any of the lands sold and conveyed by the provisions of this act, and any person so selling or giving away liquor or other intoxicants shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be punished, upon conviction, by imprisonment for not more than two years and by a fine of not more than $1,000."

In line 23, page 2, after the word "Indians," insert "with interest to be paid them at the rate of 4 per cent per annum."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to have the gentleman make some explanation of this bill.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, this bill is a companion bill to the one just passed. I refer to the bill which we have just passed providing for the opening of the pasture reservation of four hundred and odd thousand acres of land in Oklahoma Territory. This bill provides for the laying out of town sites on this land. I will state to the gentleman that the Rock Island Railroad has now built about 20 miles of track into that reservation, not going through it, but into it, and there are two stations where there will be town sites laid out. This will cause the land to bring a great deal more money for the Indians by having it laid out in town lots and sold than if sold in blocks of 160 acres. This bill is for the purpose of making the land bring more money for the Kiowa and Comanche Indians, and thus taking these tribes off the hands of the Government as soon as possible.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas. This bill provides for town sites within the land that has just been provided for in the bill just passed?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. That is right.

Mr. MANN. Does this bill have all the safeguards that are ordinary in bills of this kind?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Exactly, with the addition of the provision relative to the sale of intoxicating liquors, but that is prohibited in all Indian reservations, as the gentleman knows.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. Does the bill passed a while ago carry that provision for the sale of that land hereafter?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. No; this will be construed in connection with that, because they are both under the control of the Secretary of the Interior. The Secretary of the Interior would set apart the town sites provided for in this bill before he would order the other lands sold; the town sites would be laid off into lots, blocks, streets, etc., and are to be disposed of under this bill.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. Is the sale of liquor prohibited on any of this other land except the town sites?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. No; that provision is not in the other bill, because it is not presumed that any saloons will be opened up on country farms.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. What good will it do to lay off a border of a mile square for a town site and prohibit the sale of liquor on that, when a man can go on the land just outside of that and set up a liquor store?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Mr. Speaker, a saloon would not exist long in the country. This liquor provision was at the request of the people living in that country, and I will say to the gentleman that it was suggested by persons who wanted to protect the Indians from the sale of intoxicating liquors, which he knows has always been the policy of this Government.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. It seems to me it is a very nice way of enhancing the value of the land just outside of the town sites.

Mr. FITZGERALD. There is a provision in this bill, unless it is taken out by amendment, that reserves one block in each town site for school purposes for the schools of the Territory of Oklahoma. The statehood bill, which was passed here, if I recollect correctly, provided a lump sum to be paid to these new States in lieu of the school lands. Would not this be an additional grant?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. I think that might be construed to be an additional grant. I am perfectly willing, however, that they should have that additional grant.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Who pays the Indians for this land that is reserved out?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. The Indians are living in that country, and they would be benefited and thus paid by that school-lot reservation clause in common with the people who buy the lands and become citizens in that reservation.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Has it been customary to take the Indians' lands and turn them over to a Territory or State for school purposes without compensating the Indians for that particular land?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. No; but in every reservation that I know of that have been thrown open some lands have been taken; some for graveyards, some for school or other eleemosynary purposes, and this is no new provision in a bill opening Indian reservations for settlement.

Mr. FITZGERALD. My recollection is whenever we have taken the Indians' land for school purposes there has been a provision that the United States should pay the Indians for the value of the land taken. Why should the land of the Indians be appropriated by any Territory or State or the United States for school purposes, not for themselves alone but for the Indians and the whites in that community?

Mr. MANN. Do they not get more for the balance of the land if they are permitted to sell that way? Why should not the Government secure land for school purposes? And in addition they should donate at least a block for Government purposes in the town. We let them sell their land for a great deal more than they would sell it for otherwise.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Of course it is very generous on our part to permit them to sell their land for as much as they can get; I appreciate that.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas. Will it not enhance the value of the land for sale to have this provision made?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. That is the view the committee took of the matter.

Mr. FITZGERALD. It has been the universal principle that this Government should pay to the Indians the value of the land for school purposes.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas. But the fact that land is set aside for school purposes will enhance the value of the town lots surrounding it.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Not necessarily at all.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. I will state to the gentleman that we had all this matter under discussion before the committee and examined it very carefully, and arrived at the conclusions stated in the bill, and we have presented it to the House by unanimous report, and it is the companion to the bill which has just passed the House. I hope there will be no objection to its present consideration.

Mr. FITZGERALD. Well, I have had a great deal of experience with unanimous reports, and I have great doubt——

Mr. MANN. I could not see that the gentleman from Texas paid any attention yesterday to a unanimous report from another committee.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. I was not on that committee, it happens.

Mr. MANN. Well, the committee would have been graced if the gentleman had been on it. May I ask the gentleman, Is there any provision in the companion bill for school lands?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. That has been provided for, I understand, in another piece of legislation for Oklahoma.

Mr. MANN. Are there any school lands reserved in this 480,000 acres of land?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. I do not think there are, because the reservation has been made covering that heretofore in another Oklahoma land bill.

Mr. MANN. In the same locality?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. In former legislation.

Mr. MANN. In the same land?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. It was set apart under the instructions and direction of the Secretary of the Interior out of the public lands of Oklahoma.

Mr. MANN. In this 480,000 acres of land?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. No; it was set apart in other lands in Oklahoma. Oklahoma gets the same amount of land she would have gotten had this been thrown open under the general law.

Mr. MANN. That will not represent school districts in this land.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. It does, because for the lands sold under this bill Oklahoma gets the amount of land in other school lands that she is entitled to.

Mr. MANN. I am afraid not.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas. Is it not a fact this land outside the towns you have incorporated will get a part of the $5,000,000 that the law provides for a school fund for the new State?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Certainly. Every child on the reservation gets as much as if they were living off the reservation.

Mr. MANN. May I ask the gentleman if it would not be good policy in town sites to reserve some ground for a Government building and as a Government reservation?

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. I will state to the gentleman there is no county seat in this 400,000 acres and probably never will be, and it is not contemplated they will put one there, and it is not possible to have a Government building where there is no county seat.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman is not familiar with the history of public buildings or he would not say it was not possible to put a public building where there is no county seat. Sometimes they put them where there is no population.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the amendments.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; was read a third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. STEPHENS of Texas, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

TO AMEND SECTION 5501, REVISED STATUTES OF THE UNITED STATES.

Mr. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill H. R. 10129.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Alabama [Mr. CLAYTON] asks unanimous consent for present consideration of the bill H. R. 10129, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That section 5501 of the Revised Statutes of the United States is hereby amended by adding thereto the following:

"SEC. 5501a. Every officer of the United States and every person acting for or on behalf of the United States in any official capacity under or by virtue of the authority of any Department or office of the Government, who shall, by virtue of the office or position held by him, become possessed of any information which might exert an influence upon or affect the market value of any product grown within the United States, or which might exert an influence upon or affect the market value of the bonds of the United States or the stocks or bonds of any incorporated company, which information is required by law or under the rules and practices of any Department of the Government to be withheld from publication until a fixed time, who shall willfully impart, either directly or indirectly, said information, or any part thereof, to any person not entitled under the law or rules and practices of the Department of the Government to receive same, shall be punished by imprisonment for not less than three nor more than ten years, and shall be fined in any sum not to exceed $10,000.

"SEC. 5501b. Every officer of the United States and every person acting for or on behalf of the United States in any official capacity under or by virtue of any Department or office of the Government, who shall, by virtue of the office or position held by him, become possessed of any information which might exert an influence upon or affect the market value of any product grown within the United States, or which might exert an influence upon or affect the market value of the bonds of the United States or the stocks or bonds of any incorporated company, who shall, before said information is made public through regular official channels, either directly or indirectly, speculate in said product, stocks, or bonds, by selling or buying same in any quantity, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $10,000 and may be imprisoned for not more than ten years."

Also the following amendments:

In line 6, page 1, after the word "officer," insert the words "or employee."

In lines 9 and 10, page 1, strike out the words "by virtue of" and insert instead the words "while holding said such."

In line 10, page 1, strike out the words "held by him."

In line 11, page 1, strike out the word "might" and insert instead the words "would tend to."

In line 13, page 1, strike out the word "might" and insert instead the words "would tend to."

In line 2, page 2, strike out the words "and practices."

In line 4, page 2, after the word "time," insert the word "and."

In line 6, page 2, strike out the word "and."

In line 7, page 2, strike out the word "practices."

In line 8, page 2, strike out the words "less than."

In line 9, page 2, strike out the words "three nor."

In line 9, page 2, strike out the word "ten" and insert the word "five."

In line 10, page 2, strike out the word "ten" and insert the word "five."

In line 11, page 2, after the word "officer," insert the words "or employee."

In line 16, page 2, strike out the word "might" and insert instead the words "would tend to."

In line 18, page 2, strike out the word "might" and insert instead the words "would tend to."

In line 20, page 2, after the word "company," insert the word "and."

In line 24, page 2, strike out the word "ten" and insert instead the word "five."

In line 25, page 2, strike out the word "ten" and insert the word "five."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

Mr. MANN. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like to ask the gentleman from Alabama [Mr. CLAYTON] what he means by the words "any quantity." The bill reads:

The officer who shall speculate in said product, stock, or bonds, by selling or buying same in any quantity.

I do not know just what the definition of "speculation" might be. I suppose the words "any quantity," are intended to convey the idea of considerable quantity.

Mr. CLAYTON. I would like to have the gentleman read that again. I did not hear him.

Mr. MANN. I refer to page 3, line 1, where it forbids buying or selling in any quantity. What is the gentleman's idea of that—considerable quantity or a small quantity?

Mr. CLAYTON. I think the language is plain enough. It is to prevent speculation in case where one stands in the confidential relation to the Government.

Mr. MANN. I see what the purpose is.

Mr. CLAYTON. The second section is to prevent speculation in stocks or bonds, and so forth, by the Government employee or officer; and the committee did not think it well to specify any particular amount of products or any particular number of bonds.

Mr. MANN. But eliminate the question of stocks and bonds, and the question of products might mean the purchase of flour. It might be called a speculation for one to buy flour to eat.

Mr. CLAYTON. I do not think the gentleman would seriously contend that that would be a violation of this law in the case he instances. It is not intended, manifestly, to reach such a case as that. The object, as the gentleman well knows, is to prevent the premature divulgence of the statistics gathered by the different Departments.

Mr. MANN. I am not referring to that.

Mr. CLAYTON. I am coming to the other, and also this second section as to where bonds are about to be issued. It prevents people who are in confidential possession of information in regard to that matter from speculating in such bonds. And it is to prevent those who are in the possession of the figures in regard to products from speculating in those products prior to the promulgation of the information gathered by the Department.

Mr. MANN. I see what the purpose of the bill is, and it is a very laudable purpose. I quite agree with the gentleman as to that.

Mr. CLAYTON. I thank the gentleman for agreeing with the committee.

Mr. MANN. What is the purpose in saying "in any quantity?"

Mr. CLAYTON. It means in any quantity whatsoever.

Mr. WILLIAMS. In any quantity whatsoever.

Mr. MANN. It seems to me that "selling or buying" covers the case. I think the purpose of the man who wrote it was to mean by "any quantity" not a small quantity, but a considerable quantity.

Mr. CLAYTON. Does the gentleman think that would add anything to the bill?

Mr. MANN. I think it would add to the bill to strike out "in any quantity" and leave it to read "by selling or buying same."

Mr. CLAYTON. Mr. Speaker, I have no objection to that, if the gentleman from Illinois [Mr. MANN] wants it done. I think it means the same thing. The gentleman might be justified in treating "in any quantity" as surplusage. Whether these words be stricken out or not, there could be no violation of the law except in case where the speculation was had in regard to some quantity.

Mr. MANN. Speculating by "buying or selling" means one thing. We know what that means; but speculating by "buying or selling in any quantity" might cover the purchase of flour to eat.

Mr. CLAYTON. It only has reference as to speculating, and could not cover the case named by the gentleman. Without the words "in any quantity" it would mean the same thing. Buying flour to eat is not speculating.

Mr. JAMES. Is there any provision in this bill that prevents the premature divulgence of statistics or information in regard to the tobacco crop?

Mr. CLAYTON. Any agricultural product.

Mr. Speaker, this bill is intended to cover statistics gathered in reference to the tobacco crop as well as any other crop. It intends to correct that very evil; and, furthermore, Mr. Speaker, it is in accordance with the recommendation in the message of the President to Congress, to prevent the premature divulgence of this information gathered by the different Departments.

Mr. WILLIAMS. To prevent criminal acts similar to that of Holmes?

Mr. CLAYTON. To prevent the criminal acts of such as Holmes and others who were concerned in prematurely divulging cotton figures last fall.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Is it at the request of the cotton growers in the United States?

Mr. CLAYTON. It is not at the request of any particular class. The cotton people desire it, the tobacco people desire it, the grain growers desire it, and the President has recommended it in his message.

The measure is to prevent such scandalous conduct as that of certain employees in the Agricultural Department, committed a few months ago, to the injury of the cotton growers and spinners.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

The SPEAKER. The question is on agreeing to the amendments.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed and read a third time; and it was read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. CLAYTON, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. PARKINSON, its reading clerk, announced that the Senate had passed without amendment bills of the following titles:

H. R. 10434. An act granting an increase of pension to Samuel F. King;

H. R. 5925. An act granting an increase of pension to David L. Davidson;

H. R. 724. An act granting an increase of pension to John A. Coulter;

H. R. 10192. An act granting an increase of pension to Alanson B. Thomas;

H. R. 611. An act granting an increase of pension to John H. Cassidy;

H. R. 1437. An act granting an increase of pension to Darius J. Brown;

H. R. 2345. An act granting an increase of pension to Antoinette Hannahs;

H. R. 3605. An act granting an increase of pension to Albert Lathrop;

H. R. 6144. An act granting an increase of pension to Eli Brazelton;

H. R. 6143. An act granting an increase of pension to James Eiffert;

H. R. 5644. An act granting an increase of pension to George J. Wilcox;

H. R. 6157. An act granting an increase of pension to Jonathan J. Boyer;

H. R. 6338. An act granting an increase of pension to Richard McCarthy;

H. R. 6227. An act granting an increase of pension to Samuel J. Jones;

H. R. 1884. An act granting an increase of pension to Robert Purcell;

H. R. 1545. An act granting a pension to Florence D. Rafferty;
H. R. 1952. An act granting an increase of pension to Axel A. M. Natt och Dag;
H. R. 10299. An act granting an increase of pension to Sarah C. Long;
H. R. 10296. An act granting an increase of pension to James Graham;
H. R. 5808. An act granting an increase of pension to Napoleon D. O. Lord;
H. R. 5955. An act granting an increase of pension to Jennie L. Overton;
H. R. 530. An act granting an increase of pension to George E. Ross;
H. R. 4391. An act granting an increase of pension to William John Stewart;
H. R. 2795. An act granting a pension to Emma Auger;
H. R. 2771. An act granting an increase of pension to Thomas McCabe;
H. R. 3400. An act granting an increase of pension to Anson K. Carr;
H. R. 4732. An act granting an increase of pension to James Scrogum;
H. R. 10436. An act granting an increase of pension to John A. Ensminger;
H. R. 4827. An act granting an increase of pension to Thomas E. Morrow;
H. R. 4964. An act granting an increase of pension to Nancy Stillwell;
H. R. 6448. An act granting an increase of pension to Samuel A. Shaw;
H. R. 4884. An act granting an increase of pension to John Bokart;
H. R. 5254. An act granting an increase of pension to Travis W. Tichenor;
H. R. 6451. An act granting an increase of pension to Adam Wuchor;
H. R. 1059. An act granting an increase of pension to Elijah Spengler;
H. R. 1213. An act granting an increase of pension to John Briden;
H. R. 2084. An act granting an increase of pension to Thomas Maginley;
H. R. 2083. An act granting an increase of pension to Thomas A. Slack;
H. R. 8222. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry B. Jordan;
H. R. 11596. An act granting a pension to Marion H. Long;
H. R. 2811. An act granting a pension to Angie A. Marvin;
H. R. 5170. An act granting an increase of pension to David R. Pringle;
H. R. 1131. An act granting an increase of pension to George Sargent;
H. R. 1136. An act granting an increase of pension to William D. Stauffer;
H. R. 1382. An act granting an increase of pension to Benjamin Fagley;
H. R. 11310. An act granting a pension to Emma Aldred;
H. R. 1072. An act granting an increase of pension to John Fisher;
H. R. 1958. An act granting a pension to Ida L. and Clara E. Winters;
H. R. 11403. An act granting an increase of pension to David E. Longsdorf;
H. R. 4822. An act granting an increase of pension to Gabriel Smith;
H. R. 8217. An act granting an increase of pension to Sarah A. J. Tayman.
H. R. 1974. An act granting an increase of pension to William R. P. Foale;
H. R. 11324. An act granting an increase of pension to Sarah E. MacGowan;
H. R. 7420. An act granting an increase of pension to Michael Wren;
H. R. 7418. An act granting an increase of pension to Fritz Muller;
H. R. 6192. An act granting an increase of pension to Edward J. Mills;
H. R. 5016. An act granting an increase of pension to Francis Carey;
H. R. 5015. An act granting an increase of pension to Edwin R. Goodell;
H. R. 4879. An act granting an increase of pension to John W. Roache;
H. R. 4607. An act granting a pension to Annie Rohr;
S. 3587. An act granting an increase of pension to Eliza Orr;
H. R. 4738. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry Roberts;
H. R. 4739. An act granting an increase of pension to Lawrence B. Smith;
H. R. 5238. An act granting an increase of pension to Lockey Stuard;
H. R. 1283. An act granting an increase of pension to Epsy Ann Austin;
H. R. 2169. An act granting an increase of pension to Elisha White;
H. R. 2291. An act granting an increase of pension to William Elmes;
H. R. 2289. An act granting an increase of pension to Algernon Lightcap;
H. R. 1280. An act granting a pension to Mary K. Lewis;
H. R. 3678. An act granting an increase of pension to Jonathan C. S. Twitchell;
H. R. 6228. An act granting an increase of pension to Jonathan Terrell;
H. R. 10765. An act granting an increase of pension to Robert M. Whitson;
H. R. 2113. An act granting an increase of pension to Lydia B. Jackson;
H. R. 4224. An act granting an increase of pension to Christopher Pletzke;
H. R. 4225. An act granting an increase of pension to Nathaniel Cooper;
H. R. 4727. An act granting a pension to Emma M. Boyer;
H. R. 4730. An act granting an increase of pension to Meshack L. Jones;
H. R. 1124. An act granting an increase of pension to John J. Grant;
H. R. 1125. An act granting an increase of pension to Frances Ann Batchelor;
H. R. 1123. An act granting an increase of pension to Sarah Emaline Finklea;
H. R. 4215. An act granting an increase of pension to John A. Roberts;
H. R. 4217. An act granting an increase of pension to Daniel M. Rose;
H. R. 4218. An act granting an increase of pension to John M. Williamson;
H. R. 1467. An act granting an increase of pension to Hiram E. Monroe;
H. R. 4735. An act granting an increase of pension to Thomas Adair;
H. R. 4737. An act granting an increase of pension to Odilia Logan;
H. R. 3380. An act granting an increase of pension to George W. Wilburn;
H. R. 8618. An act granting an increase of pension to John G. Rowan;
H. R. 1797. An act granting a pension to James H. Cole;
H. R. 3216. An act granting an increase of pension to John W. Seeber;
H. R. 3214. An act granting a pension to Maggie Parker;
H. R. 4195. An act granting an increase of pension to Hamilton Secheverell;
H. R. 4713. An act granting an increase of pension to Mary M. C. Manning;
H. R. 4765. An act granting an increase of pension to George W. Shepherd;
H. R. 9352. An act granting a pension to Mary Van Blarcom;
H. R. 2394. An act granting an increase of pension to Frank Buncher; and
H. R. 8442. An act permitting the building of a dam across the Rock River at Grand Detour, Ill.

ENROLLED BILL PRESENTED TO THE PRESIDENT FOR HIS APPROVAL.

Mr. WACHTER, from the Committee on Enrolled Bills, reported that this day they had presented to the President of the United States for his approval the following bill:

H. R. 5289. An act to provide for the selection of grand and petit jurors for the district courts in the Territory of Oklahoma.

LAND OFFICE QUITCLAIM IN FOREST RESERVES.

Mr. LACEY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent to call up for present consideration the bill H. R. 8970.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 8970) authorizing the Commissioner of the General Land Office to quitclaim the title conveyed to the United States for land in forest reservations, under certain conditions.

Be it enacted, etc., That in all cases where any person, persons, or corporations have heretofore conveyed, or may hereafter convey, to the United States, the fee title, or purporting to convey the fee title, to any entered or patented lands situate within any of the forest reservations created under and by virtue of the twenty-fourth section of the act of Congress approved March 3, 1891 (Twenty-sixth Statutes, p. 1095), with the intention of selecting lieu land therefor from the public domain, under the act of Congress approved June 4, 1897 (Thirtieth Statutes, pp. 34 to 36), but which can not be accepted by the Government of the United States on account of defective title to base land so surrendered, then it shall be the duty of the Commissioner of the General Land Office, upon request of such person, persons, or corporation, to reconvey the title to such lands to the selector by special quitclaim deed of the United States: Provided, That the reconveyance by the United States as aforesaid shall not preclude such person, persons, or corporation and their grantors from subsequently making a further exchange or selection of public land in accordance with the terms and provisions of the said act of Congress approved June 4, 1897, and amendments thereto (Thirtieth Statutes, pp. 34 to 36): And provided further, That no reconveyance shall be made by the United States under this act except where the title attempted to be conveyed to the United States has become a matter of record within the State or Territory wherein the base lands in such forest reservations are situate.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

On page 1, in line 4, after the word "conveyed," strike out "or may hereafter convey."

In line 5, after the word "or," insert the words "executed an instrument."

On page 2, after the word "surrendered," in line 2, insert "or on account of the repeal of said acts."

In lines 4 and 5, after "Land Office," strike out all down to and including the word "corporation."

Further strike out, beginning with the word "That," in line 6, all down to and including the word "further," in line 13.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. I would like to have an explanation of the bill, reserving the right to object.

Mr. LACEY. Mr. Speaker, in the last Congress the forest lieu-land law was repealed. There had been a great deal of land embraced within the limitations of forest reserves which had been conveyed to the United States under the lieu-land law, the conveyors having the right to make a selection of other land outside, on the public domain, on land open to settlement. This law was repealed without any saving clause whatever to the parties who had conveyed the land and who had not yet made their selection. They have asked Congress to grant them the right hereafter to go on and make selections—extending the time. It was deemed best not to do this; that the law had been abused so extensively that it ought to be repealed, and having been repealed, these parties not having made their selection, having had time to do so, it was not thought best to keep the law alive for their benefit. But as their land has been conveyed to the Government, the Government having conveyed them nothing in return, this bill simply authorizes the Land Department to quitclaim back to the parties the land that they have conveyed to the Government and in exchange for which they have not selected any other land.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. If this bill passess they will then become the owners by conveyance from the United States Government of land within a forest reservation.

Mr. LACEY. They will simply remain the owners of their own land that they have conveyed to the Government under the law, and they have not any land at all either outside or in, and this just puts them as if they had made no conveyance.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. They have received no consideration for the conveyance?

Mr. LACEY. None whatever.

Mr. MANN. How did they convey it?

Mr. LACEY. They conveyed it under the lieu-land law. They were required to furnish an abstract of title and a perfect title in the land and then convey it, making a full conveyance. It had to be recorded, and then having conveyed the land to the Government, they would apply under the conveyance for the privilege of selecting other lands in lieu. They have taken the first step, and then the repeal of the law prevents them getting any land in its place.

Mr. MANN. May I ask the gentleman if it is something like this: The gentleman signs his receipt for his pay before he gets it. The receipt goes down and then the Government refuses to pay him, and he would like to have his receipt back.

Mr. LACEY. He would like to get his receipt back; that is about the size of it.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. As I understand the gentleman from Iowa, when the bill repealing the act referred to was under consideration Congress absolutely refused to protect the rights of these men who had given up their land in the forest reservation.

Mr. LACEY. They stampeded, or some of them did, to get their conveyances on file before the repeal was effected, in order to get this lieu-land right, which was more valuable than the land that they then had; and it was not deemed best to protect them under the circumstances. There is, however, one other class included in this bill to which I have not yet referred, namely, the men whose title was held by the Government not to be perfect. They said, "You have made a conveyance, but there is a defect in your title," and therefore the Government refused to accept it before the repeal of this law. Now, whatever title they may have had they will get back under this bill by a quitclaim.

Mr. JONES of Washington. Have your committee considered the question of allowing these persons who have surrendered to the Government with the intention of making this new selection an opportunity to go on and complete their selection?

Mr. LACEY. We have. There are bills to that effect pending before the committee, and the committee were opposed to reopening this question. That matter was thoroughly discussed during the many months' time in which the repeal was pending in Congress. It having been repealed, they having the opportunity to make selection, it was not deemed wise to open the question again; but they can be put back just where they were, and no harm will be done.

Mr. JONES of Washington. You put them back in the same position they were before the bill was passed?

Mr. LACEY. Yes.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Is the gentleman certain that this does nothing more than to put them back where they were before? For example: Suppose a case of a defective title, and suppose the reason why the title is defective was on account of a counterclaim on the part of the United States—the United States did not think it had been divested of the title. Now, if the United States gives a quitclaim deed, of course it makes that title good.

Mr. LACEY. The provision is to put them in the same position that they would have been in if they had not made any conveyance to the Government.

Mr. WILLIAMS. But if you give a quitclaim deed of land concerning which there is dispute about the title between the Government and the person, if the Government gives the quitclaim deed to that person, it would make the title good.

Mr. LACEY. I do not think there is any case of that sort. The bill only gives him the same title that he conveyed to the Government.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. Isn't it a fact that a good many of the settlers have moved off the reservation?

Mr. LACEY. They all had an opportunity to make a selection, and they failed to do it. Most of the rights have passed into the hands of outsiders and speculators. The man who had one of these lieu rights and knew the law was about to be repealed had two propositions open to him. One was to make a selection before the law was repealed, and the other was to hold on to it, hoping that Congress might extend the time after the repeal of the law had made this class of rights scarce and therefore enhanced the value of them; and those who held on to those rights did so for the purpose of future selection. They took the chances on that; but notwithstanding all that they ought to have back that which was not paid for.

Mr. STEPHENS of Texas. The gentleman will remember that during the closing hours of the last session of Congress, when we were repealing the lieu-land law, I took the position that the settlers should be protected. Now it seems an act of late and tardy justice that this measure has been brought in. I congratulate the gentleman.

Mr. LACEY. Well, this protects them fully. The protection they asked for at that time was that they might go on and make future selections. This is quite a different proposition.

Mr. JONES of Washington. Has the gentleman any information whether the persons to be benefited by the act are settlers?

Mr. LACEY. Both settlers and railroads. I think the railroads will have more than anybody else.

Mr. JONES of Washington. How much land will be affected by it?

Mr. LACEY. I don't know the amount, but it will amount to a good many acres in the aggregate when you consider the land grants.

Mr. JONES of Washington. I know it was understood before the lieu-land act was repealed that it was the policy of the Department to accept a relinquishment only when accompanied with a selection of new land.

Mr. LACEY. That policy was suggested, but it never has been strictly followed.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman from Iowa says he has no idea of the number of acres to be affected by this provision. Is it not an easy matter to ascertain?

Mr. LACEY. No; it is not, and for this reason: They file the deed and have it recorded in the local office. They furnish proof at Washington of the fact that they have made this reconveyance and file a selection of the additional land with the local land office. It would be a very difficult matter to ascertain the exact amount. I have been told, as far as the railroad land is concerned, that it will run up into several hundred thousand acres.

Mr. MANN. Is the General Land Office conducted so loosely that when a quitclaim deed is given to the Government it is filed in the local land office and no report made to the General Land Office?

Mr. LACEY. That is a peculiarity of that lieu-land law. If the gentleman had a quarter section of land on a forest reservation, he would make out an abstract of title and file his deed in the office in the county where the land is situated. He would make a selection afterwards.

Mr. MANN. The deed is filed and the fee paid by the other party?

Mr. LACEY. By the man that makes the conveyance.

Mr. MANN. But no notice is given to the Government?

Mr. LACEY. Not until he files his papers of selection with the Land Office.

Mr. MANN. No notice given at the time?

Mr. LACEY. No.

Mr. MANN. And up to the present time no notice has been given to the Government, I suppose?

Mr. LACEY. In most cases I presume it is through the local land office, but that would require a very laborious tabulation to ascertain just how many acres would be covered.

Mr. MANN. Who is asking for this legislation, if nobody knows who is interested in it?

Mr. LACEY. The Department is asking it. They want to get rid of this land. There is no other way to get rid of it. It is now held by the Government and no taxes paid upon it. The parties making the conveyance to the Government, the Government holds it as trustee. The Government does not own it. In equity it becomes a trustee for the parties who make the conveyance.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Is not this land mainly within forest reservations?

Mr. LACEY. It is all within forest reservations.

Mr. WILLIAMS. They expect to get a revenue from that?

Mr. LACEY. It is in counties. We put in a provision that the reconveyance shall be made, otherwise the parties might not ask for it, because they might assume that the land being in the hands of the Government, they might reserve their right to call for a reconveyance, because as long as it is in the hands of the Government they would not have to pay any taxes. Consequently we put in this bill an amendment requiring that the conveyance shall be made without waiting for a demand.

Mr. MANN. The gentleman says that the Department wants this?

Mr. LACEY. Oh, yes.

Mr. MANN. Yet the Department does not know anything about it. It has not been notified that these deeds have been recorded.

Mr. LACEY. Oh, yes; notified of thousands of them.

Mr. MANN. We ought to have a record of them. We ought to know how many there are.

Mr. LACEY. If there was only one of them, this bill ought to pass.

Mr. MANN. If there was only one of them, nobody would object to it.

Mr. LACEY. If there were 5,000 of them, it ought to pass. Consequently, I suppose, if the question were important as to just how much land would be covered by this proposition I could have ascertained it approximately, but as it was a question involving a matter of right to the parties that owned it, whether great or small, I made no effort to ascertain the exact or approximate amount of land thus held.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. Is this bill so guarded that a man who conveyed his land in a forest reserve to the Government and then went out and took up land in lieu of it could not come back and claim that he never had selected land and claim a reconveyance under this act?

Mr. LACEY. This does not cover any case of that kind. It covers only those cases where he has made no selection; where he has conveyed the land, but has not selected land in its place.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. How is that to be determined?

Mr. LACEY. It is a very simple matter for the Department. They have the deeds, and all they have to do is to see whether for the land conveyed there has been selected lieu land in place of it. If there has not been, they will reconvey it; if there has been, that ends it.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. Suppose he has selected and sold, before conveyance to him, the new selection and transfer to some other man?

Mr. LACEY. Whenever he selects the land and the selection is approved, that closes the incident. The difficulty about this whole question is that the law required that the grantor should first file his deed for record before making the selection, and that being the case it has left a number of them suspended in the air. Where he has made the selection and it has been approved, that closes the whole matter.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. Yes; if it is made and he has not transferred it by conveyance.

Mr. LACEY. Oh, well, he may have transferred his lieu right before selection. It makes no difference.

Mr. SMITH of Kentucky. What provision is there in this bill to safeguard the Government?

Mr. LACEY. None whatever in that respect, because the Government could not possibly be injured in that manner. This only covers cases where the selection has not been made either by him or his assignees. The Government has full record of all selections made by the parties who have made deeds to the Government.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I understand that wherever lieu land has been selected for any particular land, the record of that transaction is here in Washington.

Mr. LACEY. That transaction is made of record in Washington.

Mr. WILLIAMS. It is the uncompleted transaction which is not in Washington.

Mr. LACEY. Yes; they come together when completed. One extinguishes the other.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The question was taken; and the amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. LACEY, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

Mr. GARDNER of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly (at 5 o'clock p. m.) the House adjourned to meet to-morrow, Friday, February 9, 1906, at 12 o'clock noon.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, the following executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred by the Speaker as follows:

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Acting Attorney-General submitting an amended estimate of appropriation for fees of district attorney for District of Columbia—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Court of Claims submitting an estimate of appropriation for certain alterations and furnishing in the rooms of the court—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Navy, transmitting a detailed statement of the expenditures on the Connecticut, Louisiana, and other vessels—to the Committee on Naval Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of the Interior submitting an estimate of appropriation for defraying the expenses of the United States Board on Geographic Names—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII, bills and resolutions of the following titles were severally reported from committees, delivered to the Clerk, and referred to the several Calendars therein named, as follows:

Mr. MARTIN, from the Committee on the Public Lands, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13542) authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to lease land in Stanley County, S. Dak., for a buffalo pasture, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1108); which said bill and report were referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 12614) to restore the name of California avenue, in the city of Washington, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1107); which said bill and report were referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. BROWN, from the Committee on Mines and Mining, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13367) to amend section 13 of an act of March 1, 1893, entitled "An act to create the California Débris Commission and regulate hydraulic mining in the State of California," reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1110); which said bill and report were referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 8997) to regulate the practice of pharmacy and the sale of poisons in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1111); which said bill and report were referred to the House Calendar.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were severally reported from committees, delivered to the Clerk, and referred to the Committee of the Whole House, as follows:

Mr. DICKSON of Illinois, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 648) granting a pension to Charles Falbisaner, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1069); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. PATTERSON of Pennsylvania, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 1483) granting an increase of pension to Josephine E. Quentin, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1070); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. RICHARDSON of Kentucky, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 1888) granting a pension to William T. Scandlyn, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1071); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. AMES, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 2054) granting an increase of pension to Ralph A. Adams, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1072); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. MACON, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 2116) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Hayes, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1073); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

He also, from the same committee, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 2306) granting an increase of pension to James W. Stell, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1074); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

He also, from the same committee, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 2307) granting an increase of pension to Joseph J. Martin, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1075); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

He also, from the same committee, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 2897) granting an increase of pension to R. G. Childress, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1076); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 7478) granting an increase of pension to George W. Jackson, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1077); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. PATTERSON of Pennsylvania, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 8406) granting an increase of pension to Susan W. Selfridge, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1078); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. RICHARDSON of Alabama, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 8493) granting an increase of pension to Sallie F. Sheffield, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1079); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. McLAIN, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 9530) granting a pension to Catherine Casey, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1080); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 9593) granting a pension to C. M. Priddy, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1081); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. AIKEN, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 10175) granting an increase of pension to Matthew A. Knight, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1082); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. McLAIN, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 10677) granting a pension to Maria Elizabeth Posey, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1083); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. RICHARDSON of Kentucky, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 11061) granting an increase of pension to Reanna Pile, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1084); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. DICKSON of Illinois, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 11122) granting an increase of pension to John Hopper, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1085); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. BENNETT of Kentucky, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 11297) granting a pension to David McGinnis, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1086); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. AIKEN, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 12008) granting an increase of pension to James D. Blanding, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1087); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. RICHARDSON of Alabama, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 12583) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth L. H. Labatt, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1088); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

He also, from the same committee, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 12837) granting an increase of pension to Martha Miller, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1089); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. DICKSON of Illinois, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 12839) granting an increase of pension to Kathryn G. Hayt, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1090); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. LONGWORTH, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 12955) granting an increase of pension to Lyman Critchfield, jr., reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1091); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. McLAIN, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13037) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Jane Kearney, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1092); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. LONGWORTH, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13282) granting a pension to Lydia B. Bevan, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1093); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. HOGG, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13402) granting a pension to John Reynolds, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1094); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. BENNETT of Kentucky, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13457) granting an increase of pension to William M. McCay, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1095); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. LONGWORTH, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13579) granting an increase of pension to Amon Miller, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1096); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. BENNETT of Kentucky, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13582) granting an increase of pension to James Sutherland, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1097); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. MACON, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13611) granting an increase of pension to William Clough, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1098); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

He also, from the same committee, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13643) granting an increase of pension to Davis W. Hatch, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1099); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. LOUDENSLAGER, from the Committee on Pensions, to which was referred the bill of the Senate (S. 994) granting an increase of pension to Henry Weston, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1100); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

He also, from the same committee, to which was referred the bill of the Senate (S. 2415) granting an increase of pension to Fannie I. Edgerton, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1101); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

He also, from the same committee, to which was referred the bill of the Senate (S. 2879) granting an increase of pension to May J. Hoge, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1102); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

He also, from the same committee, to which was referred the bill of the Senate (S. 3036) granting an increase of pension to Mary J. McGehee, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1103); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

He also, from the same committee, to which was referred the bill of the Senate (S. 3307) granting an increase of pension to Phillip W. Cornman, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1104); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

PUBLIC BILLS, RESOLUTIONS, AND MEMORIALS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills, resolutions, and memorials of the following titles were introduced and severally referred, as follows:

By Mr. HULL, from the Committee on Military Affairs: A bill (H. R. 14397) making appropriation for the support of the Army for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907—to the Union Calendar.

By Mr. McCREARY of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 14398) to increase the number of one and two dollar bills in circulation—to the Committee on Banking and Currency.

By Mr. CLAYTON: A bill (H. R. 14399) for the removal of the existing tariff on composing linotype machines and their parts—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HUNT: A bill (H. R. 14400) for the prevention of accidents to operatives and employees of common carriers engaged in moving interstate traffic, and for other purposes—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. DUNWELL: A bill (H. R. 14401) to establish a national military park at Fort Reno, D. C., and for other purposes—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. McCARTHY: A bill (H. R. 14402) for the restoration of annuities to the Medawakanton and Wahpakoota (Senate) Sioux Indians declared forfeited by the act of February 16, 1863—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. MADDEN: A bill (H. R. 14403) to increase pensions of soldiers and sailors living with their wives, and widows of soldiers and sailors who are dependent entirely upon their pensions for subsistence and who are compelled to ask for charity—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEISSE: A bill (H. R. 14404) to establish a fish-hatching and fish station in the State of Wisconsin—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. PARSONS: A bill (H. R. 14405) to extend to certain publications the privileges of second-class mail matter as to admission to the mails—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. GAINES of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 14406) to amend section 22 of the act of February 4, 1887, entitled "An act to regulate commerce," to prevent the issuance and use of free passes, tickets, or evidence thereof—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. NEVIN: A bill (H. R. 14407) to amend section 3285 of the Revised Statutes as amended by the act of May 28, 1880—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14408) to amend section 3262 of the Revised Statutes as amended—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. KAHN: A bill (H. R. 14409) to amend section 10 of the act of March 3, 1887, to provide for the bringing of suits against the Government of the United States—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. LACEY: A bill (H. R. 14410) to amend an act approved August 3, 1894, entitled "An act concerning leases in the Yellowstone National Park"—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14411) providing a fund from which payment may be made by the Secretary of the Interior for advertising the restoration to the public domain of lands in forest reserves or lands temporarily withdrawn for forest-reserve purposes—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. CURTIS: A bill (H. R. 14412) for the relief of certain State militia—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KENNEDY of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 14413) providing for erection of post-office building at East Liverpool, Ohio—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14414) providing for extension to the post-office at Youngstown, Ohio—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14415) authorizing the purchase of a site for a post-office building at Salem, Ohio—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14416) authorizing the purchase of a site for a post-office building at Alliance, Ohio—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. PATTERSON of South Carolina: A bill (H. R. 14417) providing for a survey of Saluda River from Halfway Swamp to mouth of Hollow Creek—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. HUMPHREY of Washington: A bill (H. R. 14418) to establish two or more fish-cultural stations on Puget Sound—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 14419) for the relief of the widows of Union soldiers, sailors, and marines—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SMALL: A bill (H. R. 14420) providing for the erection of a public building at Washington, N. C.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. DIXON of Montana: A bill (H. R. 14421) for the survey and allotment of lands now embraced within the limits of the Fort Peck Indian Reservation, in the State of Montana, and the sale and disposal of all surplus lands after allotment—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. ALLEN of Maine: A bill (H. R. 14422) providing for an increased rate of pension on account of total and permanent helplessness and dependence—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WANGER: A bill (H. R. 14423) to authorize the construction, operation, and maintenance of a telegraphic cable from Key West, Fla., to the United States naval station at Guantanamo, Cuba, and from thence to the Canal Zone, on the Isthmus of Panama, and to Porto Rico, and to promote commerce—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. BENNET of New York: A bill (H. R. 14507) relating to the pay of letter carriers—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. McKINNEY: A bill (H. R. 14508) permitting the building of dams across any or all of the branches of Rock River; also a dam across the cut-off between Vandruffs Island and Carrs Island, at, near, or upon the lower rapids of Rock River, in Rock Island County, Ill.—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. THOMAS of North Carolina: A bill (H. R. 14509) for the survey of Core Creek, Craven County, N. C.—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. McKINLEY of Illinois: A bill (H. R. 14510) increasing the limit of cost of public building at Decatur, Ill.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. HAMILTON: A resolution (H. Res. 263) providing for the printing of additional copies of the reports of the governors of Hawaii and Oklahoma—to the Committee on Printing.

Also, a resolution (H. Res. 264) providing for the printing of additional copies of the reports of the governors of Arizona and New Mexico—to the Committee on Printing.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. BANKHEAD: A bill (H. R. 14424) granting an increase of pension to Annie M. Walker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BURGESS: A bill (H. R. 14425) granting an increase of pension to Robert Henderson Griffin—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14426) granting an increase of pension to Thomas S. Menefee—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BUTLER of Tennessee: A bill (H. R. 14427) granting a pension to James W. Anderson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CALDER: A bill (H. R. 14428) granting a pension to Mary Parke—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CASTOR: A bill (H. R. 14429) granting an increase of pension to Frederick E. Schotter—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. CHANEY (by request): A bill (H. R. 14430) granting a pension to Mary Lucas—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also (by request) a bill (H. R. 14431) to grant an honorable discharge to Albrecht Nest, apothecary of the Navy—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. CANNON: A bill (H. R. 14432) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Webster—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14433) to correct the military record of Columbia Spalding—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. DARRAGH: A bill (H. R. 14434) granting an increase of pension to Andrew Murphy—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DIXON of Indiana: A bill (H. R. 14435) granting an increase of pension to William Maddex—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14436) granting a pension to Lillie A. Baker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14437) granting an increase of pension to Marquis M. De Burger—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14438) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. King—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DRESSER: A bill (H. R. 14439) granting an increase of pension to John Klinger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14440) granting an increase of pension to George Badger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14441) granting an increase of pension to Andrew J. Montgomery—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DUNWELL: A bill (H. R. 14442) granting an increase of pension to Ester M. Lowe—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. FOSTER of Indiana: A bill (H. R. 14443) granting a pension to John Messer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14444) granting an increase of pension to Alexander Hughes—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14445) granting an increase of pension to Daniel McLaughlin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14446) granting an increase of pension to James Canary—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14447) granting an increase of pension to William C. Webber—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GAINES of West Virginia: A bill (H. R. 14448) for the relief of Capt. John Bogg's company, West Virginia Volunteer Militia—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GARBER: A bill (H. R. 14449) granting an increase of pension to James L. Smith—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GILL: A bill (H. R. 14450) granting a pension to John Henry Allen—to the Comittee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14451) granting a pension to Edson M. Schryver—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14452) granting an increase of pension to John H. Chandley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14453) for the relief of William H. Osenburg—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. GRAFF: A bill (H. R. 14454) granting an increase of pension to William A. Blossom—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HAMILTON: A bill (H. R. 14455) granting a pension to Matilda Wiley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HERMANN: A bill (H. R. 14456) granting an increase of pension to Martha Hoffman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14457) for the relief of Thomas Wyman, assistant light-house keeper—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. HUGHES: A bill (H. R. 14458) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of John H. Snyder and grant him an honorable discharge—to the Comittee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. HULL: A bill (H. R. 14459) granting a pension to Sarah E. Lockard—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. KAHN: A bill (H. R. 14460) granting a pension to Sabrina B. L. Abbott—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H R. 14461) granting a pension to Peter Bush—to the Committee on Pensions

By Mr. KENNEDY of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 14462) granting a pension to Martha Richardson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. KINKAID: A bill (H. R. 14463) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CLAUDE KITCHIN: A bill (H. R. 14464) for the relief of Wiley Corbett—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. KLEPPER: A bill (H. R. 14465) granting a pension to Wesley Johnson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14466) granting a pension to George Baxter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LAMB: A bill (H. R. 14467) for the relief of Capt. George E. Pickett, paymaster United States Army—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. LLOYD: A bill (H. R. 14468) granting a pension to Martha E. Shafer—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14469) to remove the charge of desertion from the military record of Jacob W. Demoney and grant him an honorable discharge—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. McKINLEY of Illinois: A bill (H. R. 14470) granting an increase of pension to William B. Brazelton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MANN: A bill (H. R. 14471) granting an increase of pension to Brison La Rue—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. NEVIN: A bill (H. R. 14472) granting a pension to Thomas Cheek—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14473) granting an increase of pension to George W. Chandler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14474) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Case—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14475) granting an increase of pension to Edward M. Curtis—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14476) granting an increase of pension to Fleming Crump—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14477) granting an increase of pension to Everton R. Cramer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14478) granting an increase of pension to Elias W. Routson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14479) granting an increase of pension to Nathan Mills—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14480) granting an increase of pension to Mary C. Moore—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14481) granting an increase of pension to Sarah J. Kraner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14482) granting an increase of pension to Adam Walter—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14483) granting an increase of pension to John W. Howell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14484) granting an increase of pension to Harrison Wilson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14485) granting an increase of pension to John Wheeler—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14486) granting an increase of pension to Richard Baker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14487) granting an increase of pension to James Wilson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PATTERSON of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 14488) granting an increase of pension to Alex. Yakubielsky—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14489) granting an increase of pension to Peter Krieger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PATTERSON of South Carolina: A bill (H. R. 14490) granting an increase of pension to Martha A. Kenney—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14491) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Hyatt—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. POU: A bill (H. R. 14492) granting an increase of pension to Nicholas John—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. ROBERTSON of Louisiana: A bill (H. R. 14493) granting an increase of pension to Henry Gentils—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14494) granting an increase of pension to Robert L. Pruyn—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. SMITH of Iowa: A bill (H. R. 14495) granting an increase of pension to Edward C. Fitch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. STERLING: A bill (H. R. 14496) granting an increase of pension to John F. Alsup—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14497) granting an increase of pension to Charles M. Pumpelly—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. VAN WINKLE: A bill (H. R. 14498) granting an increase of pension to Eliza Davidson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WADSWORTH: A bill (H. R. 14499) granting an increase of pension to Rebecca D. Stewart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEEKS: A bill (H. R. 14500) granting an increase of pension to Margaretta E. Hutchins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14501) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Wright—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WEISSE: A bill (H. R. 14502) granting an increase of pension to John Dehrenberger—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WELBORN: A bill (H. R. 14503) granting an increase of pension to James P. Youngblood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PAYNE: A bill (H. R. 14504) granting an increase of pension to Aaron P. Seeley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14505) granting an increase of pension to John L. Clifton—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. OLMSTED: A bill (H. R. 14506) granting an increase of pension to David L. MacKenzie—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By Mr. ALLEN of Maine: Petition of Local Union No. 237, of Portland, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Woman's Missionary Society of Old Orchard, Me., against liquor selling in all Government buildings—to the Committee on Alocoholic Liquor Traffic.

Also, petition of the Masonic Token, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BANKHEAD: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Annie M. Walker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BARCHFELD: Petition of McKees Rocks Division, No. 201, Order of Railway Conductors of America, supporting bills H. R. 9328 and 239—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the National Board of Trade, favoring bill S. 529—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. BATES: Petition of the Albion News, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Fellowship Lodge, No. 345, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, favoring employees' liability bill—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Grange No. 168, of Cambridge Springs, Pa., for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BURGESS: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Thomas S. Menefee—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Robert H. Griffin—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BURKE of Pennsylvania: Paper to accompany bill for relief of John K. Dalzell—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of John Ewing—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of William T. Stewart—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of the National Board of Trade of Philadelphia, approving bill S. 529—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of Reade W. Bailey, relative to affairs in the Kongo Free State—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, petition of the McKees Rocks Division, No. 201, Order of Railway Conductors of America, favoring bills H. R. 9328 and 239—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. BURLEIGH: Petition of citizens of Maine, relative to affairs in the Kongo Free State—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. BUTLER of Pennsylvania: Petition of Capt. Charles V. Gridley Council, No. 413, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Amos Vaughan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CAMPBELL of Ohio: Petition of James A. Jennings, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CAPRON: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Franklin Cooley—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petitions of the Methodist Episcopal Church of Block Island; the Phillips Memorial Church, of Auburn; the First Baptist Church of Block Island; pastors of all churches of Kingston; the North Congregational Church, of Providence, the First Baptist and First Methodist Episcopal churches of Warwick; the Free Evangelical Congregational Church of Providence; the Union Free Baptist Church, of East Greenwich; the Washington Park Methodist Episcopal Church, of Providence; the First Baptist Church of Hope Valley; the Baptist Church of Exeter; the First Baptist Church of East Greenwich; the Second Baptist Church of Richmond; the Ruggles Street Church, of Providence; the Carnston Street Methodist Episcopal Church, of Providence; the Baptist Church of Oak Lawn; the Warwick Central Free Baptist Church; the Park Street Free Baptist Church, of Providence; the Fourth Baptist Church of Providence; the Woman's Christian Temperance unions of Central Falls, Exeter, Clarks Mills, Kingston, Auburn, Apponaug, Newport, Hope Valley, Washington Park, and Cumberland, and of sundry citizens of Rhode Island, against the bill to repeal the canteen law—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. CLARK of Florida: Petitions of the Association of Commissioners of Agriculture of the Southern States; the Veterinary Medical Association of Cleveland, Ohio; the Interstate Association of Live-Stock Sanitary Boards, at Guthrie, Okla.; the North Carolina State Board of Agriculture, and the North Carolina State Farmers' Convention, for an appropriation to exterminate the cattle tick—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of many citizens of New York and vicinity, for relief for heirs of victims of General Slocum disaster—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. CLAYTON: Petition of many citizens of New York and vicinity, for relief for heirs of victims of General Slocum disaster—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin: Petition of Kenosha Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, for preservation of Niagara Falls—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. CROMER: Petition of Local Union No. 1033, of Muncie, Ind., Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Farmers' Institute of Randolph County, Ind., for reciprocal commercial relations with other countries—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, petition of George Dwiggins et al., relative to affairs in the Kongo Free State—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. CURTIS: Petitions of the Tribune, the Times, the Times, of Clay Center, the Vindicator, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DALE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Elizabeth Jeremiah—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Helen F. Hoffman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Orestes B. Wright—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Christina White—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Alexander Todd—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. DARRAGH: Petition of George J. Coleman et al., of Michigan, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DAVIS of West Virginia: Petition of Tonoloway Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of Enterprise Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petitions of Joseph W. Bedford, A. A. Martin, Ormon Randolph, and the New Dominion, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DIXON of Indiana: Petition of many citizens of New York and vicinity, for relief for heirs of victims of General Slocum disaster—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, petition of Eagle Spring Grange, No. 1510, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DOVENER: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Frances P. McMurtrie—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DRESSER: Petition of the Pennsylvania Dairy Union, favoring bill H. R. 345—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of citizens of New York and vicinity, for relief for heirs of victims of General Slocum disaster—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. FLACK: Petition of Beckman Grange, No. 941, Patrons of Husbandry, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FULLER: Petition of Barnhart Brothers & Spindler, of Chicago, for removal of restriction on Chinese immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the Lake Seamen's Union of Chicago, favoring bill H. R. 12472—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. GARDNER of New Jersey: Petitions of Columbus Grange, painters of Atlantic City, and Hammonton Grange, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GRAHAM: Petition of the National Board of Trade, favoring bill S. 529—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of McKees Rocks Division, No. 201, Railway Conductors of America, for bills H. R. 9328 and 239—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. GRANGER: Petition of Local Union No. 534, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GRONNA: Petition of J. E. Phelan, of North Dakota, against change of time in shipping live stock—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. HAMILTON: Petitions of W. H. Van Doran and A. N. Moulton, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HAYES: Petition of the Shipowners' Association of the Pacific Coast, asking abolition of the transport service—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. HEPBURN: Petition of O. S. Hull, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HILL of Connecticut: Petition of the National Grange of Patrons of Husbandry, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Aspetuck Valley Grange, of New Milford, Conn., for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of New England Ophthalmological Society, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of The Other Club, of Danbury, Conn., for a national pure-food law—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey: Petition of the shipowners of Manasquan, N. J., for repeal of the compulsory pilotage law—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of Cranbury Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HOWELL of Utah: Petition of many citizens of New York and vicinity, for relief for heirs of victims of General Slocum disaster—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. HOUSTON: Petition of citizens of Tennessee, against the duty on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HUMPHREYS of Mississippi: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Mrs. Peter Anderson—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. JAMES: Petition of the Critic and the News, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the News-Democrat, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. KAHN: Petition of the Shipowners' Association of the Pacific coast, favoring bill H. R. 10090—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Shipowners' Association of the Pacific Coast, favoring abolition of the United States Army transport service—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. KELIHER: Petition of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 47—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the American Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 221—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. LAWRENCE: Petition of 400 members of the Baptist Church of North Adams, Mass., and citizens of Greenfield, Mass., relative to affairs in the Kongo Free State—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. LEE: Paper to accompany bill for relief of William W. Law—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LILLEY of Connecticut: Petition of women's clubs, for a forest reserve in the White Mountains—to the Committee on Agriculture.

By Mr. LINDSAY: Petition of the Central Federated Union, favoring passage of bill H. R. 12472—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. LOUD: Petition of Len J. Patterson, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. LOUDENSLAGER: Petition of W. I. Marsh et al., of Malaga, N. J., for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. McKINLEY of Illinois: Petition of locomotive engineers of Mattoon, Ill., for the Gilbert anti-injunction bill—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. MANN: Petition of the Lake Seaman's Union, urging passage of bill H. R. 12472—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of William F. Geary et al., against the tax on hides—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MARTIN: Petition of citizens of South Dakota, relative to the disposition of reservation lands for the benefit of actual settlers—to the Committee on the Public Lands.

By Mr. MAYNARD: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Theodore Hagner—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MOUSER: Petition of Attica Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of many citizens of New York and vicinity, for relief for heirs of victims of General Slocum disaster—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, petition of Z. T. Smith et al., for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 221—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. NORRIS: Petition of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 47—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. PALMER: Petition of J. H. Douglas Lodge, No. 222, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, of Newcastle, Pa., relative to bill H. R. 239—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, Lodge No. 557, of Dubois, Pa., relative to bill H. R. 239—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Protestant clergymen of Wilkes-Barre, for Sunday as a rest day in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, petition of Strong Vincent Post, No. 67, Grand Army of the Republic, of Erie, Pa., relative to bill H. R. 8989—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of Protestant clergymen of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., against Sunday banking in post-offices—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of Norris City Lodge, No. 610, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, for bill H. R. 239—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. PATTERSON of South Carolina: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Martha A. Kenney, widow of Robert E. Kenney—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Samuel Hyatt—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. POLLARD: Petition of Omaha Lodge, No. 123, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, for bill H. R. 239—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of Omaha Lodge, No. 123, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, for bill H. R. 9328—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

By Mr. PRINCE: Petition of Richard Starr et al., for a reciprocal commercial treaty with Germany—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. PUJO: Petition of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 221—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the Japanese and Korean Exclusion League, for enforcement of the Chinese-exclusion act—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the Orleans Parish Medical Society, of New Orleans, for United States Government control of all marine and interstate quarantine—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the American Association of Masters and Pilots of Steam Vessels, for improvement of the merchant marine of the United States—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of Union No. 985, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Union No. 985, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of many citizens of New York and vicinity, for relief for heirs of victims of General Slocum disaster—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. RAINEY: Petition of citizens of Petersburg, Ill., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. RHINOCK: Paper to accompany bill for relief of heirs of John Hawkins—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, petition of the National Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ROBERTSON of Louisiana: Petition of the St. Helena Echo and the Franklinton New Era, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas: Paper to accompany bill for relief of heirs of Jennie Hunter—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. RUPPERT: Petition of 380 firms and companies in New York City, favoring the metric system—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

Also, petition of Central Federation Union of New York, for bill H. R. 12472—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of the legislative board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, for enforcement of the Chinese law—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the National Board of Trade of Philadelphia, favoring passage of the shipping bill—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of the New York Produce Exchange, relative to Chinese exclusion—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. RYAN: Petition of the legislative committee of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, against the rate bill—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the Central Federated Union of New York, favoring bill H. R. 12472—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of Buffalo Brotherhood, Lake Seamen's Union, against abandonment of marine hospitals—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. SCHNEEBELI: Petition of 350 citizens of Easton, Pa., relative to interstate nullification of State liquor laws—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of 350 citizens of Easton, Pa., against sale of liquor in Government buildings—to the Committee on Alcoholic Liquor Traffic.

Also, petition of many citizens of New York and vicinity, for relief for heirs of victims of General Slocum disaster—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. SHACKLEFORD: Petition of F. M. Brown et al., against amending the copyright law—to the Committee on Patents.

Also, petition of the Fireside Guard, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SIBLEY: Petition of Nittany Valley Lodge, Independent Order of Odd Fellows, of Hublersburg, Pa., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. SMITH of Maryland: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Caroline Nelson—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, petition of John R. Black and 10 other citizens of Michigan, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of White & White, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the National Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, and J. B. Ager, of the Maryland State Grange, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SMITH of Texas: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Hayden M. Prior—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. SOUTHARD: Petition of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 221—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of many citizens of New York and vicinity, for relief for heirs of victims of General Slocum disaster—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, petition of B. A. Stevens & Co., of Toledo, Ohio, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. THOMAS of Ohio: Petition of the National Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petitions of the Independent and the Enterprise, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. VREELAND: Petition of citizens of New York, relative to affairs in the Kongo Free State—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. WEEKS: Petition of citizens of Massachusetts, urging investigation into affairs in the Kongo Free State—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. WEISSE: Petition of Catherine Ettinger, relative to fraud orders by the post-office—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. WILLIAMS: Petition of the Mississippi School Journal, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. YOUNG: Petition of citizens of Michigan, against re-establishment of the Army canteen—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

SENATE.

FRIDAY, February 9, 1906.

Prayer by Rev. ULYSSES G. B. PIERCE, of the city of Washington.

The Secretary proceeded to read the Journal of yesterday's proceedings, when, on the request of Mr. GALLINGER, and by unanimous consent, the further reading was dispensed with.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Journal stands approved.

PER DIEM EMPLOYEES.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of War, recommending that the per diem employees of the Government on duty at Washington or elsewhere in the United States shall be allowed the first Monday in September of each year, designated as "Labor Day," as a holiday, and shall receive the same pay as on other days; which was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

FRENCH SPOLIATION CLAIMS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting the conclusions of fact and of law filed under the act of January 20, 1885, in the French spoliation claims set out in the findings by the court relating to the vessel schooner Active, Patrick Drummond, master; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting the conclusions of fact and of law filed under the act of January 20, 1885, in the French spoliation claims set out in the findings by the court relative to the vessel brig Ruby, Luke Keefe, master; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. W. J. BROWNING, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

H. R. 431. An act to open for settlement 505,000 acres of land in the Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache Indian reservations, in Oklahoma Territory;

H. R. 8970. An act authorizing the Commissioner of the General Land Office to quitclaim the title conveyed to the United States for land in forest reservations, under certain conditions;

H. R. 10129. An act to amend section 5501 of the Revised Statutes of the United States;

H. R. 10697. An act providing for the issuance of patents for lands allotted to Indians under the Moses agreement of July 7, 1883;

H. R. 11783. An act for the establishment of town sites and for the sale of lots within the common lands of the Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache Indians in Oklahoma; and

H. R. 13103. An act making appropriations for the payment of invalid and other pensions of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, and for other purposes.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented a petition of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America, of Indianapolis, Ind.,

praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent the impending destruction of Niagara Falls on the American side by the diversion of the waters for manufacturing purposes; which was referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

He also presented the petition of C. W. Post, a citizen of the United States, praying for the expulsion from the United States Senate of THOMAS C. PLATT, a Senator from the State of New York; which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

Mr. PLATT presented a memorial of the State legislative board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of Albany, N. Y., remonstrating against the repeal of the present Chinese-exclusion law; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a memorial of the State legislative board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of Albany, N. Y., remonstrating against the enactment of legislation to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. LONG presented a petition of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Furley, Kans., praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against the Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah; which was referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

He also presented petitions of the Woman's Christian Temperance unions of Arkansas City, Iola, Furley, Howard, Peru, and Walnut, all in the State of Kansas, praying for the enactment of legislation to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors in Indian Territory when admitted to statehood; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of Kimball Bros., of Manhattan, Kans., and the petition of Arthur Capper, of Topeka, Kans., praying for the enactment of legislation for the removal of the tariff on linotype and composing machines; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. GALLINGER presented the petition of Charles A. Long, of Lexington, Okla., and a petition of the Wade-Branch Hardware Company, of Shawnee, Okla., praying for the enactment of legislation to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors in the Territory when admitted to statehood; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the Columbia Heights Citizens' Association, of Washington, D. C., praying for the enactment of legislation to increase the salaries of public school teachers in the District of Columbia; which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. GAMBLE presented the petition of A. B. Bean and sundry other citizens of Bath, S. Dak., praying for the enactment of legislation to remove the duty on alcohol used for industrial purposes; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented the memorial of J. T. Hansen and other citizens of Canton, S. Dak., remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "parcels-post bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

He also presented a petition of the Commercial Club of Aberdeen, S. Dak., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for the opening to settlement of the Indian reservation lands lying west of the Missouri River, in that State; which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

He also presented the petition of M. H. Beck and 84 other citizens of Utica and Lesterville, S. Dak., praying for the enactment of legislation to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a paper to accompany the bill (S. 2102) granting an increase of pension to George W. Lucas; which was referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also presented sundry papers to accompany the bill (S. 2868) granting an increase of pension to George W. Flick; which were referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. DEPEW presented a memorial of the State legislative board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of Albany, N. Y., remonstrating against the repeal of the present Chinese-exclusion law; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a memorial of the Buffalo Branch of the Lake Seamen's Union of New York, remonstrating against the enactment of legislation to abolish the United States marine hospitals; which was referred to the Committee an Naval Affairs.

He also presented a petition of Chapin Post, No. 2, Department of New York, Grand Army of the Republic, of Buffalo, N. Y., praying for the enactment of legislation giving to enlisted men of the Army upon their retirement the same privilege of advancement of one grade on retirement as is now allowed commissioned officers of like service; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented a petition of the Buffalo Branch of the Lake Seamen's Union, of Buffalo, N. Y., praying for the enactment of legislation relating to the complement of crews of vessels; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the State legislative board of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of Albany, N. Y., and a petition of Pomona Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Chautauqua County, N. Y., praying for the enactment of legislation to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission; which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. OVERMAN presented a petition of sundry citizens of Graham, N. C., praying for an investigation of the existing conditions in the Kongo Free State; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

He also presented petitions of Local Council No. 170, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Rockwell; of Local Council No. 79, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Rural Hall, and of Local Council No. 4, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Altamahaw, all in the State of North Carolina, praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. FRYE presented a memorial of the City Front Federation of San Francisco, Cal., remonstrating against the enactment of legislation relating to the complement of crews of vessels; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the Central Federated Union of New York, praying for the enactment of legislation relating to the standard of men employed on steam vessels carrying passengers; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. WETMORE presented a petition of the Lumber Dealers' Association of Rhode Island, praying for the establishment of a national forest reserve in the White Mountains; which was referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

He also presented a petition of the Current Topic Club, of Newport, R. I., praying for the passage of the so-called "pure-food bill;" which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of the Medical Society of Newport, R. I., praying for the enactment of legislation to promote the efficiency of the Medical Department of the Army; which was ordered to lie on the table.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. GALLINGER, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2070) to regulate the practice of pharmacy and the sale of poisons in the District of Columbia, and for other purposes, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 4169) to authorize the sale of certain real estate in the District of Columbia belonging to the United States, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. GAMBLE, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to whom was referred the bill (H. R. 125) regulating the retent on contracts with the District of Columbia, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. GAMBLE. I am directed by the Committee on the District of Columbia to move that Order of Business 397, being the bill (S. 69) regulating the retent on contracts with the District of Columbia, be indefinitely postponed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. SUTHERLAND, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to whom was referred the bill (S. 3935) to authorize Indians on former Uintah Reservation to cut and sell cedar and pine timber for posts and fuel, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PILES, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 3983) to amend an act entitled "An act authorizing the Kensington and Eastern Railroad Company to construct a bridge across the Calumet River," approved February 7, 1905, reported it with an amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. CRANE, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them each with an amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 4015) to construct and place a new light-ship at the entrance to Buzzards Bay, Massachusetts, to replace the one now known as the Hen and Chickens light-ship; and

A bill (S. 4016) for establishing a light-vessel off Nantucket Shoals, Massachusetts.

Mr. CRANE, from the Committee on Commerce, to whom was referred the bill (S. 4014) to construct and place a light-ship near the eastern end of Hedge Fence shoal, at the entrance to Vineyard Sound, Massachusetts, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. SCOTT, from the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2446) to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Devils Lake, in the State of North Dakota, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. FULTON introduced a bill (S. 4296) granting a pension to Jacob Ferber; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. LONG introduced a bill (S. 4297) to improve the public building at Wichita, Kans.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. FRYE introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Commerce:

A bill (S. 4298) to amend section 4471 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, regulation of steam vessels;

A bill (S. 4299) to amend section 4421 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, inspection of steam vessels; and

A bill (S. 4300) to amend section 4414 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, inspectors of hulls and boilers of steam vessels.

Mr. ALDRICH introduced a bill (S. 4301) granting an increase of pension to Louisa Arnold; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia:

A bill (S. 4302) to amend the provision in an act approved March 3, 1899, imposing a charge for tuition on nonresident pupils in the public schools of the District of Columbia;

A bill (S. 4303) making it a misdemeanor in the District of Columbia to abandon or willfully neglect to provide for the support and maintenance, by any person, of his wife, or of his or her minor children in destitute or necessitous circumstances;

A bill (S. 4304) to prevent the giving of false alarms of fire in the District of Columbia; and

A bill (S. 4305) amendatory of an act entitled "An act to provide for payment of damages on account of changes of grade due to construction of the Union Station, District of Columbia," approved April 22, 1904.

Mr. SCOTT introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 4306) for the relief of the estate of James L. Geaslen, deceased; and

A bill (S. 4307) for the relief of the heirs of Lydia A. Hockensmith, deceased.

Mr. ALGER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 4308) granting a pension to Alvena Wiggins; and

A bill (S. 4309) granting a pension to Adele Jeanette Hughes.

Mr. GAMBLE introduced a bill (S. 4310) to set apart certain lands in the State of South Dakota as a public park, to be known as the Battle Mountain Sanitarium Park; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

Mr. TILLMAN introduced a bill (S. 4311) for the relief of the heirs of W. D. McDowall, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. GEARIN introduced a bill (S. 4312) granting an increase of pension to Philip F. Castleman; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. PERKINS introduced a bill (S. 4313) ceding to the State of California certain vacant unappropriated public lands in Santa Cruz County, State of California; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4314) authorizing the Board of Managers of the National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers to accept conveyance of property of the Veterans' Home of California; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. WETMORE introduced a bill (S. 4315) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth A. Vose; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. OVERMAN introduced a bill (S. 4316) granting an increase of pension to William E. Anderson; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. MORGAN introduced a bill (S. 4317) to provide for the payment of certain claims against the District of Columbia, in accordance with the act of Congress approved January 26, 1897, and as amended July 19, 1897; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. WARNER introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 29) authorizing the selection of a site and the erection of a pedestal for the Stephenson Grand Army Memorial in Washington, D. C.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Library.

STATEHOOD BILL.

Mr. FORAKER. I offer an amendment to the statehood bill, and ask that it be read and printed.

The Secretary read the following amendment, which was ordered to be printed:

Amendment intended to be proposed by Mr. FORAKER to the bill of the House (H. R. 12707) entitled "An act to enable the people of Oklahoma and of the Indian Territory to form a constitution and State government and be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States; and to enable the people of New Mexico and of Arizona to form a constitution and State government and be admitted into the Union on an equal footing with the original States.

Amend by striking out section 23 of the bill and in lieu thereof insert the following:

"SEC. 23. That within thirty days after the approval of this act the governors of the Territories of New Mexico and Arizona, respectively, shall each by proclamation order a special election to be held on the twelfth Tuesday after the approval of this act. Said elections shall be conducted in all respects, including the qualifications and registrations of voters, and the result ascertained and certified as near as practicable in accordance with the laws of said Territories, respectively, governing the election of a delegate in Congress. The sole question to be submitted to the electors of each of said Territories at such special election shall be stated on the ballot in substance and form as follows:

"'Shall Arizona and New Mexico be united to form one State?

[ ] Yes. [ ] No.'

"Electors desiring to answer in the affirmative shall place a cross mark in the square to the left of the word "Yes," and those desiring to answer in the negative shall place a cross mark in the square to the left of the word "No," in the form above prescribed. The governors of the respective Territories shall certify and transmit as soon as may be practicable the results of said election, each to the other and likewise to the Secretary of the Interior, and if it appears from the returns thus certified that a majority of the electors in each of said Territories who voted at such special election voted in favor of the union of New Mexico and Arizona as one State, then, and not otherwise, the inhabitants of that part of the area of the United States now constituting the Territories of Arizona and New Mexico as at present described may become the State of Arizona as hereinafter provided; but if in either of said Territories a majority of the electors voting at such special election shall appear by such certified returns to have voted against the union of said Territories, then, and in that event, this section and all succeeding sections of this act shall thereafter be null and void and of no effect, excepting that the appropriation made in section 41 hereof shall be and remain available for defraying all and every kind and character of expense incident to the special elections provided for in this section."

HEARINGS BEFORE COMMITTEE ON PRIVILEGES AND ELECTIONS.

On motion of Mr. BURROWS, it was Ordered, That the Committee on Privileges and Elections be authorized to have printed the hearings had before the committee.

THE PHILIPPINE TARIFF.

On motion of Mr. LODGE, it was Ordered, That 250 copies of the bill (H. R. 3) to amend an act entitled "An act temporarily to provide revenue for the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes," approved March 8, 1902, be printed for the use of the Senate document room.

CALIFORNIA STATE CLAIMS.

Mr. PERKINS submitted the following resolution; which was referred to the Committee on Claims:

Resolved, That the bill (S. 2184) entitled "A bill to refer to the Court of Claims the State war claims of the State of California," together with all the papers that relate thereto, be, and the same are hereby, referred to the Court of Claims in pursuance of the provisions of an act entitled "An act to provide for the bringing of suits against the Government of the United States," approved March 3, 1887; and the said court shall proceed with the same in accordance with the provisions of such act and report to the Senate in accordance therewith.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED.

The following bills were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs:

H. R. 431. An act to open for settlement 505,000 acres of land in the Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache Indian reservations, in Oklahoma Territory;

H. R. 10697. An act providing for the issuance of patents for land allotted to Indians under the Moses agreement of July 7, 1883; and

H. R. 11783. An act for the establishment of town sites and for the sale of lots within common lands of the Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache Indians in Oklahoma.

H. R. 8970. An act authorizing the Commissioner of the General Land Office to quitclaim the title conveyed to the United States for land in forest reservations under certain conditions was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

H. R. 10129. An act to amend section 5501 of the Revised Statutes of the United States was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

H. R. 13103. An act making appropriations for the payment of invalid and other pensions of the United States for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1907, and for other purposes, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

URGENT DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATION BILL.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. If there are no further concurrent or other resolutions, the morning business is closed.

Mr. HALE. I ask unanimous consent for the consideration at this time of what is known as the "urgent deficiency appropriation bill."

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the bill (H. R. 12320) making appropriations to supply urgent deficiencies in the appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, and for prior years, and for other purposes; which had been reported from the Committee on Appropriations with amendments.

Mr. HALE. I ask that the formal reading of the bill may be dispensed with, that it be read for amendment, and that the amendments of the Committee on Appropriations be first considered as they are reached in the reading of the bill.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Is there objection to the request? The Chair hears none, and that order is made.

The Secretary proceeded to read the bill. The first amendment reported by the Committee on Appropriations was, under the head of "Department of State," on page 1, after line 8, to insert:

FOREIGN INTERCOURSE.

To supply a deficiency in the appropriation "Contingent expenses, foreign missions," for the fiscal year 1906, including all objects mentioned under this title of appropriation in the diplomatic and consular appropriation act for the fiscal year 1906, $30,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, line 18, before the word "cents," to strike out "five hundred and twelve dollars and fifty-eight" and insert "one thousand and thirty-three dollars and thirty-three;" so as to make the clause read:

To pay amounts found due by the accounting officers of the Treasury on account of the appropriation "Bringing home criminals," for the fiscal year 1905, $1,033.33.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 2, after line 23, to insert:

To supply a deficiency in the appropriation "Contingent expenses, United States consulates," for the fiscal year 1906, including all objects mentioned under this title of appropriation in the diplomatic and consular appropriation act for the fiscal year 1906, $40,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, at the top of page 4, to insert:

Payment to Germany: To pay to Germany the moiety of the United States of $40,000, in full settlement of the German claims for losses incurred in connection with the disturbances in Samoa in 1899, under the convention between the United States, Germany, and Great Britain of November 7, 1899, as set forth in Senate Document No. 85 of the present session, $20,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 4, after line 9, to insert:

Payment to Denmark: To pay to Denmark the moiety of the United States of $1,520, in full settlement of the Danish claims for losses incurred in connection with the disturbances in Samoa in 1899, under the convention between the United States, Germany, and Great Britain of November 7, 1899, as set forth in Senate Document No. 160 of the present session, $760.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the head of "Treasury Department," on page 4, after line 20, to insert:

To enable the Secretary of the Treasury to pay Cora B. Thomas her salary as a clerk of class 3 in the Treasury Department for the fiscal year 1906, at the rate of $1,600 per annum, deducting therefrom any salary paid her during said year as a clerk in said Department, $400, or so much thereof as may be necessary; and the Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized to continue her name on the rolls of said Department with pay at the rate of $1,600 per annum after the close of the fiscal year 1906 for the period of five years.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 7, line 7, before the word "thousand," to strike out "ninety-one" and insert "seventy-nine;" so as to make the clause read:

Furniture and repairs of furniture: For an additional amount required for "Furniture and repairs of same for public buildings," to equip United States buildings which have not been included in any previous estimate submitted to the Congress, $79,300.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 7, after line 8, to insert:

Fuel, lights, and water for public buildings: For an additional amount required for "Fuel, lights, and water for public buildings," to maintain United States buildings under the control of the Treasury Department, $12,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 9, after line 16, to insert:

QUARANTINE STATIONS.

The provision in the sundry civil appropriation act for the fiscal year 1904, for the quarantine station at Honolulu, Hawaii, is hereby amended by decreasing the appropriation for construction of a wharf from $55,000 to $50,000, and increasing the appropriation for a runway to connect wharf with island from $10,000 to $15,000, so as to read as follows:

"For construction of wharf at United States quarantine station, Honolulu, Hawaii, $50,000; for a runway to connect wharf with the island, $15,000; for retaining wall around the island, $10,000; for laundry plant, $5,000; in all, $80,000, which sum shall be expended in such manner and under such plans as will complete in every detail each and every object mentioned in this paragraph.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 10, after line 8, to insert:

For the reclamation of Quarantine Island, Honolulu, Hawaii, from the materials now being dredged from the harbor of Honolulu, to be expended nuder the direction of the Secretary of War and the supervision of the Chief of Engineers, $20,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Public buildings," on page 11, after line 13, to insert:

Credit in the accounts of Thomas J. Hobbs, disbursing clerk: That the accounting officers of the Treasury be, and they are hereby, directed to credit in the accounts of Thomas J. Hobbs disbursing clerk of the Treasury Department, the sum of $21 standing against him on the books of the Treasury under the appropriation "Repairs and preservation of public buildings, 1905."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 11, after line 20, to insert:

That the accounting officers of the Treasury be, and they are hereby, directed to credit in the accounts of Thomas J. Hobbs, disbursing clerk of the Treasury Department, the sum of $600 standing against him on the books of the Treasury under the appropriation "Repairs and preservation of public buildings, 1905."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 12, after line 2, to insert:

That the accounting officers of the Treasury be, and they are hereby, directed to credit in the accounts of Thomas J. Hobbs, disbursing clerk of the Treasury Department, the sum of $875 standing against him on the books of the Treasury under the appropriation "Heating apparatus for public buildings, 1905."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 12, after line 9, to insert:

That the accounting officers of the Treasury be, and they are hereby, directed to credit in the accounts of Thomas J. Hobbs, disbursing clerk of the Treasury Department, the sum of $1,454 standing against him on the books of the Treasury, under the appropriation "Repairs and preservation of public buildings, 1905."

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the head of "The Isthmian Canal," on page 19, after line 22, to insert:

To be used as an advance to the Panama Railroad Company to pay for the reequipment of that company, $650,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The reading was continued to line 7, on page 20.

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. President, I do not like to have the provision that has just been read passed over without some objection, and perhaps a motion to strike it out. Whether that should be done at this time or not I should like to inquire?

Mr. GALLINGER. The committee amendments are first in order, I will suggest.

Mr. HALE. The committee amendments are first in order.

Mr. PATTERSON. At least for the purpose of presenting the matter I wish to bring to the attention of the Senate, I will move to strike out the last paragraph read.

Mr. HALE. The Senator from Colorado will have an opportunity after the committee amendments have been considered, as to any part of the bill, to move to strike out or to amend.

Mr. PATTERSON. Then I will defer it.

The next amendment was, on page 20, after line 7, to insert:

Payment to Lieut. Col. William M. Black: For payment to Lieut. Col. William M. Black, Corps of Engineers, United States Army, 50 per cent additional compensation to pay proper, for services rendered to the Isthmian Canal Commission in the Isthmus of Panama from April 9, 1903, to March 21, 1904, being an equalization of pay similar to that paid other officers detailed with the Commission, and in pursuance of the understanding at the time when the assignment to duty with the Commission was tendered and accepted, $1,285.32.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 20, after line 19, to insert:

Payment to Lieut. Mark Brooke: For payment to Lieut. Mark Brooke, Corps of Engineers, United States Army, 50 per cent additional compensation to pay proper, for services rendered to the Isthmian Canal Commission in the Isthmus of Panama from April 9, 1903, to March 21, 1904, being an equalization of pay similar to that paid other officers detailed with the Commission, and in pursuance of the understanding at the time when the assignment to duty with the Commission was tendered and accepted, $573.98.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the head of "National Home for Disabled Volunteer Soldiers," on page 21, after line 8, to insert:

At the Eastern Branch at Togus, Me.: For repairs, including the same objects specified under this head for the Central Branch in the sundry civil appropriation act for the fiscal year 1906, $15,550.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the head of "Navy Department," page 23, line 21, after the word "Provided," to strike out:

That the medals herein authorized shall be delivered at the place of residence of the person entitled to the same.

And insert:

That the medals herein authorized shall be transmitted to the person entitled to the same at the place where he is located at the time of presenting the same;

So as to make the proviso read:

Provided, That the medals herein authorized shall be transmitted to the person entitled to the same at the place where he is located at the time of presenting the same.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the head of "Naval Establishment," on page 24, after line 1, to insert:

PAY OF THE NAVY.

Pay, miscellaneous: To pay amounts found due by the accounting officers of the Treasury on account of the appropriation "Pay, miscellaneous," for the fiscal year 1905, $6,478.57.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 24, after line 7, to insert:

BUREAU OF NAVIGATION.

Naval War College, Rhode Island, buildings: The unexpended balance of the appropriation of $6,500 for altering the building formerly belonging to training station and fitting the same for occupancy by officers of the Naval War College, Rhode Island, made by the naval appropriation act for the fiscal year 1905, and the unexpended balance of the appropriation of $2,000 for furniture for officers' quarters in building No. 10, formerly belonging to training station, made by the naval appropriation act for the fiscal year 1906, are hereby reappropriated and made available for making necessary repairs and alterations to the buildings of the Naval War College at Newport, R. I.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the head of "Interior Department," on page 27, after line 17, to insert:

Heating, lighting, and power plant: The limit of cost of the heating, lighting, and power plant, authorized and provided for under the sundry civil act approved April 28, 1904, is hereby extended so that when said plant shall have been completed and of sufficient size and capacity to furnish heat, light, and power for the office building, House of Representatives, the Capitol building, the Congressional Library building, the office building, United States Senate, and for such other buildings as may hereafter be erected on grounds adjacent to the Capitol grounds at the east of the Capitol building and facing the same, the total expenditure shall not exceed $1,393,000; and contracts for any part or the whole of the work herein provided for under said extended limit of cost are authorized to be entered into by the Superintendent of the Capitol Building and Grounds, under the terms of the act aforesaid.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 28, after line 9, to insert:

Subway system: For the construction of a subway system to connect the office building of the United States Senate with the Capitol building an expenditure not to exceed $168,500 is hereby authorized; and contracts for said subway system are authorized to be entered into within said sum by the Superintendent of the Capitol Building and Grounds subject to appropriations to be hereafter made by Congress.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 29, line 7, after the word "dollars," to insert:

One-half of this amount to be paid from the revenues of the District of Columbia and one-half from any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated;

So as to make the clause read:

For the maintenance and tuition of colored deaf-mutes of teachable age belonging to the District of Columbia in the Maryland School for Colored Deaf-Mutes, as authorized by an act of Congress approved March 3, 1905, $4,500, one-half of this amount to be paid from the revenues of the District of Columbia and one-half from any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was under the subhead "Indian affairs," on page 32, after line 8, to insert:

The Secretary of the Treasury is hereby authorized and directed to pay John H. Roberts the sum of $843.60, being the amount disallowed by the Auditor for the Interior Department on his claim for net beef furnished the Flandreau Indian School under his contract during the fourth quarter, 1904, being for the fiscal year 1904.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 34, after line 5, to insert:

To supply a deficiency in the appropriation for the completion of the work heretofore required by law to be done by the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes, including all objects mentioned under this title of appropriation in the Indian appropriation act for the fiscal year 1906, being the amount required to complete the unfinished work devolving upon the Commission to the Five Civilized Tribes within said fiscal year, $75,000, said appropriation to be disbursed under the direction of the Secretary of the Interior.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the head of "Department of Justice," on page 36, after line 3, to insert:

For miscellaneous expenditures, including telegraphing, fuel, lights, foreign postage, labor, repairs of buildings, care of grounds, books of reference, periodicals, and other necessaries, directly ordered by the Attorney-General, $2,615.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the head of "Post-Office Department," on page 42, after line 15, to insert:

For the purchase of a draft horse for use in hauling supplies between the Post-Office Department and outlying offices, $200.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HALE. At this point I offer a committee amendment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 42, after line 18, insert:

For temporary clerk hire, $60,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the subhead "Out of the postal revenues," on page 42, after line 24, to insert:

For blanks, blank books, printed and engraved matter, binding, and carbon paper for the money-order service, $15,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 43, after line 2, to insert:

To reimburse the postmasters at Tonopah and Goldfield, Nev., for expenditures for clerk hire, rent, fuel, light, and miscellaneous items in excess of the authorized allowances during the current fiscal year, and for necessary expenses during the remainder of the fiscal year, $5,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 43, after line 7, to insert:

For the relief of J. J. Cole, acting postmaster at Nome, Alaska, fiscal year 1903, $63.50.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 43, after line 10, to insert:

For the relief of Frank W. Swanton, postmaster at Nome, Alaska, fiscal year 1903, $188.63.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the head of "Department of Agriculture," on page 43, after line 15, after the word "Industry," to strike out:

To meet the demands for more meat inspection and for microscopic inspection of pork, $20,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary.

And insert:

To supply a deficiency in the appropriation "General expenses, Bureau of Animal Industry," including each and every object authorized by law and specified in the appropriation of $1,431,520 under this title in the "Act making appropriations for the Department of Agriculture for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906," approved March 3, 1905, $135,000, or so much thereof as may be necessary;

So as to make the clause read:

Bureau of Animal Industry: To supply a deficiency in the appropriation "General expenses, Bureau of Animal Industry," etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the head of "Legislative," on page 45, after line 3, to insert:

SENATE.

To pay to the widow of the Hon. William B. Bate, late a Senator from the State of Tennessee, $5,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 45, after line 7, to insert:

To pay to the widow of the Hon. Orville H. Platt, late a Senator from the State of Connecticut, $5,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 45, after line 10, to insert:

To pay to the widow of the Hon. John H. Mitchell, late a Senator from the State of Oregon, $5,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 45, after line 13, to insert:

The Secretary of the Senate is hereby authorized and directed to pay to William B. C. Brown, clerk to the Hon. WILLIAM WARNER, of Missouri, from April 1, 1905, to December 3, 1905; and to Thomas B. Carroll, clerk to the Hon. JAMES B. FRAZIER, of Tennessee, from March 22, 1905, to December 5, 1905; and to John B. Kelley, clerk to the Hon. FRANK B. BRANDEGEE, of Connecticut, from May 10, 1905, to December 5, 1905, for clerical services rendered, from the appropriation for salaries of officers, clerks, messengers, and others in the service of the Senate for the fiscal years 1905 and 1906.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 46, after line 3, to insert:

For miscellaneous items, exclusive of labor, $50,000.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 46, after line 5, to insert:

For purchase of furniture, $2,500.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 46, after line 7, to insert:

To pay H. C. Adams for expert work done for the Committee on Interstate Commerce of the Senate in compiling a digest of the hearings on the regulation of railway rates and for compiling certain appendices to the hearings under the direction of said committee, $2,500.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 46, after line 13, to insert:

To pay for extra services rendered to the Committee on Interstate Commerce of the Senate during the consideration of the hearings on the regulation of railway rates from the adjournment of the Senate, March 4, 1905, during and subsequent to the special meetings of the committee, as authorized by Senate resolution No. 288, as follows:

To Colin H. Livingstone, $1,500; E. H. McDermot, $750; John W. Fenton, jr., $500; William H. Gaskin, $250; W. A. Smith, $300; Peter Riley, $200; John R. Williams, $200; Beverly Hudnell, $200.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 47, after line 2, to insert:

To pay E. C. Goodwin for expenses incurred and for services in preparing an analytical index to the testimony taken before said committee, $1,500.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. HALE. I offer the amendment which I send to the desk.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 47, after line 5, insert:

To pay Charles G. Phelps for extra services as clerk of the select committee appointed to consider the message of the House of Representatives relating to the impeachment of Charles Swayne, $450.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the head of "Judgments, Court of Claims," on page 49, line 4, after the word "seven," to insert:

And Senate Documents Nos. 166 and 185.

So as to make the clause read:

For the payment of the judgments rendered by the Court of Claims, reported to Congress at its present session in House Document No. 307 and Senate Documents Nos. 166 and 185, namely.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 49, after line 6, to insert:

Under the Treasury Department, $21,836.36.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 49, line 9, after the word "Department," to strike out "sixty-five thousand and forty-six dollars and sixty-three cents" and insert "eighty-two thousand four hundred and eighty-three dollars and twenty-eight cents;" so as to make the clause read:

Under the War Department, $82,483.28.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 49, line 16, after the word "Department," to strike out "eighty-nine thousand one hundred and nineteen dollars and seventy-nine cents" and insert "one hundred thousand six hundred and twenty-nine dollars and thirty-three cents;" so as to make the clause read:

Under the Post-Office Department, $100,629.33.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 49, after line 19, to insert:

Under the Department of Commerce and Labor, $685.60.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 49, after line 13, to insert:

Under the Department of the Interior, $1,340.65.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 49, line 23, to increase the total appropriation for the payment of the judgments rendered by the Court of Claims reported to Congress at its present session, etc., from $842,616.44 to $895,425.24.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the head of "Judgments in Indian depredation claims," on page 50, line 7, after the word "Fifty-three," to insert "and Senate Document Numbered One hundred and ninety-two;" and in line 9, after the word "ninety-two," to strike out "ten thousand three hundred and forty-two dollars" and insert "forty-one thousand two hundred and ten dollars;" so as to read:

For payment of judgments rendered by the Court of Claims in Indian depredation cases, certified to Congress at its present session in House Document No. 53 and Senate Document No. 192, $41,210; said judgments to be paid after the deductions required to be made under the provisions of section 6 of the act approved March 3, 1891, etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, under the head of "Awards Spanish Treaty Claims Commission," on page 51, line 11, before the word "Document," to insert "House;" in the same line, after the word "seventy-six," to insert "and Senate Documents Nos. 155, 177, and 186;" and in line 15, before the word "hundred," to strike out "thirty-three thousand eight" and insert "sixty-three thousand seven;" so as to read:

To pay the awards made by the Spanish Treaty Claims Commission under the provisions of the act of March 2, 1901, certified to Congress in House Document No. 276 and Senate Documents Nos. 155, 177, and 186 of the present session, $63,740, etc.

The amendment was agreed to.

The next amendment was, on page 51, line 15, after the word "dollars," to insert the following proviso:

Provided, That before any payment shall be made on the foregoing awards, the said Commission shall fix and determine, after full hearing, the amount that shall be deemed reasonable and just to be paid to the attorneys for claimants in each case and shall so certify to the Secretary of the Treasury; and hereafter allowances to attorneys for claimants for prosecuting said claims shall be regulated and fixed by the Commission at the time of making awards, after full hearing, and entered of record as part of the findings thereof, and may be paid direct to such attorneys.

The amendment was agreed to.

The reading of the bill was concluded.

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. President——

Mr. FRYE. Will the Senator allow me to offer an amendment, which will not take more than a moment?

Mr. PATTERSON. Certainly.

Mr. FRYE. I offer the amendment which I send to the desk, to come in on page 10, after line 18. I wish to say that the amendment is clearly subject to a point of order, but I hope no Senator will make it, for the reason that it abolishes an office which is now entirely useless and saves $3,500 a year. The Secretary of the Treasury asked me to offer the amendment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment proposed by the Senator from Maine will be stated.

The SECRETARY. On page 10, at the end of line 18, under the head of "Revenue-Cutter Service," it is proposed to insert:

Provided, That the office of captain of engineers for the Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States is hereby abolished from the date of the death of the incumbent thereof, and that on and after the passage of this act the President may select and appoint, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, a chief engineer of said service, who has served not less than three years in that grade, as engineer in chief of the Revenue-Cutter Service: And provided further, That the engineer in chief thus appointed shall thereafter receive the rank, pay, and allowances that are now or may hereafter be prescribed for a captain of the Revenue-Cutter Service.

Mr. ALLISON. I should like to ask the Senator from Maine to explain that amendment.

Mr. FRYE. The office was created originally for Captain Collins, who died about a week ago.

Mr. ALLISON. So I understand.

Mr. FRYE. And the office is entirely unnecessary.

Mr. ALLISON. I thought it was a provision for a new office.

Mr. FRYE. No; not for a new office. It simply calls the officer in charge engineer in chief, so that he shall be at the head, but he is still in the employment of the Revenue-Cutter Service.

Mr. ALLISON. It is a promotion?

Mr. FRYE. Yes. The law now provides that he shall receive the pay of a captain.

Mr. ALLISON. Which he now receives?

Mr. FRYE. Which he now receives.

Mr. ALLISON. It does not change the law?

Mr. FRYE. It does not change the statutes at all, except as indicated in the amendment.

The amendment was agreed to.

Mr. FRYE. I ask in this connection that the letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, which I now send to the desk, may be printed in the RECORD.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. In the absence of objection, it will be so ordered.

The letter referred to is as follows:

TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY,
Washington, February 7, 1906.

Hon. WILLIAM P. FRYE,
Chairman Committee on Commerce, United States Senate.

MY DEAR SENATOR: I herewith inclose you a proposed amendment which I would be pleased to have you offer to the urgent deficiency bill now awaiting the action of the Senate.

The office of captain of engineers in the Revenue-Cutter Service was, as you know, created for the late Capt. John W. Collins, who alone has held that position since its organization.

As under the law one officer can not hold both the position of engineer in chief and captain of engineers, and as there are now no duties to be performed by the latter, this office should, in the interests of good administration, be abolished. In my last annual report I recommended that upon the event of a vacancy in either of the above-mentioned positions, one of them should lapse, as there is no reason for two heads to the engineer corps, and as such a condition would seriously complicate matters.

The abolition of this office will result in a saving of a captain's salary, amounting to $3,500 per annum.

I have also included in the proposed amendment a clause authorizing the President to appoint a chief engineer as engineer in chief, which office will consistently take the place of the two positions now authorized by law. This involves no additional expense, as it is now provided that the present engineer in chief shall receive the rank and pay of a captain.

Very truly, yours, L. M. SHAW, Secretary.

Mr. PATTERSON. I move to strike out the entire first paragraph at the top of page 20, which I ask the Secretary to read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The amendment will be stated.

The SECRETARY. At the top of page 20 it is proposed to strike out the following paragraph:

The provisions of the act entitled "An act relating to the limitations of the hours of daily service of laborers and mechanics employed upon the public works of the United States and of the District of Columbia," approved August 1, 1892, shall not apply to alien laborers employed in the construction of the isthmian canal within the Canal Zone.

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. President, the purpose of the paragraph I have moved to strike out is to allow the employment and the service of all laborers and mechanics who are aliens in the construction of the isthmian canal within the Canal Zone without any limitation whatsoever as to the hours of labor. If we were entirely indifferent to the physical well-being of the tens of thousands of alien laborers who are likely to be employed in the construction of the isthmian canal, we ought not to be unmindful of the welfare of American laborers and mechanics.

This provision, Mr. President, will allow either the United States or contractors for the whole or any part of the isthmian canal to require ten, twelve, or even longer hours of labor from those who may be put upon the actual construction of the work.

But an equally objectionable feature is that its result must be to exclude altogether from employment in the construction of the work American laborers and American mechanics, because it is not unfair to suppose that if Government officers, or those who later on may secure contracts for the construction of the canal, may employ laborers without any limitation whatever as to the hours of labor, they will not employ labor that, under the law of the United States, can not work more than eight hours in any one calendar day.

It will hardly do to say, Mr. President, that a great deal of valuable labor may not be secured within the United States. I know one of the objections urged against this proposition is the intense heat and the other adverse conditions to labor in the Canal Zone; but, I take it, that after the United States has improved the sanitary conditions of that region, as it will after the expenditure of the very great sums of money that have been and will be appropriated for the improvement of sanitation, it will be made quite habitable and not a very dangerous place for labor secured in the United States. The laborers and mechanics are liable to include a very great number—not the ordinary digger of the soil, whether in the use of machinery or the spade and the pick, but the skilled laborer. If this law goes into effect, it means that if labor can be employed—I now mean skilled labor, labor that must be skilled—if it can be employed in Great Britain, Germany, or France, or any of the countries contiguous to the Panama Zone, since the hours of labor are unlimited, it is quite unlikely that that character of labor, or any of it, will be brought from the United States.

Then, again, we have a very large population in the Southern States, and even in the Northern States, who are peculiarly adapted to work in the Zone under favorable sanitary conditions. The colored men of the country, whether they live in the South or in the North, are quite qualified, with proper surroundings, to do a splendid day's work, to maintain good health, and thereby secure fair wages if these obstacles are not put in their way.

Mr. HALE. Will the Senator allow me to interrupt him right there?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Colorado yield to the Senator from Maine?

Mr. PATTERSON. Certainly.

Mr. HALE. Does the Senator believe that under the conditions that exist in Panama it is probable or possible that any inducement can be offered that will lead colored men, either at the South or at the North, to go there to get labor?

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. President, if the law fixing the hours of labor upon all public works of the United States at eight hours is enforced and the conditions of the Panama Zone are improved, as it is boasted that they are improved, and if men are worked as ordinary civilized human beings ought to work, I can see no reason why a very large number of the colored people of the country might not go to the Panama Zone and engage in labor.

Mr. HALE. Let me say this——

Mr. PATTERSON. In just a moment. Then, again, Mr. President, when it comes to mechanics an entirely different proposition exists—I do not mean as to the physical well-being or surroundings—but if fair wages are paid and the hours of labor are limited to eight, as they are upon the public works in this country, I can not but believe that there are hundreds, nay, thousands, of American mechanics who will be very glad to receive employment on the canal.

Mr. HALE. The Senator referred to colored people going to Panama. There has been an effort to get some of them, but none of them will stir from his present condition. Of course, under the present provision as reported from the committee, if they want to go they can go. The provision only applies to alien labor, but if "alien" should be stricken out—and some other Senator may propose that—then you can not get the colored man at the North or at the South to stir an inch from his place in the direction of Panama. But the provision which the Senator has moved to strike out only applies to alien labor. It does not prevent colored laborers and colored mechanics from going down there; it does not apply to a single person in the United States.

Mr. PATTERSON. That is quite true, Mr. President, but those who are interested in matters of that kind realize that the necessary effect of this amendment will be to exclude American mechanics and American laborers, for under the law the service or employment of an American mechanic or laborer, whatever his color, can not be for a greater length of time than eight hours in each calendar day, and the proposition is that when the Government or the contractor may employ labor that is alien, whether that labor shall be that of laborers or mechanics, for any number of hours in a calendar day, they are quite unlikely to employ labor that must be limited to eight hours, and in all human probability, Mr. President, the result will be to bring down the wage. By reason of the Government going to foreign countries altogether—it may be to China or elsewhere—whatever the quality or cheapness of the labor may be, the work will be done by exceedingly cheap labor.

It is not a good example to set in this country when the effort is being constantly made to improve the status of the laboring man, whether the ordinary laborer or mechanic, for the United States to exclude its own labor in that great work and go into the markets of the world to bring there the very cheapest labor it can find if that labor will be adapted to that character of work. One would almost conclude, under the conditions that are likely to exist, that the United States, mindful of the physical well-being of its own people, is entirely indifferent to the physical well-being of the people of other countries whom it takes into its employment.

In other words, if we get American labor we will use them like human beings. If alien labor is employed we will drive it to the limit of physical endurance, and that is likely to be the case, Mr. President, if, as is very seriously proposed, the digging of the canal is let out to contractors, because then the bids for the construction of the work will be taken without any regulation whatever as to the length of time the laborers or mechanics are to be employed or the manner in which they shall be treated in many other respects.

Therefore, I take it it is a great deal better, from the moral aspect and the moral side of the question, as well as having in mind the right of American laborers and American mechanics to enter into the employment of the Government wherever that labor may be needed at the rates paid by the Government, at the number of hours to which labor is limited, and with such other regulations as the humanity and the good judgment of the Government may see fit to impose, that the Senate should strike out the matter embraced in my motion.

My motion is based upon the proposition that the Government of the United States can not afford to show itself thus unmindful of the physical well-being of any human being, from whatever clime or country he may come, nor can the United States afford to enter upon a policy of excluding, not directly but indirectly, its own citizenship from employment on as great a work as this is.

Mr. HALE obtained the floor.

Mr. MORGAN. I should like to inquire of the Chair for information what is exactly the motion of the Senator from Colorado?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The motion of the Senator from Colorado is to strike out the first paragraph at the top of page 20, being the first seven lines.

Mr. MONEY. Mr. President, let the Secretary read it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Secretary will read the paragraph proposed to be stricken out.

The SECRETARY. It is proposed to strike out the paragraph at top of page 20, as follows:

The provisions of the act entitled "An act relating to the limitations of the hours of daily service of laborers and mechanics employed upon the public works of the United States and of the District of Columbia," approved August 1, 1892, shall not apply to alien laborers employed in the construction of the isthmian canal within the Canal Zone.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, only a word, and then I shall be glad to yield to the Senator from Alabama.

Mr. President, I think it is the opinion of everybody who has been interested in this great work and has examined into its conditions that it can not be done and must end in failure unless the ordinary labor, the digging, the work of transportation by day laborers is done not by our people, not by our laborers, not by anybody here, black or white, but by alien labor brought to the Isthmus from certain other countries which produce a population that will not be decimated or destroyed the moment it is put at work on the canal.

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Maine yield to the Senator from Colorado?

Mr. HALE. Yes, sir.

Mr. PATTERSON. Will the Senator from Maine state the labor he has in mind?

Mr. HALE. Yes; I was coming to that.

The authorities in charge have been most anxious upon this point. It is, in fact, the crucial and test point of the whole enterprise. All other considerations disappear in radical importance and necessity compared with this. We can raise the money, we can superintend the work, we can decide upon the type of canal, and in years can build it if we can have a force of laborers there who can be depended upon to continue work from week to week and from month to month.

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Maine yield to the Senator from Colorado?

Mr. PATTERSON. I will not now ask the question I have in mind, because the Senator from Maine is already under promise to answer a question of mine.

Mr. HALE. Yes; I am coming to it.

The authorities, as I have said, have been most anxious upon this point. I suppose it has kept the President, the Secretary of War, the chief engineer, and the superintendent of all the work, and the men who are in charge awake more hours of the night than any other question; and it has been found that it is only on the introduction of labor from southern and tropical communities—although some minor experiments have been made with others—it is only by the introduction of such labor from the islands of the Spanish main, Jamaica and others, that this work can be done.

Mr. President, when you introduce that element of labor you introduce an element that is entirely and distinctively different from the labor of the United States, for whose benefit the eight-hour law has been made. You have, first, an irresponsible class of labor. You have an unthrifty class of labor. You have an improvident class of labor. If you let them have their way, as has been shown in previous experiments, they work three or four days and will then leave. They are in the habit at home, for half the pay they will receive from the Commission, of working from sunup until sundown. There is no question with them about eight-hour labor. It has never applied to any work on which they have heretofore been employed——

Mr. HOPKINS. They would not know what "eight hours" means.

Mr. HALE. And any sympathy expended upon them is vain sympathy. I do not suppose, as the Senator from Illinois has suggested, they have ever heard of such a rule or restriction upon labor as an eight-hour law.

Now, Mr. Shonts and his subordinates who are in charge believe and have told us that if the eight-hour labor law, as it is applied to our people, is applied to those alien laborers they will have no control whatever of them. They will not get——

Mr. MORGAN. Will the Senator from Maine allow me to make a little statement about that? I have to withdraw from the Chamber for a moment.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Maine yield to the Senator from Alabama?

Mr. HALE. Yes; I yield to the Senator.

Mr. MORGAN. Mr. President, we have examined Mr. Shonts, Mr. Wallace, Mr. Stevens, and some other gentlemen who are perfectly familiar with the whole situation of the canal construction at Panama. Under the order of the Senate the Committee on Interoceanic Canals is having sessions from day to day for the purpose of finding out everything we can about it.

These gentlemen state that the most serious difficulty they have in the organization of labor and in the conduct of the work is the eight-hour law. They say it will be almost impossible to construct the canal under the influence of that law, and that they can not make any safe computation at all as to the time which will be required to complete the canal if they have to complete it under the eight-hour law. I do not care about amplifying the statement, but these gentlemen have been so emphatic and so clear and have supported their statements by such undeniable facts that I thought it was my duty to make this statement.

I hope the Senate will not take any action upon this subject that it is not compelled to take. I would very much prefer to strike out the word "alien," in line 6, but the whole subject ought to be postponed until this committee can have a chance to make a report to this body, because the fact is incontrovertible that the canal is going to be delayed and obstructed beyond any comprehension that we have now of the situation by this very law.

I have been credited amongst certain circles and amongst certain people in the United States as being inimical to the construction of the canal. I am doing all the work I know how to do and am able to do to facilitate its construction, making every provision possible for the speedy construction of the canal.

If I wanted to defeat the canal I would vote for the proposition to apply the eight-hour law to it as the most successful means of destroying the possibility, I may say, of ever building the canal.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, upon that statement from the veteran Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN], who was a veteran in this enterprise and in investigating it when the rest of us were children on that subject, and from the fact that what he says discloses the results of the investigation of the committee which is now charged by the Senate with this great subject-matter, I leave this question where it has been left by the Senator from Alabama, and will not take any more of the time of the Senate.

Mr. MONEY. Mr. President, when we had the debates in this Chamber on the Panama Canal I submitted some remarks upon this subject, and I then declared that this very point which the Senator from Maine [Mr. HALE] states is the crucial point, the one upon which everything hinges, would be the important one, that all others were vain unless we could settle upon the labor question; and that that was impossible with the sanitary condition of the Isthmus at the time I was speaking. The history of the little railroad built there, 48 miles long, every tie of which was said by the report upon it to have cost a human life, settled it in my mind. Then the land doldrums, which persist on the Isthmus, prevent the breezes which usually waft away the disease.

Although the Senator from Maine did not mention the name of the country from which he expects to get the labor—I hoped that he would—I can see no country except the islands of the West Indies, notably the islands of Jamaica and Barbados. They tried the Hindoo cooly, the Chinese cooly, the Japanese cooly; they tried the Irishman and the American upon that railroad, and they died in the sun like gnats. Efficient work was impossible until they secured the Jamaica negro. He is not a very willing laborer, but he will work.

But there is another thing about it which I do not believe the Senator from Maine mentioned, and that is this: It is his disposition, when he has worked a little while, to withdraw from business and enjoy himself. Take it in the coal mines of the South, where negro labor is about equally employed with white labor. I have been to those mines and have looked up the labor question, and I was assured by the intelligent men who operated the mines that the negro labor was as good as the white. I was told that the colored men got the same wages—from $75 to $80 a month—but whenever a colored man worked two or three days he went to Birmingham and "blew it in," to use their expression. They do not care to work when they have enough.

Mr. HALE. Right on that point, Mr. Shonts stated to us that these same laborers would work, say, four or five days in the week, and then, from the consideration presented by the Senator from Mississippi, that of improvidence, they take to the woods. When they get through, after having gone to town and spent their money, they come back. If you apply the eight hours to such laborers you have lost practically all control of them.

Mr. MONEY. I think so.

Mr. President, I wish to sympathize with the feeling of the Senator from Colorado [Mr. PATTERSON], but I do not think he need apprehend that there will be any American laborers there. They will not live more than the first eight hours of work under that sun, turning up a million germs with every spadeful of earth. Nor are there any other people who can live there and labor. We are accustomed to call the inhabitants of the Isthmus a very worthless and trifling race because they will not work. They will not work because work is death, and they know it. They have the abundant fruits of the earth there, and with a hammock, a cigarette, and a banana they are pretty well fixed. They do not need anything else. They are the children of nature. They know very well, and every observer knows, that if they attempt to work, to plant, to cultivate, or to do anything else, it means death in that region.

One hundred and twenty-five miles to the west there is as healthful a country as any in the world. I refer to Chiriqui Lagoon, or Almirante Bay. The Nicaragua route is healthy, but it happens that the Panama route is just in the region of the calm belt, and with the most luxuriant vegetation on top of the earth and the most fertile soil. The rainfall there amounts to 25 feet in three months of the year, so the soil is always saturated with moisture. There is an enormous vegetable life, and there are billions upon billions of germs, and every spadeful of earth dug up puts those germs into the air and in motion; and nobody at all seems able to stand that climate except the Jamaica and Barbados negroes, and they do not stand it well. They go there and die by the thousands.

This is the great difficulty, and I apprehended it from the inception of the work. I said twenty-five years ago, and I repeated it in a speech which I made some years ago on this question, that this was the main difficulty—the labor problem. I think we will find, however liberal we may be to the wishes of the people of the United States on any question connected with it, however wisely we may proceed, however capable the administrative part of the work may be, however liberal Congress may be in the appropriations, that unless we can get labor there that can be controlled in some degree the project will be a failure on account of the physical fact that people can not live there, except those from a very circumscribed territory of laborers, and they not very well.

Therefore, I hope my friend the Senator from Colorado will not insist upon his amendment. I do not beileve it would make the work feasible. You can not have the conditions prevail there that we have here, where we have pay rolls and banks and everything of that sort.

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. President, I am perfectly satisfied, from what the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN] and the Senator from Mississippi [Mr. MONEY] have said, that the amendment will not prevail, but nevertheless it has not convinced me that it ought not to prevail. I recollect very well when the choice of routes was before the Senate and the conditions as suggested by the Senator from Mississippi were brought before the Senate, with the fearful mortality which was, in their opinion, certain to follow, the advocates of the Panama Canal and against the Nicaragua Canal told us how all of that was going to be changed; that sanitary skill and science, backed by the abundant money that the people of the United States would supply, would overcome the death-dealing conditions of the Zone, and that men who could labor in the Tropics anywhere could labor there with perfect safety and perfect comfort. I supposed that the advocates of the Panama route at that time were quite sincere and honestly believed it. I have no question in the world but that they did, and that the change of mind is the result of the latest testimony which has been brought to the notice of the committee by those who have been down there making the necessary preparations for the work.

Mr. President, what it all means, then, in plain English is that there is being prepared in the Canal Zone a slaughterhouse for aliens that labor; that the climate there and other conditions will be so fatal that we can expect nothing else than a tremendous mortality, and that the canal is to be built, not only at the cost of money, but at this fearful cost of human life.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Colorado yield to the Senator from New Hampshire?

Mr. PATTERSON. Certainly.

Mr. GALLINGER. If the Senator will examine the testimony that Secretary Taft and Mr. Shonts have given before some committees of the Senate, notably the Committee on Appropriations, he will discover that those officials have stated that the present conditions, so far as sanitation is concerned, are very acceptable; that even the Americans who are on the Zone are not at the present time suffering unusually from climatic diseases; that there is a condition there which is very encouraging, and that they believe the Zone will be made, in regard to health conditions, such that the picture which the Senator paints is not likely to happen.

Mr. PATTERSON. That is what I supposed, Mr. President. I recall the statements that were made of the improved conditions which were going to be created in the Panama Zone, and what a splendid summer resort it was going to be for the poor of the world; they would have a salubrious climate, pure water, invigorating breezes. The character of the food was not particularly described, but, taking it all in all, it was going to be a sort of haven of rest after the money had been expended to cure the difficulties which were said to exist.

But now come Senators who stood for Panama and who told the Senate and the country of the vastly improved conditions that were going to exist down there, and they say it is utterly impossible for any but a certain class of labor to work at all there, and that their work must be desultory—that they will work a few days and then take to the woods—and that fatalities of an extraordinary nature must almost necessarily ensue.

Mr. President, I wish to ask the Senators whether, if what they say is true, the construction of the canal should be along the line that is contemplated. I do not mean the physical line, but with the character of labor and the quantity of work that will be expected of those who are employed. If the climate is thus enervating and destructive to human health, why, let me ask the Senate, should we inaugurate the construction of the work without any reference to the great influence which the hours of labor will have upon health and longevity and the resistance to those enemies of human life which, according to some, are lurking under every stone and are found in every clod?

I accept the statement of the Senator from Maine that we are to use these negroes or the inhabitants of the southern islands along the line that they are accustomed to work. They work from sunup till sundown. I imagine that that is about the idea in the minds of those who have been charged with the construction of the canal. From sunrise to sundown may be twelve or fourteen or fifteen or sixteen hours in the Tropics.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Colorado yield to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. PATTERSON. I do.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, I am somewhat familiar with the conditions in the South, where the labor is agricultural; and I will say for the information of the Senator from Colorado that the general rule on plantations—and it is not as warm with us as it is in Panama—is to begin work about sunrise—start to get ready to go to work; usually it is an hour before the plow begins to work. Then at noon they take from two to three hours' rest. So the employers can not get more than eleven hours' labor, and we are very glad to get nine good honest hours' labor out of any negro we have to deal with.

As I am up I will say further, that it seems to me the Senator's sympathy is entirely misplaced. The Jamaica negroes or those from the other islands down there, Martinique and the Barbados, or wherever they may come from, will not be brought there as slaves and compelled to labor, but they will come with a contract which they will be very careful to have observed by those to whom they hire. There will be no driving of those men beyond their own wishes, because they will always have the liberty to quit. When the Senator undertakes to appeal to us for the alien labor, I think he had better look a little closer home and take this view into consideration: That is, the American laborers have to foot these bills, and if we are to enter upon a philanthropic, humanitarian—oh, I do not know what—canting policy of taking care of everybody else, and especially the colored peoples of the Tropics, I would like for the friends of organized labor in the United States, and I consider myself one, to take into consideration the taxes that will have to be levied and paid, in the last analysis by the laborers of the United States, to pay for this canal, unless we deal with it in a rational and practical and common-sense way.

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. President, I am not particularly solicitous about the welfare of alien labor, but I take it that when laborers are brought there under contract and herded within the Panama Zone they can not quit very well, and they will be pretty nearly in the condition of serfs, within a limited area of country, with wide seas between them and the homes that they left. I am inclined to think that unless the restraining and protecting arm of the Government is extended toward them in some degree, especially if the canal is to be built under contract, they will have to endure a great deal of unnecessary suffering.

Mr. President, we have societies all through the United States and in European countries for the prevention of cruelty to animals. People are prosecuted and fined and some incarcerated because they treat brutes, the animals of the country, in an inhuman way. If men work their horses or their mules so long in each day or any time as that they suffer to an exceptionnl degree it is a crime. While we are protecting animals we are liable to lose sight of men simply because they are aliens.

I am inclined to think, even though the suggestion of the Senator from South Carolina is true that there may be cant to a certain degree in what is said, there is a feeling in the breasts of the people of the United States that no matter where labor comes from, or what its color, or what its degree, it is entitled to the protecting hand of the Government, at least to prevent it from being so used and treated as that such treatment may be said to be inhuman or cruel. That is precisely what these Jamaican and other laborers are likely not to have—the protection of the Government in any way or to any extent—but brought from a distance, practically permanently separated from their homes, at least from the country of their nativity, unable to leave until the contractors perhaps are willing that they shall leave, for want of means to pay their fare, and for other reasons——

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Colorado yield to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. PATTERSON. Certainly.

Mr. TILLMAN. I presume, of course, the Senator knows that these laborers from any British territory, and I should hope from any territory however insignificant or lacking in strength the country might be, would be under the protection of the consuls of that country; and if they came there under contract, which they necessarily would do, it would be reduced to writing, and under conditions which would show clearly what they had agreed to do. I think it is an absurd contention on the Senator's part to endeavor to show that there will be anything like coercion or any cruelty in the treatment of these people. He is allowing his imagination to run with a broad rein, and is conjuring up goblins here that no one else can see at all.

Mr. PATTERSON. Oh, no, Mr. President; nothing of the kind. If anybody has ever heard of a consul from any government worrying himself about how immigrants from his country work or are treated by the employer, I have no knowledge of it.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, I happen to be able to act as a witness in that cause. When governor of South Carolina, some twelve or fourteen years ago, some Italian laborers were employed by a phosphate company in my State, and they had been carried down there under the control or direction or supervision of a padrone. For some reason there arose a dispute between the employer and these men as to what they had agreed to do, and possibly some coercive means were attempted. The Italian consul appealed to the Secretary of State. My attention, as governor, was called to the fact that complaint had been lodged for the protection of these men and I investigated the whole question.

Therefore, the Senator is entirely off in imagining that a consul is not charged with that specific duty where the immigrants and citizens of his country are concerned. These men are not going to immigrate to the Isthmus for the purpose of remaining there or changing their nationality, but they will simply go there for the purpose of obtaining labor under a contract, and that contract will be carried out, and necessarily carried out, in as good faith by the United States Government as it would be in New York or anywhere else.

Mr. PATTERSON. I have not any question, Mr. President, but that the United States will carry out any contract it makes. If it did not, the supervising care of Congress would soon interpose to prevent any serious violation of contractural obligations, especially if the complaints were allowed to reach the United States. I have not any question about that. But I think there is a very strong probability that in the end, and before very long, the work on the canal will be done under contract, and when that time arrives then the Government of the United States is practically stripped of supervision, and the well-being of those who are at work on the Zone is practically at the mercy of the contractors.

The more I have heard in this debate and the more testimony Senators have given the more I am convinced that some regulation ought to be made when you undertake to repeal what may be called the "eight-hour law." If eight hours is too short a time for alien labor to work, ten hours is not—ten full hours. If they are to be carried into that fever-stricken Zone, a section of country that for various reasons is such an enemy to human health and human life, then the stronger the reason, Mr. President, if aliens are to be considered worthy of any care whatever, as much care as is afforded to the dumb brute, that some limitation upon the length of time they may be permitted to work should be placed in the law.

I will be satisfied, Mr. President, if the provision will be so changed as to make it ten hours for alien labor instead of eight. Whether it may be called maudlin sympathy or cant, or whatever other term Senators may see fit to employ, I am willing to stand by the proposition that the people of this country will declare it to be inhuman to allow aliens, from whatever island or from whatever mainland, to be brought into that unhealthy Zone and, as to the hours of labor, left altogether at the mercy of the contractors.

Then, again, I do not abandon the contention I made that the enactment of a law such as this is a discrimination against American labor, because it is admitted that with this law upon the statute book American laborers and American mechanics are excluded, because they will not be employed when they must work as these aliens will be required to work. Therefore, they are excluded from participation in any of the profits that may go to labor and that may go to mechanics in the construction of the canal.

I do not believe either that fixing a fair day's work for the laborers and the mechanics is going to seriously interfere with the speedy construction of the canal. According to the united testimony of all who have investigated questions of this kind, reasonably short hours of labor are conducive to the character of the work, the amount and the quality that will be secured. Men, I care not from what country they come, who in the morning at sunup enter upon the digging or the plowing or whatever else may be needed in that locality, perhaps with an hour at noon, and who continue until sundown and then go to sleep and get up in the morning before sunrise, can not be otherwise than sadly demorialized, and the character of the men and the character of the labor greatly deteriorated.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from Colorado yield to the Senator from New Hampshire?

Mr. PATTERSON. Certainly.

Mr. GALLINGER. On the point the Senator has just made, I will call his attention to the hearings before the House Committee on Appropriations, in which he will discover that these men are given two hours at noon. I wish to read just one paragraph of five or six lines.

Mr. Stevens, the engineer in charge, says:

> You asked me about the eight-hour law. One source of irritation with the American labor on the Isthmus is because they can not work overtime. They say we have come down away from our homes and we want to earn money, and they have deluged us with requests and petitions to be allowed to work overtime more than the eight hours. Of course, my hands are tied and I can not allow it.

Mr. PATTERSON. Then it appears that we have American labor down there anxious and eager to work.

Mr. GALLINGER. The Senator is a little ahead of time.

Mr. PATTERSON. Oh.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. Shonts, when inquired of about that, says these are clerks, bookkeepers, stenographers, and foremen. Many of those Americans would want to work more than eight hours, if they were permitted to do it. So we are not doing any special injustice when we retain our eight-hour law so far as our Americans are concerned and give a little leeway so far as the Jamaican negroes and others are concerned, who, Secretary Taft testified before the Committee on Appropriations, are giving about 25 per cent of the work an American laborer performs in this country.

Mr. PATTERSON. Well, I have heard so much about the percentage business of labor, and where I have been I have seen it so materially contradicted, that I do not take as gospel truth percentages in the value of labor of one class of people as against the labor of another.

Mr. GALLINGER. I quoted Secretary Taft.

Mr. PATTERSON. I know that very well. I have great respect for the judgment and the opinion of Secretary Taft, but I recollect that when there was talk about the labor of the Filipino it was said one American is worth the labor of three or four Filipinos. When we were over in the island I recall very well that Mr. PAYNE, the leader of the House, and I went over to Cavite and into the shops of the naval construction there. We saw several hundred Filipinos at work and we were told that on the pay roll there were either 3,200 or 4,200 men, I forget now which. We asked as to the character of the work. "It could not be better." "How did it compare with the work of Europeans or Americans?" Why, they said that three Filipinos would do the work of two Americans, and that the work of those more than 3,000 Filipinos was satisfactory in every way.

Then again, Mr. President, I recollect that on the Manchuria, before we reached Honolulu, the head of the great contracting firm that put in the breakwater in Manila Harbor and the company that was engaged in dredging the bay and otherwise improving the harbor and its locality, in a lecture to the passengers, they having been called together especially——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The hour of 2 o'clock having arrived, the Chair lays before the Senate the unfinished business, which will be stated.

The SECRETARY. A bill (S. 529) to promote the national defense, to create a force of naval volunteers, to establish American ocean mail lines to foreign markets, to promote commerce, and to provide revenue from tonnage.

Mr. GALLINGER. I ask unanimous consent that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from New Hampshire ask unanimous consent that the unfinished business be temporarily laid aside. Without objection, it is so ordered. The Senator from Colorado will proceed.

Mr. PATTERSON. The passengers on the steamer having been called together in the cabin to listen to the lecture, he told us the experience of his company with Filipino labor. In doing that great work, for which the Filipino government, I think, paid in the neighborhood of $4,000,000, a vast work, he said the first year they were there it seemed utterly impossible to get any considerable amount of labor from the Filipino; that they would go and work a day or two and then they were off; that there was a constant change in the personnel of the working force for that reason; so that at the end of the first year the company found itself to the bad a quarter of a million dollars. He said it set him to thinking. He was inclined to believe that the Filipino could be made to labor under proper conditions, and so he studied the conditions of labor in the Philippines and the surroundings of the Filipino at his home. He realized that the Filipino's love of locality was intense, and that one of the great difficulties was to induce a Filipino to move even from one province into another, no matter what the distress might be in his own province and the reward of labor that was to be received in an adjoining one. They determined to make the seat of the work as much the home of the Filipino as was possible. So he said they built a larger number of comfortable shacks, and then having in mind the chief amusement of the Filipino they built a cockpit. Then they organized a brass band. Having constructed, as it were, a home, they brought in Filipinos with their families; and he said from that time forward all trouble was at an end. So they proceeded with the construction of this great $4,000,000 contract until it was completed, and it was completed in a satisfactory way, and the labor of the Filipino under those conditions was altogether satisfactory. All of the trouble and complaints that were floating everywhere about the lack and the quality of labor and its percentage had vanished before the application of a little common sense and humane contrivance and sanitary regulations.

So I am inclined to think that this decrying of the labor, wholesale and without limitation, of those who live in the Tropics is not supported by the facts, if a little common sense is brought to the assistance of those who must use the labor. And so I say, Mr. President, as to the labor of constructing the Panama Canal, if one-half that was promised when the particular route to be followed was agreed upon is to be realized, there can be a great deal of American labor, and especially a great deal of American skill, utilized in the construction of the canal. While the majority of the work, perhaps, is digging, yet there is a vast amount of blasting to be done, work that requires peculiar skill and peculiar experience, a class of work that in the mountains commands the very highest wage of all labor of that character—$3 and $3.50 a day, and the day of eight hours.

I can not help but believe that a fair limitation for alien labor in the matter of the length of the day's work—say you abandon the eight hours as to them and make the limitation ten hours—will improve the quality of the work, give a more satisfactory and better-contented mass of labor, and be infinitely more humane than the plan which is now probably undefined, but is finding a lodgment in the minds of Senators, that of the use of labor there without limitation as to time, allowing the length of the day either to the will of the Government or to the contractor, after the contractor shall be put in charge of the work.

Therefore, Mr. President, I withdraw the amendment that I have offered, and I will move that the clause be so amended as that ten hours shall be the limit of a day's work in the construction of the isthmian canal.

Mr. SIMMONS. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENNT. The Senator from Colorado will please state definitely his amendment.

Mr. SIMMONS. Mr. President, from the observations of the Senator from New Hampshire [Mr. GALLINGER], made a few minutes ago, when he interrupted the Senator from Colorado [Mr. PATTERSON], I am inclined to think that he is laboring under some misapprehension as to the distribution of work upon the Isthmus. I understood the Senator to say that the Americans who are engaged there are employed in clerical positions, or in doing indoor work. That is a mistake, Mr. President. A large part of the Americans who are employed there work exclusively indoors and are engaged in doing clerical or administrative work, but the evidence before the committee disclosed the fact that at least 10 per cent of the Americans employed there are engaged in superintending, controlling, and directing the Jamaican and Martinique negroes, who do the manual labor, or they are engaged in connection with them in the management of trains and in the operation of machinery. So we have out there, not the Jamaican negro working separately by himself, but we have the white man—the American—working along with the Jamaican negro in the practical operations of constructing the canal and operating the railroad.

Mr. GALLINGER. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from North Carolina yield to the Senator from New Hampshire?

Mr. SIMMONS. Certainly.

Mr. GALLINGER. If the Senator will permit me, that is unquestionably true. There are Americans in charge of the Jamaican laborers or other alien laborers on the Isthmus. I did not mean to say that there were not. But that the bulk of the Americans are engaged in clerical services and services of that nature I think goes without the saying.

Mr. SIMMONS. Undoubtedly. But, Mr. President, right there, to my mind, arises the practical difficulty of applying a ten-hour-a-day law to the aliens who are engaged in the work on the Isthmus and a different hour per day to the Americans who are engaged there. If we should adopt this provision, as I understand it, we would abolish the eight-hour law as applicable to all aliens employed upon the canal, but the eight-hour law would still apply to all Americans engaged in work in any capacity whatever on the Isthmus, as well those who are employed in clerical and administrative functions as those who are employed in the field, so to speak, as overseers or as directors or as engineers.

Now, Mr. President, it seems to me that that is utterly impracticable.

Mr. TILLMAN. The Senator is on the committee examining this question, and undoubtedly, from what the Senator from Alabama [Mr. MORGAN] said, that committee will likely report a bill governing the entire isthmian canal construction. If there is any difficulty of the kind the Senator mentions, it would seem very easy to me to provide for eight hours for a day's work as far as it goes, and for any additional labor in superintending the work. I presume the bosses or those who would overlook the work would be very happy to have their pay increased 25, 40, 50 per cent by simply providing that if they work twelve hours they shall get a day and a half; if they work ten they shall get a day and a quarter, and so on; or, if it was not thought desirable to do that, there could be relays of bosses, letting one set take it for eight hours, and if the laborers were going on for two hours more the other men would put in two hours at night and six in the morning, and so on, just like the watchmen around the Capitol, Capitol policemen on their beats, and every other kind of labor that the Government employs. We have elevator men here who go on at a certain hour and who go off at a certain hour. They swap about and they work overtime, and all that kind of thing, and nobody ever hears of any trouble about it.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from North Carolina yield to the Senator from Maine?

Mr. SIMMONS. Certainly.

Mr. HALE. The Secretary of War and Mr. Shonts and Mr. Stevens have all stated that there is no practical difficulty such as is suggested by the Senator from North Carolina.

Mr. SIMMONS. I suggest to the Senator from Maine that Mr. Wallace, the late chief engineer on the Isthmus, who had a year's practical experience there, and who has, I think, impressed every member of the committee as he has impressed me, with being a man with very thorough knowledge of the situation there, and who spoke to the committee with great frankness and fairness, expressed a contrary opinion to that expressed by Mr. Shonts and Mr. Stevens; and the facts which he gave to the committee bearing upon this question convinced me, at least, that his view of the matter was the correct one. Mr. President, later on I will read from Mr. Wallace's testimony on that point. In brief, Mr. Wallace expressed the opinion that under the conditions which exist there it will be utterly impracticable to have one part of our laboring force there subject to the eight-hour law and another part not subject to it.

I agree entirely with the Senator from South Carolina. I was going to suggest that the difficulty which Mr. Wallace suggests, and which I think is a real difficulty, can very easily be overcome. I do not think it will be any great hardship to the Jamaican negroes engaged upon this work to be allowed to work more than eight hours a day. My understanding is that in the countries they come from they work much longer hours than that; and my understanding is that they can, without any injury whatever to their health, work ten or twelve hours a day in that climate, and that they have no objection to working longer hours, but, on the contrary, are anxious for the privilege of doing so.

Of course I take it they would not be willing to work ten hours for the same pay they are now getting for eight hours, and I suppose the Government makes no such proposition as that. If the hours of labor are to be increased, I suppose, in some degree, the rate of wages will be increased.

Now, when you come to the American laborer there, he is paid so much per hour, and my understanding is that almost all of them are dissatisfied with the restrictions that are imposed upon them by the eight-hour law, and that they are very anxious to be permitted to work a longer time per day than they are now allowed to work, provided, of course, that they will get pay in addition to what they now receive according to the hour rate; and that, of course, they would get.

I do not think that American labor in this country is at all interested in this question. Certainly it is not interested in what alien labor is paid on the Isthmus; and the repeal of the eight-hour law with reference to the alien labor there can not in any way affect the questions that are involved in the agitation in this country for the eight-hour-day law. On the other hand, as I said, the Americans who are there have left their homes and gone down there because the wages there are better than they are here. They have gone there to make money. They want to make that money and get back home just as quickly as they can. Therefore to restrict them to eight hours a day is a hardship instead of a benefit.

Mr. President, I think that the whole situation can be met by abolishing the eight-hour law so far as it applies to alien labor, and by allowing the authorities there not to force a man to work more than eight hours, but to permit him, where he wishes to work longer, to do so, receiving the same hourly rate for the additional time.

Now I will come back to this practical difficulty mentioned by Mr. Stevens; and I think when the facts are before the Senate it will be seen that there is very much in Mr. Wallace's contention about this matter, notwithstanding the opinion expressed by Mr. Stevens and by Mr. Shonts. I want to say right here, as a member of that committee, that when Mr. Stevens and Mr. Shonts were examined upon this question I am sure their attention was not directed, as in the case of Mr. Wallace, to the fact that a part of the Americans out there were worked in connection with the negro laborers and that the work of the negro laborers could not go on without that supervision.

Mr. President, I want to read only very briefly from what Mr. Wallace had to say about this matter, and I think its force will strike the Senate at once.

Senator KITTREDGE. Do I understand that you advise us to recommend that the eight-hour law be eliminated from the Isthmus in order to give the chief engineer, or our proper official, a free hand in that direction?

Mr. WALLACE. A free hand in its application.

Senator KITTREDGE. That is what I mean.

Mr. WALLACE. You may have difficulties in eliminating it altogether, you understand. Of course it goes without saying that every restriction you put on that work will retard it and add to the expense, and every restriction that you remove will expedite it and lower the expense. That goes without saying; but I consider it absolutely impracticable to make a law that will apply the eight-hour law to the gold men—

Those are the white men—and permit the natives and the foreigners and the aliens and the silver men to work ten hours. That will not work out in practice.

He said it was very nice in theory as it is, but that it will not work out in practice, and he gives the reasons for that opinion.

I read from his testimony:

Senator KNOX. But if the eight-hour law were abolished altogether, and the hours of labor were to be fixed by the person having charge down there according to the circumstances, it would relieve the situation, would it not?

Mr. WALLACE. That is the ideal situation; there is not any doubt at all about that.

Senator KITTREDGE. What do you say in regard to the question of alien labor?

Mr. WALLACE. Your labor is so mixed there that you will have to treat it all alike. For instance, in your machine shop you will have a negro that will be a helper. You may find a Spaniard that will be a finished machinist; and in between these men you will find a white man running a lathe, you understand.

That work has all got to go on simultaneously. In your foundry you may find a molder that is an American, another molder that is a Spaniard, another molder that is a Jamaica negro, and you can not stop part of the work in that shop unless you stop it all. I mean you can not make any separation of your men.

Again, you will have a track force: That track gang may be Jamaica negroes. The foreman of the gang will be an American. You can not have that gang work two hours longer than the foreman works. Under the eight-hour law the foreman, who is an American, would only work eight hours.

Mr. President, it seems to me there is peculiar strength in these suggestions with reference to that part of the force who are engaged in the work of excavation on the canal and in the removal of the spoils. We all understand that the greatest problem in connection with the construction of this canal is the disposition of the spoils. We all understand that the earth, or the rock, or whatever may be the nature of the material dug out of the earth, has got to be taken away—sometimes a mile, sometimes 6 or 7 miles—by train and dumped at some convenient point where it will not again get in the way. The men, foreigners, who are engaged in digging out this material work in squads, with an American overseer always, for we do not employ Spaniards or negroes as foremen out there. The train is loaded after this material has been blasted and dug out by another force composed of foreigners, with Americans superintending and directing them. Then the train crew who take this spoil off to the place where it is to be dumped is composed partly, as Mr. Wallace says, of Americans, with some Spaniards, some Jamaicans, and some native Panamans. When it gets to the point where it is to be dumped, you have exactly the same condition. So in this process of removing one carload of dirt from the great Culebra Cut, or any other part of the Isthmus where excavation is to be done, you will have probably a dozen different gangs. The men who do the manual work are aliens. The men who direct the superintendence of the manual work are Americans. When the eight-hour day has expired, the American who is at the head of these gangs must quit work. The law will not permit him to work another hour or another minute. The law will not permit the officials down there to allow him to work another hour or another minute. He must stop. Is it not, then, perfectly plain that the minute he stops the gang of men, all aliens, under him must stop? You can not possibly carry out in practice your theory of a ten-hour day for the foreigners and an eight-hour day for the Americans without giving the Commission authority to employ these American laborers as long hours as they may require these foreign laborers to labor. I do not know whether or not it is practicable to change that.

But, Mr. President, as I said a little while ago, at least 10 per cent of the Americans who are employed down there to-day are employed in the capacity of overlooking and directing the work of these foreigners. I will read what Mr. Wallace says about this phase of the matter. I myself asked him some questions regarding it, because, as I said, the attention of neither Mr. Shonts nor Mr. Stevens seems to have been directed to this particular phase of the matter. If it had been, they would probably have given a different opinion from the one they did give, or they might have qualified the opinion which they did give.

I read from Mr. Wallace's testimony:

Senator HOPKINS. Mr. Wallace, the labor down there will not be American labor, such as we have here in the States, will it?

Mr. WALLACE. I should judge that about 10 per cent of it will be; possibly 20 per cent. If all your labor down there was alien and all of your officers were whites, it would be a different proposition—

He is now speaking about the same practical difficulty I referred to a little while ago—

But a large part of the white men that are on the Isthmus there come under the restrictions of the eight-hour law.

Senator SIMMONS. Mr. Wallace, you say that 10 per cent would be American labor?

Mr. WALLACE. I corrected that.

Senator SIMMONS. Do you mean to include in your estimate the Americans who work indoors, or do you mean 10 per cent of those that are actually engaged in the work of construction—manual labor?

Mr. WALLACE. Well, no. When it comes to manual labor, that is a different thing; but the eight-hour law is applicable, under our law here, to much more than a manual laborer, you understand; it governs mechanics.

Senator SIMMONS. What I want to know is, what percentage of those who are engaged in manual labor are Americans?

Mr. WALLACE. That depends on where you cut off the expression "manual labor."

Senator SIMMONS. I mean men who work out of doors and who are not employed in clerical positions in connection with administration.

Mr. WALLACE. I suppose about 10 per cent of them will be Americans. That will consist of foremen in various capacities, trainmen, enginemen, cranesmen on your steam shovels and on the handling machinery, mechanics in your shops, boiler makers, blacksmiths, carpenters, etc. I do not presume you will find any Americans actually at work with a pick and a shovel, you understand, but as to the intelligent labor, there will be a great many Americans scattered through it, and the intelligent labor necessary to handle the machinery will eventually be practically all Americans.

Mr. HALE. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from North Carolina yield to the Senator from Maine?

Mr. SIMMONS. Certainly.

Mr. HALE. The Senator, as I understand, is now reading from the testimony of Engineer Wallace before the Interoceanic Canal Committee.

Mr. SIMMONS. Yes.

Mr. HALE. I wish to say to the Senator and to other Senators that the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate is now dealing with an appropriation of money, and so it does not deem it wise to change the provision which the House has embodied in this bill. All the details as to future work, its conduct, and the rules under which it will be done will be elaborated by the Committee on Interoceanic Canals, of which the Senator is a member. The Committee on Appropriations was entirely willing and glad to be rid of all those details, simply confining itself to the appropriation of money and such limitations as seemed necessary. Therefore I hope it will not be urged that we shall now go into the details of what shall be done about this matter hereafter. The other committee will take charge of that.

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from North Carolina yield to the Senator from Colorado?

Mr. SIMMONS. Certainly.

Mr. PATTERSON. Then I would ask the Senator from Maine whether it would not be a good idea to exclude this new legislation on the subject of labor until the Committee on Interoceanic Canals shall have perfected whatever rules or laws they desire to have go into effect in connection with the matter of labor?

Mr. HALE. The trouble with that suggestion is that this is an urgent deficiency appropriation bill to take effect at once; it is for conditions that exist now. As a limitation upon the appropriation the House has put on this provision, and the Committee on Appropriations does not believe that any wisdom will be exercised either by cutting it off or changing it.

Mr. SIMMONS. The Senator from Maine, I hope, does not understand me as opposing in any way the provision in the bill. I was merely suggesting a practical difficulty in carrying it out. I think the provision ought to remain in the bill.

Mr. HALE. I so understood the Senator, but he is making an interesting statement and quoting Mr. Wallace, who is a great engineer, though not at present connected with the work, upon details which I do not think we can very well consider here.

Mr. SIMMONS. If the Senator will pardon me, I think the Senator was here only during the latter part of my remarks. I had laid down a general proposition, and I was reading from the testimony of Mr. Wallace for the purpose of sustaining the facts upon which I based my proposition. The general proposition which I laid down was that about 10 per cent of the Americans now on the Isthmus are actually employed as superintendents, overseers, and directors of these alien laborers, and that it was impracticable to limit them to an eight-hour day. If you limit them to an eight-hour day and require the others to work longer than eight hours, of course at the end of eight hours the aliens would be without overseers and without superintendence and direction. That was the point I was making. I was simply reading from Mr. Wallace's testimony to support my statement that 10 per cent of the white men there are employed in this capacity, and that to make it compulsory that they should stop at the end of eight hours would make it impracticable to work the balance of the force after that time, because the heads would be gone.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from North Carolina yield to the Senator from South Carolina?

Mr. SIMMONS. Yes.

Mr. TILLMAN. I understand the Senator from North Carolina to say that these men are now working by the hour, without regard to the eight-hour law?

Mr. SIMMONS. All of them are paid by the hour.

Mr. TILLMAN. If they are paid by the hour, then if they work overtime they are paid for that extra time.

Mr. SIMMONS. The law does not permit them to work overtime. That is the difficulty.

Mr. TILLMAN. I agree with the Senator that we ought to have the freest possible right to say that the overseers shall not leave before the laborers quit.

Mr. SIMMONS. That is exactly what I have suggested.

Mr. TILLMAN. But you can not put it in this bill.

Mr. SIMMONS. I am not contending that it must be put in this bill; I was simply stating a practical difficulty that confronts us, and suggesting that the distinguished gentleman in charge of this bill, when his attention was called to this, would probably be able by amendment to meet the practical difficulty.

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from North Carolina yield to the Senator from Iowa?

Mr. SIMMONS. Certainly.

Mr. ALLISON. If I understand the Senator, he commends this legislation because it goes part way in accomplishing what Engineer Wallace recommends.

Mr. SIMMONS. If the Senator will permit me, I do not like the word "commend." I do not exactly commend it, because I like the eight-hour law in this country, and if this provision should in any way conflict with the interests of American labor I should be opposed to it.

Mr. ALLISON. Certainly; but I understand from the testimony, and I understand the Senator himself to believe, that the eight-hour law ought not to apply to the Canal Zone.

Mr. SIMMONS. That it is hampering the work there and making it cost a great deal more.

Mr. ALLISON. I understand that is the view of the Committee on Interoceanic Canals.

Mr. SIMMONS. I think that is true.

Mr. ALLISON. This provision goes part way. It says that alien labor shall not come under the provisions of the eight-hour law. It will be the easiest thing in the world for the Committee on Interoceanic Canals, when they come to deal with this question, to go further than we go, and provide in the statute, which must be passed before this session closes, that this rule shall apply to all laborers on the Isthmus. When that committee brings in a proposition of that kind, I shall vote with the committee for enlarging and extending this provision; but in the meantime, as the House has partially dealt with this matter, as the Committee on Appropriations hesitated to enter at large upon this legislation, and as the Committee on Interoceanic Canals are dealing with the subject, why not allow this provision to remain in the bill and then correct it or make such additions to it as are wise when the Interoceanic Canal Committee acts?

Mr. SIMMONS. If the Senator will pardon me, I should like to inquire of him whether he thinks it is impracticable or undesirable to so amend this provision of the bill as to permit the Canal Commission to employ Americans for a longer period than eight hours a day on the Isthmus, or is his objection based upon the ground that it is a matter which more properly and appropriately pertains to the recommendation of the Committee on Interoceanic Canals? If the latter is the Senator's objection, of course I have nothing further to urge.

Mr. ALLISON. The Senator will observe that it was the object of the Committee on Appropriations, this being an urgent bill, to eliminate from it all outside questions if possible. Therefore they did not undertake to modify this provision as it was arranged by the House, but preferred that the bill should stand with this provision in it. I think most of the committee, though I speak only for myself, when the proposition comes up on an independent bill, which I think is the proper place for it, will stand with the Senator from North Carolina in favor of eliminating the application of the eight-hour law from all laborers on the Canal Zone. Indeed, Mr. President, I do not know that it has been absolutely decided by any court that that law really applies to the Canal Zone. I believe the Attorney-General has rendered such an opinion, and of course we are bound by it until that decision shall have been changed.

Mr. SIMMONS. I think that is true.

Mr. ALLISON. But I think those who believe as the Senator from North Carolina does and as I do will agree that we had better allow this provision to stand as it is. I am sure the Senator from North Carolina has as great faith in the Committee on Interoceanic Canals as I have, and, having that faith in that committee, I think they can provide an arrangement or an amendment that will cover this whole question more at large when they have taken action, and I hope that committee will do so.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. President, the Senator from Iowa says that this proviso excludes alien laborers from the provisions of the law which prohibits them from working longer than eight hours a day. The Senator is in favor of allowing all laborers to work on the Isthmus more than eight hours. I ask the Senator can not both ends be obtained right now by simply striking out the word "alien," and making it read that "it shall not apply to laborers employed in the construction of the isthmian canal within the Zone?" That will cover the subject.

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President, that would cover the subject very well, and I should be glad to accept the amendment if the Senate was the only body that dealt with this question and our will here was to be the will of Congress; but unfortunately on this question, as on many others, we have to secure the action of the two Houses, and each House is entitled to its own judgment as respects the details of measures brought before it. If the Senator could assure me that this bill would not be delayed elsewhere for a moment, and that his judgment and mine—for I am sure he is in accord with me on this subject—could prevail, I should probably be willing to strike out the word "alien." I hope, however, the amendment will not be pressed now, because it would make it difficult to secure an early passage of the bill.

Mr. CLAY. Let me say this: If this is proper legislation, and it is necessary for the Committee on Interoceanic Canals to report a bill of this character to the Senate, before that bill can become a law there is one thing sure—it must have the approval both of the House and of the Senate; and if the House will not agree to this amendment it is certain no such legislation can take place. I would suggest to the Senator that, under the statement made by the Senator from North Carolina, it strikes me that the House would readily agree to such an amendment, as it would very much facilitate the work of the construction of the canal. It strikes me that if you agree now to take that word out all difficulty in the future would be settled, provided the House agreed to it, and if the House did not agree to it there is one thing certain—there would be no use attempting further legislation on that line.

Mr. ALLISON. A great many things are proper that are not expedient. I endeavored to state that I thought it was wiser to do this work, which the Senator from North Carolina and the Senator from Georgia desire to have done, in piecemeal, as it were, going now as far as the House has agreed to go, and then, later on, when the real subject of legislation comes before us, we can go further. I can see no trouble in that disposition of the subject, and I hope the Senator from Georgia will be willing to postpone this matter of striking out the word "alien" until we can have more time and give more ample consideration to it.

Mr. SIMMONS. If the Senator will permit me to interrupt him, I wish to say that I myself do not propose to make any controversy about it. I have no disposition to offer any amendment in regard to it; but it does not strike me that if this is a needed bit of legislation, and we are engaged now in legislating upon the very subject-matter, we ought to refrain from so amending and perfecting it as to make it workable and practical legislation, because, forsooth, some controversy may arise. I do not suppose that you only put in this deficiency bill matters about which there is no controversy, because, as I remember, the very provision that we are now discussing did create in another body a great deal of controversy and a very decided division upon very marked lines.

This is a matter that does not seem to have been brought to the attention of the House at the time they were passing the bill, but it seems to me that it is so essential a part of the subject-matter about which we are legislating and so necessary in order to make that which it is proposed to do workable and practicable in its operation that it ought at least to receive the serious consideration of the distinguished chairman of the Committee on Appropriations, and perhaps, while he does not now see his way clear, after reflection and before we get through with this bill he will be able to add a few words to the bill by way of amendment that will accomplish the object which he says he favors, as well as the Senator from Georgia and myself.

Mr. ALLISON. Mr. President, I have already reflected somewhat upon this question. I do not think that what has been said justifies me in changing my views. This is a deficiency bill. It is intended to carry forward the work between the 1st of April and the 1st of July. Therefore it is temporary, and I have, I think, very good authority for saying that those in charge there can get on with this temporarily until some other provision can be matured through the Interoceanic Canal Committee.

Mr. NEWLANDS. Mr. President, I am opposed to any modification whatever of the limitations imposed upon the hours of labor of laborers and mechanics in the public service, whether that labor be the labor of American laborers or of alien laborers. I believe in the eight-hour law. I believe it is a humane law, and I do not propose to be humane only to Americans and inhumane to aliens.

If there is a place in God's world where the eight-hour law ought to prevail, it is on the Isthmus of Panama, where labor is exceedingly distressing, where the heat of the sun is such as to make it almost impossible to labor during certain hours of the day. I do not believe that in that climate any man ought to be called upon to work between the hours of 12 and 3, and if we apply the eight-hour law to that locality the laborers will be called upon to work from 7 until 12, a period of five hours, and from 3 until 6, a period of three hours, making a total of eight, and I think that is all any man ought to be called on to work in that climate.

I believe the work will be more economically and efficiently done if we attend to the nourishment, the recreation, and the rest of the men engaged in that locality, whether they come from this country or whether they come from Santo Domingo or Martinique. I believe you will get more out of an eight-hour day in that locality than you will get out of a ten-hour day; that if a man is called upon to work there for ten hours he will really do only eight hours' work, and that in practical efficiency the eight-hour day will accomplish as much as the ten-hour day. So I am opposed to this modification, and I shall vote against it if I have an opportunity.

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. President, I will not take up any more of the time of the Senate, nor will I offer what I had intended to offer as a substitute for the paragraph that I moved to strike out. I will allow my motion to stand, and be content to vote upon it, with such other votes as it may receive, quite well satisfied from the very general expression that no alien need apply for an eight-hour law or for a law that will limit the number of hours of work to be done in the Canal Zone and in connection with the construction of the canal.

I agree with the Senator from Nevada [Mr. NEWLANDS]. I believe the law would result in a better class of labor, more efficient labor, more intelligent labor, and a large amount of American labor, provided the Government will accomplish one-half of what it practically pledged itself to the people it would accomplish in the way of sanitation when we were discussing the question of different routes. Therefore, Mr. President, I will be content with a vote upon my motion to strike out the paragraph in question.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Colorado renews his motion to strike out the first paragraph at the top of page 20. The question is on agreeing to the amendment proposed by the Senator from Colorado.

The amendment was rejected.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill is still in the Senate as in Committee of the Whole and open to amendment.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, I do not rise to offer an amendment, but I wish to make some little inquiries. I was not a member of the subcommittee which held the hearings on this matter, but it will be recalled that when the other emergency bill relating to Panama was before the Senate, in the earlier days of the session, there were hearings had before the Appropriations Committee, which brought out the fact that the Commission had exercised what has since been acknowledged to be unlawful authority, had certainly stretched its authority, if it had any, to sell the bonds of the Panama Railroad Company in order to get some money with which to do certain work.

I have understood since that those bonds have been bought back, under order from the President, and that the public debt therefore has not increased by having issued bonds which are practically United States bonds. I say United States bonds for the reason that the railroad is wholly the property of the United States. We own every share of it.

I see the Senator from North Carolina [Mr. SIMMONS] is here. The point I wish to bring out is as to the temper of the Appropriations Committee, so far as I understand it. The provision at the bottom of page 19, which I will read—was put there at the urgent solicitation of the Secretary of War, because of contracts that have already been entered into and because of the condition of congestion there, requiring the rebuilding of the railroad or doubling its tracks at the earliest possible moment. We therefore have felt it necessary to furnish the money. Therefore in committee I did not object and do not now propose to object to it, but I wish the Senator in charge of the bill to let it be understood, as we did have it understood in committee, that we did not feel that this dual arrangement, this double-barreled kind of a condition there, by which we have the Panama Railroad Company doing certain things and the Canal Commission doing other things, and swapping back and forth, borrowing money from one another, when they are all the same people, ought not to exist any longer; and that the Committee on Interoceanic Canals, when they come to consider the question of legislating on this whole matter, as we assume they are preparing to do, will not forget that some of us, at least, object to this dromio arrangement, swapping entities, and snuggling up. I do not say it any offensive way, because I do not think that has been done; but anyhow I would like to have one straight account for the Panama Canal Commission, in which its expenditures authorized by Congress shall be set forth and a report made which is understandable. I take it that the two Senators whom I am addressing, the heads of the Appropriations Committee, will not controvert or dispute my position that that is the wish and the understanding, as far as we ourselves are concerned in regard to this matter.

To be used as an advance to the Panama Railroad Company to pay for the reequipment of that company, $650,000—

Mr. HALE. Mr. President, the Senator from South Carolina in what he said has practically outlined what I think the committee desire. In the first investigation by the Committee on Appropriations it was felt that there was an anomalous condition there, of the Commission and the railroad, apparently separate and distinct, keeping accounts with each other, when it was all one part of a great work.

In this matter of advance the committee has put the provision on because it was satisfied it was needed, because of the money that is required for the work in completing the equipment of and double-tracking the railroad. But I agree fully with the Senator from South Carolina. I think it is the feeling of the committee that the Interoceanic Canal Committee, in its larger range of providing for operation—how the canal shall be constructed; what the system shall be—will, in the depths of its ingenuity and resources, evolve a plan that will obliterate this dual arrangement, so that we may have the work cover not only the canal—the excavation, the transportation—but the railroad itself, and so that we may know just what the whole business is without a double set of accounts; and I trust the committee will bring out a plan of that kind.

Mr. CLAY. Mr. President, I wish to call the attention of the Senator from Maine to the bill that we passed heretofore—I believe it carried $11,000,000—for the prosecution of certain work on the Isthmus, to cover the entire expenses until June 30, 1906. I see in the estimates made by the Treasury Department that only $200,000 is called for, to be used for material and services, including construction on the Panama Railroad. But I have been informed by the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. TILLMAN] since I came in that this discrepancy has been explained by him. He has explained it to me privately. I did not hear his remarks, or I would not have called attention to the matter.

I could not understand why we should now appropriate $650,000 for that purpose when only $200,000 was asked in the estimate made at the time we passed the deficiency bill. But, as I have said, the Senator from South Carolina has explained the matter to me, and I now understand it.

Mr. TILLMAN. It came about in this way—it does not do any harm to repeat it: Certain bonds had been sold by the Panama Railroad Company (by the Panama Commission, because, as I say, they are first one and then the other, as suits their financial exigency, apparently), and those bonds have been bought back with the money which we appropriated in the last emergency appropriation bill, so there is a deficit of $650,000 necessary to carry on the work of rebuilding the road, and that is why the item is here.

Mr. HALE. That is correct.

Mr. SPOONER. The Senator from South Carolina seems to think it a novelty that the Commission should have charge of the construction of the canal and also of the railroad as a corporation.

Mr. TILLMAN. They are one and the same person.

Mr. SPOONER. They are not one and the same person.

Mr. TILLMAN. Practically they are. The Senator and I had a little bout on it once before.

Mr. SPOONER. We are about to have another bout.

Mr. TILLMAN. All right; go ahead.

Mr. SPOONER. I wish to say in all seriousness to the Senator that the Commission can not do any differently. We own simply the stock in the Panama Railroad Company. An act of Congress can change that; title to the property can be invested in the Government, and the railroad can be operated and handled just as the canal would be if it were completed. But as it stands now the Commission is absolutely powerless to transact business in any other way than it is doing, because the United States, as a stockholder in the railway company, is like any other stockholder. The accounts have to be kept separately. The Panama Railroad Company has the title to the Panama railway. It may be wise to change that, but as it stands now, and without legislation changing it, the Commission can not do any differently.

Mr. TILLMAN. I was not criticising the Commission. I was criticising the situation—the condition. I do not deny that technically the Senator from Wisconsin is right, but the United States are the sole owners of the stock of the railway company, and therefore can vote and elect a board of directors—and they have elected a board of directors, who are the Canal Commissioners. The Canal Commission and the railway directors are one and the same persons. It is simply a figment of the brain to contend that they are not the same. It is a legal fiction, and I wish that fiction done away with by legislation, if necessary, and that is all I have tried to call the attention of the Senate to, and to try to emphasize the feeling that exists in the Appropriation Committee that we will never more be called upon in an appropriation bill, urgent or otherwise, to lend ourselves money. In other words, that the Canal Commission will not lend the railroad company money, and the situation will not be befuddled and the mind of the country all mixed up and beclouded with this foolishness.

Mr. SPOONER. Only a word. I should not want any condition of affairs to continue that would keep the Senator from South Carolina befuddled.

Mr. TILLMAN. The Senator from South Carolina is not befuddled, but he is trying to get the Senator from Wisconsin to get his own mind clear.

Mr. SPOONER. My mind is clear. I do not think it is possible for the Senator to get his mind clear on this particular phase of the subject.

I merely wish to say this: When the time comes to debate the proposition whether it is to the interest of the Government to change that situation, to destroy the corporate ownership of the Panama Railway and its corporate management, as it is in the hands of the corporation, and vest it entirely in the Government, there is much to be said against it in the public interest.

Mr. TILLMAN. I will meet that condition when it arises. I am no more in favor of the Government ownership of railroads than is the Senator from Wisconsin.

Mr. SPOONER. It is not that.

Mr. TILLMAN. But we have bought this railroad for one express purpose, and that is to build the canal and to use it in that construction. We are appropriating money for the building of the canal, and in that way we have come face to face with the fact that we need to double track this road. The money is loaned here in this bill, and there is not one man in a hundred—no, not one in a thousand—who, reading this bill, will understand what it means.

I simply wanted to have it understood just what the situation was, and also to suggest that it would be very wise and necessary to have one set of books in regard to the canal construction, which would not mix up things and befuddle them, and so that anybody could understand where the money was going and somebody would not be supposing there was a steal here.

Mr. HALE. Now, Mr. President, if we can pass this little bill the Senators can fight it out afterwards.

Mr. NEWLANDS. May I ask the Senator from Maine, if he is informed on the subject, or the Senator from Wisconsin, whether the Government owns all the stock of the Panama Railway Company?

Mr. TILLMAN. Every share of it.

Mr. HALE. Yes; wholly.

Mr. NEWLANDS. My recollection was that there was a bill passed in the Senate at the last session providing for the condemnation of the balance of that stock, but that the bill did not pass both Houses.

Mr. HALE. They have got it all in now.

Mr. TILLMAN. We have every share of it. We had to sell, putatively, one share to each of the directors in order to make them eligible to that position.

Mr. NEWLANDS. I should like also to inquire of the Senator from South Carolina, since he seems well informed on the situation, as to whether that stock was acquired by condemnation or purchase.

Mr. TILLMAN. I do not know; but by purchase, I suppose.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill is still in the Senate as in Committee of the Whole, and open to amendment. If there be no further amendments, the bill will be reported to the Senate as amended.

The bill was reported to the Senate as amended, and the amendments were concurred in.

The amendments were ordered to be engrossed and the bill to be read a third time.

The bill was read the third time, and passed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. W. J. BROWNING, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had agreed to the amendment of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 10225) granting an increase of pension to Nathan B. Richardson.

The message also announced that the House had passed the following bills:

S. 9. An act granting an increase of pension to David P. Bolster;

S. 11. An act granting an increase of pension to Ruth B. Gurney;

S. 16. An act granting a pension to Susan H. Cutler;

S. 74. An act granting an increase of pension to Aaron T. Currier;

S. 80. An act granting an increase of pension to Julia A. Stanyan;

S. 81. An act granting an increase of pension to David E. Everett;

S. 96. An act granting an increase of pension to George A. Francis;

S. 120. An act granting an increase of pension to John M. Buckley;

S. 122. An act granting an increase of pension to Michael Stump;

S. 126. An act granting an increase of pension to William J. Street;

S. 138. An act granting an increase of pension to Michael Linehan;

S. 140. An act granting an increase of pension to Maitland J. Freeman;

S. 142. An act granting an increase of pension to William Furlong;
S. 143. An act granting an increase of pension to James W. Calvert;
S. 145. An act granting an increase of pension to Wellington Marlatt;
S. 164. An act granting a pension to Helen A. Frederick;
S. 178. An act granting an increase of pension to Irene A. Cochrane;
S. 179. An act granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Mayhew;
S. 183. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry F. Hunt;
S. 185. An act granting an increase of pension to Lewis H. Cate;
S. 193. An act granting an increase of pension to John C. Eberly;
S. 206. An act granting an increase of pension to Gordon H. Shepard;
S. 209. An act granting an increase of pension to George F. Ross;
S. 210. An act granting an increase of pension to Silas P. Hall;
S. 211. An act granting an increase of pension to Wilson J. Pool;
S. 212. An act granting an increase of pension to John T. Liddle;
S. 238. An act granting an increase of pension to John Savage;
S. 244. An act granting an increase of pension to Thomas Bramel, alias Thomas Bramble;
S. 279. An act granting an increase of pension to Horace E. Barker;
S. 314. An act granting a pension to Aletha E. Reynolds;
S. 315. An act granting an increase of pension to George Pike;
S. 322. An act granting an increase of pension to Isabella Workman;
S. 329. An act granting an increase of pension to William E. Blewett;
S. 328. An act granting an increase of pension to John W. Warner;
S. 330. An act granting an increase of pension to Kemenskio A. N. L. Collins, alias Lewis Collins;
S. 385. An act granting an increase of pension to George W. Gearey;
S. 393. An act granting an increase of pension to Lucinda Stamper;
S. 407. An act granting an increase of pension to George W. Purvis;
S. 472. An act granting an increase of pension to David F. Magee;
S. 493. An act granting an increase of pension to Charles M. Wittig;
S. 508. An act granting an increase of pension to William Kress;
S. 509. An act granting a pension to Annie L. Tredick;
S. 515. An act granting an increase of pension to Dennis Buckley McCready, alias Thomas Buckley;
S. 531. An act granting an increase of pension to William H. Satterthwait;
S. 534. An act granting an increase of pension to Dennis A. Davis;
S. 564. An act granting an increase of pension to Wilson Hyatt;
S. 565. An act granting an increase of pension to Lumbard B. Aldrich;
S. 572. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry G. Salisbury;
S. 575. An act granting an increase of pension to John Flynn;
S. 576. An act granting an increase of pension to Frederick J. Shelley;
S. 596. An act granting an increase of pension to Eliza J. Harding;
S. 603. An act granting an increase of pension to Lide S. Leonard;
S. 606. An act granting an increase of pension to John H. Crowell;
S. 622. An act granting an increase of pension to Hiram Swain;
S. 625. An act granting an increase of pension to Phebe J. Bennett;
S. 637. An act granting an increase of pension to John D. O'Brien;
S. 644. An act granting an increase of pension to William R. Hubbell;
S. 647. An act granting an increase of pension to Leonard Harmony;
S. 666. An act granting an increase of pension to Andrew Patrick;
S. 669. An act granting an increase of pension to Laurence Mericle;
S. 670. An act granting an increase of pension to Anthony Barrett;
S. 706. An act granting an increase of pension to Martha E. Saltar;
S. 707. An act granting a pension to Alice E. Gilley;
S. 714. An act granting an increase of pension to Susie Place;
S. 715. An act granting a pension to Georgia A. Rollins;
S. 727. An act granting an increase of pension to Jasper H. Keys;
S. 785. An act granting an increase of pension to Franklin C. Pierce;
S. 787. An act granting an increase of pension to Stephen Ernst;
S. 837. An act granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth C. Dunton;
S. 845. An act granting an increase of pension to Sarah A. Page;
S. 850. An act granting an increase of pension to Arthur F. Devereux;
S. 851. An act granting an increase of pension to Frederick Houser;
S. 923. An act granting an increase of pension to Nathaniel L. Badger;
S. 949. An act granting an increase of pension to Jacob H. Epler;
S. 950. An act granting a pension to Emma M. Rea;
S. 986. An act granting an increase of pension to Caroline M. Doan;
S. 991. An act granting an increase of pension to Jane McMahon;
S. 994. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry Weston;
S. 1015. An act granting an increase of pension to Joseph McSwain;
S. 1035. An act granting an increase of pension to Andrew McClory;
S. 1038. An act granting an increase of pension to James Frazier;
S. 1041. An act granting an increase of pension to Myron E. Billings;
S. 1042. An act granting an increase of pension to Francis Piccard;
S. 1163. An act granting an increase of pension to Martha G. Cushing;
S. 1212. An act granting an increase of pension to John S. Wilcox;
S. 1258. An act granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Paige, alias Jackson Morse;
S. 1270. An act granting an increase of pension to John C. Barr;
S. 1271. An act granting an increase of pension to Edward Irwin;
S. 1303. An act granting a pension to Harrison Brott;
S. 1367. An act granting an increase of pension to Almon Foster;
S. 1368. An act granting an increase of pension to William H. Hicks;
S. 1432. An act granting an increase of pension to John W. Foreaker;
S. 1456. An act granting a pension to Joann Morris;
S. 1466. An act granting an increase of pension to Philena Davis;
S. 1407. An act granting an increase of pension to Laura A. Blodgett;
S. 1474. An act granting an increase of pension to Joseph Davis;
S. 1509. An act granting an increase of pension to Thomas T. Hodges;
S. 1517. An act granting an increase of pension to John C. Kennedy;
S. 1524. An act granting an increase of pension to John M. Berkey;
S. 1525. An act granting an increase of pension to Zachariah Bradfield;
S. 1529. An act granting an increase of pension to James L. Small;

S. 1559. An act granting an increase of pension to Laura Clark;
S. 1709. An act granting a pension to Florence Greeley De Veaux;
S. 1735. An act granting an increase of pension to Washington Hogans;
S. 1827. An act granting an increase of pension to George C. Chase;
S. 1828. An act granting an increase of pension to Alvin Abbott;
S. 1841. An act granting a pension to Robert Catlin;
S. 1842. An act granting an increase of pension to Ransom O. Thayer;
S. 1852. An act granting an increase of pension to Milton Marsh;
S. 1987. An act granting a pension to Ella T. Hapeman;
S. 2023. An act granting a pension to Amanda M. Richey;
S. 2071. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry T. Anshutz;
S. 2112. An act granting an increase of pension to John Heck;
S. 2113. An act granting an increase of pension to Agnes Zentz;
S. 2144. An act granting an increase of pension to James A. M. Brown;
S. 2229. An act granting an increase of pension to William I. Hilkey;
S. 2255. An act granting an increase of pension to James Thompson;
S. 2256. An act granting an increase of pension to Alexander F. McConnell;
S. 2293. An act granting an increase of pension to William C. Hitchcock;
S. 2415. An act granting an increase of pension to Fannie I. Edgerton;
S. 2481. An act granting an increase of pension to Elijah R. Wilkins;
S. 2555. An act granting a pension to Sarah A. Bargar;
S. 2564. An act granting an increase of pension to Michael Matheney;
S. 2583. An act granting an increase of pension to Thomas Robey;
S. 2730. An act granting an increase of pension to James P. Ford;
S. 2779. An act granting an increase of pension to James J. Egan;
S. 2825. An act granting an increase of pension to John M. Scott;
S. 2879. An act granting an increase of pension to Mary J. Hoge;
S. 3180. An act granting an increase of pension to Jacob A. Geiger;
S. 3243. An act granting an increase of pension to Akey C. Johnson;
S. 3244. An act granting an increase of pension to Anna F. Keiter;
S. 3286. An act granting an increase of pension to Mary J. McGeliee; and
S. 3307. An act granting an increase of pension to Phillip W. Cornman.

ADJOURNMENT TO MONDAY.

Mr. ALLISON. I move that when the Senate adjourns today it be until Monday next.

The motion was agreed to.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. HALE. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After seven minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened, and (at 3 o'clock and 15 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until Monday, February 12, 1906, at 12 o'clock meridian.

CONFIRMATIONS.

Executive nominations confirmed by the Senate February 9, 1906.

COLLECTOR OF CUSTOMS.

Benjamin F. Keith, of North Carolina, to be collector of customs for the district of Wilmington, in the State of North Carolina.

COLLECTORS OF INTERNAL REVENUE.

Edmund B. Allen, of Missouri, to be collector of internal revenue for the first district of Missouri.

Griffith T. Davis, of Pennsylvania, to be collector of internal revenue for the twelfth district of Pennsylvania.

PROMOTIONS IN THE NAVY.

To be ensigns in the Navy from the 3d day of February, 1905:
John S. Abbott,
Thomas H. Taylor, and
Charles E. Brillhart.

Samuel Gordon, a citizen of New York, to be an assistant civil engineer in the Navy from the 2d day of February, 1906.

To be chief boatswains in the Navy from the 25th day of January, 1906, upon the completion of six years' service, in accordance with the provisions of the act of Congress approved March 3, 1899, as amended by the act of April 27, 1904:
Martin Fritman,
John McCarthy, and
Henry C. Jarrett.

APPOINTMENTS IN THE ARMY.

General officers.

Brig. Gen. Frederick D. Grant to be major-general from February 6, 1906.

Lieut. Col. William E. Birkhimer, Artillery Corps, to be brigadier-general.

Lieut. Col. Palmer G. Wood, Eleventh Infantry, to be brigadier-general.

Lieut. Col. Henry A. Reed, Artillery Corps, to be brigadier-general.

PROMOTIONS IN THE ARMY.

Infantry Arm.

Maj. William T. Wood, detailed inspector-general, to be lieutenant-colonel of infantry from February 3, 1906.

Lieut. Col. George H. Roach, United States Army, retired, to be placed on the retired list of the Army with the rank of colonel from February 3, 1906.

POSTMASTERS.

ARIZONA.

George McC. Allison to be postmaster at Globe, in the county of Gila and Territory of Arizona.

CALIFORNIA.

Bela C. Ide to be postmaster at Arroyo Grande, in the county of San Luis Obispo and State of California.

George E. Lund to be postmaster at Fruitvale, in the county of Alameda and State of California.

William L. Leonard to be postmaster at Oroville, in the county of Butte and State of California.

GEORGIA.

Walter Akerman to be postmaster at Cartersville, in the county of Bartow and State of Georgia.

Joseph S. Garrett to be postmaster at Columbus, in the county of Muscogee and State of Georgia.

Hervey D. Bush to be postmaster at Covington, in the county of Newton and State of Georgia.

Jerome E. Poche to be postmaster at Washington, in the county of Wilkes and State of Georgia.

KENTUCKY.

Jacob B. Coffman to be postmaster at Russellville, in the county of Logan and State of Kentucky.

LOUISIANA.

Virginia H. Jordan to be postmaster at Rayville, in the parish of Richland and State of Louisiana.

Thomas R. Morse to be postmaster at New Iberia, in the parish of Iberia and State of Louisiana.

NEW YORK.

James L. Moore to be postmaster at Pulaski, in the county of Oswego and State of New York.

NORTH CAROLINA.

McMurray Furgerson to be postmaster at Littleton, in the county of Halifax and State of North Carolina.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Jacob R. Zuck to be postmaster at Mount Pleasant, in the county of Westmoreland and State of Pennsylvania.

RHODE ISLAND.

Elmer W. Robinson to be postmaster at East Providence, in the county of Providence and State of Rhode Island.

SOUTH CAROLINA.

P. Brooks Connor to be postmaster at Greenwood, in the county of Greenwood and State of South Carolina.

Charles J. Purcell to be postmaster at Newberry, in the county of Newberry and State of South Carolina.

TENNESSEE.

Robert F. Haun to be postmaster at Milan, in the county of Gibson and State of Tennessee.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES.

FRIDAY, February 9, 1906.

The House met at 12 o'clock noon.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. HENRY N. COUDEN, D. D.

The Journal of the proceedings of yesterday was read and approved.

ADJOURNMENT UNTIL MONDAY.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, I move that when the House adjourn to-day it adjourn to meet on Monday next.

The question was taken; and the motion was agreed to.

LEGALIZING REMOVAL OF THE COUNTY SEAT OF WASHITA COUNTY, OKLA.

Mr. CAPRON. Mr. Speaker, I desire to call up the bill H. R. 7139, and ask it be placed upon its passage.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from Rhode Island asks unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill, which the Clerk will report.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 7139) legalizing the removal of the county seat of Washita County, Okla.

Be it enacted, etc., That the action of the majority of the electors of Washita County, Okla., as determined by an election held on the 7th day of August, A. D. 1900, for the purpose of removing the county seat of said county from the town of Cloud Chief to the town of New Cordell, in said county, be, and the same is hereby, in all things ratified and confirmed, and the county seat of said county is hereby declared to be at the said town of New Cordell.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. WILLIAMS. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I understand that there has been an election out there by the people and they want this removal. Is that true?

Mr. CAPRON. That is true, sir.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Then I have no objection.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, was read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. CAPRON, a motion to reconsider the last vote was laid on the table.

LEASING LANDS IN STANLEY COUNTY, S. DAK., FOR A BUFFALO PASTURE.

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent for the present consideration of the bill H. R. 13542.

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 13542) authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to lease land in Stanley County, S. Dak., for a buffalo pasture.

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized to withdraw from entry and to lease for a period of ten years, under rules and regulations to be by him prescribed, not exceeding 5,000 acres of the public domain, in the county of Stanley and State of South Dakota, to be used exclusively for the pasturing of native buffalo, and for no other purpose: Provided, That no lands shall be leased except such tracts as may have been subject to homestead entry for a period of fifteen years and have not been entered or appropriated: Provided further, That the Secretary of the Interior may at any time cancel any lease which may hereafter be made under the provisions hereof and restore said land to the public domain.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "exceeding," strike out "five thousand" and insert "three thousand five hundred."

In line 6, after the word "domain," insert "in townships 5 and 6 north, of range 30, and townships 5 and 6 north, range 31 east, Black Hills meridian."

In line 12, before the word "Provided," insert "unless abandoned for a sufficient period so that entries that may have been made have been canceled and the land has reverted to the public domain."

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like an explanation of the purpose of the bill.

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, in Stanley County, S. Dak., there is a gentleman who has a herd of native buffalo, I think 118 head. He has them in a pasture on the Missouri River and he wants to get additional land adjoining the pasture so as to enlarge it, and the land is hilly and bluffy and has been open to homestead entry now since February 10, 1890, and although it is within a distance of 3 miles from the town it never has been filed upon because of its rough character. This bill simply authorizes the Secretary of the Interior to lease 3,500 acres of that land coming up to the township where these buffalo are now pastured, and provides that it can only be used for a buffalo pasture, and for no other purpose; that it may be leased for a period of not exceeding ten years, and that the Secretary of the Interior may at any time cancel any lease that may be made. It is a unanimous report from the Committee on Public Lands.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. WILLIAMS. What would be the objection to let this gentleman buy the land at an upset price?

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. I did not understand the gentleman's question.

Mr. WILLIAMS. What would be the objection to let this gentleman buy the land at an upset price?

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. I think the party would be very glad to do that, but I think it would be unusual and without precedent to permit any preson to purchase that quantity of the public domain that is subject to homestead entry.

Mr. WILLIAMS. What about the amount to be paid for the lease of the land? Is that left in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior?

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. That is left in the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior, who makes rules and regulations.

Mr. WILLIAMS. The committee is of the opinion the Government would get more money out of it this way than in any other way?

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. I do not think the committee considered the question of getting any money out of it. I do not think it will bring any money into the Treasury. It simply was to permit the use of this land that is lying there practically worthless and of no value at present, so that he can inclose it in his pasture. Now, if anybody comes along and wants to acquire any part of it, they have a right to file a homestead, and if there is any lease covering any part of it the Secretary of the Interior may cancel it.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I understood the gentleman to say that he was to pay——

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. It is left to the discretion of the Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. WILLIAMS. As to whether he shall pay anything at all or not?

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. As to whether he shall pay. It is to be leased under rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior.

Mr. WILLIAMS. Can the Secretary of the Interior, under this bill, let him have the land for nothing?

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. I do not suppose he would do so. There would be some nominal consideration, I presume. I will state, Mr. Speaker, that this bill does not give any person any exclusive right whatever. It simply says that the Secretary of the Interior may lease certain land for a buffalo pasture and for no other purpose.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I understand that, but I understand that if the Secretary of the Interior does lease it, that he is not going to cancel it. Of course, it is left discretionary with him to cancel it, and it is left discretionary with him to let it go as homestead; but, as a matter of fact, of course, the gentleman and I both know if he leased it for ten years, it is going to remain for ten years under his control.

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. I would like to say to the gentleman that this land has been open to settlement and entry since February 10, 1890, and the land is taken for a distance of nearly a hundred miles west, and yet this particular land has never been taken, nor does anybody care to take it at the present time.

Mr. WILLIAMS. If it is good enough to pasture buffalo upon, of course it has some value. I understand the sentiment underlying the bill. We do not want the buffalo to become extinct in this country, and this man is doing a very useful work from a zoological standpoint; but if it is possible for the Secretary of the Interior to let one man have public lands, or lease them, for nothing, it starts a very bad precedent regardless of the sentiment that is behind the bill.

If it is mandatory upon the Secretary of the Interior to get something in return, why it seems to me that the bill is unobjectionable, and if, as I understand the gentleman now, the Secretary has the discretion to let him have it for nothing, or virtually for nothing, it seems to me we ought not to start that precedent.

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. I think, Mr. Speaker, that the Secretary of the Interior would naturally consider whether or not it is proper to make any charge or whether anything could be gotten as a charge. We have authorized the sale of reservations under the rules and regulations to be prescribed by the Secretary of the Interior and left him to fix the price.

Mr. WILLIAMS. If the gentleman will insert in his bill some minimum price at which the Secretary of the Interior may lease the land, I would have no objection to the bill. I would like to see the bill go into operation, but to start the precedent by letting anybody have the public lands for nothing, either by lease or by sale, seems to me a bad precedent, no matter how good the sentiment behind it.

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. I would like to ask the gentleman if he will suggest what he would propose as a minimum?

Mr. WILLIAMS. Well, I would be willing to leave that with the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LACEY], who knows more about values in this regard than I do—say 25 cents per acre per annum, or 10 cents per acre. What does the gentleman from Iowa [Mr. LACEY] think?

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. I will say, Mr. Speaker, that lands in our State that are only suitable for grazing purposes lease for somewhere about 6 or 7 cents an acre; but those are grass lands. Now, these lands mentioned in the bill, as I say, are rough and hilly, and largely gumbo. I presume the gentleman is familiar with the character of the land along the Missouri River, and the purpose of getting this additional land is to enlarge the range, because the buffalo is an animal which will not stand confinement, and the more range he has the better for him.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I understand that. Now, in attempting to state a proper price, I was, as I intimated, purely guessing. I know very little about the proper price for leasing in that section of the country. The gentleman states that grazing lands there are leased by the State for from 6 to 7 cents; so I would suggest that he put 5 cents, at least, in this bill.

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. Mr. Speaker, I would like to suggest to the gentleman that we incorporate an amendment limiting the Secretary to the right to lease at not less than $50 per annum.

Mr. WILLIAMS. How many acres are there?

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. Thirty-five hundred acres.

Mr. LACEY. Will the gentleman from South Dakota yield to me for a moment?

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. I will yield to the gentleman from Iowa.

Mr. LACEY. I will say to my friend from Mississippi [Mr. WILLIAMS] that there were three little herds of buffalo started by the saving of the calves when the general extermination took place along in the seventies, and there were seven calves saved by some Indians, which have been the basis of this herd. These seven calves have increased to 118—probably the finest specimens, I think, of buffalo living to-day on the continent.

They are the plains buffalo. They are kept by Mr. Philip, who married an Indian wife. They are in the bluff lands of the Missouri River. The lands proposed to increase his pasture is of the same bluffy character. The buffalo are healthy there, and have been making a steady increase.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I understand that, and I sympathize with the undertaking.

Mr. LACEY. It has not been a profitable venture. In fact, instead of charging Mr. Philip anything, I think the Government could very well afford to give him some aid, direct aid, in his laudable purpose of saving these animals from extermination. The Indians of the Flathead Agency saved 35, and their herd has grown to 352 animals. There are only four or five large herds in existence—the Austin-Corbin herd of 154; the Flathead Indian herd of 352; the Goodnight herd, 40 or 50; the Yellowstone herd of 44, and this herd, which is the third in magnitude, and perhaps the finest in its quality, and so regarded by people who are interested in saving these animals.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I am in perfect sympathy with the object.

Mr. LACEY. And this land is only to be used for this purpose. It must be exclusively used for this purpose, and the lessee can not put cattle on it.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I understand that.

Mr. LACEY. And if there should be any consideration charged at all, it ought to be a very nominal one. I visited this herd three or four years ago and was profoundly interested in it. Instead of mixing the breed, as they have in other herds, by importing animals from other places, he has continued to breed the pure plains buffalo, the original stock being healthy, and he succeeded, and will go a long ways to preserve this magnificent animal from extinction.

I will incorporate in my remarks a report on this subject-matter made by me in the Fifty-sixth Congress:

Charles Mair, of the Royal Canadian Society, in May, 1890, made the following statement:

"There is perhaps no fact in the natural history of America which brings such reproach on civilized man as the reckless and almost total destruction of the bison. * * * At this time there are in all probability not 500 animals alive on the continent."

When America was discovered the American Indians, measured by their flocks and herds, were as opulent as any people on the globe. The bison was the common property of all. He took care of himself both winter and summer, and furnished a never-failing supply of food and raiment for the aborigines. Through inconceivable ages this animal had become adapted to the soil, climate, and surroudings. The bison is the most typically American of all the indigenous beasts on the continent.

In 1832 the last of the bison was killed east of the Mississippi River. Before the development of the railroads vast herds of these animals avoided the destructive effects of the white settlements by emigration to the Far West, and down to as late as 1870 they still numbered very many millions. The building of the Pacific Railroad was the signal for the destruction of these vast herds. They were slaughtered without mercy, for sport and for profit.

The most pitiful story in the history of all animal life is Prof. William T. Hornaday's report on the extinction of the American bison. The mania for slaughter seems to have affected everyone. The English lord, the miner, the cowboy, and the immigrant slew right and left, dotting the plains with thousands upon thousands of tons of bleaching bones that have since been gathered up and transported to the sugar refineries on the Atlantic coast. These herds, that could have readily been converted into domestic animals and preserved as a permanent source of wealth, have been literaly swept from the face of the earth.

The cattle which have taken their place are unable to withstand the rigors and severity of the changeable climate. Where the bison turned his head to the storm and fought it out with the blizzard, the American cattle of to-day turn tail to the wind and drift to destruction. The bison was clothed expressly to resist the severity of the climate in which he was living. Prehistoric man, in his long warfare against the mammoth, left not one to tell the tale. Necessity for food, no doubt, was his excuse, and the slow breeding of these gigantic beasts made the extermination comparatively easy. When America was discovered the bison was the king of American beasts. By ages of gradual modification and natural selection an animal was developed fitted in the most admirable way for a life in the vast region from Hudson Bay and Great Slave Lake to the Gulf of Mexico.

The United States Government has tardily attempted to preserve some of the wonders of nature on the continent. The word "extinction" does not literally apply to the bison, but we have arrived at a point where nothing but heroic treatment will prevent this animal from joining the dodo, the great auk, and the mammoth.

Professor Hornaday thinks that there are at present 1,500 living buffalo in the whole world. The herd of the Flathead Indians, the "Buffalo Jones" herd, the Goodnight herd, the Corbin herd, a few specimens here and there in zoological parks, remnants still of perhaps twenty in the Yellowstone National Park, and a few scattered "wood buffalo" west of Hudson Bay embrace all that are left of the countless millions of a generation ago.

We recognize the fact that the buffalo, like the Indian, must be domesticated or disappear; but it is also true that an adequate home must be found for the few remaining, or else they can not be protected and preserved. After a few generations of domestication their breeding can no doubt be carried on without the broad range that now seems necessary. To turn these animals out on the plains of any of the Western States or Territories to take their chances with domestic cattle would result in their destruction. A range sufficiently large and at the same time fenced in should be provided for that purpose. The owner of this herd is willing to bear all the expense of this experiment and asks no Government aid. He can not turn these animals out on the open range without danger of their entire loss.

In 1873 Congress passed a law to protect the buffalo, but the President of the United States failed to sign it, and it did not become a law. The failure to sign this bill might be called another "crime of seventy-three." Action then would have been in time. The failure to act now in this matter will be fatal. We believe that the Government should make this experiment. It ought to be made, even if it had to be made entirely at public expense, but under the plan proposed by this bill the Government will not expend a single dollar. The land to be used for the purpose is public land. It belongs to the people. The whole people of the United States are concerned in saving our nation from the reproach of allowing the entire extinction of the American bison. Our children's children would curse us, and they ought to, if we do not prevent this reproach on the American people from being consummated.

Mr. WILLIAMS. I know the gentleman is engaged in a work of high zoological importance, but it ought not to be operated at the expense of the Federal Government. There ought to be something come to the Federal Government for the use of this land, and if it is to be of any benefit to him, there ought to be something paid for it.

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. These lands have been used since that country was occupied up to the present time without paying anything.

Mr. WILLIAMS. By people whose cattle were squatted upon it. The Government was not recognizing their right, but to give it without remuneration in this way would be establishing a precedent that I do not think ought to be established. I do not care what the amount is; if the gentleman would put it as low as about $50 I would be satisfied, so that a precedent is not set of granting it for nothing.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection?

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. I offer the following amendment: Insert after the word "years," in line 5, the words "at an annual rental of not less than $50."

The SPEAKER. The Clerk will report the amendment.

The Clerk read as follows:

Insert after the word "years," in line 5, the words, "at an annual rental of not less than $50."

Mr. CLARK of Missouri. Is that Buffalo Jones's herd?

Mr. BURKE of South Dakota. It is not.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

The question was taken, and the amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. BURKE of South Dakota, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

CLOAKROOM MEN.

Mr. HUGHES. Mr. Speaker, I submit the following privileged report from the Committee on Accounts.

The Clerk read as follows:

House resolution No. 145.

Resolved, That hereafter Arthur Lucas, L. W. Pulles, Robert Coates, and Albert Scott, "cloakroom men" in charge of the Republican and Democratic cloakrooms, House of Representatives, shall be classified as skilled laborers and their compensation shall be at the rate of $840 each per annum.

Resolved, That the Clerk of the House of Representatives is hereby authorized and directed to pay, out of the contingent fund of the House, to Arthur Lucas, L. W. Pulles, Robert Coates, and Albert Scott, respectively, the difference between their pay as "cloakroom men," at the rate of $60 per month, and the rate of $70 per month each as skilled laborers, during the remainder of the present Congress, and the Committee on Appropriations is hereby authorized to provide, in one of the general appropriation bills, for said increase from and after the adjournment of the first session of the Fifty-ninth Congress.

The resolution was agreed to.

ASSISTANT CLERK, COMMITTEE ON TERRITORIES.

Mr. HUGHES. Mr. Speaker, I submit the following privileged report from the Committee on Accounts.

The Clerk read as follows:

House resolution No. 210.

Resolved, That the chairman of the Committee on the Territories is hereby authorized and directed to appoint an assistant clerk to said committee for the sessions of the Fifty-ninth Congress, to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House, at the rate of $6 per day.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In lines 3 and 4 strike out the words "for the sessions of the Fifty-ninth Congress" and insert the following: "To serve during such portion of the remainder of the present session as in the discretion of the chairman may be actually necessary."

The amendment was agreed to.

The resolution as amended was agreed to.

CHIEF PAGES.

Mr. HUGHES. I also submit the following resolution, with a report of the committee.

The Clerk read as follows:

House resolution No. 97.

Resolved, That from and after July 1, 1906, the compensation of the chief pages of the House of Representatives shall be $1,200 per annum; and the Committee on Appropriations is hereby directed to make provision for same in the legislative, executive, and judicial appropriation bill.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the consideration of the resolution at this time?

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to have some explanation of this resolution, reserving the right to object.

Mr. HUGHES. Mr. Speaker, this resolution is reported adversely by the committee. The proposition was to increase the salaries of the chief pages from $75 to $100 a month. I ask for the reading of the report, and move that the resolution be laid on the table.

The Clerk read as follows:

The Committee on Accounts, to whom was referred House resolution No. 97, to increase the salaries of the chief pages of the House from $900 to $1,000 per annum, have had the same under consideration and recommend that it be laid on the table.

We believe the annual salary now paid is sufficient to cover the greater amount of work performed by the chief pages over and above that performed by other pages, which latter are paid for the session only.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from West Virginia moves to lay the resolution on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

CARTAGE OF DOCUMENTS.

Mr. HUGHES. Mr. Speaker, I present the following report.

The Clerk read as follows:

Resolved, That the Clerk of the House is hereby authorized to employ, with the approval of the Committee on Accounts, necessary laborers and cartage at a total cost not to exceed $1,500, to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House, for the purpose of delivering to the Librarian of Congress the bound volumes of original papers, general petitions, printed matter, books, and manuscripts in the files of the House which, in his judgment, are not required to be retained in the immediate custody of the file clerk, in accordance with the provisions of the act of June 6, 1900.

The SPEAKER. Is there objection to the consideration of the resolution?

Mr. PERKINS. Mr. Speaker, reserving the right to object, I would like some explanation of that resolution.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. Speaker, is that not a privileged report?

The SPEAKER. The resolution seems to be privileged.

Mr. HUGHES. I will say in regard to the resolution that the Clerk of the House asked for an amount to be set apart, and this is to remove the surplus books to make room for current reports in the building. The Clerk says that this amount is necessary and only such an amount can be used on that account as is O. K.'ed by the chairman of the Committee on Accounts.

Mr. PERKINS. What is this for?

Mr. HUGHES. To remove surplus books from the basement of the building——

Mr. PERKINS. To make room for more surplus books?

Mr. HUGHES. There are certain books to be brought in, and these will have to be removed to make room for those additional ones.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. Speaker, this resolution is to carry out an act of Congress passed in 1900. A certain amount was appropriated at that time for the removal of books, and the Clerk has informed us that another amount is now necessary to carry out the provisions of the act of Congress, and we have reported this resolution for that purpose.

Mr. HUGHES. The act of Congress was passed June 6, 1900.

Mr. BARTLETT. Yes.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Speaker, I would like to ask the gentleman, in view of the fact that the resolution seems to provide for the disposition or transfer of public documents, if he believes that it is a proper charge on the contingent fund?

Mr. BARTLETT. It is made a charge on the contingent fund by the act of Congress.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. It seems to me that the contingent fund ought not to be used for such a general purpose.

Mr. BARTLETT. Perhaps it ought not to be, but the law requires that it be charged to the contingent fund.

Mr. PERKINS. Will the gentleman yield?

Mr. HUGHES. I yield to the gentleman.

Mr. PERKINS. I would like to ask the committee, if it is true that this appropriation is to furnish space for the storage of documents that are entirely worthless and can not be distributed, if it does not seem to them that there should be some action taken by which the accumulation of these useless, worthless, costly documents should be stopped, instead of being stored?

Mr. BARTLETT. I agree with the gentleman thoroughly, and I will cooperate with him. The Committee on Accounts has no jurisdiction of that subject, but there is a committee organized by the House for the purpose of disposing of these useless and worthless documents. Now, if the gentleman can offer any method by which the printing of useless documents and the accumulation of unnecessary and unprofitable printing can be stopped, I will cooperate with him as far as I am able.

Mr. PERKINS. I hope at the proper time the gentleman will be willing to cooperate to check the printing of such documents.

Mr. BARTLETT. I certainly will.

The resolution was considered and agreed to.

NATHAN B. RICHARDSON.

The SPEAKER laid before the House the bill H. R. 10225, an act granting an increase of pension to Nathan B. Richardson, with a Senate amendment.

The Senate amendment was read.

Mr. SULLOWAY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the House concur in the Senate amendment.

The motion was agreed to.

BILLS ON THE PRIVATE CALENDAR.

Mr. SULLOWAY. Mr. Speaker, I ask unanimous consent that bills on the Private Calendar in order to-day be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole.

The SPEAKER. The gentleman from New Hampshire asks unanimous consent that the bills on the Private Calendar in order to-day under the rule be considered in the House as in Committee of the Whole. Is there objection?

There was no objection.

JOHN L. LOVELL.

The first pension business was the bill (H. R. 1484) granting an increase of pension to John L. Lovell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John L. Lovell, late of Company D, One hundred and seventh Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

CARL W. BLOCK.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6178) granting an increase of pension to Carl W. Block.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Carl W. Block, late of Fifth Battery, Wisconsin Volunteer Light Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ISAIAH QUEMAN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6408) granting an increase of pension to Isaiah Queman.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Isaiah Queman, late of Company D, Forty-first Regiment United States Colored Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passsed.

EDWIN BILLING.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12156) granting an increase of pension to Edwin Billings.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Edwin Billings, late of Company E, First Regiment Nevada Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Billings" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Billing."

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Edwin Billing."

WILLIAM U. MALLORIE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5163) granting a pension to William U. Mallorie.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William U. Mallorie, late of Company B, Tenth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, after the word "Pennsylvania," insert the word "Reserve."

In line 8 strike out the word "twenty-four" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty-six."

In line 9, before the word "receiving," insert the word "now."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to William U. Mallorie."

ISAAC HENRY OBER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4206) granting an increase of pension to Isaac Henry Ober.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Isaac Henry Ober, late of Company A, One hundred and ninety-ninth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES B. BABCOCK.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10477) granting an increase of pension to James B. Babcock.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James B. Babcock, late of Company F, First Regiment Wisconsin Heavy Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, after the word "Wisconsin," insert the word "Volunteer."

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ORTON D. FORD.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2823) granting an increase of pension to Orton D. Ford.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Orton D. Ford, late of Company G, First Regiment Minnesota Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $72 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "seventy-two" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM H. ACKERT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6109) granting an increase of pension to William H. Ackert.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William H. Ackert, late of Company H, Fifth Regiment New York Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ALEXANDER MILLER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1909) granting a pension to Alexander Miller.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Alexander Miller, late of Company B, First Regiment Connecticut Heavy Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, before the word "Heavy," insert the word "Volunteer."

In line 8, after the word "month," insert the words "in lieu of that he is now receiving."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Alexander Miller."

AMHERST F. GRAVES.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6180) granting an increase of pension to Amherst F. Graves.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Amherst F. Graves, late second lieutenant Company I, Twelfth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "lieutenant," insert the words "Squadron McClellan's Dragoons, and."

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DAVID F. M'DONALD.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3552) granting an increase of pension to David F. McDonald.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of David F. McDonald, late of Company C, One hundred and twenty-sixth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In lines 6 and 7 strike out the words "C, One hundred and twenty-sixth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry," and insert in lieu thereof the words "D, Third Battalion, Fifteenth Regiment United States Infantry."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HORACE HOUNSOM.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1043) granting an increase of pension to Horace Hounsman.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Horace Hounsman, late of Company D, One hundred and forty-second Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Hounsman" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Hounsom."

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Horace Hounsom."

CASPER YOST.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10437) granting an increase of pension to Casper Yost.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Casper Yost, late first lieutenant Company B, First Regiment Illinois Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ADAM COOK.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11320) granting an increase of pension to Adam Cook.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Adam Cook, late of Company F, One hundred and forty-second and Sixty-first Regiments Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out the words "and Sixty-first Regiments" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Regiment."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

FRANKLIN J. FELLOWS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11672) granting an increase of pension to Franklin J. Fellows.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Franklin J. Fellows, late of Company B, Eighth Regiment New York Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "late," strike out the word "of" and insert in lieu thereof the words "second lieutenant."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN BURNS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9405) granting an increase of pension to John Burns.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John Burns, late of Company C, Tenth Regiment New York Volunteer Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 7, before the word "Artillery," insert the word "Heavy."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

PETER D. SUTTON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2595) granting an increase of pension to Peter D. Sutton.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Peter D. Sutton, late of Company H, One hundred and thirteenth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $25 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "twenty-five" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE G. BRAIL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9065) granting an increase of pension to George G. Brail.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George G. Brail, late of Company G, Sixty-fourth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "twenty-four" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DANIEL V. LOWARY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7721) granting an increase of pension to Daniel V. Lowrey.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Daniel V. Lowrey, late of Company K, Twenty-ninth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Lowrey" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Lowary."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Daniel V. Lowary."

MELVIN J. LEE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11145) granting an increase of pension to Melvin J. Lee.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Melvin J. Lee, late of Company I, One hundred and forty-fourth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE T. B. CARR.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1859) granting an increase of pension to George T. B. Carr.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George T. B. Carr, late sergeant-major of the Twenty-second Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $72 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the words "of the."

In line 8 strike out the word "seventy-two" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE GIBSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8714) granting an increase of pension to George Gibson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George Gibson, late of Company F, Fifty-eighth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Sixty."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

EMORY EDWARD PATCH.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9795) granting an increase of pension to Emory E. Patch.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Emory E. Patch, late of Company E, Thirty-third Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu if that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "Patch," strike out the letter "E." and insert in lieu thereof the word "Edward."

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Emory Edward Patch."

CHARLES A. PHILLIPS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6873) granting an increase of pension to Charles A. Phillips.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Charles A. Phillips, late of Company F, Eighth Regiment New York Volunteer Cavalry, and Company K, Eleventh Regiment United States Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out the words "and Company K, Eleventh."

In line 8 strike out the words "Regiment United States Infantry."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

EDWARD J. M'CLASKEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5938) granting an increase of pension to Edward J. McClaskey.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Edward J. McClaskey, late of Company G, Two hundred and tenth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DAVID HANNA.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6399) granting an increase of pension to David Hanna.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of David Hanna, late of Company G, One hundred and twenty-ninth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

AHIJAH BROWN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4764) granting an increase of pension to Abijah Brown.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Abijah Brown, late of Company G, One hundred and tenth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Abijah" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Ahijah."

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Ahijah Brown."

WILLIAM H. BYNON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5909) granting an increase of pension to William H. Bynon.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William H. Bynon, late of Company A, Ninety-eighth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JACOB C. RARDIN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6085) granting an increase of pension to Jacob C. Rardin.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Jacob C. Rardin, late of Company F, Second Regiment West Virginia Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MARQUIS DE LAFAYETTE BURKET.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4886) granting an increase of pension to Marquis De Lafayette Burket.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Marcus D. Burket, late of Company E, Thirty-third Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $72 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, strike out the word and letter "Marcus D." and insert in lieu thereof the words "Marquis De Lafayette."

In line 8, strike out the word "seventy-two" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty-six."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Marquis De Lafayette Burket."

CHARLES W. FULTON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5186) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Fulton.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Charles W. Fulton, late of Company H, One hundred and fifty-fifth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM A. M'DONALD.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9234) granting an increase of pension to W. A. McDonald.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of W. A. McDonald, of Lignum, Va., and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the letter "W" and insert in lieu thereof the word "William."

In same line strike out the words "of Lignum, Virginia," and insert in lieu thereof the words "late of Company A, Second Regiment New York Volunteer Cavalry."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to William A. McDonald."

ISAAC H. WITHERWAX.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4878) granting an increase of pension to Isaac H. Witherwax.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Isaac H. Witherwax, late of Company F, Sixth Regiment New York Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM CHANDLER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2762) granting an increase of pension to William Chandler.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William Chandler, late of the United States Navy, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6, before the words "United States," insert the words U. S. S. Ohio, Gemsbock, and Rhode Island."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ANDREW J. HULL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8918) granting an increase of pension to Andrew J. Hull.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the penson laws, the name of A. J. Hull, late of Battery H, Second Regiment Illinois Volunteer Light Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the letter "A." and insert in lieu thereof the word "Andrew."

In same line, after the word "Hull," insert the words "alias Spencer J. Hull."

In same line strike out the word "Battery" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Company."

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Andrew J. Hull, alias Spencer J. Hull."

ELIZA THOMPSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8317) granting an increase of pension to Eliza Thompson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Eliza Thompson, widow of William G. Thompson, late of Company A, First Louisiana Volunteer Cavalry Scouts, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 7, after the word "First," insert the word "Regiment."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ETHAN BLODGETT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8556) granting an increase of pension to Ethan Blodgett.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Ethan Blodgett, late of Company A, Twenty-first Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

FREDERICK A. AMENDE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8663) granting an increase of pension to Frederick A. Amende.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Frederick A. Amende, late of Company A, One hundred and sixty-fourth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty-six."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

EDWARD H. PINNEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8541) granting an increase of pension to Edward H. Pinney.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of

E. H. Pinney, late captain Company F, One hundred and forty-third Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the letter "E." and insert in lieu thereof the word "Edward."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty-six."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Edward H. Pinney."

EBENEZER S. EDGERTON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9059) granting an increase of pension to Ebenezer S. Edgerton.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Ebenezer S. Edgerton, late of Company G, One hundred and twenty-third Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty-six."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE W. COLLIER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12507) granting an increase of pension to George W. Collier.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George W. Collier, late of Company D, Sixth Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8, after the word "thirty," insert the word "six."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH C. GRISSOM.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12289) granting an increase of pension to Joseph C. Grissom.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Joseph C. Grissom, late of Company H, One hundred and thirtieth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "Company," insert the words "Company B, Eighth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Cavalry, and captain."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HENRY HASTINGS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6385) granting an increase of pension to David Henry Hastings.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of David Henry Hastings, late of Company D, Fourth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "David."

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Henry Hastings."

JAMES M. BUSBY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6507) granting an increase of pension to James M. Busby.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James M. Busby, late of Company G, Twelfth Regiment Missouri Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SUSAN WHORTON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3570) granting an increase of pension to Susan Whorton.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Susan Whorton, widow of James W. Whorton, late of Company A, Ninety-first Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving: Provided, That in the event of the death of Ella Nora Whorton, helpless and dependent daughter of said James W. Whorton, the additional pension herein granted shall cease and determine: And provided further, That in the event of the death of Susan Whorton, the name of said Ella Nora Whorton shall be placed on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, at the rate of $12 per month from and after the date of death of said Susan Whorton.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HARVEY T. DUNN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12388) granting an increase of pension to Harvey T. Dunn.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Harvey T. Dunn, late of Company B, One hundred and twenty-third Regiment, Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 7, before the word "Illinois," insert the words "and Company F, Sixty-first Regiment."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILHELMINA HEALEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12102) to restore to the pension roll of the United States the name of Wilhelmina Healey.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to restore to the pension roll of the United States the name of Wilhelmina Healey, widow of the late James M. Healey, late of Company , One hundred and sixty-ninth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, at the same rate as she heretofore received.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

Strike out all after the enacting clause and insert in lieu thereof the following:

"That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Wilhelmina Healey, widow of James M. Healey, late of Company I, One hundred and sixty-ninth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Wilhelmina Healey."

HENRY WASCHER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8664) granting an increase of pension to Henry Wuescher.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Henry Wuescher, late of Company F, Thirty-seventh Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Wuescher" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Wascher."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Henry Wascher."

JAMES R. TODD.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3193) granting an increase of pension to James R. Todd.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James R. Todd, late of Company F, Forty-sixth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $72 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "seventy-two" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty-six."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DARIUS H. RANDALL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5656) granting an increase of pension to Darius H. Randall.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Darius H. Randall, late of Companies G and B, Twenty-first Connecticut Volunteer Infantry, and Company H, Twenty-fifth Regiment United States Colored Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, after the word "First," insert the word "Regiment."

In the same line, after the word "and," insert the words "second lieutenant."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM G. RICHARDSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9851) granting an increase of pension to William G. Richardson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William G. Richardson, late of Company E, Sixty-eighth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MYRON E. BILLINGS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8913) granting an increase of pension to Myron E. Billings.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Myron E. Billings, late of Company L, First Regiment Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

Mr. SULLOWAY. Mr. Speaker, I move that this bill be laid on the table.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. Without objection, the bill will lie on the table.

There was no objection.

ELIZA C. JONES.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8169) granting an increase of pension to Eliza C. Jones.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Eliza C. Jones, widow of W. M. Jones, late of Company H, Third Regiment Tennessee Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the letter "W." and insert in lieu thereof the word "William."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

J. FREDERICK EDGELL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12391) granting an increase of pension to J. Frederick Edgell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of J. Frederick Edgell, late of Company E, Fifty-fourth Regiment New York National Guard Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

CLARA M. THOMPSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11846) granting a pension to Clara M. Thompson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Clara M. Thompson, widow of Merrill C. Thompson, late of Company B, Twenty-first Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "twelve" and insert in lieu thereof the word "eight."

In line 9, after the word "month," insert the words "such pension to cease upon proof that the soldier is living."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ANTON RIEDMÜLLER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7750) granting an increase of pension to Anton Riedmuller.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Anton Riedmuller, late of the Ninth Independent Battery, New York Volunteer Light Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows.

In line 6 strike out the word "Riedmuller" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Riedmüller."

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Anton Riedmüller."

DANIEL D. DIEHL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10256) granting an increase of pension to Daniel D. Diehl.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Daniel D. Diehl, late of Company H, Eighty-eighth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty-six."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read, the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM LEIPNITZ.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7649) granting an increase of pension to William Leipnitz.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William Leipnitz, late of Company G, Ninth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ALFRED F. WHITE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8520) granting an increase of pension to Alfred F. White.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Alfred F. White, late of Company G, Fifth Regiment West Virginia Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 7, after the word "Infantry," insert the words "and Company G, First Regiment West Virginia Veteran Volunteer Infantry."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM MONTEITH.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8213) granting an increase of pension to William Monteith.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William Monteith, late of Company K, Forty-eighth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN GIBBONS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6913) granting an increase of pension to John Gibbons.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John Gibbons, late of Company K, Twentieth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SADIE A. WALKER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6098) granting an increase of pension to Sadie A. Walker.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Sadie A. Walker, widow of R. L. Walker, late captain of Company C, Nineteenth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the letter "R." and insert in lieu thereof the word "Richard."

In same line, after the word "late," insert the words "first lieutenant Company I and."

In line 7 strike out the word "of."

In same line strike out the letter "C" and insert in lieu thereof the letter "A."

In line 8 strike out the word "twenty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "seventeen."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

OWEN DONOHOE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4179) granting an increase of pension to Owen Donohoe.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Owen Donohoe, late of Company F, Sixty-ninth Regiment New York Volunteer Militia, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out the word "Militia" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Infantry."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

PETER WETTERICH.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5647) granting an increase of pension to Peter Wetterich.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Peter Wetterich, late of Company G, Ninth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SYLVENUS HARDY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5830) granting an increase of pension to Sylvenus Hardy.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Sylvenus Hardy, late of Company H, Twentieth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MAURICE HAYES.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8302) granting an increase of pension to Maurice Hayes.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Maurice Hayes, late of Company D, Twenty-ninth Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty-six."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HEART ECHARD.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8061) granting an increase of pension to Hart Echard.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Hart Echard, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Hart" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Heart."

In same line before the word "and" insert the words "late of Company L, Sixth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Cavalry."

In same line strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Heart Echard."

HENDERSON ROSE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9567) granting an increase of pension to Henderson Rose.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Henderson Rose, late of Company H, Seventy-eighth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

RACHEL E. WARE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2156) granting an increase of pension to Rachel E. Ware.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Rachel E. Ware, widow of James Ware, late captain Company E, Tenth Regiment Volunteer Cavalry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $25 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, before the word "Volunteer," insert the word "Tennessee."

In line 8 strike out the word "twenty-five" and insert in lieu thereof the word "sixteen."

In same line, after the word "month," insert the words "in lieu of that she is now receiving."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM M. SHULTZ.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1889) granting an increase of pension to William M. Shultz.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William M. Shultz, late of Company B, Twelfth Regiment Tennessee Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HARRISON WHITE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3250) granting a pension to Harrison White.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Harrison White, late of Company I, Second Regiment Kansas Militia Volunteers, and pay him a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, before the word "Militia," insert the word "State."

In same line strike out the word "Volunteers."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ELIZA SWORDS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1160) granting a pension to Anna Swords and William Swords.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the names of Anna Swords and William Swords, crippled children of Kinsey Swords, late of Company C, Second Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and of Company E, One hundred and fifty-seventh Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay each of them a pension at the rate of $25 per month.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 5 strike out the words "the names," and all of lines 6, 7, 8, 9, 10, and 11, and insert in lieu thereof the following: "the name of Eliza Swords, widow of Kinsey Swords, late of Company E, One hundred and fifty-seventh Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $32 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving: Provided, That in the event of the death of either Annie Swords or William Swords, helpless and dependent children of said Kinsey Swords, the additional pension herein granted shall be reduced to $20 per month, and in the event of the death of both of said children the whole of said additional pension shall cease and determine: And provided further, That in the event of the death of Eliza Swords the names of said Annie and William Swords shall be placed on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, at the rate of $12 per month each from and after the date of death of said Eliza Swords."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Eliza Swords."

SARAH A. PITT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2093) granting a pension to Sarah A. Pitt.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Sarah A. Pitt, former widow of Caleb C. Haney, late of Company G, Seventy-sixth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

FITCH SPOOR.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11070) granting an increase of pension to Fitch Spoor.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Fitch Spoor, late of Sixteenth Independent Battery, New York Volunteer Light Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $36 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty-six" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MICHAEL COMER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11105) granting an increase of pension to Michael Comer.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Michael Comer, late of Company H, One hundred and thirty-fourth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WEBSTER THOMAS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11808) granting an increase of pension to Webster Thomas.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Webster Thomas, late captain Company E, Forty-seventh Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "late," insert the words "first lieutenant Company D and."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SALLIE H. MURPHY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5753) granting an increase of pension to Sally H. Murphy.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Sally H. Murphy, widow of John Murphy, deceased, late first lieutenant in Company D, Fortieth Indiana Regiment, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Sally" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Sallie."

In same line strike out the word "deceased."

In line 7 strike out the word "in."

In same line, before the word "Indiana," insert the word "Regiment."

In same line, after the word "Indiana," strike out the word "Regiment" and insert in lieu thereof the words "Volunteer Infantry."

In line 8 strike out the word "twenty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "seventeen."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Sallie H. Murphy."

SUSAN J. WILLIAMS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1485) granting an increase of pension to Susan J. Williams.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Susan J. Williams, widow of James H. Williams, late of Company G, Ninth Regiment New Jersey Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "twenty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twelve."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM M. MARTIN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3500) granting a pension to William M. Martin.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William Martin, late of United States Navy receiving ship Great Western, and pay him a pension at the rate of $36 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "Martin," insert the letter "M."

In same line strike out the words "United States Navy receiving," and in line 7 the words "ship Great Western," and insert in lieu thereof the words "U. S. S. Great Western, U. S. Navy."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty-six" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to William M. Martin."

LEWIS L. DAUGHERTY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3315) granting an increase of pension to Lewis L. Dougherty.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Lewis L. Dougherty, late of Company K, Forty-eighth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Dougherty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Daugherty."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Lewis L. Daugherty."

GEORGE W. HENRY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6398) granting an increase of pension to George W. Henry.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George W. Henry, late of Company D, Eleventh Regiment Missouri Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "Company," strike out the word "of" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Captain."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SETH PHILLIPS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1032) granting an increase of pension to Seth Phillips.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Seth Phillips, late of Company G, Fifty-second Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ELIZABETH MURRAY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1569) granting a pension to Elizabeth Murray.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Elizabeth Murray, widow of Christopher Murray, late of Company K, Ninety-first Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DEXTER E. W. STONE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2204) granting a pension to Dexter E. W. Stone.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Dexter E. W. Stone, late of Company I, Thirtieth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of —— dollars per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8, before the word "dollars," insert the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Dexter E. W. Stone."

GILBERT FORD.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1902) granting an increase of pension to Gilbert Ford.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Gilbert Ford, late of Company E, Third Regiment Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "Regiment," insert the word "Tennessee."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES H. BEULEN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3230) granting an increase of pension to James H. Beulen.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James H. Beulen, late of Company I, Eleventh Regiment, Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $35 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, before the word "Wisconsin," insert the words "and Company E, Twenty-third Regiment."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty-five" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

CHAUNCEY P. DEAN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2954) granting a pension to Chauncey P. Dean.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Chauncey P. Dean, late of U. S. S. Hartford and U. S. S. Tecumseh, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In lines 6 and 7 strike out the words "United States steamship Hartford and United States steamship" and insert in lieu thereof the words "the U. S. S."

In line 7, after the word "Tecumseh," insert the words "U. S. Navy."

In line 8, after the word "month," insert the words "in lieu of that he is now receiving."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Chauncey P. Dean."

MARTHA S. CAMPBELL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10886) granting an increase of pension to Martha S. Campbell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Martha S. Campbell, widow of James A. Campbell, late of Company C, Second Regiment New York Volunteer Cavalry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LETITIA D. WATKINS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10954) granting an increase of pension to Letitia D. Watkins.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Letitia D. Watkins, named in pension certificate No. 486364 of the civil war, and pay her a pension at the rate of $25 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In lines 6, 7, and 8 strike out the words "named in pension certificate No. 486364 of the civil war" and insert in lieu thereof the words "widow of James Watkins, late of Company D, Fourth Regiment Tennessee Volunteer Cavalry."

In line 9 strike out the word "twenty-five" and insert in lieu thereof the word "sixteen."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MARTHA J. WILSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11000) granting an increase of pension to Martha J. Wilson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Martha J. Wilson, widow of Braman J. Wilson, late of Company I, Ninth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ABEL S. THOMPSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8251) granting an increase of pension to Abel S. Thompson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Abel S. Thompson, late of Company A, One hundred and twenty-third Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM OSTERMANN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8562) granting an increase of pension to William Ostermann.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William Ostermann, late of Company K, Sixty-second Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Sixty-second" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Fifty-second."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ALBERT M. HUNTER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3679) granting an increase of pension to Albert H. Hunter.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Albert H. Hunter, late of Company C, First Regiment Maryland Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the letter "H." and insert in lieu thereof the letter "M."

In same line, after the word "late," strike out the word "of" and insert in lieu thereof the word "captain."

In line 7, before the word "Maryland," insert the words "Potomac Home Brigade."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Albert M. Hunter."

EDWARD L. KIMBALL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11916) granting an increase of pension to Edward L. Kimball.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Edward L. Kimball, late of Company K, First Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ISAAC P. KNIGHT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3973) granting an increase of pension to Isaac P. Knight.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Isaac P. Knight, late of Battery B, First Regiment Tennessee Volunteer Light Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "late," strike out the word "of" and insert in lieu thereof the words "second lieutenant."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

EDWARD SARLLS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6115) granting an increase of pension to Edward Sarles.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Edward Sarles, alias Edward Sarlls, late of Company E, One hundred and twentieth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the words "Sarles, alias Edward."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Edward Sarlls."

WILLIAM HOUSE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1975) granting an increase of pension to William House.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William House, late of Company E, Twenty-first Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JULIA A. POWELL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1912) granting a pension to Julia A. Powell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Julia A. Powell, widow of Albert M. Powell, late lieutenant-colonel First Regiment Missouri Light Artillery, United States Volunteers, and pay her a pension at the rate of $50 per month from the date of the passage of this act.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, after "Missouri," insert "Volunteer."
In lines 7 and 8 strike out "United States Volunteers" and insert "and captain, Thirty-first Regiment United States Infantry."
In line 8 strike out "fifty" and insert "twenty."
In line 9 strike out "from the date of the passage of this act."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

BENJAMIN F. BIBB.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2114) granting an increase of pension to Benjamin Bibb.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Benjamin Bibb, late of Company B, Second Regiment Tennessee Volunteers, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

Insert the initial "F." in the claimant's name where it appears in the title and the body of the bill.
In line 8 strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Bibb."

JULIUS D. ROGERS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2709) granting an increase of pension to Julius D. Rogers.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Julius D. Rogers, late of Capt. Asa Stewart's company, Florida Volunteers, Seminole Indian war, and pay him a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out "Asa" and insert the initials "A. A."
In line 7, after "Florida," insert "Mounted," and in the same line strike out "Seminole" and insert "Florida."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

STEPHEN WEEKS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2703) granting an increase of pension to Stephen Weeks.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Stephen Weeks, late of Capt. A. D. Johnston's company, Florida Volunteers, Seminole Indian war, and pay him a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after "Johnston's," insert "independent."
In line 7, after "Florida," insert "Mounted."
In the same line strike out "Seminole" and insert "Florida."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SARAH JOHNSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3220) granting ing an increase of pension to Sarah Johnston.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Sarah Johnston, widow of Owen Johnston, late of Company I, Second Regiment United States Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after the name "Sarah," strike out "Johnston" and insert "Johnson;" and in the same line, after the name "Owen," strike out "Johnston" and insert "Johnson."
In line 7 strike out "Volunteer," and after "Infantry" insert "Florida Indian war."
In line 8 strike out "thirty" and insert "twelve."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Sarah Johnson."

JOHN H. PEPPER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4403) granting a pension to John H. Pepper.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John H. Pepper, late landsman, United States Navy, and pay him a pension at the rate of $8 per month.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

RICHARD H. KELLY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5711) granting a pension to Richard H. Kelley.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Richard H. Kelley, late of Company L, Thirteenth Regiment Minnesota United States Volunteers, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

Change the spelling of the surname where it appears in the title and body of the bill to "Kelly."
In line 7 strike out "United States Volunteers" and insert "Volunteer Infantry, war with Spain."
In line 8 strike out "thirty" and insert "twelve."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting a pension to Richard H. Kelly."

HENRY S. STOWELL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6137) granting an increase of pension to Henry S. Stowell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Henry S. Stowell, late of Company F, Eighth Regiment United States Army, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out "Army" and insert "Infantry."
In line 8 strike out "fifty" and insert "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HARRY W. OMO.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6400) granting a pension to Harry W. Omo.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Harry W. Omo, late of Company G, First Regiment Colorado Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 change "Company G" to "Provisional Company F."
In line 7, after "Infantry," insert "war with Spain."
In line 8 strike out "thirty" and insert "twelve."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LORENZO D. STOKER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7628) granting an increase of pension to Lorenzo D. Stoker.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Lorenzo D. Stoker, late of Company D, Sixteenth Regiment United States Infantry, in the war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $72 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, after the word "Infantry," strike out the words "in the."
In line 8, after the word "of," strike out the word "seventy" and insert "fifty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

PHILIPP CLINE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8216) granting an increase of pension to Philipp Cline.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Philipp Cline, alias Francis Klien, late musician, Twelfth Regiment United States Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6 change "Klien" to "Klein."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Philipp Cline, alias Francis Klein."

MARY J. M'CONNELL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8376) granting an increase of pension to Mary J. McConnell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary J. McConnell, widow of the late Samuel M. McConnell, deceased, sergeant-major First Georgia Volunteers, in the war with Mexico, he having been a pensioner of said Mexican war, pension No. 1756, and pay her a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out "the late."
In line 7 strike out "deceased," and after "First" insert "Regiment." After "Volunteers" strike out "in the."
In lines 8 and 9 strike out "he having been a pensioner of said Mexican war, pension No. 1756."
In line 10 strike out "thirty" and insert "twelve."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DAVID A. JONES.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8494) granting an increase of pension to David A. Jones.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of David A. Jones, late of Company C, First Regiment Alabama Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SARAH A. CHAUNCEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8939) granting an increase of pension to Sarah A. Chauncey.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Sarah A. Chauncey, widow of J. D. F. M. Chauncey, late captain Company D, Thirteenth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, also soldier in war with Mexico, and pay her a pension at the rate of $35 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 amend the soldier's Christian name so as to read: "John D. P. A. M."
In line 7, after "late," strike out "captain" and insert "second lieutenant." In the same line strike out "D" and insert "B, Third." In the same line strike out "Thirteenth."
In line 8 strike out "also soldier in," and after "Mexico" insert "and captain Company D, Thirteenth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry."
In line 9 strike out "thirty-five" and insert "sixteen."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ALBERT RICHARD CLARK.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8949) granting an increase of pension to Albert Richard Clark.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Albert Richard Clark, late principal musician, Second Regiment Ohio Volunteers, Mexican war, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after "musician," insert "field and staff."
In line 7 strike out "Mexican," and after "war" insert "with Mexico."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SAMUEL ENGLE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9077) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Engle.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Samuel Engle, late of Company A, Fourth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $60 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, after "Infantry," insert "war with Mexico."
In line 8 strike out "sixty" and insert "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MARIE G. BONHAM.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9351) granting an increase of pension to Marie Graves Bonham.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Marie Graves Bonham, widow of William B. Bonham, late second lieutenant, Second Regiment United States Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $25 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

Change the Christian name of "Graves" where it appears in the title and the body of the bill to the initial "G."
Add to the end of the bill the words "and $2 per month additional on account of the minor child of said William B. Bonham until he reaches the age of 16 years."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Marie G. Bonham."

CHARLES S. WORD.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9651) granting an increase of pension to C. S. Word.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of C. S. Word, late of Capt. William Delay's company, First Regiment Mississippi Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $25 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

Change the initial "C." where it occurs in the claimant's name in the title and body of the bill to "Charles."
In line 8 change "twenty-five" to "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Charles S. Word."

CHARLES T. HESLER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10476) granting an increase of pension to Charles T. Hesler.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Charles T. Hesler, late of Company C, Fifteenth Regiment Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

Strike out all in the bill after "Infantry," in line 7, and insert "war with Spain."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting a pension to Charles T. Hesler."

THOMAS CLARK.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10741) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Clark.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Thomas Clark, late of Company D, Second Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out "D" and insert "C."
In line 7 strike out "Ohio" and insert "Pennsylvania."
In the same line change "Volunteer Infantry" to "Volunteers."
Also in line 7, after "Volunteers," insert "war with Mexico, and Company D, Second Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DAVID WILBORN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10789) granting a pension to David Wilborn.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of David Wilborn, late of Company A, Ninth Battalion Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, after "Infantry," insert "war with Spain."
In line 8 strike out "twelve" and insert "eight."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE LARSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10967) granting a pension to George Larson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George Larson, late of Company D, Fifth Regiment United States Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out "thirty" and insert "twelve."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

CALAWAY G. TUCKER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10969) granting an increase of pension to C. G. Tucker.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of C. G. Tucker, late of Company C, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

Change the initial "C." where it appears in the title and the body of the bill to the Christian name "Calaway."
In line 6, after "Company C," insert "Third Regiment Tennessee Volunteer Infantry."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Calaway G. Tucker."

LIZZIE BELK.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11416) granting an increase of pension to Lizzie Belk.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Lizzie Belk, widow of William L. Belk, late of Companies I and B, Palmetto Regiment South Carolina Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8, after "Infantry," insert "war with Mexico," and in the same line strike out "twenty" and insert "twelve."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MADISON M. BURNETT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11657) granting a pension to Madison M. Burnett.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Madison M. Burnett, late of Troop E, Fifth Regiment United States Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MARY C. KIRKLAND.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12285) granting a pension to Mary C. Kirkland.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary C. Kirkland, widow of John D. A. Kirkland, Coles's company First Regiment Louisiana Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In lines 6 and 7 strike out "Coles's company" and insert "late of Company G."

In line 8 strike out "twenty" and insert "eight."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN M'WHORTER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12510) granting an increase of pension to John McWhorter.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John McWhorter, late of Company A, Fourth Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Infantry, war with Spain, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In lines 6 and 7 strike out "Company A, Fourth Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Infantry, war with Spain," and insert "Eighty-second Company, United States Coast Artillery."

In line 8 strike out "twenty-four" and insert "seventeen."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES S. RANDALL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12516) granting a pension to James S. Randall, jr.

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James S. Randall, jr., son of James S. Randall, sr., late of Company K, Third Regiment Kentucky Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month until he shall have reached the age of 16 years.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

Strike out the word "junior" where it occurs in the title and body of the bill.

In line 6 strike out "son" and insert "minor child." In the same line strike out "senior."

In line 7, after "Kentucky," insert "Volunteer."

In line 8 strike out "twenty" and insert "ten."

In line 9 strike out "shall have reached" and insert "reaches."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting a pension to James S. Randall."

AUGUSTUS WALKER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12640) granting an increase of pension to Augustus Walker.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Augustus Walker, late of Company C, Fourth Regiment United States Artillery, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 change "twenty-four" to "twenty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM G. CROCKETT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13050) granting an increase of pension to William G. Crockett.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William G. Crockett, late of Captain Murray's company, Second Regiment Tennessee Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ELIZABETH F. PARTIN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13078) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth F. Parten.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Elizabeth F. Parten, widow of Andrew J. Parten, late of Company , First Regiment Virginia Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

Change the spelling of the surname where it appears in the title and the body of the bill to "Partin."

In line 7, after "Company," insert "E."

In line 9 strike out "twenty" and insert "twelve."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth F. Partin."

WILLIAM DIXON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13084) granting an increase of pension to William Dixon.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William Dixon, late of Company A, First Regiment North Carolina Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS BRAMEL, ALIAS THOMAS BRAMBLE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 244) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Bramel, alias Thomas Bramble.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Thomas Bramel, alias Thomas Bramble, late of Company E, Second Regiment Illinois Volunteers, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ISABELLA WORKMAN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 322) granting an increase of pension to Isabella Workman.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Isabella Workman, widow of Oliver G. Workman, late of Company B, Mormon Battalion, Iowa Volunteers, war with Mexico, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE W. PURVIS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 407) granting an increase of pension to George W. Purvis.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George W. Purvis, late of Company D, First Regiment Georgia Volunteers, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN D. O'BRIEN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 637) granting an increase of pension to John D. O'Brien.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John D. O'Brien, late of Company F, Fourth Regiment United States Infantry, and captain Company F, First Battalion Wyoming Volunteer Infantry, war with Spain, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ANDREW M'CLORY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1035) granting an increase of pension to Andrew McClory.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Andrew McClory, late first lieutenant Company H, District of Columbia and Maryland Volunteers, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

EDWARD IRWIN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1271) granting an increase of pension to Edward Irwin.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Edward Irwin, late of Company A, Stevenson's regiment New York Volunteers, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH DAVIS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1474) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Davis.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Joseph Davis, late of Company F, Georgia Battalion Mounted Volunteers, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

FLORENCE GREELEY DE VEAUX.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1709) granting an increase of pension to Florence Greeley De Veaux.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Florence Greeley De Veaux, widow of James G. De Veaux, late acting assistant surgeon, United States Army, war with Spain, and pay her a pension at the rate of $17 per month and $2 per month additional on account of the minor child of the said James G. De Veaux until she reaches the age of 16 years.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WASHINGTON HOGANS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1735) granting an increase of pension to Washington Hogans.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Washington Hogans, late of Captain Ledwith's company, Florida Volunteers, Seminole Indian war, and pay him a pension at the rate of $16 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES A. M. BROWN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2144) granting an increase of pension to James A. M. Brown.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James A. M. Brown, late of Capt. N. P. Willard's company, First Regiment Florida Mounted Volunteers, Seminole Indian war, and pay him a pension at the rate of $16 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS ROBEY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2583) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Robey.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Thomas Robey, late of Company C, Fourth Regiment United States Artillery, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES A. GALLT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10483) granting a pension to James A. Gallt.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James Gallt, father of Alexander Gallt, late of Company E, Ninety-seventh Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "father," insert the word "dependent."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH NICHOLS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5658) granting an increase of pension to Joseph Nichols.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Joseph Nichols, late of Company F, Seventeenth Regiment, and Company A, Twelfth Regiment, United States Infantry, and Company F, Seventeenth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

Strike out all of line 7.

In line 8 strike out the words "and Company F, Seventeenth Regiment."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

CHARLES E. CROWE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6065) granting an increase of pension to Charles Crowe.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Charles Crowe, late of Company G, Eighty-sixth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "Charles," insert the letter "E."

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Charles E. Crowe."

MARY J. ALLHANDS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7241) granting an increase of pension to Mary J. Allhands.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary J. Allhands, widow of Francis M. Allhands, late first lieutenant in Company E, Thirty-fifth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $17 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out the word "in."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE D. STREET.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4246) granting an increase of pension to George D. Street.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George D. Street, late of Second Battery, Massachusetts Volunteer Light Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $75 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "seventy-five" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MARY E. SCOTT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6489) granting a pension to Mary E. Scott.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary E. Scott, late nurse Medical Department United States Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out the words "Volunteer Infantry" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Volunteers."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM J. STURGIS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4962) granting an increase of pension to William J. Sturgis.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William J. Sturgis, late of Company B, Fifth Regiment Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the words "of Company B" and insert in lieu thereof the word "sergeant-major."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HIRAM WILDE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2100) granting an increase of pension to Hiram Wilde.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Hiram Wilde, late of Company A, Seventeenth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "forty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WARREN A. BLYE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3425) granting a pension to Warren A. Blye.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Warren A. Blye, late of Company C, Ninth Regiment Michigan Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows.

In line 6 strike out the letter "C" and insert in lieu thereof the letter "I."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Warren A. Blye."

GEORGE N. DUTCHER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1585) granting an increase of pension to George N. Dutcher.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George N. Dutcher, late captain Company I, Fifth Regiment Michigan Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows.

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "forty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JESSE HARRISON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2849) granting an increase of pension to Jesse Harrison.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Jesse Harrison, late of Company A, First Regiment North Carolina Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HENRY M. ROBINSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1359) granting an increase of pension to Henry M. Robinson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Henry M. Robinson, late of Company K, Ninth Regiment Michigan Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GENERAL M. BROWN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2614) granting a pension to General M. Brown.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of General M. Brown, late of Company H, Fifth Regiment Michigan Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $8 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "eight" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twelve."

In same line, after the word "month," insert the following: "the same to be paid to him under the rules of the Pension Bureau as to mode and time of payment without any deduction or rebate on account of former alleged overpayments or erroneous payments of pension."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN D. MOORE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1287) granting an increase of pension to John D. Moore.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John D. Moore, late of Company B, Ninth Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty-six."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

AMANDA L. HILL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1979) granting an increase of pension to Amanda L. Hill.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Amanda L. Hill, widow of James M. Hill, late of Company E, Forty-seventh Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $17 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "Company," strike out the word "of" and insert in lieu thereof the words "second lieutenant."

In line 7 strike out the letter "E." and insert in lieu thereof the letter "K."

In same line strike out the word "Forty-seventh" and insert in lieu thereof the words "One hundred and fifteenth."

In line 8 strike out the word "seventeen" and insert in lieu thereof the word "fifteen."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JEROME WASHBURN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2059) granting an increase of pension to Jerome Washburn.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Jerome Washburn, late second lieutenant, Company C, Thirty-eighth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the words "Company C," and in line 7 the words "Thirty-eighth Regiment," and insert in lieu thereof the words "Twentieth Unattached Company."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MAURICE O'FLANIGAN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2099) granting an increase of pension to Maurice O'Flanigan.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Maurice O'Flanigan, late of Nineteenth Regiment United States Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "late," strike out the word "of" and insert in lieu thereof the word "unassigned."

In line 8 strike out the word "twenty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twelve."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN G. PARKER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1200) granting a pension to John G. Parker.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John G. Parker, late of Company D, Twenty-first Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In lines 6 and 7 strike out the words "Twenty-first Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry" and insert in lieu thereof the words "and second lieutenant Company L, First Regiment Indiana Volunteer Heavy Artillery."

In line 8, after the word "month," insert the words "in lieu of that he is now receiving."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to John G. Parker."

JOSEPH J. COOPER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2048) granting an increase of pension to John J. Cooper.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John J. Cooper, late of Company F, Thirty-ninth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "John" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Joseph."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Joseph J. Cooper."

FELIX G. STIDGER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 650) granting a pension to Felix G. Stidger.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Felix G. Stidger, late of Company E, Fifteenth Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

In same line, after the word "month," insert the words "in lieu of that he is now receiving."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Felix G. Stidger."

SYLVENUS A. FAY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 524) granting an increase of pension to Sylvenus A. Fay.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Sylvenus A. Fay, late of Company F, Eighty-fifth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "Company," strike out the word "of" and insert in lieu thereof the words "first lieutenant."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

NANCY F. SHELTON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13348) granting an increase of pension to Nancy Shelton.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Nancy Shelton, widow of William A. Shelton, late captain Company D, First Regiment, Missouri Volunteer Cavalry, and colonel Forty-fifth Missouri Enrolled Militia, and pay her a pension at the rate of $25 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "Nancy," insert the letter "F."

In line 7 strike out the word "Volunteer" and insert in lieu thereof the words "State Militia."

In same line and in line 8 strike out the words "and colonel Forty-fifth Missouri Enrolled Militia."

In line 9 strike out the word "twenty-five" and insert in lieu thereof the word "seventeen."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Nancy F. Shelton."

FREDERICK BIERLEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12948) granting an increase of pension to Frederick Bierley.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Frederick Bierley, late of Company G, Seventieth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DANIEL T. FERRIER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12903) granting an increase of pension to Daniel T. Ferrier.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Daniel T. Ferrier, late of Company K, Second Regiment Indiana Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SARAH DUFFIELD.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12720) granting a pension to Sarah Duffield.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Sarah Duffield, mother of William H. H. Duffield, late of Company B, First Regiment Colorado Volunteer Cavalry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "mother," insert the word "dependent."
In line 8 strike out the word "twenty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twelve."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ESTELLE KUHN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12297) granting a pension to Estelle Kuhn.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Estelle Kuhn, widow of Charles N. Kuhn, late of Company C, Sixth Regiment Maryland Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $30 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "late," strike out the word "of" and insert in lieu thereof the words "first lieutenant."
In line 7 strike out the letter "C" and insert in lieu thereof the letter "A."
In same line, before the word "Sixth," insert the words "and captain Company C."
In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DAVID L. KRETSINGER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12290) granting an increase of pension to David L. Kretsinger.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of David L. Kretsinger, late lieutenant Company G, Fifty-sixth Regiment United States Colored Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 before the word "lieutenant," insert the word "first."
In line 7, before the word "Infantry," insert the word "Volunteer."
In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

CHARLES H. BURLEIGH.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12038) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Burleigh.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Charles H. Burleigh, late of the United States Navy, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "the" and insert in lieu thereof the words "U. S. S. Wabash, Philadelphia, and Princeton."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MANSON B. SCOTT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11777) granting an increase of pension to Manson B. Scott.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Manson B. Scott, late of Company E, Fourth Regiment Tennessee Volunteer Mounted Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8, after the word "twenty," insert the word "four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES WILSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11748) granting an increase of pension to James Wilson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James Wilson, late of Second Company, Seventh Regiment New York State Militia, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Second."
In the same line, after the word "Company," insert the letter "B."
In line 7, after the word "Militia," insert the word "Infantry."
In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GOULD E. UTTER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11658) granting an increase of pension to Gould E. Utter.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Gould E. Utter, late of Company F, Fortieth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGIA A. RICHARDSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4258) granting a pension to Georgia A. Richardson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Georgia A. Richardson, widow of Zanoni A. Richardson, late of Company H, Forty-third Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of —— dollars per month.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8, after the word "of," insert the word "eight."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ENOCH BOLEN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11343) granting an increase of pension to Enoch Bolen.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Enoch Bolen, late of Company H, Seventy-third Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of —— dollars per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8, before the word "dollars," insert the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JEREMIAH SPICE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11205) granting an increase of pension to Jeremiah Spice.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Jeremiah Spice, late of Company H, One hundred and eighty-sixth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HORACE E. LYDY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11132) granting an increase of pension to Horace E. Lydy.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Horace E. Lydy, late of Company C, One hundred and fourteenth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ANDREW J. BAKER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11101) granting an increase of pension to Andrew J. Baker.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Andrew J. Baker, late of Company H, Thirty-third Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HENRY T. M'DOWELL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11051) granting a pension to Henry T. McDowell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Henry T. McDowell, late lieutenant-colonel Thirty-ninth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ISAAC C. DENNIS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10925) granting an increase of pension to Isaac C. Dennis.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Isaac C. Dennis, late of Company M, Fourteenth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

STEPHEN V. STURTEVANT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11908) granting an increase of pension to Stephen V. Sturtevant.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Stephen V. Sturtevant, late of Company D, Seventh Regiment New York Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN HAMILTON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10914) granting an increase of pension to John Hamilton.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John Hamilton, late chaplain One hundred and fifty-fifth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ELLEN S. CUSHMAN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10775) granting a pension to Ellen S. Cushman.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Ellen S. Cushman, sister of Benjamin S. Cushman, late of Company B, Tenth Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $30 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "sister," insert the words "helpless and dependent."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twelve."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LEVI N. BODLEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10564) granting an increase of pension to Levi H. Bodley.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Levi H. Bodley, late of Company K, Twenty-ninth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the letter "H." and insert in lieu thereof the letter "N."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Levi N. Bodley."

JAMES SPENCER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10280) granting an increase of pension to James Spencer.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James Spencer, late of Company G, Forty-second Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

Mr. SULLOWAY. Mr. Speaker, I move that that bill be recommitted to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

The motion was agreed to.

ORLEAN DE WITT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9929) granting an increase of pension to Orlean De Witt.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Orlean De Witt, late of Company M, Fifth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out the word "Infantry" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Cavalry."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

PHILANDER BENNETT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9122) granting an increase of pension to Philander Bennett.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Philander Bennett, late of Company B, One hundred and twenty-third Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HENRY GUY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8202) granting an increase of pension to Henry Guy.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws the name of Henry Guy, late of Company G, Forty-eighth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LOREN H. HOWARD.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8156) granting an increase of pension to Loren H. Howard.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Loren H. Howard, late of Company C, Eleventh Regiment Michigan Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "Company," strike out the word "of" and insert in lieu thereof the word "captain."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM F. BOTTOMS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8048) granting a pension to William F. Bottoms.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of W. F. Bottoms, a veteran soldier of the United States in the civil war, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving under pension No. 537,634.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the letter "W." and insert in lieu thereof the word "William."

In same line and in line 7 strike out the words "a veteran soldier of the United States in the civil war" and insert in lieu thereof the words "late of Company F, Sixtieth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry."

In line 7 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

In line 8 strike out the word "under" and all of lines 9 and 10.

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to William F. Bottoms."

FRANCIS M. KELLOGG.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7982) granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Kellogg.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Francis M. Kellogg, late quartermaster-sergeant Company A, Eleventh Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Company."
In line 7 strike out the letter "A."
In line 8, after the word "twenty," insert the word "four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES W. REYNOLDS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7948) granting an increase of pension to James W. Reynolds.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James W. Reynolds, late of Company F, First Regiment Independent Loudon Rangers, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "Reynolds," insert the words "alias William Reynolds."

In same line, after the word "Company," strike out the words "F, First Regiment," and insert in lieu thereof the words "B, Loudoun County (Va.) Independent Rangers."

In line 7 strike out the words "Independent Loundon Rangers."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to James W. Reynolds, alias William Reynolds."

BURGESS COLE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7770) granting an increase of pension to Burgess Cole.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Burgess Cole, late of Company C, One hundred and first Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HERMANN LIEB.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7622) granting an increase of pension to Herman Lieb.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Herman Lieb, late colonel and brevet brigadier-general, United States Volunteers, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Herman" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Hermann."

In same line strike out the word "colonel" and insert in lieu thereof the words "major Eighth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, colonel Fifth Regiment United States Colored Volunteer Heavy Artillery."

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Hermann Lieb."

S. D. JESTER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3966) granting an increase of pension to S. D. Jester.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of S. D. Jester, late of Company H, Fortieth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the letters "S. D." and insert in lieu thereof the word "Samuel."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Samuel Jester."

WILLIAM D. HATCH.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6340) granting an increase of pension to William D. Hatch.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William D. Hatch, late of Company A, Twenty-eighth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

FRANCIS M. HATTER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6565) granting an increase of pension to Francis Marion Hatter.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Francis Marion Hatter, late of Company H, Thirty-fifth Regiment Kentucky Mounted Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Marion" and insert in lieu thereof the letter "M."

In line 7, before the word "Mounted," insert the word "Volunteer."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Hatter."

WILLIAM FOAT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4221) granting an increase of pension to William Foat.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William Foat, late of Company F, Twenty-second Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH J. SPARLING.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4751) granting an increase of pension to Joseph J. Sparling.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Joseph J. Sparling, late of Company H, Second Regiment New Jersey Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

BLANCHE DOUGLASS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3983) granting an increase of pension to Blanche Douglass.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Blanche Douglass, dependent daughter of Albert C. Douglass, late of Company K, Eighth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $24 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "dependent," insert the words "helpless and."

In line 9 strike out the word "twenty-four" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twelve."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS T. FALLON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5708) granting an increase of pension to Thomas T. Fallon.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Thomas T. Fallon, late of Company H, Thirty-fifth Regiment New Jersey Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "forty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HARRY C. THORNE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1978) granting an increase of pension to Harry C. Thorne.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll the name of Harry C. Thorne, late of Company C, One hundred and fifteenth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $25 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as as follows:

In line 7 strike out the word "twenty-five" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ELIZABETH DILL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6117) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Dill.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Elizabeth Dill, widow of Henry Dill, late of Company A, First Regiment New York Volunteer Mounted Rifles, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "Henry," insert the letter "C."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DAVID P. BOLSTER.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 9) granting an increase of pension to David P. Bolster.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of David P. Bolster, late assistant surgeon Twenty-first and Sixteenth Regiments Maine Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

RUTH B. GURNEY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 11) granting an increase of pension to Ruth B. Gurney.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Ruth B. Gurney, widow of Horace M. Gurney, late of Company K, First Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SUSAN H. CUTLER.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 16) granting a pension to Susan H. Cutler.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Susan H. Cutler, widow of Nathan Cutler, late of Company B, Twenty-eighth Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $8 per month.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

AARON T. CURRIER.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 74) granting an increase of pension to Aaron T. Currier.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Aaron T. Currier, late of Company B, Nineteenth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JULIA A. STANYAN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 80) granting an increase of pension to Julia A. Stanyan.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Julia A. Stanyan, widow of John M. Stanyan, late captain Company B, Eighth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DAVID E. EVERETT.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 81) granting an increase of pension to David E. Everett.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of David E. Everett, late first lieutenant Company D, Twelfth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE A. FRANCIS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 96) granting an increase of pension to George A. Francis.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George A. Francis, late of Company H, Fourth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN M. BUCKLEY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 120) granting an increase of pension to John M. Buckley.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John M. Buckley, late of Company E, First Regiment West Virginia Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MICHAEL STUMP.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 122) granting an increase of pension to Michael Stump.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Michael Stump, late of Company H, Thirteenth Regiment West Virginia Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM J. STREET.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 126) granting an increase of pension to William J. Street.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William J. Street, late of Company C, Third Regiment West Virginia Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MICHAEL LINEHAN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 138) granting an increase of pension to Michael Linehan.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Michael Linehan, late of Company C, Eleventh Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and Company F, Sixth Regiment United States Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MAITLAND J. FREEMAN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 140) granting an increase of pension to Maitland J. Freeman.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Maitland J. Freeman, late of Company D, Seventh Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM FURLONG.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 142) granting an increase of pension to William Furlong.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William Furlong, late of First Independent Battery, Minnesota Volunteer Light Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES W. CALVERT.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 143) granting an increase of pension to James W. Calvert.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James W. Calvert, late of Company I, Twenty-fifth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WELLINGTON MARLATT.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 145) granting an increase of pension to Wellington Marlatt.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Wellington Marlatt, late of Companies E and A, First Regiment Missouri Volunteer Engineers, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

IRENE A. COCHRANE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 178) granting an increase of pension to Irene A. Cochrane.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Irene A. Cochrane, widow of William H. D. Cochrane, late first lieutenant Company E, Tenth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and captain and assistant quartermaster, United States Volunteers, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

CHARLES H. MAYHEW.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 179) granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Mayhew.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Charles H. Mayhew, late of Company C, Tenth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HENRY F. HUNT.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 183) granting an increase of pension to Henry F. Hunt.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Henry F. Hunt, late of Company I, First Regiment Rhode Island Volunteer Cavalry, and Company K, Fourth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LEWIS H. CATE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 185) granting an increase of pension to Lewis H. Cate.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Lewis H. Cate, late of Company G, Eighteenth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN C. EBERLY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 193) granting an increase of pension to John C. Eberly.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John C. Eberly, late of Company I, Ninety-ninth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GORDON H. SHEPARD.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 206) granting an increase of pension to Gordon H. Shepard.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Gordon H. Shepard, late of Company M, Second Regiment Ohio Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE F. ROSS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 209) granting an increase of pension to George F. Ross.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George F. Ross, late second lieutenant Company G, Thirteenth Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SILAS P. HALL.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 210) granting an increase of pension to Silas P. Hall.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Silas P. Hall, late of Company H, Twenty-first Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILSON J. POOL.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 211) granting an increase of pension to Wilson J. Pool.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Wilson J. Pool, late of Company H, Forty-fourth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN T. LIDDLE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 212) granting an increase of pension to John T. Liddle.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John T. Liddle, late of Company C, Hatch's Independent battalion Minnesota Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN SAVAGE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 238) granting an increase of pension to John Savage.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John Savage, late of Company G, Eleventh Regiment Michigan Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HORACE E. BARKER.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 279) granting an increase of pension to Horace E. Barker.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Horace E. Barker, late of Company I, Tenth Regiment Rhode Island Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ALETHA E. REYNOLDS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 314) granting a pension to Aletha E. Reynolds.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Aletha E. Reynolds, dependent mother of Cyrus W. Reynolds, late of Company D, Seventh Regiment Illinois Volunteer Cavalry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE PIKE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 315) granting an increase of pension to George Pike.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George Pike, late of Company A, First Regiment Dakota Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN W. WARNER.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 328) granting an increase of pension to John W. Warner.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John W. Warner, late captain Company M, Third Regiment Iowa Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM E. BLEWETT.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 329) granting an increase of pension to William E. Blewett.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William E. Blewett, late first lieutenant Company F, Second Regiment New Jersey Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

KEMENSKIO A. N. L. COLLINS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 330) granting an increase of pension to Kemenskio A. N. L. Collins, alias Lewis Collins.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Kemenskio A. N. L. Collins, alias Lewis Collins, late second-class fireman, U. S. S. Tacony, United States Navy, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE W. GEAREY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 385) granting an increase of pension to George W. Gearey.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George W. Gearey, late of Company H, Forty-third Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LUCINDA STAMPER.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 393) granting an increase of pension to Lucinda Stamper.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Lucinda Stamper, dependent mother of William E. Stamper, late of Company D, Eighth Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DAVID F. MAGEE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 472) granting an increase of pension to David F. Magee.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of David F. Magee, late first lieutenant Company D, Ninth Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

CHARLES M. WITTIG.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 493) granting an increase of pension to Charles M. Wittig.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Charles M. Wittig, late of Company B, Eighty-second Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM KRESS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 508) granting an increase of pension to William Kress.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William Kress, late of Company G, Twenty-fifth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ANNIE L. TREDICK.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 509) granting a pension to Annie L. Tredick.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Annie L. Tredick, widow of John Tredick, late of Company K, Eleventh Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and hospital steward, United States Army, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DENNIS BUCKLEY M'CREADY, ALIAS THOMAS BUCKLEY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 515) granting an increase of pension to Dennis Buckley McCready, alias Thomas Buckley.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Dennis Buckley McCready, alias Thomas Buckley, late of United States ships Bermuda and Savannah, United States Navy, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM H. SATTERTHWAIT.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 531) granting an increase of pension to William H. Satterthwait.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William H. Satterthwait, late of Company E, Fifteenth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DENNIS A. DAVIS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 534) granting an increase of pension to Dennis A. Davis.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Dennis A. Davis, late second lieutenant Company F, Two hundred and eleventh Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILSON HYATT.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 564) granting an increase of pension to Wilson Hyatt.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Wilson Hyatt, late of Company F, Second Regiment Ohio Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LUMBARD B. ALDRICH.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 565) granting an increase of pension to Lumbard B. Aldrich.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Lumbard B. Aldrich, late of Company A, Twelfth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HENRY G. SALISBURY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 572) granting an increase of pension to Henry G. Salisbury.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Henry G. Salisbury, late of Company D, Twentieth Regiment Connecticut Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN FLYNN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 575) granting an increase of pension to John Flynn.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John Flynn, late of United States steamer Hastings, United States Navy, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

FREDERICK J. SHELLEY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 576) granting an increase of pension to Frederick J. Shelley.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Frederick J. Shelley, late of Company I, Thirteenth Regiment Conecticut Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ELIZA J. HARDING.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 596) granting an increase of pension to Eliza J. Harding.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Eliza J. Harding, widow of Charles G. Harding, late of Company C, Eighth Regiment Missouri Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN H. CROWELL.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 606) granting an increase of pension to John H. Crowell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John H. Crowell, late captain and assistant quartermaster, United States Volunteers, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HIRAM SWAIN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 622) granting an increase of pension to Hiram Swain.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Hiram Swain, late of Company I, Second Regiment Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

PHEBE J. BENNETT.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 625) granting an increase of pension to Phebe J. Bennett.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Phebe J. Bennett, widow of Edwin W. Bennett, late of Company I, Twenty-sixth Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM R. HUBBELL.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 644) granting an increase of pension to William R. Hubbell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William R. Hubbell, late of Company K, Thirty-fourth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LEONARD HARMONY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 647) granting an increase of pension to Leonard Harmony.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Leonard Harmony, late of Company F, Ninety-third Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LAURENCE MERICLE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 669) granting an increase of pension to Laurence Mericle.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Laurence Mericle, late of Company E, Fifteenth Regiment Michigan Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ANTHONY BARRETT.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 670) granting an increase of pension to Anthony Barrett.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Anthony Barrett, late of Company G, Fiftieth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MARTHA E. SALTAR.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 706) granting an increase of pension to Martha E. Saltar.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Martha E. Saltar, widow of John C. Saltar, late of Company E, Second Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ALICE E. GILLEY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 707) granting a pension to Alice E. Gilley.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Alice E. Gilley, widow of Charles B. Gilley, late of Company D, First Regiment Maine Volunteer Cavalry, and Company G, First Regiment Maine Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and pay her a pension at the rate of $8 per month.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SUSIE PLACE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 714) granting an increase of pension to Susie Place.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Susie Place, widow of Charles E. Place, late of Company K, Twenty-fourth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGIA A. ROLLINS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 715) granting a pension to Georgia A. Rollins.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Georgia A. Rollins, widow of Willis A. Rollins, late of Company H, Seventeenth Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $8 per month.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JASPER H. KEYS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 727) granting an increase of pension to Jasper H. Keys.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Jasper H. Keys, late captain Company G, Sixty-fifth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

FRANKLIN C. PIERCE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 785) granting an increase of pension to Franklin C. Pierce.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Franklin C. Pierce, late of Company C, Second Regiment Vermont Volunteer Infantry, and Company B, First Regiment Veteran Reserve Corps, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

STEPHEN ERNST.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 787) granting an increase of pension to Stephen Ernst.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Stephen Ernst, late of Company E, One hundred and nineteenth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ELIZABETH C. DUNTON.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 837) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth C. Dunton.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Elizabeth C. Dunton, widow of Warren R. Dunton, late first lieutenant Company B, Fifth Regiment Vermont Volunteer Infantry, and first lieutenant, Nineteenth Regiment United States Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $17 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SARAH A. PAGE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 845) granting an increase of pension to Sarah A. Page.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Sarah A. Page, widow of Leverett H. Page, late of Company C, Third Regiment Vermont Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ARTHUR F. DEVEREUX.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 850) granting an increase of pension to Arthur F. Devereux.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Arthur F. Devereux, late lieutenant-colonel and colonel Nineteenth Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry and brevet brigadier-general, United States Volunteers, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

FREDERICK HOUSER.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 851) granting an increase of pension to Frederick Houser.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Frederick Houser, late of Company A, Ninety-first Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

NATHANIEL L. BADGER.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 923) granting an increase of pension to Nathaniel L. Badger.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Nathaniel L. Badger, late of Company C, Seventh Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

OSCAR R. ARNOLD.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 943) granting an increase of pension to Oscar R. Arnold.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Oscar R. Arnold, late of Company C, Fourth Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "twenty-four" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JACOB H. EPLER.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 949) granting an increase of pension to Jacob H. Epler.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Jacob H. Epler, late of Company K, Fourth Regiment Minnesota Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

EMMA M. REA.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 950) granting a pension to Emma M. Rea.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Emma M. Rea, widow of John P. Rea, late captain Company I, First Regiment Ohio Volunteer Cavalry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

CAROLINE M. DOAN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 986) granting an increase of pension to Caroline M. Doan.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Caroline M. Doan, widow of Amos Doan, late of Company A, Thirty-second Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JANE M'MAHON.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 991) granting an increase of pension to Jane McMahon.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Jane McMahon, widow of Patrick McMahon, late of Company I, Fourth Regiment California Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH M'SWAIN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1015) granting an increase of pension to Joseph McSwain.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Joseph McSwain, late of Company F, Fourteenth Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES FRAZIER.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1038) granting an increase of pension to James Frazier.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James Frazier, late of Company H, Sixteenth Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MYRON E. BILLINGS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1041) granting an increase of pension to Myron E. Billings.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Myron E. Billings, late of Company L, First Regiment United States Volunteer Sharpshooters; Company L, Fifth Regiment Iowa Volunteer Cavalry, and captain, One hundred and twentieth Regiment United States Colored Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

FRANCIS PICCARD.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1042) granting an increase of pension to Francis Piccard.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Francis Piccard, late of Company A, One hundred and ninety-third Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM J. GROW.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1098) granting an increase of pension to William J. Grow.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William J. Grow, late of Company H, One hundred and ninety-third Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MARTHA G. CUSHING.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1163) granting an increase of pension to Martha G. Cushing.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Martha G. Cushing, widow of Martin G. Cushing, late first lieutenant Company H, Fifth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $17 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN S. WILCOX.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1212) granting an increase of pension to John S. Wilcox.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John S. Wilcox, late lieutenant-colonel and colonel Fifty-second Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

CHARLES W. PAIGE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1258) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Paige, alias Jackson Morse.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Charles W. Paige, alias Jackson Morse, late of Battery I, Fourth Regiment United States Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN C. BARR.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1270) granting an increase of pension to John C. Barr.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John C. Barr, late acting ensign, United States Navy, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HARRISON BROTT.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1303) granting a pension to Harrison Brott.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Harrison Brott, late of Company B, Fifty-second Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ALMON FOSTER.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1367) granting an increase of pension to Almon Foster.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Almon Foster, late captain Company G, Twelfth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM H. HICKS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1368) granting an increase of pension to William H. Hicks.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William H. Hicks, late of Company F, One hundred and forty-fourth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN W. FOREAKER.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1432) granting an increase of pension to John W. Foreaker.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John W. Foreaker, late of Company K, First Regiment Delaware Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOANN MORRIS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1456) granting a pension to Joann Morris.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Joann Morris, widow of Jordan D. Morris, late acting assistant surgeon, United States Army, and pay her a pension at the rate of $8 per month.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

PHILENA DAVIS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1466) granting an increase of pension to Philena Davis.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Philena Davis, widow of Martin V. B. Davis, late of Company E, Second Regiment Vermont Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LAURA A. BLODGETT.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1467) granting an increase of pension to Laura A. Blodgett.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Laura A. Blodgett, widow of Pearl D. Blodgett, late captain Company E, Tenth Regiment Vermont Volunteer Infantry, and captain Company G, Second Regiment Veteran Reserve Corps, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

THOMAS T. HODGES.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1509) granting an increase of pension to Thomas T. Hodges.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Thomas T. Hodges, late of Company H, Seventy-ninth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN C. KENNEDY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1517) granting an increase of pension to John C. Kennedy.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John C. Kennedy, late captain Company G, Thirteenth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN M. BERKEY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1524) granting an increase of pension to John M. Berkey.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John M. Berkey, late lieutenant-colonel Ninety-ninth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ZACHARIAH BRADFIELD.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1525) granting an increase of pension to Zachariah Bradfield.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Zachariah Bradfield, late of Company H, Twenty-first Regiment Missouri Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES L. SMALL.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1529) granting an increase of pension to James L. Small.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James L. Small, late of Company H, Nineteenth Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LAURA CLARK.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1559) granting an increase of pension to Laura Clark.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Laura Clark, widow of William T. Clark, late brigadier-general and brevet major-general, United States Volunteers, and pay her a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE C. CHASE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1827) granting an increase of pension to George C. Chase.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George C. Chase, late of Company E, Sixteenth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ALVIN ABBOTT.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1828) granting an increase of pension to Alvin Abbott.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Alvin Abbott, late of Tenth Independent Battery, Massachusetts Volunteer Light Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ROBERT CATLIN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1841) granting a pension to Robert Catlin.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Robert Catlin, helpless and dependent child of Robert Catlin, late second lieutenant, Fifth Regiment United States Artillery, and captain, Forty-third Regiment United States Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

RANSOM O. THAYER.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1842) granting an increase of pension to Ransom O. Thayer.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Ransom O. Thayer, late of Second Battery, Michigan Volunteer Light Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MILTON MARSH.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1852) granting an increase of pension to Milton Marsh.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Milton Marsh, late captain Company G, Eighty-second Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ELLA T. HAPEMAN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 1987) granting a pension to Ella T. Hapeman.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Ella T. Hapeman, widow of Douglas Hapeman, late lieutenant-colonel One hundred and fourth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $30 per month.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

AMANDA M. RICHEY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2023) granting a pension to Amanda M. Richey.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Amanda M. Richey, widow of John Richey, late of Company I, One hundred and twelfth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $8 per month.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HENRY T. ANSHUTZ.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2071) granting an increase of pension to Henry T. Anshutz.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Henry

T. Anshutz, late second lieutenant Company B, Twelfth Regiment West Virginia Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN HECK.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2112) granting an increase of pension to John Heck.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John Heck, late of Company I, First Regiment Maryland Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

AGNES ZENTZ.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2113) granting an increase of pension to Agnes Zentz.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Agnes Zentz, widow of Charles A. Zentz, late of Company A, Sixth Regiment Maryland Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM I. HILKEY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2229) granting an increase of pension to William I. Hilkey.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William I. Hilkey, late of Company I, Tenth Regiment West Virginia Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES THOMPSON.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2255) granting an increase of pension to James Thompson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James Thompson, late of Company G, Second Regiment Michigan Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ALEXANDER F. M'CONNELL.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2256) granting an increase of pension to Alexander F. McConnell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Alexander F. McConnell, late of Company K, One hundred and twenty-first Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $60 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM C. HITCHCOCK.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2293) granting an increase of pension to William C. Hitchcock.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William C. Hitchcock, late of Company D, First Regiment Oregon Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ELIJAH R. WILKINS.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2481) granting an increase of pension to Elijah R. Wilkins.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Elijah R. Wilkins, late chaplain Fifth Regiment New Hampshire Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SARAH A. BARGAR.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2555) granting a pension to Sarah A. Bargar.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Sarah A. Bargar, widow of Jeptha Bargar, late of Company E, Eighty-eighth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $8 per month.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MICHAEL MATHENEY.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2564) granting an increase of pension to Michael Matheney.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Michael Matheney, late of Company E, Thirteenth Regiment West Virginia Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES P. FORD.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2730) granting an increase of pension to James P. Ford.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James P. Ford, late of Company D, Thirteenth Regiment Maryland Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES J. EGAN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2779) granting an increase of pension to James J. Egan.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James J. Egan, late first lieutenant Company B, First Regiment Minnesota Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN M. SCOTT.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2825) granting an increase of pension to John M. Scott.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John M. Scott, late of Company A, Ninety-seventh Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JACOB A. GEIGER.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 3180) granting an increase of pension to Jacob A. Geiger.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Jacob A. Geiger, late of Company A, First Regiment New Jersey Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

AKEY C. JOHNSON.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 3243) granting an increase of pension to Akey C. Johnson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Akey C. Johnson, late of Company D, First Regiment Minnesota Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ANNA F. KEITH.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 3244) granting an increase of pension to Anna F. Keith.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Anna F. Keith, widow of William Keith, late first lieutenant Company F, Fifth Regiment Michigan Volunteer Cavalry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $17 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

FRANCIS A. JONES.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9146) granting an increase of pension to Francis A. Jones.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Francis A. Jones, late of Company G, One hundred and fifth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MATTIE SETTLEMIRE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3108) granting a pension to Mattie Settlemire.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mattie Settlemire, widow of John Settlemire, late of Company A, First Regiment Alabama Volunteer Cavalry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "John," insert the letter "W."

In line 7 strike out the letter "A" and insert in lieu thereof the letter "B."

In same line strike out the word "First" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Seventh."

In same line strike out the word "Alabama" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Tennessee."

In line 8 strike out the word "twelve" and insert in lieu thereof the word "eight."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LOUCETTE E. GLAVIS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7213) granting an increase of pension to Loucette E. Glavis.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Loucette E. Glavis, widow of George O. Glavis, late hospital chaplain, United States Volunteers, and pay her a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "fifteen."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LEVI J. WALTON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7222) granting an increase of pension to Levi J. Walton.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Levi J. Walton, late of Company I, Thirtieth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

EMSLEY KINSAULS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6813) granting a pension to Emsley Kinsauls.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Emsley Kinsauls, late of Company E, Fourth Regiment United States Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "twelve" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

In same line, after the word "month," insert the words "in lieu of that he is now receiving."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Emsley Kinsauls."

WILLIAM HUGHES.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6494) granting an increase of pension to William Hughes.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William Hughes, a seaman on the United States gunboat Michigan, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In lines 6 and 7 strike out the words "a seaman on the United States gunboat Michigan" and insert in lieu thereof the words "late of U. S. S. Michigan U. S. Navy."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed

GEORGE BRUNER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6226) granting an increase of pension to George Bruner.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George Bruner, late of Company I, One hundred and seventh Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MARY BAGLEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6133) granting an increase of pension to Mary Bagley.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary Bagley, widow of Alexander Bagley, late of Company A, Nineteenth Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "sixteen."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MARIA DYER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 6063) granting an increase of pension to Maria Dyer.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Maria Dyer, widow of John N. Dyer, late of Company D, Seventh Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "Company," strike out the word "of" and insert in lieu thereof the word "captain."

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HENRY G. GARDNER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5692) granting an increase of pension to H. G. Gardner.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of H. G. Gardner, late lieutenant-colonel Fourteenth Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the letter "H." and insert in lieu thereof the word "Henry."

In same line, after the word "late," insert the words "captain Company F, and."

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty-six."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Henry G. Gardner."

ABRAHAM MATHEWS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5640) granting an increase of pension to Abraham Mathews.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Abraham Mathews, late of Company B, First Regiment Arkansas Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out the word "Infantry" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Cavalry."

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES S. PELLEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5605) granting an increase of pension to James S. Pelley.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James S. Pelley, late of Company K, First Regiment Virginia Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GILES Q. SLOCUM.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5212) granting an increase of pension to Giles Q. Slocum.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Giles Q. Slocum, late of Company H, Seventy-fourth Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty-six."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

SAMUEL P. CARLL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5028) granting an increase of pension to Samuel P. Carll.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Samuel P. Carll, late of Company I, One hundred and sixty-seventh Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ELIJAH J. SNODGRASS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4957) granting an increase of pension to Elijah J. Snodgrass.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Elijah J. Snodgrass, late an armorer upon the U. S. gunboat Mound City in the war between the States, who was honorably discharged at Mound City, Ill., on the 27th day of August, 1865, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the words "an armorer upon the United States," and all of lines 7 and 8.

In line 9 strike out the words "seventh day of August, eighteen hundred and sixty-five," and insert in lieu thereof the words "of U. S. S. Mound City, U. S. Navy."

In line 10 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

STEPHEN DICKERSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4741) granting an increase of pension to Stephen Dickerson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Stephen Dickerson, late of Company C, Seventh Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ALICE ROURK.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4704) granting a pension to Alice Rourk.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Alice Rourk, widow of Francis Rourk, late acting assistant surgeon, United States Army, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "twenty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "eight."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JACOB RICH.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4685) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Rich.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Jacob Rich, late of Company K, Sixty-seventh Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $100 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the words "one hundred" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty-six."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN C. CAVANAUGH.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4192) granting an increase of pension to John C. Cavanaugh.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John C. Cavanaugh, late a private in Company E, Thirty-seventh Regiment Illinois Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "late," insert the words "alias John Carpenter."
In same line strike out the words "a private in" and insert in lieu thereof the word "of."
In line 7, before the word "Infantry," insert the word "Volunteer."
In line 8 strike out the word "twenty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to John C. Cavanaugh, alias John Carpenter."

EBER WATSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3571) granting a pension to Eber Watson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Eber Watson, late of Company C, Third Regiment Iowa Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "Iowa," insert the word "Volunteer."
Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Eber Watson."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOSIAH M. GRIER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3544) granting a pension to Josiah M. Grier.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Josiah M. Grier, late of Company I, Eighty-second Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 8, before the word "dollars," insert the word "four."
In same line, after the word "month," insert the words "in lieu of that he is now receiving."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Josiah M. Grier."

MORRIS OSBORN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3502) granting a pension to Morris Osborn.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Morris Osborn, dependent father of William L. Osborn, late of Company G, Eighth Regiment Michigan Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $17 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "late," insert the words "first lieutenant Company B, Eleventh Regiment Michigan Volunteer Cavalry, and."
In line 7 strike out the word "of."
In line 8 strike out the word "seventeen" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twelve."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LEMUEL P. WILLIAMS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3483) granting an increase of pension to Lemuel P. Williams.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Lemuel P. Williams, late of Company F, Thirty-first Massachusetts Volunteers, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Company" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Companies."
In same line, before the word "Thirty-first," insert the words "and D."
In same line, after the word "Thirty-first," insert the word "Regiment."
In line 7 strike out the word "Volunteers" and insert in lieu thereof the words "Volunteer Infantry."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE A. BAKER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3403) granting an increase of pension to George A. Baker.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George A. Baker, late of Company I, Vermont Volunteer Heavy Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "Company," insert the words "Second Battery Vermont Volunteer Light Artillery, and First Independent."
In same line strike out the letter "I."
In line 7 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ALBIN L. INGRAM.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 3342) granting an increase of pension to Albin L. Ingram.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Albin L. Ingram, late first lieutenant of Company A, Sixth Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "Company," strike out the word "of."
In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE W. ADAMSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2949) granting an increase of pension to George W. Adamson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George W. Adamson, late of Company C, Twenty-fourth Regiment Missouri Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ASA M. FOOTE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2478) granting a pension to Asa M. Foote.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Asa M. Foote, late of Company A, Ninth Regiment New York Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."
In same line, after the word "month," insert the words "in lieu of that he is now receiving."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Asa M. Foote."

NATHANIEL BUCHANAN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2174) granting an increase of pension to Nathaniel Buchanan.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Nathaniel Buchanan, late of Company C, Fifth Regiment New Jersey Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $72 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "seventy-two" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty-six."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE M. DRAKE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1658) granting an increase of pension to George M. Drake.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George M. Drake, late of Company A, Second Regiment New York Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $36 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, before the word "Volunteer," insert the word "Veteran."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty-six" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DAVID L. FINCH.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 628) granting a pension to David L. Finch.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of David L. Finch, late guide and scout attached to General Porter's division, afterwards First Division, Fifth Army Corps, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In lines 6 and 7 strike out the words "guide and scout attached to General Porter's division, afterwards First Division, Fifth Army Corps," and insert in lieu thereof the words "scout and guide, United States Volunteers."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twelve."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

PETER CLINE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13536) granting an increase of pension to Peter Cline.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Peter Cline, late of Company H, Thirty-ninth Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "twenty-four" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN H. M'LEAN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13512) granting a pension to John McLane.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John McLane, late of Company B, Forty-first Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "McLane" and insert in lieu thereof the letter and word "H. McLean."

In same line strike out the letter "B" and insert in lieu thereof the letter "A."

In line 7 strike out the words "Volunteer Infantry" and insert in lieu thereof the words "Emergency Militia."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting a pension to John H. McLean."

WILLIAM A. SOUTHWORTH.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13141) granting an increase of pension to William A. Southworth.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William A. Southworth, late of Company A, One hundred and fourteenth Regiment, and Company E, Eighty-ninth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

PINKNEY W. H. LEE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13129) granting an increase of pension to Pinkney W. H. Lee.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Pinkney W. H. Lee, late of Company I, Sixth Regiment Tennessee Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ALICE B. HARTSHORNE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13010) granting an increase of pension to Alice B. Hartshorne.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Alice B. Hartshorne, widow of William R. Hartshorne, late colonel One hundred and ninetieth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the letter "R." and insert in lieu thereof the word "Ross."

In line 7, after the word "late," insert the words "first lieutenant and adjutant, Forty-second Regiment, and."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES HOOVER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12937) granting an increase of pension to James Hoover.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James Hoover, late of Company D, One hundred and forty-third Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, after the word "Infantry," insert the words "and Fifty-second Company, Second Battalion, Veteran Reserve Corps."

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM B. EVERSOLE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12754) granting an increase of pension to William B. Eversole.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William B. Eversole, late captain Company L, Fourteenth Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $72 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "seventy-two" and insert in lieu thereof the word "forty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

AUGUSTUS F. BRADBURY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12713) granting an increase of pension to Augustus F. Bradbury.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Augustus F. Bradbury, late of Company I, Seventeenth Regiment Maine Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN T. HOWELL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12506) granting an increase of pension to John T. Howell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John T. Howell, late of Company D, Thirteenth Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 9 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ANDREW DUNNING.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12384) granting an increase of pension to Andrew Dunning.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Andrew Dunning, late first lieutenant, United States Volunteers, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In lines 6 and 7 strike out the words "United States Volunteers" and insert in lieu thereof the words "Company D, Eighth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Cavalry."

In line 7 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

NATHAN C. BRADLEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12027) granting an increase of pension to Nathan C. Bradley.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Nathan C. Bradley, late of Company K, One hundred and forty-fourth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES CASSADY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12016) granting an increase of pension to James Cassaday.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James Cassaday, late of Company M, Ninth Regiment New York Veteran Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Cassaday" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Cassady."

In line 7 strike out the word "Veteran."

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Amend the title so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to James Cassady."

JAMES M. NOBLE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11842) granting an increase of pension to James M. Noble.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James M. Noble, late of Company F, Twelfth Regiment Michigan Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "forty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES D. BILLINGSLEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11745) granting an increase of pension to James D. Billingsley.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James D. Billingsley, late of Companies C and A, Fourth Regiment Missouri State Militia Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, before the word "Cavalry," insert the word "Volunteer."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN A. CONLEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11724) granting an increase of pension to John A. Conley.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John A. Conley, late of Company E, Fourth Regiment Arkansas Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

EMMA A. SMITH.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11654) granting a pension to Emma A. Smith.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Emma A. Smith, dependent daughter of Samuel F. Smith, late of Company H, One hundred and fifteenth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $24 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, before the word "dependent," insert the words "helpless and."

In line 7, strike out the word "fifteenth" and insert in lieu thereof the word "fiftieth."

In line 9 strike out the word "twenty-four" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twelve."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

EGBERT P. SHETTER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11561) granting an increase of pension to Egbert P. Shetter.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Egbert P. Shetter, late of Company F, First Regiment West Virginia Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, after the word "Infantry," insert the words "and second lieutenant Company F, Second Regiment West Virginia Veteran Volunteer Infantry."

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ISAAC M. WOODWORTH.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11353) granting an increase of pension to Isaac M. Woodworth.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Isaac M. Woodworth, late of Company —, First Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "Company," insert the letter "A."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM LEE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10883) granting an increase of pension to William Lee.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William Lee, late of Company C, Eighth Regiment Tennessee Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8, before the word "dollars," insert the word "six."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HELEN P. MARTIN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10770) granting a pension to Helen P. Martin.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Helen P. Martin, widow of Herman H. Martin, late of Company A, One hundred and fifty-third Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Herman" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Harman."

In line 9 strike out the word "twelve" and insert in lieu thereof the word "eight."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JACOB J. LONG.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10807) granting an increase of pension to Jacob J. Long.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Jacob J. Long, late of Company F, Twenty-third Regiment Michigan Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH F. CALDWELL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10720) granting an increase of pension to J. F. Caldwell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of J. F. Caldwell, late of Company K, One hundredth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $35 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the letter "J." and insert in lieu thereof the word "Joseph."

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty-five" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Joseph F. Caldwell."

SAMUEL PRESTON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10632) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Preston.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Samuel Preston, late of Company I, First Regiment Tennessee Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "Regiment," insert the word "East."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LEVI I. SHIPMAN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10637) granting an increase of pension to Levi I. Shipman.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Levi I. Shipman, late of Company C, First Regiment West Virginia Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, after the word "Infantry," insert the words "and Company E, Second Regiment West Virginia Veteran Volunteer Infantry."

In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MILTON A. SAEGER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10307) granting an increase of pension to Milton A. Saeger.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Milton A. Saeger, late of Company E, Two hundred and second Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

NICHOLAS HERCHERBERGER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10297) granting an increase of pension to Nicholas Hercherberger.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Nicholas Hercherberger, late of Company F, Eighty-eighth Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ANDREW RICKETTS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10269) granting an increase of pension to Andrew Ricketts.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Andrew Ricketts, late of Company B, First Potomac Home Brigade, Maryland Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "First," insert the word "Regiment."
In line 8 strike out the word "twenty-four" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HUGH LONGSTAFF.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10216) granting an increase of pension to Hugh Longstaff.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Hugh Longstaff, late of Company B, First Regiment Wisconsin Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HINMAN RHODES.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9906) granting an increase of pension to Hinman Rhodes.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Hinman Rhodes, late colonel Twenty-eighth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after the word "late," insert the words "major and."
In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "forty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

PATRICK CURLEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9279) granting an increase of pension to Patrick Curley.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Patrick Curley, late of Company D, Sixty-seventh Regiment Massachusetts Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $15 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Sixty-seventh" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Sixty-second."
In line 8 strike out the word "fifteen" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JACOB DACHRODT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9237) granting an increase of pension to Jacob Dachrodt.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Jacob Dachrodt, late lieutenant-colonel One hundred and fifty-third Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES M'KENZIE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13456) for the relief of James McKenzie.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of War is authorized to remove the charge of desertion standing against James McKenzie, of Company D, First Battalion Eleventh United States Infantry, and issue to him an honorable discharge as of date from August 26, 1865.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

Add at end of line 7 the words:
"Provided, That no pay, bounty, or other emoluments shall become due or payable by virtue of the passage of this act."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

STEPHEN D. COHEN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9209) granting an increase of pension to Stephen D. Cohens.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Stephen D. Cohens, late of Company A, Eighty-fourth Regiment, and Company F, One hundred and sixty-seventh Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Cohens" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Cohen."
In same line strike out the words "Company A, Eighty-fourth."
In line 7 strike out the words "Regiment, and."
In line 9 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Stephen D. Cohen."

JONATHAN WOOD.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9052) granting an increase of pension to Jonathan Wood.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Jonathan Wood, late of Comany I, One hundred and thirty-sixth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the letter "I" and insert in lieu thereof the letter "G."
In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

NEWTON E. TERRILL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7955) granting an increase of pension to Newton E. Terrell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Newton E. Terrell, late of Company K, Fifth Regiment Iowa Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "Terrell" and insert in lieu thereof the word "Terrill."
In line 8 strike out the word "thirty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "twenty-four."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Newton E. Terrill."

SAMUEL DUNNAN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7711) granting an increase of pension to Samuel Dunnan.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Samuel Dunnan, late of Company B, First Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Light Artillery, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

EDNA BUCHANAN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7546) granting a pension to Edna Buchanan.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Edna Buchanan, of Columbus, Bartholomew County, Ind., widow of William P. Buchanan, late a private in Company A, Ninth Regiment Indiana Legion, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the words "of Columbus, Bartholomew County."
In line 7 strike out the word "Indiana."
In the same line strike out the words "a private in" and insert in lieu thereof the word "of."
In line 9 strike out the word "twelve" and insert in lieu thereof the word "eight."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM K. SPENCER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7525) granting an increase of pension to William K. Spencer.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William K. Spencer, late of Company B, McLaughlin's squadron, Sixth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out the words "Sixth Regiment."
In line 8 strike out the word "forty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HELEN A. FREDERICK.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 164) granting a pension to Helen A. Frederick.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Helen A. Frederick, widow of Calvin H. Frederick, late lieutenant-colonel Fifty-ninth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and Fifth Regiment Veteran Reserve Corps, and pay her a pension at the rate of $30 per month.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LIDE S. LEONARD.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 603) granting an increase of pension to Lide S. Leonard.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Lide S. Leonard, widow of William L. Leonard, late second lieutenant Company C, First Regiment Colorado Volunteer Cavalry, and late of Company G, Eighth Regiment United States Veteran Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $15 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ANDREW PATRICK.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 666) granting an increase of pension to Andrew Patrick.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Andrew Patrick, late of Company I, One hundred and tenth Regiment New York Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM J. CAMPBELL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7238) granting a pension to William J. Campbell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William J. Campbell, late of Company D, Eighty-eighth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $14 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fourteen" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."
In same line, after the word "month," insert the words "in lieu of that he is now receiving."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to William J. Campbell."

FRANCIS L. BROWN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 5855) granting an increase of pension to Francis L. Brown.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Francis L. Brown, late a captain of Company L, Twenty-fourth Regiment New York Volunteer Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out the word "a."
In the same line, before the word "Company," strike out the word "of."
In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty-six."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN C. UMSTEAD.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 4202) granting an increase of pension to John C. Umstead.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John C. Umstead, late of Company C, Fifty-first Regiment Pennsylvania Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out the word "fifty" and insert in lieu thereof the word "thirty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

CHARLES A. POWER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8233) granting an increase of pension to Charles A. Power.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Charles A. Power, late of Company D, Thirty-first Regiment Indiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

CHARLES FALBISANER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 648) granting a pension to Charles Falbisaner.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Charles Falbisaner, late of Troop D, Fourth Regiment United States Cavalry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out "thirty" and insert "twelve."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPHINE E. QUENTIN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1483) granting an increase of pension to Josephine E. Quentin.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Josephine E. Quentin, widow of Julius E. Quentin, late of Company B, Fourteenth Regiment United States Army, and pay her a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In lines 6 and 7 strike out "of Company B" and insert "first lieutenant."
In line 7 strike out "Army" and insert "Infantry."
In line 8 strike out "fifty" and insert "twenty-five."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM T. SCANDLYN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 1888) granting a pension to William T. Scandlyn.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William T. Scandlyn, musician, late of Company G, Twenty-ninth United States Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $17 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out "musician."
In line 7, after "Twenty-ninth," insert "Regiment;" and in the same line, after "Infantry," insert "war with Spain."
In line 8 strike out "seventeen" and insert "twelve."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

RALPH A. ADAMS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2054) granting an increase of pension to Ralph A. Adams.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Ralph A. Adams, late of Company E, Fourteenth Regiment United States Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8, after the words "rate of," strike out "fifty" and insert "seventy-two."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DANIEL HAYS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2116) granting an increase of pension to Daniel Hayes.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Daniel Hayes, late of Company B, Fourteenth Regiment United States Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

Strike out the letter "e" in claimant's surname in the title and body of the bill.
In line 8 strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Daniel Hays."

JAMES W. STELL.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2306) granting an increase of pension to James W. Stell.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name James W. Stell, late United States soldier in Mexican war, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out "United States soldier in Mexican war," and in the same line, after "late," insert "of Capt. J. S. Gillett's company, Texas Mounted Riflemen, war with Mexico."
In line 7 strike out "fifty" and insert "twenty."
In line 5, after "name," insert "of."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOSEPH JONES MARTIN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2307) granting an increase of pension to Joseph J. Martin.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Joseph J. Martin, late of Company F, Thirteenth Regiment United States Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

Change the initial "J.", where it appears in the claimant's name in the title and body of the bill, to "Jones."
In line 8 strike out "fifty" and insert "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Joseph Jones Martin."

RUFUS G. CHILDRESS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 2897) granting an increase of pension to R. G. Childress.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of R. G. Childress, late of J. S. Bagger's company, Mounted Texas Volunteers, commanded by Capt. Pat Calhoun, United States Army, Indian war of 1854 and 1855, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 change the initial "R." to "Rufus." In the same line change "Bagger's to "Boggess's," and after "Mounted," in the same line, insert "Battalion."
In lines 7 and 8 strike out "commanded by Captain Pat Calhoun, United States Army;" and in lines 8 and 9 strike out "of eighteen hundred and fifty-four and eighteen hundred and fifty-five."
In line 10 strike out "twenty-four" and insert "sixteen."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting an increase of pension to Rufus G. Childress."

SUSAN W. SELFRIDGE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8406) granting an increase of pension to Susan W. Selfridge.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Susan W. Selfridge, widow of James R. Selfridge, late captain, United States Navy, and pay her a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

GEORGE W. JACKSON.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 7478) granting an increase of pension to George W. Jackson.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of George W. Jackson, late musician, Twenty-third Regiment Kansas Volunteer Infantry, war with Spain, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after "late," insert "chief."
In lines 7, 8, and 9 strike out "and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting a pension to George W. Jackson."

SALLIE F. SHEFFIELD.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 8493) granting an increase of pension to Sallie F. Sheffield.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Sallie F. Sheffield, widow of John Sheffield, late of Company B, Siebel's Alabama Battalion Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out "thirty "and insert "twelve."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

CATHERINE B. CASEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9530) granting a pension to Catherine Casey.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Catherine Casey, widow of William J. Casey, late of Company F, First Regiment Missouri Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $20 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

Insert the initial "B." after "Catherine" in the title and the body of the bill.
In line 7 strike out "F" and insert "I."
In the same line, after "Infantry," insert "war with Spain."
In line 8 strike out "twenty" and insert "twelve," and add to the end of the bill the words "and $2 per month additional on account of the minor child of said William J. Casey until he reaches the age of 16 years."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting a pension to Catherine B. Casey."

CHARLES M. PRIDDY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 9593) granting a pension to C. M. Priddy.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of C. M. Priddy, late of Company M, Nineteenth Regiment Kansas Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

Change the initial "C." where it occurs in the claimant's christian name in the title and body of the bill to "Charles."
In line 7 strike out "Infantry" and insert "Cavalry."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

The title was amended so as to read: "A bill granting a pension to Charles M. Priddy."

MATTHEW A. KNIGHT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10175) granting an increase of pension to Matthew A. Knight.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Matthew A. Knight, late of Capt. George Holmes's independent company Florida Volunteers, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7, after "Volunteers," insert "war with Mexico."
In line 8 strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MARIA ELIZABETH POSEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 10677) granting an increase of pension to Maria Elizabeth Posey.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Maria Elizabeth Posey, helpless and dependent daughter of Carnot Posey, late first lieutenant Company B, First Mississippi Regiment, war with Mexico, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out "First," and in the same line, before "Mississippi," insert "Regiment."
In line 8 strike out "Regiment" and insert "Volunteers."
In line 9 strike out "twelve" and insert "eight."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

REANNA PILE.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11061) granting an increase of pension to Reanna Pile.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Reanna Pile, widow of William O'Brien Pile, late of Company D, Fifth Regiment Tennessee Volunteers, war with Mexico, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN HOPPER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11122) granting an increase of pension to John Hopper.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John Hopper, late of the United States Marine Corps, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DAVID M'GINNIS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 11297) granting a pension to David McGinnis.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of David McGinnis, late of Company —, Third Regiment Kentucky Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $24 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out "of Company" and insert "recruit."
In line 8 strike out "twenty-four" and insert "twelve."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES D. BLANDING.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12008) granting an increase of pension to James D. Blanding.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James D. Blanding, late of Company A, Palmetto Regiment South Carolina Volunteers, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In lines 6 and 7 strike out "of Company A, Palmetto Regiment South Carolina Volunteers."
In line 6, after "late," insert "captain and acting commissary of subsistence, United States Commissary Department."
In line 8 strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ELIZABETH L. H. LABATT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12583) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth L. H. Labatt.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Elizabeth L. H. Labatt, widow of David C. Labatt, late of Company G, Fifth Regiment Louisiana Volunteers, war with Mexico, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6, after "late of," insert "Captain Hyam's."
In line 7 strike out "G."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MARTHA MILLER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12837) granting an increase of pension to Martha Miller.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Martha Miller, widow of William Miller, late of Captain Pauncey's company, Alabama Volunteers, Creek Indian war, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 7 change "Pauncey's" to "Pouncey's."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

KATHRYN G. HAYT.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12839) granting an increase of pension to Kathryn G. Hayt.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Kathryn G. Hayt, widow of Stephen K. Hayt, late second lieutenant, Philippine Scouts, United States Army, and pay her a pension at the rate of $50 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out "fifty" and insert "twenty-five."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LYMAN CRITCHFIELD, JR.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 12955) granting a pension to Lyman Critchfield, jr.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Lyman Critchfield, jr., late of Company D, Eighth Regiment Ohio Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $15 per month.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In lines 7 and 8 strike out "and pay him a pension at the rate of $15 per month" and insert "war with Spain."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

ELIZABETH JANE KEARNEY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13037) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Jane Kearney.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Elizabeth Jane Kearney, widow of Peter Kearney, late of Company ———, ——— Regiment Louisiana Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out the words "Company ———, ——— Regiment."
In the same line insert "Captain Blanchard's independent company."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

LYDIA B. BEVAN.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13282) granting an increase of pension to Lydia B. Bevan.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Lydia B. Bevan, widow of James M. Bevan, late second lieutenant Thirty-third Company Coast Artillery, United States Army, and pay her a pension at the rate of $30 per month.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 7 strike out "Thirty-third Company Coast," and after "Artillery" insert "Corps."
In line 8 strike out "thirty" and insert "fifteen;" and at the end of the bill add "and $2 per month additional on account of the minor child of said James M. Bevan until he reaches the age of 16 years."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JOHN REYNOLDS.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13402) granting a pension to John Reynolds.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of John Reynolds, late of Company E, Fifth Regiment United States Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out "thirty" and insert "twelve."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM M. M'CAY.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13457) granting an increase of pension to William M. McCay.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William M. McCay, late of Company I, First Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

AMON MILLER.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13579) granting an increase of pension to Amon Miller.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Amon Miller, late of Company K, Twelfth Regiment United States Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

JAMES SUTHERLAND.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13582) granting an increase of pension to James Sutherland.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of James Sutherland, late of Capt. J. S. Williams's independent company, Kentucky Volunteers, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendment recommended by the committee was read, as follows:

In line 8 strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty."

The amendment was agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

WILLIAM CLOUGH.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13611) granting an increase of pension to William Clough.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of William Clough, late of Company F, Fourth Regiment Louisiana Volunteer Infantry, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out "Company F," and in the same line, after "late of," insert "Captain Staple's company."
In line 7, after "Infantry" insert "war with Mexico."
In line 8 strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

DAVIS W. HATCH.

The next pension business was the bill (H. R. 13643) granting an increase of pension to Davis W. Hatch.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Davis W. Hatch, late of Company C, Texas Mounted Rangers, and pay him a pension at the rate of $30 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The amendments recommended by the committee were read, as follows:

In line 6 strike out "Company C." In the same line, after "late of," insert "Captain Walker's independent company."

In line 7, after "Rangers," insert "war with Mexico." In the same line strike out "thirty" and insert "twenty."

The amendments were agreed to.

The bill as amended was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

FANNIE I. EDGERTON.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2415) granting an increase of pension to Fannie I. Edgerton.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Fannie I. Edgerton, widow of Wright P. Edgerton, late professor, with rank of lieutenant-colonel, United States Army, and pay her a pension at the rate of $40 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving and $2 per month additional on account of the minor child of said Wright P. Edgerton until she reaches the age of 16 years.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MARY J. HOGE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 2879) granting an increase of pension to Mary J. Hoge.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary J. Hoge, widow of Marion D. Hoge, late of Captain Jones's company, Second Regiment Illinois Foot Volunteers, war with Mexico, and major One hundred and tenth Regiment Illinois Volunteer Infantry, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

HENRY WESTON.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 994) granting an increase of pension to Henry Weston.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Henry Weston, late of Captain Stapp's company, Illinois Mounted Volunteers, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

MARY J. M'GEHEE.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 3286) granting an increase of pension to Mary J. McGehee.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the penison roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Mary J. McGehee, widow of Henry L. McGehee, late of Capt. John E. Davis's company, First Regiment Geogria Volunteer Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay her a pension at the rate of $12 per month in lieu of that she is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

PHILLIP W. CORNMAN.

The next pension business was the bill (S. 3307) granting an increase of pension to Phillip W. Cornman.

The bill was read, as follows:

Be it enacted, etc., That the Secretary of the Interior be, and he is hereby, authorized and directed to place on the pension roll, subject to the provisions and limitations of the pension laws, the name of Phillip W. Cornman, late of Company I, Fourth Regiment United States Infantry, war with Mexico, and pay him a pension at the rate of $20 per month in lieu of that he is now receiving.

The bill was ordered to a third reading; and it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

Mr. SULLOWAY. Mr. Speaker, I move that in the case of Senate bill 1098, Calendar No. 777, the vote by which it passed be reconsidered. I make that motion for the purpose of asking to amend the bill.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The gentleman from New Hampshire moves the reconsideration of Senate bill 1098.

The question was taken, and the motion was agreed to.

Mr. SULLOWAY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the word "twenty" be stricken out and that the word "twenty-four" be inserted in lieu thereof. I am informed that is a mistake on the part of the Senate.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The question is on agreeing to the amendment.

The question was taken, and the amendment was agreed to.

The SPEAKER pro tempore. The Senate bill as amended will be considered as read the third time and passed. [After a pause.] The Chair hears no objection.

Mr. SULLOWAY. Mr. Speaker, I move that the votes by which the several bills were passed be reconsidered and that motion lie on the table.

The motion was agreed to.

MESSAGE FROM THE SENATE.

A message from the Senate, by Mr. PARKINSON, its reading clerk, announced that the Senate had passed bills of the following titles; in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives was requested:

S. 3402. An act granting an increase of pension to Jesse W. Elliott;

S. 1799. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry Logan;

S. 1798. An act granting an increase of pension to Robert K. Smith;

S. 201. An act granting an increase of pension to Lyman E. Farrand;

S. 984. An act granting an increase of pension to William W. Benedict;

S. 2797. An act granting an increase of pension to James Buggie;

S. 2328. An act granting an increase of pension to Benjamin Franklin Bigelow;

S. 207. An act granting an increase of pension to Marion F. Howe;

S. 1414. An act granting an increase of pension to Sidney G. Smith;

S. 3120. An act granting an increase of pension to Mary Driscoll;

S. 2975. An act granting a pension to Mary L. Miller;

S. 2329. An act granting an increase of pension to Knute Torgeson;

S. 2327. An act granting an increase of pension to Sidney F. Mullin;

S. 1465. An act granting an increase of pension to Patrick Fallihee;

S. 3123. An act granting an increase of pension to William H. Alban;

S. 2337. An act granting an increase of pension to Ellen S. Larned;

S. 2257. An act granting an increase of pension to Mary J. Campbell;

S. 3240. An act granting an increase of pension to John T. Jones;

S. 2405. An act granting an increase of pension to John P. Winget;

S. 1883. An act granting an increase of pension to Nellie Raymond;

S. 87. An act providing for the withdrawal from public entry of lands needed for town-site purposes in connection with irrigation projects under the reclamation act of June 17, 1901, and for other purposes;

S. 533. An act granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Munson;

S. 2702. An act granting an increase of pension to George W. Dightman;

S. 3537. An act granting an increase of pension to Anthony W. Presley;

S. 3039. An act granting an increase of pension to Joseph Smith;

S. 1753. An act granting an increase of pension to Waldo W. Paine;

S. 992. An act granting a pension to Albert E. Lyon;

S. 3630. An act granting an increase of pension to Martin L. Barber;

S. 1670. An act granting an increase of pension to William McNabb;

S. 894. An act granting an increase of pension to Mrs. Sewall;

S. 3643. An act granting an increase of pension to Seth Raymond;

S. 125. An act granting an increase of pension to John E. Hadsall;

S. 2377. An act granting a pension to Clara T. Leathers;
S. 1433. An act granting an increase of pension to Joseph W. Willard;
S. 124. An act granting an increase of pension to Curtis B. McIntosh;
S. 4029. An act granting an increase of pension to Martha G. Archer;
S. 1835. An act granting an increase of pension to James G. Doane;
S. 620. An act granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth S. Law;
S. 640. An act granting an increase of pension to Hugh P. Buffon;
S. 3667. An act granting an increase of pension to Martha J. Brisco;
S. 3687. An act providing for the segregation of $1,000,000 from the reclamation fund created by the act of June 17, 1902, and for other purposes;
S. 3522. An act to amend an act entitled "An act to provide for the construction and maintenance of roads, the establishment and maintenance of schools, and the care and support of insane persons in the district of Alaska, and for other purposes," approved January 27, 1905.
S. 3309. An act granting an increase of pension to James C. Baber;
S. 2752. An act granting an increase of pension to Robert S. Moore;
S. 590. An act granting a pension to John White;
S. 3587. An act granting an increase of pension to Eliza Orr;
S. 3507. An act granting an increase of pension to Isaac Van Valkenburg;
S. 3291. An act granting an increase of pension to Mathew D. Raker;
S. 1298. An act granting an increase of pension to Francis W. Usher;
S. 1731. An act granting an increase of pension to William O. Colson;
S. 1744. An act granting an increase of pension to Joseph B. Papy;
S. 132. An act to establish a fish-culture station at the city of Fargo, in the State of North Dakota;
S. 967. An act to amend section 2 of an act entitled "An act to provide for the protection of the salmon fisheries of Alaska," approved June 9, 1896;
S. 1236. An act to authorize payment to the Henry Philipps Seed and Implement Company for seed furnished to, and accepted by, the Department of Agriculture during the fiscal year 1902;
S. 176. An act granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Marsh;
S. 186. An act granting an increase of pension to George P. Howe;
S. 3126. An act granting an increase of pension to Stephen B. Tarlton;
S. 2482. An act granting an increase of pension to Cutler A. Chamberlin;
S. 3605. An act granting an increase of pension to Albert Smith;
S. 717. An act granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Tuck;
S. 853. An act granting an increase of pension to Charles Lander;
S. 8. An act granting an increase of pension to William H. Hall;
S. 1538. An act granting a pension to Indiana A. Paul;
S. 789. An act granting a pension to Mary E. Wolf;
S. 854. An act granting a pension to W. W. Gauthier;
S. 267. An act to prohibit aliens from taking fish in the waters of the district of Alaska;
S. 611. An act to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Rawlins, in the State of Wyoming;
S. 1724. An act providing for the erection of a public building at the city of Fernandina, Fla., and for other purposes;
S. 2165. An act extending the provisions of the pension laws of the United States to persons engaged in the operation and construction of military telegraph lines during the war of the rebellion;
S. 961. An act to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Alexandria, in the State of Minnesota;
S. 338. An act making an appropriation for a public building at Houston, Tex.; and
S. 35. An act to provide for the purchase of a site and the erection of a public building thereon at Dover, in the State of New Hampshire.

The message also announced that the Senate had passed with amendments bills of the following titles; in which the concurrence of the House of Representatives was requested:
H. R. 7302. An act granting a pension to James G. Head;
H. R. 4708. An act granting a pension to William T. Wiley;
H. R. 1201. An act granting a pension to Edward Maxwell;
H. R. 1057. An act granting an increase of pension to Caswell D. Ferguson; and
H. R. 5597. An act granting an increase of pension to Oscar Williamson.

LEAVE OF ABSENCE.

By unanimous consent, Mr. ROBERTSON of Louisiana was granted leave of absence for two weeks on account of important business.

PHILIPPINE TARIFF LAWS.

On motion of Mr. PAYNE, the House resolved itself into the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union for the consideration of the bill (H. R. 13104) amending the Philippine tariff laws, Mr. OLMSTED in the chair.

The CHAIRMAN. The Clerk will report the bill.

The Clerk read as follows:

A bill (H. R. 13104) to amend an act entitled "An act to revise and amend the tariff laws of the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1905.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, I ask unanimous consent that the reading of the bill be dispensed with and that it be read only for amendment.

The CHAIRMAN. The gentleman from New York asks unanimous consent that the reading of the bill be dispensed with. Is there objection? [After a pause.] The Chair hears none.

Mr. PAYNE. Mr. Chairman, this bill is a bill to revise and amend the tariff laws of the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes, approved March 3, 1905. At that time a general revision of the tariff act upon goods coming from foreign countries and from the United States into the Philippine Islands was passed and became a law. During the passage of that bill some gentlemen, claiming to represent the cotton manufacturers of the United States, secured an amendment, and this amendment became incorporated into the bill on the assurance that the amendment would give advantage to the manufacturers of the United States over the manufacturers of foreign countries, and on that representation the amendment went into the bill and was made part of the law. Afterwards it was discovered that instead of helping the manufacturers of the United States it virtually excluded the manufacturers of cotton goods in the United States from the trade of the Philippine Islands, and one of the principal reasons for that was this: In manufacturing the narrow grade of goods, say 22 inches wide, the looms of the United States universally used are looms only 22 inches in width, so that a piece 22 inches wide passes through the loom and through the finishing machine and through the stamping machine, where these goods are stamped, and two or three other processes.

In Europe they use to make similar goods a loom 46 inches in width and make two pieces at the same time with marginal lines at the center, and when the manufactured goods are completed there is another process of cutting through the center of the piece, making two pieces 22 inches wide with a heavy line of yarn on each side with a false selvage thus created, so they have one-half the labor, half the loom work, half the printing work, half the bleaching, and half the finishing that we have to manufacture the same width goods in the United States, and these goods come in upon the same rate of tariff. The manufacturers of the United States did not generally know of this change that was made. It turned out that it was made on the recommendation of a single firm, though it was said at the time that all the manufacturers were united in the request. The result is that the manufacturers found that they were driven out of the market by these goods, which are termed "false selvage goods." Now, this bill is to correct this error and allow the manufacturers of the United States to sell goods 20, 22, 24 inches wide in the Philippine markets.

It describes and defines these goods as goods with a false selvage, and it places a double tax upon them, and in this way our manufactures will have at least an equal chance in the market with the manufactures of other countries for this class of goods. Other amendments are made to this tariff schedule changing the classification in the count of threads in a given piece of goods. The reasons for this recommendation are these: The present tariff law is based upon and in the main follows the schedule of counts which was contained in the original Spanish tariff devised about fifty years ago and intended primarily for the benefit of European manufacturers. American textiles at the present time are manufactured upon a different basis of construction from the textiles known at that time. Since the Philippine Islands have come into the possession of the United States, it is only fair that the counts scheduled in the tariff should conform to the American methods of manufacture. It is also only fair that the American manufactured product should have the best possible position in that market in competition with the products of other countries, and in order to insure that fairness to the American products it is absolutely necessary that the system of counts should be made to conform to the American schedules.

The marvel to me, Mr. Chairman, is that this act, passed in 1905, which was under consideration perhaps for a whole year, first by the War Department and through the War Department by the people in the Philippine Islands and the government of the Philippine Islands for about six month afterwards, then extensively advertised, sent to American manufacturers and people who were exporters to the Philippine Islands for their suggestion and their amendment, and finally approved by them and approved again by the government of the Philippine Islands and by the Secretary of War, after investigation, should have still this old idea of the Spanish tariff as to the classification of the number of threads, and should have been left to work injury to the manufactures of the United States and give them an unequal chance. But, after due consideration, these gentlemen have come to the conclusion, and they have taken nearly a year since the act passed to formulate that conclusion, that the classification actually worked against the American manufacturer and aided the European manufacturer. Now, they have suggested certain changes in the classification of these goods, dependent upon the number of threads in a yard of the article.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Mr. Chairman, I would like to know if the amendment proposed by this bill gives American-made cotton goods any preference, either in nominal duties or by way of classification.

Mr. PAYNE. It certainly does by way of classification, and upon these false-selvage goods. It admits American goods with a full selvage on an equal footing, at least, with the European manufacturers who make false-selvage goods.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Are these changes recommended by the Philippine Commission?

Mr. PAYNE. They are not. I want to say in that connection that Mr. Shuster, who is the collector of customs in Manila, proposed a different scheme from this, which is recommended by the manufacturers of the United States, and the manufacturers of the United States, all of them substantially, I am informed now—and I have no reason to doubt the truth of it, except the statements that were made a year ago when only a part of them were said to be all of them—all of them seem to have united upon this form of bill.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. That is, the manufacturers of the United States?

Mr. PAYNE. Yes; and I do not understand that after that has been formulated there has been any protest from any other source.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. How will it affect revenues of the Philippine government?

Mr. PAYNE. It will slightly increase them, as I was about to say when the gentleman asked the question, because upon the finer goods—the goods with the greater number of threads to the yard—it advances the classification and puts them into a little higher grade of duty, so that there will be a slight increase in the revenue. Just exactly how much, of course, we do not know; but it will be a slight increase on the whole—not much of an increase, because most of them are at the same rate and some at a little higher rate, and I believe some at a slightly lower rate of duty than in the original act.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. The gentleman, I suppose, in his examination of this question, is satisfied that it will not operate to the material injury of the Philippine people?

Mr. PAYNE. I think not.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Now, in times past we have enacted legislation, I think, promptly largely by home interests, particularly the proposition to repeal the export taxes on hemp. The Philippine Commission recommends now that that tax be restored for the revenue, and I am only anxious to know respecting this bill as to what its bearing will be upon conditions down there. This country is responsible, of course, for the administration of affairs in the Philippine Islands, and it can not afford to do a thing that will in any degree embarrass the situation or result in hardship.

Mr. PAYNE. I desire to say to the gentleman that this bill gives no preferential duty—no lower duty—to goods imported from the United States than goods imported from any other country, except as it increases the duty on the false selvage goods. They come in on the same classification.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. I hope in a very few years we will be able to have absolute free trade, so that all of our goods will be preferred. I think they ought to be.

Mr. PALMER. We all trust that; and of course that is up to the Senate now in the bill we have already passed in the House.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Well, I have a good deal of faith in the Senate on some things, too.

Mr. PAYNE. I sometimes have.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. Chairman, may I ask the gentleman a question?

Mr. PAYNE. Certainly.

The CHAIRMAN. Does the gentleman from New York yield to the gentleman from Georgia?

Mr. PAYNE. I do.

Mr. BARTLETT. Mr. Chairman, I desire to ask the gentleman from New York if this bill deals mainly in the matter of reducing tariff duties on cotton goods going into the Philippine Islands—that is, upon the coarser grades of goods? I mean in the matter of reduction.

Mr. PAYNE. I would say it would upon some of them, and upon the higher class of goods there is a slight increase because of the classification. Goods between a certain number of threads are to be in one class, and between a certain number of threads in another, and so when they get in a higher class they pay a correspondingly higher rate of duty; but on the coarser grades the rate of duty, I think, in all cases is the same as in the original act. There is a reduction, however, in one place—a reduction of 2 cents—from thirteen to eighteen thread, in paragraph 118; but generally the tariff is the same upon the lower grade and a little higher upon the higher grade.

Mr. BARTLETT. I understand from the gentleman's report and from what he has said that the change has become necessary on account of the peculiar kind of goods that some of the foreign manufacturers make and that are imported into the Philippine Islands under the present law. And by reason of the peculiar——

Mr. PAYNE. Yes; I tried to explain that.

Mr. BARTLETT. I was not present, and therefore did not hear the gentleman.

Mr. PAYNE. The manufacture abroad is on looms of double the width and a little more than the width of the cloth. For instance, they want to make a 22-inch goods, and they manufacture upon a 46-inch loom and manufacture the whole piece. Then it is woven so they can cut through the center and leave a false selvage on each side of that center line, making the 22-inch piece, giving opportunity in one operation to weave two pieces at a time and color them and bleach them and finish them and conduct all the operations that are necessary for the completion of the goods. Then afterwards they cut them open.

Mr. BARTLETT. And that peculiar manufacture is confined mostly to the cheaper grades of goods, as I understand it?

Mr. PAYNE. I understand so.

Mr. BARTLETT. And by reason of that fact the American-made cotton goods of that particular kind have not been able to compete with the grades of foreign manufacture in the Philippine Islands?

Mr. PAYNE. The statement is made that it will absolutely, if the law continues as it is, close the trade to American manufacturers of that class of goods.

Mr. BARTLETT. But if this bill is enacted into law, the provisions made in it and reported by the Committee on Ways and Means will put the American-made goods upon an equality, so far as the Philippine tariff law or duties are concerned, and also as far as opportunity to compete with English-made goods is concerned?

Mr. PAYNE. That is the object of the bill.

Mr. THOMAS of North Carolina. So that on the whole, as I understand it, this will help the export trade of cotton manufactured goods from the South.

Mr. PAYNE. The representatives of the manufacturers of cotton universally and absolutely say that it will. I am not an expert in that business. I have to take what others have to say upon that subject.

Mr. BARTLETT. I am not an expert, but I want to say I have a great many factories in my district that make the class of goods that this bill refers to.

Mr. PAYNE. Not with the false selvage?

Mr. BARTLETT. No.

Mr. PAYNE. I understand that there are no looms in the United States on which they can make those goods with the false selvage.

Mr. BARTLETT. Does that class of goods find ready sale in the Philippine Islands, namely, cotton goods?

Mr. PAYNE. They sell just as readily as the other goods—

the cheaper grade with the false selvage. Those are the amendments in paragraphs 117, 118, 119, and 120.

The bill also amends the shoe schedule, paragraphs 223 and 225. This is in pursuance of a telegram received from Mr. Shuster, the collector of customs in the Philippine Islands, to the Secretary of War, and is embodied in a letter of the Secretary of War addressed to the chairman of the committee on the 16th of January, while the bill was before the committee. The Secretary of War says:

WAR DEPARTMENT,
Washington, January 16, 1906.

MY DEAR MR. PAYNE: On January 5 I received a cablegram signed by practically all of the merchants of Manila dealing in boots and shoes recommending changes in paragraphs 223 and 225 of the Philippines customs tariff. Upon the receipt thereof I cabled the governor-general to see them and secure their specific recommendation, and asked for his recommendation. The following has just been received in reply:

"Collector of customs met parties concerned. Recommends paragraph 223, paragraph 225, existing tariff, be amended to read as follows:

"'223. Shoes or gaiters of calfskin, kid, and similar leather, with elastic or buttons or for lacing: A. For men, size No. 5½, or larger, per pair, 30 cents. B. For boys, smaller than size No. 5½, per pair, 20 cents. C. For women, size No. 2½, or larger, per pair, 25 cents. D. For girls, smaller than size No. 2½, per pair, 20 cents. E. For babies, per pair, 5 cents.

"'225. Other boots and shoes, fancy, per pair, 50 cents. A. Other boots and shoes not specially provided for, A, B, C, D, E, same as in paragraph 223.'"

We have repeated in the bill the full provision of paragraph 223 for A, B, C, D, and E in regard to these shoes not specifically provided for.

Now, that is a slight decrease in the duty upon this class of shoes, not enough to affect the revenue to any appreciable extent with the present importation, and enough, perhaps, to increase the sale of shoes in Manila. Of course what we want to do is to provide so that every man, woman, and child in the Philippine Islands shall become accustomed to wear shoes; and a little encouragement in that way is given in this without affecting the revenues of the Philippine government to any considerable extent. The only other amendment is also inserted on account of this letter from the Secretary of War:

I have also received another cablegram from the governor-general, which I understand was brought about by the recommendation of exporters of Philippine products, reading as follows:

"Acting governor province of Moro and collector of customs for the Philippine Islands recommend that paragraph 402, tariff-revision law of 1905, be amended to read as follows: 'Copra, fresh or dried, 100 kilos, 10 cents'—

The original law reads "copra and cocoanuts," including cocoanuts in the export tariff duty of 10 cents per 100 kilos—

"Present tariff discriminates greatly against exportation fresh cocoanuts; export trade practically destroyed in that article. Change suggested would involve very small diminution customs receipts and it is hoped would stimulate exportation fresh cocoanuts."

* * * * * * *

Of course that is a minor amendment, which might be of great importance to the raisers of cocoanuts in the Philippine Islands. It practically does away with very little revenue and may largely increase the trade in cocoanuts. At present it is almost prohibitive. It is an export trade, and as the cocoanuts come to the United States and every other country, why there is no discrimination in it.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. Do I understand that the export tax is reduced or repealed on cocoanuts?

Mr. PAYNE. On fresh cocoanuts, that now would pay 10 cents per hundred kilos.

Mr. CRUMPACKER. What is the purpose?

Mr. PAYNE. In order to increase the trade. They say there is not much trade, hardly any revenue from it, and it is hoped by taking this off it will increase the demand for cocoanuts outside of the islands.

These are all the changes suggested in the bill. I do not know whether any gentleman desires to participate in the general debate or not; if not, I will call for the reading of the bill by paragraphs.

The CHAIRMAN. If no gentleman desires to be heard, the Clerk will report the bill by paragraphs for amendment.

The bill was read by paragraphs.

Mr. PAYNE. I move that the committee rise and report the bill to the House, with the recommendation that it do pass.

The motion was agreed to.

The committee accordingly rose; and the Speaker having resumed the chair, Mr. OLMSTED, Chairman of the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union, reported that that committee had had under consideration the bill H. R. 13104 and had directed him to report the same back to the House with the recommendation that it do pass.

The bill was ordered to be engrossed for a third reading; and being engrossed, it was accordingly read the third time, and passed.

On motion of Mr. PAYNE, a motion to reconsider the vote by which the bill was passed was laid on the table.

Mr. PAYNE. I move that the House do now adjourn.

The motion was agreed to.

Accordingly (at 2 o'clock and 28 minutes p. m.) the House adjourned until Monday next, at 12 o'clock m.

EXECUTIVE COMMUNICATIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XXIV, the following executive communications were taken from the Speaker's table and referred as follows:

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the brig Ruby, Luke Keefe, master—to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a copy of a communication from the Secretary of the Interior submitting an estimate of appropriation for the transportation of pupils at Indian school at Carlisle—to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a copy of the conclusions of fact and law in the French spoliation cases relating to the schooner Active, Patrick Drummond, master—to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Secretary of War, recommending legislation to enable the per diem employees of the War Department to have Labor Day as a holiday—to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

A letter from the Acting Secretary of the Interior, transmitting, with a copy of a letter from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs, a recommendation of an appropriation for the relief of the Kaibab Indians of Utah—to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PUBLIC BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII, bills and resolutions of the following titles were severally reported from committees, delivered to the Clerk, and referred to the several Calendars therein named, as follows:

Mr. POWERS, from the Committee on the Territories, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13854) to provide for filling in the United States quarantine station at Honolulu, Hawaii, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1113); which said bill and report were referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. CAPRON, from the Committee on Military Affairs, to which was referred the House joint resolution (H. J. Res. 92) authorizing the Secretary of War to deliver to the Southern Historical Society certain unidentified battle flags, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1114); which said joint resolution and report were referred to the Committee of the Whole House on the state of the Union.

Mr. RICHARDSON of Alabama, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13548) to authorize the commissioners' court of Baldwin County, Ala., to construct a bridge across Perdido River at Waters Ferry, reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1115); which said bill and report were referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. RYAN, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13567) to authorize the Campbell Lumber Company to construct a bridge across the St. Francis River in Clay County, Ark., at or near the point where the section line between sections 21 and 28, township 19 north, range 9 east, touches said river, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1116); which said bill and report were referred to the House Calendar.

He also, from the same committee, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13568) to authorize the Campbell Lumber Company to construct a bridge across the St. Francis River, in Clay County, Ark., at or near the point where the section line between sections 23 and 26, in township 20 north, range 9 east, touches said river, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1117); which said bill and report were referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. BARTLETT, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 13308) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Arkansas River at Pine Bluff, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1118); which said bill and report were referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas, from the Committee on the District of Columbia, to which was referred the Senate joint resolution (S. R. 23) providing for an extension of time for completing the highway bridge and approaches across the Potomac River at Washington, D. C., reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1119); which said resolution and report were referred to the House Calendar.

Mr. ADAMSON, from the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce, to which was referred the bill of the Senate (S. 2106) to authorize the construction of a bridge across the Arkansas River at or near Van Buren, Ark., reported the same with amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1121); which said bill and report were referred to the House Calendar.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES ON PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 2 of Rule XIII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were severally reported from committees, delivered to the Clerk, and referred to the Committee of the Whole House, as follows:

Mr. CLAYTON, from the Committee on War Claims, to which was referred the bill of the House H. R. 10475, reported in lieu thereof a resolution (H. Res. 265) referring to the Court of Claims the papers in the case of the legal representatives of the estate of Isaac Johnson, deceased, accompanied by a report (No. 1112); which said resolution and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

Mr. BUCKMAN, from the Committee on Indian Affairs, to which was referred the bill of the House (H. R. 12286) granting relief to the estate of James Staley, deceased, reported the same without amendment, accompanied by a report (No. 1120); which said bill and report were referred to the Private Calendar.

PUBLIC BILLS, RESOLUTIONS, AND MEMORIALS.

Under clause 3 of Rule XXII, bills, resolutions, and memorials of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. BABCOCK: A bill (H. R. 14511) amendatory of an act entitled "An act to provide for payment of damages on account of changes of grade due to construction of the Union Station, District of Columbia," approved April 22, 1904—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14512) to amend the provision in an act approved March 3, 1899, imposing a charge for tuition on nonresident pupils in the public schools of the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14513) to prevent the giving of false alarms of fires in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14514) to amend sections 877 and 878 of the Code of Law for the District of Columbia—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14515) making it a misdemeanor in the District of Columbia to abandon or wilfully neglect to provide for the support and maintenance by any person of his wife or of his or her minor children in destitute or necessitous circumstances—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. CHARLES B. LANDIS: A bill (H. R. 14516) to establish a park at Fourteenth street and Columbia road—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14517) to extend School street to Columbia road and connect School street thus extended with Fourteenth street—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. HALE: A bill (H. R. 14518) to provide for the improvement of the Tennessee River and some of its tributaries in Tennessee—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. LOUDENSLAGER: A bill (H. R. 14519) to distribute the business of the Department of the Navy in relation to personnel and materiel—to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

By Mr. OLCOTT: A bill (H. R. 14520) to repeal section 3186 of the Revised Statutes—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ELLERBE: A bill (H. R. 14521) to provide for the erection of a monument to Brig. Gen. Francis Marion—to the Committee on the Library.

By Mr. McCREARY of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 14522) to establish additional aids to navigation in Delaware Bay and River—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. BURTON of Delaware: A bill (H. R. 14523) to provide for the survey and improvement of the Smyrna River, in the State of Delaware—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. WILEY of New Jersey: A bill (H. R. 14524) providing for appointments in the consular service and for filling vacancies in the higher grades—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. FOWLER: A bill (H. R. 14525) to increase the limit of cost of the United States public building at Elizabeth, N. J.—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. MUDD: A bill (H. R. 14526) to provide for the improvement and widening of Branch avenue from Pennsylvania avenue extended to the Bowen road, in the District of Columbia—to the Committee on Appropriations.

By Mr. GRAHAM: A bill (H. R. 14527) for the relief of gaugers, storekeepers, and storekeeper-gaugers—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CLAYTON, from the Committee on War Claims: A resolution (H. Res. 265) referring to the Court of Claims H. R. 10475—to the Private Calendar.

By Mr. SULZER: A resolution (H. Res. 266) asking the Secretary of the Treasury for information concerning the custom-house property in New York City—to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

By Mr. LOUDENSLAGER: A joint resolution (H. J. Res. 98) authorizing the Secretary of War to furnish brass cannon to the General Howell Post, No. 31, Grand Army of the Republic, of Woodbury, N. J.—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

PRIVATE BILLS AND RESOLUTIONS.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, private bills and resolutions of the following titles were introduced and severally referred as follows:

By Mr. ADAMSON: A bill (H. R. 14528) granting an increase of pension to Emilie Wood Reich—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BARCHFELD: A bill (H. R. 14529) granting an increase of pension to Samuel G. McLaughlin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. BELL of Georgia: A bill (H. R. 14530) granting a pension to Louisa E. Satterfield—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. BURKE of Pennsylvania: A bill (H. R. 14531) granting an increase of pension to George W. Stormer—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas: A bill (H. R. 14532) granting a pension to Augusta N. Manson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. CHAPMAN: A bill (H. R. 14533) granting a pension to Sherman Swafford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14534) granting an increase of pension to Jasper Harrelson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. COCKRAN: A bill (H. R. 14535) for the relief of Robert Callan—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. DARRAGH: A bill (H. R. 14536) granting an increase of pension to Donald Wilcox—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GRAHAM: A bill (H. R. 14537) granting an increase of pension to Robert B. Crawford—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GREGG: A bill (H. R. 14538) granting an increase of pension to Eliza L. Norwood—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. GOEBEL: A bill (H. R. 14539) granting an increase of pension to Louis C. Robinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HINSHAW: A bill (H. R. 14540) granting an increase of pension to Martha E. Geesman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HOUSTON: A bill (H. R. 14541) for the relief of C. R. Williams—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14542) for the relief of Abner B. Robertson, heir of Abner B. Robertson, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HUGHES: A bill (H. R. 14543) granting an increase of pension to Charles Barnell, alias Richard North—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14544) granting an increase of pension to William A. Carroll—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. HULL: A bill (H. R. 14545) granting an increase of pension to Ellen L. Nixon—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. JOHNSON: A bill (H. R. 14546) granting an increase of pension to James A. McDavid—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14547) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Chapman—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. JONES of Washington: A bill (H. R. 14548) providing for the issuance of patent in fee to an Indian allottee—to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

By Mr. KNOWLAND: A bill (H. R. 14549) granting an increase of pension to Isabella Van Arman—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LACEY: A bill (H. R. 14550) to remove the charge of desertion against Eugene E. Smith—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. LIVINGSTON: A bill (H. R. 14551) to authorize the Secretary of the Treasury to pay the claim of Mrs. Mattie Stewart Glover and Mrs. Katherine Stewart Ruse, the heirs at law and only legal representatives of the late William Stewart, of Mobile, Ala.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. FLOYD: A bill (H. R. 14552) granting an increase of pension to Henry Davey—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14553) granting an increase of pension to Jesse Liewallen—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14554) granting an increase of pension to John Welch—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LLOYD: A bill (H. R. 14555) for the relief of the Presbyterian Church at Macon, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14556) for the relief of the heirs of James Price, deceased—to the Committee on War Claims.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14557) for the relief of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Macon, Mo.—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. LITTAUER: A bill (H. R. 14558) granting an increase of pension to Martha L. Wood—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. LOUD: A bill (H. R. 14559) granting an increase of pension to Henry West—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McMORRAN: A bill (H. R. 14560) granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Weston—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MURPHY: A bill (H. R. 14561) granting a pension to Valentine Fraker—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PATTERSON of South Carolina: A bill (H. R. 14562) granting an increase of pension to Patrick P. Toale—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. PRINCE: A bill (H. R. 14563) granting an increase of pension to Edwin L. Higgins—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. RAINEY: A bill (H. R. 14564) for the relief of William B. Payne—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. RICHARDSON of Alabama: A bill (H. R. 14565) for the relief of the heirs of Jane McCartney—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. RUCKER: A bill (H. R. 14566) granting an increase of pension to Robert E. McKiernan—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. WM. ALDEN SMITH: A bill (H. R. 14567) granting a pension to Francis M. Gustin—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. SULZER: A bill (H. R. 14568) to correct the military record of Patrick Galligan—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Ohio: A bill (H. R. 14569) granting an increase of pension to Lucian L. Watson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. WELBORN: A bill (H. R. 14570) granting an increase of pension to Sophie Stephan—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14571) granting an increase of pension to John W. McBurney—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14572) granting an increase of pension to Isaac W. Whitsett—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14573) granting a pension to Hattie Armstrong—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, a bill (H. R. 14574) for the relief of Sallie A. Chinn—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. HAUGEN: A bill (H. R. 14575) to pay the owners of the Norwegian steamship Nicaragua for damages—to the Committee on Claims.

PETITIONS, ETC.

Under clause 1 of Rule XXII, the following petitions and papers were laid on the Clerk's desk and referred as follows:

By Mr. ACHESON: Petition for the relief of the General Slocum survivors—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, petition of citizens of Long Branch borough, for the restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. ADAMS of Wisconsin: Petition of the Cambria News, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ALLEN of New Jersey: Petition of the Englewood Press, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the National Business League, relative to the consular service—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. BARCHFELD: Petition of the National Business League, favoring bill S. 1345—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. BARTLETT: Petition of the News and Sun, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BIRDSALL: Petitions of the Signal and the Advertiser, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of citizens of Iowa, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BRADLEY: Petition of the Chenango County Record, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Sullivan County Democrat, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BROOKS of Colorado: Petitions of Charles H. Leckenby, the Ouray Herald, and the Press, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BROWN: Petition of the Phillips Times, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BRUNDIDGE: Petition of the Citizen, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BURGESS: Petitions of Albert A. Ernst, the Mercury, and the Wave and Calhoun County News, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. BURKE of Pennsylvania: Petition of the National Business League, favoring bill S. 1345—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, petitions of the Pittsburg Catholic and the Construction, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of H. E. Fernald, favoring passage of bill H. R. 17098—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. BURKE of South Dakota: Petition of citizens of South Dakota, asking for penny postage—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

By Mr. BURLEIGH: Petition of Local Union No. 142, Painters, Decorators, and Paper Hangers of America, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, papers to accompany bill H. R. 13662, for survey of Sullivan Harbor, Maine—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

By Mr. BUTLER of Tennessee: Petition of the Lebanon Democrat, against the tariff an linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Junior Order United American Mechanics of Little Crab, Tenn., asking restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. CAMPBELL of Kansas: Petition of the Reporter, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Post No. 119, Grand Army of the Republic, of New Albany, in favor of bill H. R. 4495—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of citizens of Washington, D. C., against religious legislation—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. CAMPBELL of Ohio: Petition of the Reporter, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petitions of Joseph Menke and Fort Defiance Grange, No. 267, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the National Business League, for bill S. 1345—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, petition of the Ohio Swine Breeders' Association, of Ottawa, Ohio, relative to trade relations with foreign countries—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CASSEL: Petition of the Inquirer, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CLAYTON: Petition of the Dothan Eagle, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. COCKRAN: Petitions of the American Telephone Journal, the Financial Age, Wilshire's Magazine, and Leonard's Railway News, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. COOPER of Pennsylvania: Petition of William McManus, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the National Board of Trade of Philadelphia, favoring bill S. 529—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of J. T. Wighman, secretary of the Religious Liberty Bureau, against passage of bill H. R. 10510—to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

By Mr. COOPER of Wisconsin: Petitions of the Recorder, the Racine Daily Times, and the Eagle, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. COUSINS: Petitions of the Western Telephone Journal, the Times, the Democrat, the Courier, the Reporter, the Iowa Prohibitionist, and the Iowa Post, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. CROMER: Petition of the Republican, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Lewis Mock—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. DALE: Petitions of the Straz, John R. Farr, secretary of the Press League of Pennsylvania; the Scrantonian; the Evangelical Publishing Company, of Scranton, Pa.; the Up to Date, the Times, the Wachenblatt, the Signal, the Citizen, and the Swoboda, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DALZELL: Petition of the Pennsylvania Dairy Association, for agricultural experiment stations—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of the National Piano Manufacturing Association, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of McKees Rocks Council, Order of Railway Conductors, in favor of the anti-injunction bill—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of sundry citizens of Allegheny County, Pa., favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the National Board of Trade, of Philadelphia, Pa., relative to merchant marine—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of citizens of Pittsburg, Pa., to pass the Penrose and Dalzell bills relative to ex-prisoners of war—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

Also, petition of St. Stephen's Church, of Wilkinsburg, Pa., for an amendment to the Constitution against polygamy—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petitions of the McKeesport Times, the Express, and the Daily News, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DARRAGH: Petitions of the Enterprise and the Herald, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DAVIS of Minnesota: Petitions of the News and the Hutchinson Leader, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DAWSON: Petitions of the Ruralist, Der Korrespondent, the Leader, the News-Tribune, and the Courier, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DIXON of Indiana: Petitions of the Versailles Republican and the Franklin Democrat, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petitions of the Ripley Journal, the Bulletin, the Herald, and the Daily Dewener, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DOVENER: Petitions of the Enterprise and the Herald, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DRISCOLL: Petition of the Journal of Pedagogy, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. DUNWELL: Petition of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 47—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the American Agriculturist, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, against the Esch-Townsend bill—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, petition of the National Board of Trade, approving of bill S. 529—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of the Association for the Protection of Commerce, for an appropriation to widen Coney Island channel—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of many citizens of New York and vicinity, for relief for heirs of victims of General Slocum disaster—to the Committee on Claims.

By Mr. DWIGHT: Petition of the Oxford Times, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petitions of the Free Press, the Gazette, and the Owego Times, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petitions of L. A. Clapp, the Deposit Courier Journal, the Owego Gazette, and the Spencer Needle, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. ESCH: Petition of the La Crosse Tribune, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the National Business League, for bill S. 1345—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. FITZGERALD: Resolution of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, opposing repeal of the present Chinese-exclusion law—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 47—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

Also, resolution of the National Board of Trade, of Philadelphia, approving bill S. 529, for improvement of the merchant marine—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also petition of sundry citizens and corporations of Brooklyn, N. Y., for the metric system—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

By Mr. FLETCHER: Petitions of the Hardware Trade and the Commercial Bulletin and Northwestern Trade, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FORDNEY: Petition of the Courier-Herald, of Saginaw, Mich., against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FOSTER of Indiana: Petition of Walter A. Legeman, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FOSTER of Vermont: Petition of Joseph Auld, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FOWLER: Petition of the New Jersey Patriot, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Protection Lodge, No. 2, Brotherhood of Firemen, of Phillipsburg, N. J., for bills H. R. 239, S. 1657, and H. R. 9328—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the New Jersey Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, against bill H. R. 47—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. FRENCH: Petitions of the World, the Star, and the Advance, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the People's Advocate and the Index, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. FULLER: Petition of the News, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petitions of the Reporter and the Sun Bulletin, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Peoria Humane Society, against amendment to the stock-transportation law—to the Committee on Interstate and Foreign Commerce.

By Mr. GARDNER of New Jersey: Petitions of the Daily Enterprise, the Elmer Times, the A. C. Free Presse, the New Jersey Patriot, the Pleasantville Weekly Press, the Cape May County Gazette, and the Daily Pioneer, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GARRETT: Petition of the Calvin Enterprise, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GILLETT of Massachusetts: Petition of physicians and manufacturers of Springfield, Mass., for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of automobilists of Springfield, Mass., for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GOEBEL: Paper to accompany bill for relief of Louis C. Robinson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. GOLDFOGLE: Petition of the Maritime Association of New York, to remove discrimination against American sailing vessels in the coasting trade—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

Also, petition of Charles Dersch and others, for relief of General Slocum survivors—to the Committee on Claims.

Also, petition favoring passage of bill to create a post-graduate university at Washington, D. C.—to the Committee on Education.

By Mr. GOULDEN: Petition of the Daily Banker and Stockholder, of New York City, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. GRAHAM: Petition of the National Business League, favoring bill S. 1345—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, petition of the Colorado School of Mines, relative to assistance by the Government of State mining schools—to the Committee on Mines and Mining.

By Mr. GRANGER: Petition of Rev. L. W. Hensen, for prohibition of the liquor traffic in the Indian Territory and Oklahoma as States—to the Committee on the Territories.

Also, petition of the Newport (R. I.) Medical Society, for reorganizing the Medical Department of the Army—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. GRONNA: Petition of the Express, of Buffalo, N. Y., against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HAUGEN: Petitions of the Lansing Mirror, the West Union Union, the Chester Sun and Herald, and the Daily Press, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HAYES: Petitions of the Spokesman, the Herald, the Collins Commercial, the Ledger, the Magee Courier, the Free Press, the Greene County Herald, and the Waynesboro News-Beacon, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HEARST: Petitions of the Treasury Magazine, the Zunkunft, the Insurance Index, the Fruit and Produce News, and the Church Electric, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HENRY of Connecticut: Petition of Buckingham Council, No. 16, Order United American Mechanics, favoring restriction of immigration—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

Also, petition of the Trinity Church Quarterly Conference, against liquor selling in any Government building—to the Committee on Alcoholic Liquor Traffic.

By Mr. HEPBURN: Petition of the New Times, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HILL of Connecticut: Petition of citizens of Bridgeport, Conn., for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HILL of Mississippi: Petitions of the Herald and the Dixie Press, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HINSHAW: Petitions of the Enterprise Printing Company, the Champion, and the Register, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, resolution of the Nebraska Swine Breeders' Association, in favor of bill H. R. 345—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of J. B. Nerud, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HITT: Petition of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, for a deep waterway from Chicago to the Gulf of Mexico—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petitions of the Independent, the Gospel Messenger, the Free Press, the Mount Morris Index, the Elizabeth News, the Stockton News, the Sentinel, the Journal, the Ogle County Reporter, the Record, the Tornado, the Daily Democrat, the Gazette, the News, the Ashton Gazette, and the Spike, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the National Business League, for bill S. 1345—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Also, petition of the Chicago Federation of Labor, for bill H. R. 12472—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. HOLLIDAY: Petition of the Banner, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HOWELL of New Jersey: Petition of the Weekly Register, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HUBBARD: Petition of the Pilot Tribune, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. HUNT: Petition of the National Business League, for bill S. 1345—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. JOHNSON: Papers to accompany bill for relief of Thomas Chapman, of Glenn Spring, S. C.—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, papers to accompany bill for relief of James A. McDavid—to the Committee on Pensions.

Also, paper to accompany bill for relief of Thomas Chapman—to the Committee on Pensions.

By Mr. KAHN: Petition of the Rescuer, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. KEIFER: Petition of Bradford Grange, No. 877, of London, Ohio, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. KELIHER: Resolution of the New England Ophthalmological Society, in favor of repeal of the tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. KENNEDY: Petition of the Gazette, of Bellevue, Nebr., against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. KETCHAM: Petition of Rev. George D. Merry, against bill H. R. 7043—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of the Dutchess and Columbia Patrons Fire Relief Association, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. KLINE: Petition of the Herald, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. KNAPP: Petition of the I. O. O. F. Lodge Record, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. LACEY: Papers to accompany bill for the removal of the charge of desertion against Eugene E. Smith—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of the Lynnville Star, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. LAWRENCE: Petition of the Westfield Times, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. LESTER: Petitions of the Gazette, the Bryan Enterprise, and the Germania Publishing Company, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. LINDSAY: Petition of citizens of Brooklyn, in support of the bill for national forest reserves—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of Emil J. Dinger, for a national forest reservation in the White Mountains—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of the National Business League, favoring reform in the consular service—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. LITTLE: Petition of A. T. Henry and Hayes Brothers, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. LLOYD: Petition of T. M. Day, of La Belle, Mo., for election of United States Senators by direct vote—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, papers to accompany bill for the relief of Jacob N. Demorey—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. LOUD: Papers to accompany bill for relief of Henry West—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. McCALL: Petitions of the Winchester Star, Zion's Herald, the Medford Leader, and the Woman's Journal, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Congregationalist, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. McKINLEY of Illinois: Petitions of the Independent, Williams & Bales, the Rantoul News, Mittler & Bennett, the Journal, the News, the Echo, the Atwood Herald, and the Mattoon Star, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. McKINNEY: Petitions of the Augusta Eagle and the Beandinsville Star-Gazette, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petitions of the Eagle and the Star-Gazette, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. McMORRAN: Petition of the Review, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petitions of the Reporter, the Brown City Banner, the Leader and Press, and the Sentinel, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MAHON: Petition of Lieutenant G. E. Hackenberg Camp, No. 76, for amendment to bill H. R. 8131—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. MANN: Petitions of the School Science and Mathematics, the Live Stock Journal, the Inland Architect, and the Trade Periodical Company, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MARSHALL: Petition of the Oakes (N. Dak.) Times against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Herald against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petitions of the Steele County Tribune, the Rolette County Herald, and the North Dakota State Journal, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MAYNARD: Petition of the Suffolk Herald, of Suffolk, Va., against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the News and Advertiser, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MILLER: Petition of Morton Post, No. 329, Grand Army of the Republic, of Kansas, for passage of bill H. R. 4495—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. MINOR: Petition of the Door County Democrat, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. MORRELL: Petitions of the Ecclesiastical Review and the Northeast Philadelphia Banner, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. NEEDHAM: Petitions of the Dos Palos Star, the San Lucas Herald, and the Kingsburg Recorder, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petitions of the Redlands Board of Trade, for control of Owens River watershed, in Inyo County—to the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands.

Also, petition of the Shipowners' Association of the Pacific Coast, against Government transportation of troops—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Also, petition of the Redlands Board of Trade, relative to irrigation in California—to the Committee on Irrigation of Arid Lands.

By Mr. NEVIN: Petitions of the Herald, the Daily Signal, the Hamilton Evening Democrat, the Democrat, and the Daily Republican News, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Mr. NORRIS: Petition of the Clarion, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Herald, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. OLMSTED: Petition of the Advocate and Veidick and the Pulpit and Preachers' Helper, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Fort Steadman Camp, No. 52, Sons of Veterans, favoring amending bill H. R. 8131—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. PAYNE: Petition of C. B. Pickering and others, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. PERKINS: Petitions of the Labor Journal and C. H. Jones, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. POLLARD: Petition of the Nebraska Farm Journal, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. POU: Petition of the Graphic, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. PRINCE: Petition of the Enterprise Herald, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of W. H. McClure, E. B. Garland, and R. W. Pittman and others, opposing repeal of the anticanteen law—to the Committee on Military Affairs.

By Mr. PUJO: Petition of the Illinois Manufacturers' Association, relative to waterway between the Great Lakes and the Gulf of Mexico—to the Committee on Railways and Canals.

Also, petition of the National Business League, favoring bill S. 1345—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. RAINEY: Petition of the Enterprise and the Weekly Post, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Chicago Federation of Labor, favoring bill H. R. 12472—to the Committee on the Merchant Marine and Fisheries.

By Mr. REYNOLDS: Petition of the Democrat-Standard and the Daily Democrat, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. RICHARDSON of Alabama: Paper to accompany bill for relief of heirs of Jane McCartney—to the Committee on War Claims.

By Mr. ROBINSON of Arkansas: Petitions of the Daily News, the Deunas, the Leader, and the Morning Courier, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Courier, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways nad Menas.

Also, petitions of the Herald, the Press-Eagle, and the Recounter, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. RUPPERT: Petitions of the New Yorske Listy and the Columbia Law Review, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. RYAN: Petition of New York Produce Exchange and the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers of New York, against repeal of the Chinese-exclusion law—to the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization.

By Mr. SCHNEEBELI: Petition of Otto Graffon, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SHACKLEFORD: Petitions of G. P. Garland, Mitchell & Mitchell, and A. C. Bledsoe, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SLAYDEN: Petition of the Mullin Enterprise, of Mullin, Tex., against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SMALL: Petition of the Freewill Baptist, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of W. R. Jacobson, the Washington Gazette, and the Daily Messenger, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SAMUEL W. SMITH: Petition of the Gleaner, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SMITH of Illinois: Petition of the Republican Era, of Murphysboro, Ill., against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SMITH of Iowa: Petitions of the Record, A. H. Gusell & Son, and the Mento Review, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SMITH of Texas: Petition of the Poncho Herald, of Point Rock, Tex., against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SNAPP: Petitions of the Republican, the Daily News, and the Chronicle, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SOUTHARD: Petitions of the Train Dispatchers' Bulletin, the Democratic Exposition, and the Ottawa County Herald, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SPERRY: Petition of citizens of New Haven, Conn., favoring the adoption of the metric system—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

Also, petition of citizens of East Haddam, Conn., for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of citizens of New Haven, favoring establishment of forest reserves—to the Committee on Agriculture.

Also, petition of citizens of New Haven, protesting against conditions in the Kongo Free State—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. STEENERSON: Petition of the Fertile Journal, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. STERLING: Petition of the Times, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the News, of Minonk, Ill., against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Pontiac Sentinel, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. SULLIVAN of Massachusetts: Petition of the Nautilus and the Herald, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the Massachusetts State Board of Trade, in favor of shore approach to breakwater at Point Judith—to the Committee on Rivers and Harbors.

Also, petition of the American Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, in opposition to bill H. R. 221—to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Also, petition of the New England Opthalmological Society, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. TAYLOR of Ohio: Petition of Ohio Waisenfreund, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. TOWNSEND: Petitions of the Daily Times and the Record, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Mary E. Carpenter, of Adrian, Mich., favoring bill H. R. 9022—to the Committee on the Post-Office and Post-Roads.

Also, petition of Charles E. Greening, of Monroe, Mich., for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. VAN WINKLE: Petition of residents of Jersey City, N. J., favoring the metric system—to the Committee on Coinage, Weights, and Measures.

Also, papers to accompany bill H. R. 14498, for relief of Eliza Davidson—to the Committee on Invalid Pensions.

By Mr. VOLSTEAD: Petitions of the Herald, the Herald-Star, the Swift Company Monitor, the News, the Commercial, the Clara City Herald, the Journal, the Independent Press, the Record, the Gopher Press, the Journal, the Banner, and the Milan Standard, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. VREELAND: Petition of the Fountain Index, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WALLACE: Petition of the Hope Gazette, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WEBBER: Petitions of the Butler Times and the Experiment, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WEEKS: Petitions of the National Sportsman and the Brookline Press, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of Local Union No. 709, of Brookline, Mass., for repeal of revenue tax an denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

Also, petition of the National Business League, of Chicago, Ill., for passage of the Lodge bill (S. 1345)—to the Committee on Foreign Affairs.

By Mr. WEEMS: Petition of Bloomingdale Grange, for repeal of revenue tax on denaturized alcohol—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WEISSE: Petition of the Neosho Standard, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. WILEY of Alabama: Petition of the Advertizer, of Montgomery, Ala., against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

By Mr. YOUNG: Petitions of the Pioneer Tribune and the Courier-Record, against the tariff on linotype machines—to the Committee on Ways and Means.

SENATE.

MONDAY, February 12, 1906.

Prayer by the Chaplain, Rev. EDWARD E. HALE.

The Journal of the proceedings of Friday last was read and approved.

CARLISLE INDIAN SCHOOL.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a letter from the Secretary of the Interior submitting an estimate of appropriation for inclusion in the urgent deficiency appropriation bill for the support of the Indian school at Carlisle, Pa., for transportation of pupils, etc., for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, $3,500; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

NAVAL TRAINING STATION, RHODE ISLAND.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a letter from the Secretary of the Navy submitting an estimate of appropriation for inclusion in the urgent deficiency appropriation bill, $100,000, for the erection of necessary detention buildings, shops, and appurtenances to replace those destroyed or damaged by fire at the Naval Training Station, Rhode Island; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

CARS IN RAILWAY MAIL SERVICE.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Postmaster-General, transmitting, in response to a resolution of the 5th instant, certain information with respect to accidents involving loss of life or injury to postal clerks, etc.; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads, and ordered to be printed.

DISPOSITION OF USELESS PAPERS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Postmaster-General, transmitting a schedule of papers and documents not needed in the transaction of public business in the Post-Office Department, and which have no permanent value or historical interest; which was referred to the Select Committee on Disposition of Useless Papers in the Executive Departments, and ordered to be printed.

INVESTIGATIONS AT TESTING PLANTS AT ST. LOUIS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting, in response to a resolution of the 25th ultimo, a letter from the Director of the Geological Survey, embodying a summary of the results obtained in the investigations under the Geological Survey of fuels and structural materials at the testing plants at St. Louis, Mo., and requesting that an appropriation of $350,000 be made for that purpose; which, with the accompanying papers, was referred to the Committee on the Geological Survey, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. HEMENWAY. Mr. President, in view of the unusual demand for the printing of this document, I ask how many copies will be printed under the rule?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. There are 1,682 copies printed.

Mr. HEMENWAY. I ask that 4,000 additional copies be printed for the use of the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The communication will be referred to the Committee on the Geological Survey and printed. The Senator from Indiana requests that 4,000 additional copies be printed for the use of the Senate.

Mr. HANSBROUGH. I suggest to the Senator from Indiana that he increase the number to 5,000 copies. There is going to be a very large demand for the document.

Mr. HEMENWAY. Very well, I will modify my request and ask that 5,000 additional copies be printed.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Indiana requests that 5,000 additional copies be printed for the use of the Senate. Is there objection?

There being no objection, the order was agreed to, as follows:

Ordered, That 5,000 additional copies of the letter of the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a letter from the Director of the Geological Survey, embodying a summary of the results obtained in the investigations under the Geological Survey of fuels and structural materials at the testing plants at St. Louis, Mo., be printed for the use of the Senate.

KAIBAB INDIANS IN UTAH.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Interior, transmitting a letter from the Commissioner of Indian Affairs calling attention to representations made concerning the condition of the Kaibab Indians in Utah, and requesting that an appropriation of $10,000 be included in the Indian appropriation bill for that purpose; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

INTERNATIONAL PRISON COMMISSION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of State, transmitting a letter from Samuel J. Barrows, commissioner for the United States on the International Prison Commission, requesting that an index to the reports of the National Prison Association for the years 1870, 1873, 1874, and from 1883 to 1904 be published by Congress as one of the reports for the International Prison Commission; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Printing, and ordered to be printed.

ESTIMATE OF APPROPRIATION.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the Secretary of the Treasury, transmitting a letter from the Chief of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing submitting an estimate of additional appropriations for plate printing for the current fiscal year to meet the increase in the daily amount of unfinished notes, silver and gold certificates required by the Treasurer of the United States, and requesting that an appropriation of $23,332.43 be inserted in the urgent deficiency appropriation bill for this purpose; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Appropriations, and ordered to be printed.

FRENCH SPOLIATION CLAIM.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting the conclusions of fact and of law filed under the act of January 20, 1885, in the French spoliation claims set out in the findings by the court relative to the vessel brig Jane, Robert Knox, master; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

FINDINGS OF COURT OF CLAIMS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of Mariane T. Lemelle, administratrix of the estate of Alexander Lemelle, deceased, v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of Barthelemy Lemelle, administrator of the estate of Euphemie Lemelle, deceased, v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

He also laid before the Senate a communication from the assistant clerk of the Court of Claims, transmitting a certified copy of the findings of fact filed by the court in the cause of The Trustees of the Mount Olivet Methodist Protestant Church, of Alexandria, Va., v. The United States; which, with the accompanying paper, was referred to the Committee on Claims, and ordered to be printed.

EAST WASHINGTON HEIGHTS TRACTION COMPANY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the report of the East Washington Heights Traction Railroad Company for the four months (September, October, November, and December) operated during the year 1905; which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia, and ordered to be printed.

WASHINGTON, ALEXANDRIA AND MOUNT VERNON RAILWAY.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the annual report of the Washington, Alexandria and Mount Vernon Railway Company for the fiscal year ended December 31, 1905; which was referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia, and ordered to be printed.

MESSAGE FROM THE HOUSE.

A message from the House of Representatives, by Mr. W. J. BROWNING, its Chief Clerk, announced that the House had passed the following bills, each with an amendment, in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

S. 943. An act granting an increase of pension to Oscar R. Arnold; and

S. 1098. An act granting an increase of pension to William J. Grow.

The message also announced that the House had disagreed to the amendments of the Senate to the bill (H. R. 12320) making appropriations to supply urgent deficiencies in the appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, and for prior years, and for other purposes, asks a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon, and had appointed Mr. LITTAUER, Mr. TAWNEY, and Mr. LIVINGSTON managers at the conference on the part of the House.

The message further announced that the House had passed the following bills; in which it requested the concurrence of the Senate:

H. R. 524. An act granting an increase of pension to Sylvenus A. Fay;

H. R. 628. An act granting a pension to David L. Finch;

H. R. 648. An act granting a pension to Charles Falbisaner;

H. R. 650. An act granting an increase of pension to Felix G. Stidger;

H. R. 1032. An act granting an increase of pension to Seth Phillips;

H. R. 1043. An act granting an increase of pension to Horace Hounsom;

H. R. 1160. An act granting an increase of pension to Eliza Swords;

H. R. 1200. An act granting an increase of pension to John G. Parker;

H. R. 1287. An act granting an increase of pension to John D. Moore;

H. R. 1359. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry M. Robinson;

H. R. 1483. An act granting an increase of pension to Josephine E. Quentin;

H. R. 1484. An act granting an increase of pension to John L. Lovell;

H. R. 1485. An act granting an increase of pension to Susan J. Williams;

H. R. 1569. An act granting a pension to Elizabeth Murray;

H. R. 1585. An act granting an increase of pension to George N. Dutcher;

H. R. 1658. An act granting an increase of pension to George M. Drake;

H. R. 1859. An act granting an increase of pension to George T. B. Carr;

H. R. 1888. An act granting an increase of pension to William T. Scandlyn;

H. R. 1889. An act granting an increase of pension to William M. Shultz;

H. R. 1902. An act granting an increase of pension to Gilbert Ford;

H. R. 1909. An act granting an increase of pension to Alexander Miller;

H. R. 1912. An act granting a pension to Julia A. Powell;

H. R. 1975. An act granting an increase of pension to William House;

H. R. 1978. An act granting an increase of pension to Harry C. Thorne;

H. R. 1979. An act granting an increase of pension to Amanda L. Hill;

H. R. 2048. An act granting an increase of pension to Joseph J. Cooper;

H. R. 2054. An act granting an increase of pension to Ralph A. Adams;

H. R. 2059. An act granting an increase of pension to Jerome Washburn;

H. R. 2093. An act granting a pension to Sarah A. Pitt;

H. R. 2099. An act granting a pension to Maurice O'Flanigan;

H. R. 2100. An act granting an increase of pension to Hiram Wilde;

H. R. 2108. An act granting a pension to Mattie Settlemire;

H. R. 2114. An act granting an increase of pension to Benjamin F. Bibb;

H. R. 2116. An act granting an increase of pension to Daniel Hayes;

H. R. 2156. An act granting an increase of pension to Rachel E. Ware;

H. R. 2174. An act granting an increase of pension to Nathaniel Buchanan;

H. R. 2204. An act granting an increase of pension to Dexter E. W. Stone;

H. R. 2306. An act granting an increase of pension to James W. Stell;

H. R. 2307. An act granting an increase of pension to Joseph Jones Martin;

H. R. 2478. An act granting an increase of pension to Asa M. Foote;

H. R. 2595. An act granting an increase of pension to Peter D. Sutton;

H. R. 2614. An act granting a pension to General M. Brown;

H. R. 2703. An act granting an increase of pension to Stephen Weeks;

H. R. 2709. An act granting an increase of pension to Julius D. Rogers;

H. R. 2762. An act granting an increase of pension to William Chandler;

H. R. 2823. An act granting an increase of pension to Orton D. Ford;

H. R. 2849. An act granting an increase of pension to Jesse Harrison;

H. R. 2897. An act granting an increase of pension to Rufus G. Childress;

H. R. 2949. An act granting an increase of pension to George W. Adamson;

H. R. 2954. An act granting an increase of pension to Chauncey P. Dean;

H. R. 3193. An act granting an increase of pension to James R. Todd;

H. R. 3220. An act granting an increase of pension to Sarah Johnson;

H. R. 3230. An act granting an increase of pension to James H. Beulen;

H. R. 3250. An act granting a pension to Harrison White;

H. R. 3315. An act granting an increase of pension to Lewis L. Dougherty;

H. R. 3342. An act granting an increase of pension to Albin L. Ingram;

H. R. 3403. An act granting an increase of pension to George A. Baker;

H. R. 3425. An act granting an increase of pension to Warren A. Blye;
H. R. 3483. An act granting an increase of pension to Lemuel P. Williams;
H. R. 3500. An act granting an increase of pension to William M. Martin;
H. R. 3502. An act granting a pension to Morris Osborn;
H. R. 3544. An act granting an increase of pension to Josiah M. Grier;
H. R. 3552. An act granting an increase of pension to David F. McDonald;
H. R. 3570. An act granting an increase of pension to Susan Whorton;
H. R. 3571. An act granting an increase of pension to Eber Watson;
H. R. 3679. An act granting an increase of pension to Albert M. Hunter;
H. R. 3966. An act granting an increase of pension to Samuel Jester;
H. R. 3973. An act granting an increase of pension to Isaac P. Knight;
H. R. 3983. An act granting a pension to Blanche Douglass;
H. R. 4179. An act granting an increase of pension to Owen Donohoe;
H. R. 4192. An act granting an increase of pension to John C. Cavanaugh, alias John Carpenter;
H. R. 4202. An act granting an increase of pension to John C. Umstead;
H. R. 4206. An act granting an increase of pension to Isaac Henry Ober;
H. R. 4221. An act granting an increase of pension to William Foat;
H. R. 4246. An act granting an increase of pension to George D. Street;
H. R. 4258. An act granting a pension to Georgia A. Richardson.
H. R. 4403. An act granting a pension to John H. Pepper;
H. R. 4685. An act granting an increase of pension to Jacob Rich;
H. R. 4704. An act granting a pension to Alice Rourk;
H. R. 4741. An act granting an increase of pension to Stephen Dickerson;
H. R. 4751. An act granting an increase of pension to Joseph J. Sparling;
H. R. 4764. An act granting an increase of pension to Ahijah Brown;
H. R. 4878. An act granting an increase of pension to Isaac H. Witherwax;
H. R. 4886. An act granting an increase of pension to Marquis De Lafayette Burket;
H. R. 4957. An act granting an increase of pension to Elijah J. Snodgrass;
H. R. 4962. An act granting an increase of pension to William J. Sturgis;
H. R. 5028. An act granting an increase of pension to Samuel P. Carll;
H. R. 5163. An act granting an increase of pension to William V. Mallorie;
H. R. 5186. An act granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Fulton;
H. R. 5212. An act granting an increase of pension to Giles Q. Slocum;
H. R. 5605. An act granting an increase of pension to James S. Pelley;
H. R. 5640. An act granting an increase of pension to Abraham Mathews;
H. R. 5647. An act granting an increase of pension to Peter Wetterich;
H. R. 5656. An act granting an increase of pension to Darius H. Randall;
H. R. 5658. An act granting an increase of pension to Joseph Nichols;
H. R. 5692. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry G. Gardner;
H. R. 5708. An act granting an increase of pension to Thomas T. Fallon;
H. R. 5711. An act granting a pension to Richard H. Kelly;
H. R. 5753. An act granting an increase of pension to Sallie H. Murphy;
H. R. 5830. An act granting an increase of pension to Sylvenus Hardy;
H. R. 5855. An act granting an increase of pension to Francis L. Brown;
H. R. 5909. An act granting an increase of pension to William H. Bynon;
H. R. 5938. An act granting an increase of pension to Edward J. McClaskey;
H. R. 6063. An act granting an increase of pension to Maria Dyer;
H. R. 6065. An act granting an increase of pension to Charles E. Crowe;
H. R. 6085. An act granting an increase of pension to Jacob C. Rardin;
H. R. 6098. An act granting an increase of pension to Sadie A. Walker;
H. R. 6109. An act granting an increase of pension to William H. Ackert;
H. R. 6115. An act granting an increase of pension to Edward Sarles;
H. R. 6117. An act granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Dill;
H. R. 6133. An act granting an increase of pension to Mary Bagley;
H. R. 6137. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry S. Stowell;
H. R. 6178. An act granting an increase of pension to Carl W. Block;
H. R. 6180. An act granting an increase of pension to Amherst F. Graves;
H. R. 6226. An act granting an increase of pension to George Bruner;
H. R. 6340. An act granting an increase of pension to William D. Hatch;
H. R. 6385. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry Hastings;
H. R. 6398. An act granting an increase of pension to George W. Henry;
H. R. 6399. An act granting an increase of pension to David Hanna;
H. R. 6400. An act granting a pension to Harry W. Omo;
H. R. 6408. An act granting an increase of pension to Isaiah Queman;
H. R. 6489. An act granting a pension to Mary E. Scott;
H. R. 6494. An act granting an increase of pension to William Hughes;
H. R. 6507. An act granting an increase of pension to James M. Busby;
H. R. 6565. An act granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Hatter;
H. R. 6813. An act granting an increase of pension to Emsley Kinsauls;
H. R. 6873. An act granting an increase of pension to Charles A. Phillips;
H. R. 6913. An act granting an increase of pension to John Gibbons;
H. R. 7139. An act legalizing the removal of the county seat of Washita County, Okla.;
H. R. 7213. An act granting an increase of pension to Loucette E. Glavis;
H. R. 7222. An act granting an increase of pension to Levi J. Walton;
H. R. 7238. An act granting an increase of pension to William J. Campbell;
H. R. 7241. An act granting an increase of pension to Mary J. Allhands;
H. R. 7478. An act granting a pension to George W. Jackson;
H. R. 7525. An act granting an increase of pension to William K. Spencer;
H. R. 7546. An act granting a pension to Edna Buchanan;
H. R. 7622. An act granting an increase of pension to Hermann Lieb;
H. R. 7628. An act granting an increase of pension to Lorenzo D. Stoker;
H. R. 7649. An act granting an increase of pension to William Leipnitz;
H. R. 7711. An act granting an increase of pension to Samuel Dunnan;
H. R. 7721. An act granting an increase of pension to Daniel V. Lowary;
H. R. 7750. An act granting an increase of pension to Anton Riedmuller;
H. R. 7770. An act granting an increase of pension to Burgess Cole;
H. R. 7948. An act granting an increase of pension to James W. Reynolds, alias William Reynolds;
H. R. 7955. An act granting an increase of pension to Newton E. Terrill;
H. R. 7982. An act granting an increase of pension to Francis M. Kellogg;

H. R. 8048. An act granting an increase of pension to William F. Bottoms;
H. R. 8061. An act granting an increase of pension to Heart Echard;
H. R. 8156. An act granting an increase of pension to Loren H. Howard;
H. R. 8169. An act granting an increase of pension to Eliza C. Jones;
H. R. 8202. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry Guy;
H. R. 8213. An act granting an increase of pension to William Monteith;
H. R. 8216. An act granting an increase of pension to Philipp Cline, alias Francis Klein;
H. R. 8233. An act granting an increase of pension to Charles A. Power;
H. R. 8251. An act granting an increase of pension to Abel S. Thompson;
H. R. 8302. An act granting an increase of pension to Maurice Hayes;
H. R. 8317. An act granting an increase of pension to Eliza Thompson;
H. R. 8376. An act granting an increase of pension to Mary J. McConnell;
H. R. 8406. An act granting an increase of pension to Susan W. Selfridge;
H. R. 8493. An act granting an increase of pension to Sallie F. Sheffield;
H. R. 8494. An act granting an increase of pension to David A. Jones;
H. R. 8520. An act granting an increase of pension to Alfred F. White;
H. R. 8541. An act granting an increase of pension to Edward H. Pinney;
H. R. 8556. An act granting an increase of pension to Ethan Blodgett;
H. R. 8562. An act granting an increase of pension to William Ostermann;
H. R. 8663. An act granting an increase of pension to Frederick A. Amende;
H. R. 8664. An act granting an increase of pension to Henry Wascher;
H. R. 8714. An act granting an increase of pension to George Gibson;
H. R. 8918. An act granting an increase of pension to Andrew J. Hull, alias Spencer J. Hull;
H. R. 8939. An act granting an increase of pension to Sarah A. Chauncey;
H. R. 8949. An act granting an increase of pension to Albert Richard Clark;
H. R. 9052. An act granting an increase of pension to Jonathan Wood;
H. R. 9059. An act granting an increase of pension to Ebenezer S. Edgerton;
H. R. 9065. An act granting an increase of pension to George G. Brail;
H. R. 9077. An act granting an increase of pension to Samuel Engle;
H. R. 9122. An act granting an increase of pension to Philander Bennett;
H. R. 9146. An act granting an increase of pension to Francis A. Jones;
H. R. 9209. An act granting an increase of pension to Stephen D. Cohen;
H. R. 9234. An act granting an increase of pension to William A. McDonald;
H. R. 9237. An act granting an increase of pension to Jacob Dachrodt;
H. R. 9279. An act granting an increase of pension to Patrick Curley;
H. R. 9351. An act granting an increase of pension to Marie G. Bonham;
H. R. 9405. An act granting an increase of pension to John Burns;
H. R. 9530. An act granting a pension to Catherine B. Casey;
H. R. 9567. An act granting an increase of pension to Henderson Rose;
H. R. 9593. An act granting a pension to Charles M. Priddy;
H. R. 9651. An act granting an increase of pension to Charles S. Word;
H. R. 9795. An act granting an increase of pension to Emory Edward Patch;
H. R. 9851. An act granting an increase of pension to William G. Richardson;
H. R. 9906. An act granting an increase of pension to Hinman Rhodes;
H. R. 9929. An act granting an increase of pension to Orlean De Witt;
H. R. 10175. An act granting an increase of pension to Matthew A. Knight;
H. R. 10216. An act granting an increase of pension to Hugh Longstaff;
H. R. 10256. An act granting an increase of pension to Daniel D. Diehl;
H. R. 10269. An act granting an increase of pension to Andrew Ricketts;
H. R. 10297. An act granting an increase of pension to Nicholas Hercherberger;
H. R. 10307. An act granting an increase of pension to Milton A. Saeger;
H. R. 10437. An act granting an increase of pension to Casper Yost;
H. R. 10476. An act granting a pension to Charles T. Hesler;
H. R. 10477. An act granting an increase of pension to James B. Babcock;
H. R. 10483. An act granting a pension to James Gallt;
H. R. 10564. An act granting an increase of pension to Levi N. Bodley;
H. R. 10632. An act granting an increase of pension to Samuel Preston;
H. R. 10637. An act granting an increase of pension to Levi I. Shipman;
H. R. 10677. An act granting a pension to Maria Elizabeth Posey;
H. R. 10720. An act granting an increase of pension to Joseph F. Caldwell;
H. R. 10741. An act granting an increase of pension to Thomas Clark;
H. R. 10770. An act granting a pension to Helen P. Martin;
H. R. 10775. An act granting a pension to Ellen S. Cushman;
H. R. 10789. An act granting a pension to David Wilborn;
H. R. 10807. An act granting an increase of pension to Jacob J. Long;
H. R. 10883. An act granting an increase of pension to William Lee;
H. R. 10886. An act granting an increase of pension to Martha S. Campbell;
H. R. 10914. An act granting an increase of pension to John Hamilton;
H. R. 10925. An act granting an increase of pension to Isaac C. Dennis;
H. R. 10954. An act granting an increase of pension to Letitia D. Watkins;
H. R. 10967. An act granting a pension to George Larson;
H. R. 10969. An act granting an increase of pension to Calaway G. Tucker;
H. R. 11000. An act granting an increase of pension to Martha J. Wilson;
H. R. 11051. An act granting a pension to Henry T. McDowell;
H. R. 11061. An act granting an increase of pension to Reanna Pile;
H. R. 11070. An act granting an increase of pension to Fitch Spoor;
H. R. 11101. An act granting an increase of pension to Andrew J. Baker;
H. R. 11105. An act granting an increase of pension to Michael Comer;
H. R. 11122. An act granting an increase of pension to John Hopper;
H. R. 11132. An act granting an increase of pension to Horace E. Lydy;
H. R. 11145. An act granting an increase of pension to Melvin J. Lee;
H. R. 11205. An act granting an increase of pension to Jeremiah Spice;
H. R. 11297. An act granting a pension to David McGinnis;
H. R. 11320. An act granting an increase of pension to Adam Cook;
H. R. 11343. An act granting an increase of pension to Enoch Bolen;
H. R. 11353. An act granting an increase of pension to Isaac M. Woodworth;
H. R. 11416. An act granting an increase of pension to Lizzie Belk;
H. R. 11561. An act granting an increase of pension to Egbert P. Shetter;
H. R. 11654. An act granting a pension to Emma A. Smith;
H. R. 11657. An act granting a pension to Madison M. Burnett;
H. R. 11658. An act granting an increase of pension to Gould E. Utter;

H. R. 11672. An act granting an increase of pension to Franklin J. Fellows;
H. R. 11724. An act granting an increase of pension to John A. Conley;
H. R. 11745. An act granting an increase of pension to James D. Billingsley;
H. R. 11748. An act granting an increase of pension to James Wilson;
H. R. 11777. An act granting an increase of pension to Manson B. Scott;
H. R. 11808. An act granting an increase of pension to Webster Thomas;
H. R. 11842. An act granting an increase of pension to James M. Noble;
H. R. 11846. An act granting a pension to Clara M. Thompson;
H. R. 11908. An act granting an increase of pension to Stephen V. Sturtevant;
H. R. 11916. An act granting an increase of pension to Edward L. Kimball;
H. R. 12008. An act granting an increase of pension to James D. Blanding;
H. R. 12016. An act granting an increase of pension to James Cassaday;
H. R. 12027. An act granting an increase of pension to Nathan C. Bradley;
H. R. 12038. An act granting an increase of pension to Charles H. Burleigh;
H. R. 12102. An act granting an increase of pension to Wilhelmina Healey;
H. R. 12156. An act granting an increase of pension to Edwin Billing;
H. R. 12285. An act granting a pension to Mary C. Kirkland;
H. R. 12289. An act granting an increase of pension to Joseph C. Grissom;
H. R. 12290. An act granting an increase of pension to David L. Kretsinger;
H. R. 12297. An act granting a pension to Estelle Kuhn;
H. R. 12384. An act granting an increase of pension to Andrew Dunning;
H. R. 12388. An act granting an increase of pension to Harvey T. Dunn;
H. R. 12391. An act granting an increase of pension to J. Frederick Edgell;
H. R. 12506. An act granting an increase of pension to John T. Howell;
H. R. 12507. An act granting an increase of pension to George W. Collier;
H. R. 12510. An act granting an increase of pension to John McWhorter;
H. R. 12516. An act granting a pension to James S. Randall;
H. R. 12583. An act granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth L. H. Labatt;
H. R. 12640. An act granting an increase of pension to Augustus Walker;
H. R. 12713. An act granting an increase of pension to Augustus F. Bradbury;
H. R. 12720. An act granting a pension to Sarah Duffield;
H. R. 12754. An act granting an increase of pension to William B. Eversole;
H. R. 12837. An act granting an increase of pension to Martha Miller;
H. R. 12839. An act granting an increase of pension to Kathryn G. Hayt;
H. R. 12903. An act granting an increase of pension to Daniel T. Ferrier;
H. R. 12937. An act granting an increase of pension to James Hoover;
H. R. 12948. An act granting an increase of pension to Frederick Bierley;
H. R. 12955. An act granting a pension to Lyman Critchfield, jr;
H. R. 13010. An act granting an increase of pension to Alice B. Hartshorne;
H. R. 13037. An act granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth Jane Kearney;
H. R. 13050. An act granting an increase of pension to William G. Crockett;
H. R. 13078. An act granting an increase of pension to Elizabeth F. Partin;
H. R. 13084. An act granting an increase of pension to William Dixon;
H. R. 13104. An act to amend an act entitled "An act to revise and amend the tariff laws of the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1905;
H. R. 13129. An act granting an increase of pension to Pinkney W. H. Lee;
H. R. 13141. An act granting an increase of pension to William A. Southworth;
H. R. 13282. An act granting a pension to Lydia B. Bevan;
H. R. 13348. An act granting an increase of pension to Nancy F. Shelton;
H. R. 13402. An act granting a pension to John Reynolds;
H. R. 13456. An act for the relief of James McKenzie;
H. R. 13457. An act granting an increase of pension to William M. McCay;
H. R. 13512. An act granting a pension to John H. McLean;
H. R. 13536. An act granting an increase of pension to Peter Cline;
H. R. 13542. An act authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to lease land in Stanley County, S. Dak., for a buffalo pasture;
H. R. 13579. An act granting an increase of pension to Amon Miller;
H. R. 13582. An act granting an increase of pension to James Sutherland;
H. R. 13611. An act granting an increase of pension to William Clough; and
H. R. 13643. An act granting an increase of pension to Davis W. Hatch.

Subsequently the foregoing House pension bills were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

PETITIONS AND MEMORIALS.

The VICE-PRESIDENT presented a petition of the California Fruit Growers' Exchange, of Los Angeles, Cal., praying for the enactment of legislation to regulate the interstate transportation of intoxicating liquors; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of Eureka Lodge, No. 14, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, of Indianapolis, Ind., praying for the passage of the so-called "employers' liability bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the Bryn Mawr Orange Growers' Association, of Redlands, Cal., praying for the enactment of legislation to enlarge the powers of the Interstate Commerce Commission; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the Board of Aldermen of Boston, Mass., praying for the enactment of legislation to establish a national telegraph to be operated as a branch of the Post-Office Department; which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

Mr. PLATT presented the petition of S. C. Williams, of Rochester, N. Y., praying for an investigation of the existing conditions in the Kongo Free State; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

He also presented the petition of G. W. Nichols and sundry other subscribers to the stock of the People's United States Bank, of St. Louis, Mo., residing at Holley, N. Y., praying for an investigation of the fraud-order business which caused the destruction of that bank; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented memorials of Local Union No. 283, of Geneva; of Local Union No. 106, of Ogdensburg; of Local Union No. 142, of Lockport, all of the Cigarmakers' International Union of America, and of Central Labor Union, American Federation of Labor, of Brooklyn, all in the State of New York, remonstrating against any reduction of the duty on cigars and tobacco imported from the Philippine Islands; which were referred to the Committee on the Philippines.

Mr. MILLARD presented sundry memorials of citizens of Nebraska, remonstrating against the enactment of legislation providing for a reduction of railroad rates; which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. PILES presented a petition of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific, of Seattle, Wash., praying for the enactment of legislation relating to the complement of crews of vessels; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. WETMORE presented petitions of the Organization of Kings' Daughters, of sundry citizens, of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and Parish Aid Society, all of Newport, in the State of Rhode Island, praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah; which were referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

He also presented petitions of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Portsmouth, of sundry citizens of Newport, of the Woman's Christian Union and Parish Aid Society of Newport, and of the Organization of the King's Daughters of Newport, all in the State of Rhode Island, praying for the enactment of legislation to regulate the interstate transportation of intoxicating liquors; which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. KEAN presented the petition of Fred. J. Miller, of East Orange, N. J., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for the adoption of the metric system in the various Departments of the Government; which was referred to the Select Committee on Standards, Weights, and Measures.

He also presented a memorial of Local Union No. 101, Cigarmakers' International Union of America, of Elizabeth, N. J., remonstrating against any reduction of the duty on cigars and tobacco imported from the Philippine Islands; which was referred to the Committee on the Philippines.

He also presented a petition of the State Grange, Patrons of Husbandry, of Mullica Hill, N. J., praying for the enactment of legislation to remove the duty on grain alcohol used for industrial purposes; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of the pure-food committee of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, of Asbury Park, N. J., praying for the passage of the so-called "pure-food bill;" which was ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of Jersey City, N. J., praying for the enactment of legislation to establish the Naval Militia and to define its relation to the General Government; which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also presented a petition of the board of agriculture of Union County, N. J., praying that increased appropriations be made for the support of State agricultural experiment stations; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented the memorial of Samuel V. Hoffman, of Morristown, N. J., remonstrating against the enactment of legislation extending the time for the interstate transportation of live stock; which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented the petition of C. E. Eaton, of Orange, N. J., praying for the enactment of legislation to establish a national forest reserve in the White Mountains of New Hampshire; which was referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

He also presented a petition of the Children's Protective Alliance of the State of New Jersey, praying for the enactment of legislation to establish a children's bureau in the Department of Commerce and Labor; which was referred to the Committee on Education and Labor.

Mr. PERKINS presented a petition of General Washington Council, No. 49, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Fresno, Cal., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a petition of the California State Federation of Labor, of San Francisco, Cal., praying for the enactment of legislation providing for the adjustment of the claim of the ship keepers of the Mare Island Navy-Yard; which was referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

He also presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of San Francisco, Cal., praying for the enactment of legislation to appropriate, for a period of twenty years, 75 per cent of the internal and customs receipts from the Territory of Hawaii as a special fund to be expended in Hawaii for Territorial and Federal purposes; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a memorial of the California State Federation of Labor, of San Francisco, Cal., remonstrating against any reduction of the duty on cigars and tobacco imported from the Philippine Islands; which was referred to the Committee on the Philippines.

He also presented a petition of the Outdoor Art League Department of the California Club, of San Francisco, Cal., praying for the enactment of legislation granting to the State of California 5 per cent of the net proceeds of all the cash sales of public lands within that State, etc.; which was referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

He also presented a memorial of the Sailors' Union of the Pacific and a memorial of the San Francisco Labor Council, in the State of California, remonstrating against the enactment of legislation relating to the complement of crews of vessels; which were referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the California State Federation of Labor, of San Francisco, Cal., praying for the enactment of legislation to increase the compensation of surfmen and keepers sufficient to retain the efficient men in the service and secure a better class of recruits; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the Board of Trade of San Bernardino, Cal., praying for the enactment of legislation to secure the ownership of private lands within the San Bernardino Forest Reservation, in that State; which was referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

He also presented a petition of the American Civic Association, of Santa Barbara, Cal., praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent the impending destruction of Niagara Falls on the American side by the diversion of waters for manufacturing purposes; which was referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

Mr. GALLINGER presented a petition of sundry citizens of West Derry, N. H., praying for an investigation of existing conditions in the Kongo Free State; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

He also presented petitions of sundry citizens of Norman, Hobart, Helsel, and Lexington, all in the Territory of Oklahoma, praying for the enactment of legislation prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors in that Territory when admitted to statehood; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. HANSBROUGH presented a petition of sundry citizens of New York, praying for the enactment of legislation for the relief of the victims of the General Slocum disaster in New York Harbor; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also presented the petition of George W. Urlson, of Minot, S. Dak., praying for the enactment of legislation for the removal of the tariff on composing and linotype machines and parts thereof; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. HEMENWAY presented a petition of the National Society of Colonial Dames of America, of Indianapolis, Ind., praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent the destruction of Niagara Falls on the American side by the diversion of the waters for manufacturing purposes; which was referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

He also presented a petition of Fidelity Lodge, No. 109, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Logansport, Ind., praying for the passage of the so-called "employers' liability bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of members of the Home Guards of Indiana, praying that they be granted remuneration for their services to the United States in Indiana during the war of the rebellion; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented a petition of Hamilton Council, No. 8, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Noblesville, Ind., praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a petition of the Retail Lumber Dealers' Association of Indiana, praying for the removal of the duty on white pine and rough lumber imported from Canada; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of New York, praying for the enactment of legislation for the relief of the victims of the General Slocum disaster in New York Harbor; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also presented a petition of the professors and students of St. Meinrad College, St. Meinrad, Ind., praying for the repeal of the present tariff on all works of art imported for use in churches and educational institutions; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

Mr. NELSON presented a memorial of Local Union No. 7, Cigar Makers' International Union of America, of Minneapolis, Minn., remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "Philippine tariff bill;" which was referred to the Committee on the Philippines.

He also presented a petition of Flour City Lodge, No. 494, Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, of Minneapolis, Minn., praying for the enactment of the so-called "employers' liability bill;" which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

Mr. SIMMONS presented a petition of the North Carolina Society of Colonial Dames of America, of Wilmington, N. C., praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent the impending destruction of Niagara Falls on the American side by the diversion of the waters for manufacturing purposes; which was referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

He also presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce of Wilmington, N. C., praying that an appropriation be made for the erection of a public building for the United States court, custom-house, and other maritime branches of the public service in that city; which was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

He also presented a petition of the Chamber of Commerce and Industry, of Raleigh, N. C., praying for the enactment of legislation to provide a world market commission to consider ways and means for enlarging the export in cotton products and other manufactures of the United States; which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also presented a petition of Local Division No. 431, Order of Railway Conductors, of Greensboro, N. C., praying for the passage of the so-called "employers' liability bill" and also the "anti-injunction bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented petitions of Local Councils Nos. 112, 162, 3, 11, 58, 136, 75, 33, 178, 89, 66, 3, 1, of Rutherfordton, Vance, Glencoe, Stoneville, Roanoke Rapids, Kenly, Morrisville, Roberdel, Ashpole, Virgin Springs, Graham, Walkertown, and Raleigh, all of the Junior Order of United American Mechanics, in the State of North Carolina, praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. McENERY presented sundry papers to accompany the bill (S. 2528) for the relief of Mary E. Barrow; which were referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. SCOTT presented a petition of Local Grange No. 59, Patrons of Husbandry, of Sinks Grove, W. Va., praying for the passage of the so-called "pure-food bill," the parcels-post bill, for the retention of the tax on oleomargarine, and also that an appropriation be made for the construction of national roads; which was ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. CLAY presented a memorial of Atlanta Lodge, No. 354, Brotherhood of Railway Carmen, of Atlanta, Ga., remonstrating against the passage of the so-called "railroad-rate bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. PENROSE presented a petition of the National Board of Trade, praying for the enactment of legislation providing Government control of interstate insurance; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented petitions of the United Lodge, No. 174, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Altoona; of the Order of Railway Conductors, of Pittston; of Quaker City Lodge, No. 149, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, of Philadelphia, and of Local Lodge No. 85, Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, of Easton, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of the so-called "employers' liability bill;" which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the National Board of Trade, praying for the enactment of legislation to amend the Chinese-exclusion law by excepting from its provisions Chinese students, business and professional men, merchants, bankers, doctors, professors, and travelers, but rigidly enforcing that portion of the law prohibiting the admission of Chinese laborers; which was referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented a petition of the National Board of Trade, praying for the passage of the so-called "railroad-rate bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

Mr. BRANDEGEE presented a petition of the congregation of Trinity Church, of New Britain, Conn., praying for the enactment of legislation to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors in all Government buildings and grounds; which was referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. SPOONER presented a petition of sundry citizens of Ripon and Racine, in the State of Wisconsin, praying for an investigation of existing conditions in the Kongo Free State; which was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. BULKELEY presented petitions of 20 members of The Other Club, of the Connecticut Federation of Women's Clubs, of Danbury, Conn., praying for the passage of the so-called "pure-food bill;" which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. FRYE presented a petition of the Maine State Grange, praying for the removal of the internal-revenue tax from alcohol rendered unfit for use as a beverage; which was referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented a petition of Kennebec Lodge, No. 343, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Waterville, Me., praying for the passage of the so-called "anti-injunction bill;" which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented a petition of Kennebec Lodge, No. 343, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Waterville, Me., praying for the passage of the so-called "employers' liability bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented a petition of the Lake Seamen's Union, praying for the adoption of certain amendments to the so-called "ship subsidy bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. KNOX presented a petition of the Pennsylvania Dairy Union, praying that an appropriation be made for the support of agricultural experiment stations; which was referred to the Committee on Agriculture and Forestry.

He also presented a memorial of Local Union No. 355, Cigar Makers' International Union of America, of Honesdale, Pa., remonstrating against the reduction of the duty on cigars imported from the Philippine Islands; which was referred to the Committee on the Philippines.

He also presented a memorial of the Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union, of Pittsburg, Pa., remonstrating against the repeal of the present anticanteen law; which was referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also presented a petition of sundry citizens of New York, praying for the enactment of legislation granting relief to the victims of the General Slocum disaster in New York Harbor; which was referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also presented a petition of sundry clergymen of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent gambling by interstate telegraphs and telephones; which was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented petitions of Lodge No. 337, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Sayre; Lodge 610, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Norristown; Lodge No. 42, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Harrisburg; Nicholas Division, No. 229, Order of Railway Conductors, of Reading; Dubois City Lodge, No. 557, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, of Dubois; Laughlin Lodge, No. 633, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, of Pittsburg; Youghiogheny Lodge, No. 302, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, of Connellsville; Lodge No. 149, Order of Railroad Trainmen, of Philadelphia; Enterprise Lodge, No. 75, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, of West Philadelphia; United Lodge, No. 174, Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, of Altoona; Division No. 65, Order of Railway Conductors, of Pittston, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the passage of the so-called "employers' liability bill;" which were referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

He also presented petitions of May Flower Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Derry; Yough Council, No. 132, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Morgan Station; D. E. Wyatt, of Connellsville; Ernest Krause, of Connellsville; Iron Molders' Union No. 216, of Wilkes-Barre; Council No. 313, Order United American Mechanics, of Minola; Waynesboro Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Waynesboro; Walter Frank, of Pittsburg; Jesse B. Orbin, of Bradford; H. G. Colbert, of Dawson; B. S. Forsythe, of Dawson; Daniel Webster Council, Junior Order United American Mechanics, of Johnstown; L. L. Parkhill, of Dawson; Tatamy Council, No. 159, Order United American Mechanics, of Easton, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the enactment of legislation to restrict immigration; which were referred to the Committee on Immigration.

He also presented petitions of Laurel Hill Grange, No. 1161, Patrons of Husbandry, of Milan; Summit Grange, No. 1155, of Summit; Burrell Grange, No. 515, Patrons of Husbandry, of Kelly Valley, and Union Grange, No. 1017, Patrons of Husbandry, of Charleston, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the enactment of legislation to enable the farmers of the United States to use untaxed denaturized alcohol as a motor fuel in farm engines and for heating, light, and cooking purposes; which were referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also presented petitions of F. E. Lincoln, of Philadelphia; Hanna E. Neill, of Bradford; Fannie Mueller, of Bradford; Nellie A. Fonda, of Bradford; Duncan R. Mackenzie, of Oil City; Etta Emerson, of Beach Lake; Charles S. Carter, of West Chester; Miller M. Boyd, of Westtown; Young Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Pittsburg; Thomas S. Mellor, of West Chester; Charles Forsythe, of Chadds Ford; William Carter, of Chadds Ford; W. S. Clark, of Bradford; M. L. Ross, of Dilworthtown; Union Methodist Church, of Allegheny; Samuel Jamison, of West Chester; Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Lebanon; Janet M. Haywood, of Media; Charles M. Davey, of Beach Lake; F. J. Emerson, of Beach Lake; T. R. Barnes, of Beach Lake; E. B. Dickinson, of Beach Lake; R. B. Davey, of Beach Lake; Olive J. Barnes, of Beach Lake; Judson Davey, of Beach Lake; Wallace J. Barnes, of Beach Lake; Henry H. Van Gorder, of Beach Lake; J. Owen Oliver, of Beach Lake; and of sundry clergymen of Wilkes-Barre, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for an investigation of the charges made and filed against Hon. REED SMOOT, a Senator from the State of Utah; which were referred to the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

He also presented petitions of Germantown Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, of Germantown; Civic Betterment Association of Germantown; Tabitha Neithercott, of Philadelphia; Carl Barba, of Philadelphia; the Ephoc Club, of Pittsburg; the Towanda Historical Club, of Towanda; R. L. Glose, of Philadelphia; Emma H. Richut, of Chestnut Hill; the Woman's Club of Sewickley Valley, of Sewickley; Dr. H. G. Carmalt, of Pittsburg; Hazel Rusling, of Philadelphia, and Edith M. Tevitmyer, of Pittsburg, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the enactment of legislation to prevent the impending destruction of Niagara Falls on the American side by the diversion of the waters for manufacturing purposes; which were referred to the Committee on Forest Reservations and the Protection of Game.

He also presented petitions of Second United Presbyterian Church of Wilkinsburg; Congregational Church of Susquehanna; First Presbyterian Church of Montrose; Woman's Christian Temperance Union of Susquehanna; Bridgewater Baptist Church, of Montrose; Methodist Church of Susquehanna; Holy Name of Mary Church, of Montrose, and Presbyterian Church of Honeybrook, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the adoption of an amendment to the Constitution to prohibit polygamy; which were referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also presented petitions of the Christian Endeavor Society, Wakefield Presbyterian Church, of Philadelphia; Home Missionary Society, Methodist Episcopal Church of Tarentum; Mrs. Joseph S. Dodds, of Pittsburg; Levina Y. Meyers, of Pittsburg; John L. Cox, of Philadelphia, and of Oscal H. Alles, of Philadelphia, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the enactment of legislation to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquors in the Indian Territory when admitted to statehood; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented memorials of Alexander Young Company, of Philadelphia; Edward Trainer, of Philadelphia; Otto Frey, of Pittsburg; Thompson Distilling Company, of Pittsburg; Wolf, Siessel & Co., of Pittsburg; Louis J. Adler & Co., of Pittsburg; Rosskam, Gerstley & Co., of Philadelphia; William Mulherin Sons, of Philadelphia; Schwartz, Strauss & Co., of Philadelphia, and Emil Cauffman & Co., of Philadelphia, all in the State of Pennsylvania, remonstrating against the clause in the so-called "pure-food bill" requiring formula to be printed on packages containing blended liquor; which were ordered to lie on the table.

He also presented the petitions of E. M. Mellor, of Germantown; J. A. Cuerten, of Philadelphia; H. W. Decius, of Philadelphia; R. E. Gill, of Philadelphia; Edward Pennock, of Philadelphia; M. Lewis, of Philadelphia; M. Maukre, of Philadelphia; H. D. Weaver, of Philadelphia; H. H. Cresson, of Germantown, and L. J. Hutchinson, of Philadelphia, all in the State of Pennsylvania, praying for the enactment of ligislation granting separate statehood to the Indian Territory; which were ordered to lie on the table.

Mr. McCUMBER presented a memorial of the North Dakota Retail Hardware Dealers' Association, remonstrating against the adoption of proposed changes in the classification of third and fourth class postal matter, and also against the passage of the so-called "parcels-post bill;" which was referred to the Committee on Post-Offices and Post-Roads.

PURE-FOOD BILL.

Mr. McCUMBER. I present resolutions of the American Baking Powder Association in support of the pure-food bill. I only desire in presenting the memorial to call attention to the fact that of all the food manufactures that have been attacked most viciously perhaps not one has been so viciously and so persistently attacked as the product of the American Baking Powder Association. Unlike many of those who are manufacturing foods, this association are desirous of being protected by a pure-food law, feeling certain that their product will answer every requirement.

I ask that the memorial be referred to the appropriate committee and that it be printed in the RECORD.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The bill is before the Senate.

Mr. McCUMBER. Let it lie on the table, then.

There being no objection, the memorial was ordered to lie on the table, and to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Whereas the American Baking Powder Association, composed of those manufacturers of baking powder using basic aluminic sulphate as an ingredient of their powders, representing 85 per cent of the total baking powder sold throughout the United States, desiring to place itself unequivocally on record as in favor of a national pure-food law, herewith submits resolutions unanimously passed by it, tendering its cooperation and support to the pure-food movement in general and urging the passage of a stringent pure-food law, which shall, in its provisions, regulate the manufacture and sale of baking powders.

Resolved, That it is the sense of the American Baking Powder Association, composed of manufacturers and representing 85 per cent of the production and sale of baking powders throughout the United States, that it most heartily indorses the movement in Congress for a national pure-food law and urges the members of the United States Senate and the House of Representatives of the United States to enact into law one of the measures now pending.

Resolved further, That as this association has given its unqualified indorsement for several years to the bill introduced by Senator McCUMBER in the United States Senate and to the bill introduced by Representative HEPBURN in the House of Representatives, that it hereby specifically urges the passage of either of these measures; and

Resolved further, That the president and secretary of the American Baking Powder Association be instructed to transmit to Senator McCUMBER and Representative HEPBURN copies of these resolutions, that they may become a part of the public records.

AMERICAN BAKING POWDER ASSOCIATION.
CHAS. E. JAQUES, President.
[SEAL.] A. CRESSY MORRISON,
Secretary-Treasurer.

Mr. McCUMBER. I present a memorial of the Commissioners of Agriculture of the Cotton States, assembled at Richmond, Va., November 26, 1905, urging on the United States Senate the importance of taking up for consideration and passing at the present session a pure-food bill. I ask unanimous consent, as it is very short, that it be read, and that it lie on the table.

Mr. HALE. Let it be printed in the RECORD without reading.

Mr. McCUMBER. If there is objection, of course I will not ask that it be read.

There being no objection, the memorial was ordered to lie on the table, and to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Memorial to the United States Senate.

To the Senate of the United States in Congress assembled:

Whereas at a meeting of the commissioners of agriculture of the cotton States, held in Richmond, Va., November 26, 1905, a resolution was passed appointing a committee to draft a memorial to the Senate of the United States respectfully urging upon that honorable body the importance of taking up for consideration and passage at its present session the Hepburn pure-food bill, now pending before it;

Therefore in compliance with the terms of this resolution, the committee does most respectfully urge upon your august body the importance to the people of the whole country of your early consideration of this long delayed but highly important measure. We do most earnestly memoralize you that it is the sense not only of the convention which we directly represent, but also of the great majority of the people of the cotton States, represented by their commissioners of agriculture, that the passage of this bill, or some similar legislation, is most urgently needed; that the delay and refusal of Congress to enact such legislation up to date, after long and thorough investigation, operates by way of example as a bar to the passage of pure-food legislation by those States having no actively enforced laws, and affords argument to the interested opponents of such legislation.

That the adulterator, protected by the failure of Congress to act, securely plies his trade by manufacturing his dishonest wares in one State and shipping in original packages into other States;

That meanwhile the consuming public is suffering not only by reason of the frauds perpetrated on their purses, but also in health by the substitution of the impure for the pure;

That the standard of commercial honesty is lowered and that the business of honest traders, merchants, manufacturers, and producers is threatened and in many cases ruined by the unscrupulous and unprincipled competition of the adulterator;

That the growth and development of many young and promising agricultural industries, such as the milk, butter, cheese, sirup, honey, and fruit industries in the Southern States are seriously retarded and hampered by dishonest competition and lack of protective legislation.

Praying that your honorable body may lend an attentive hearing to this our memorial, we most respectfully subscribe ourselves.

JNO. M. McCANDLESS,
State Chemist of Georgia,
R. E. ROSE,
State Chemist of Florida,
B. W. KILGORE,
State Chemist of North Carolina,
E. W. MAGRUDER,
State Chemist of Virginia,
Committee.

PROTEST AGAINST UNION OF ARIZONA WITH NEW MEXICO.

Mr. PATTERSON. There was a commission of twenty or more persons appointed by the Territory of Arizona to visit Washington to do what they could to prevent the passage of the bill to unite Arizona to New Mexico for statehood. That commission has prepared a memorial to the Senate upon the subject, which is short, and I hope that the memorial may be read. Also a statement of facts in connection with the status of Arizona accompanies the memorial. I should like to have both the memorial and the statement printed in the RECORD, and published as a Senate document for the information of Senators in connection with the bill for the creation of the new States.

Mr. HALE. The Senator from Colorado does not ask that they be read?

Mr. PATTERSON. I should like to have the memorial read, which is short.

Mr. HALE. And the other paper is to be printed without reading?

Mr. PATTERSON. Yes; I simply ask that the short memorial may be read.

Mr. HALE. Very well.

Mr. PATTERSON. There are only twenty-odd names attached to the memorial. I trust the names will be printed with the memorial in the RECORD.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

There being no objection, the memorial was read, as follows:

A memorial to the United States Senate from delegates from Arizona in Washington opposing the bill for the union of Arizona and New Mexico in a single State.

To the Senate of the United States:

As the delegates of the people of Arizona, coming to Washington from all sections of our Territory as the chosen representatives of a loyal American people to express their earnest and determined opposition to the proposed union with New Mexico, we respectfully submit the following reasons for the unalterable opposition of the citizens of Arizona to this unjust measure, which we believe violates the very principles of the Constitution:

First. The opposition of at least 95 per cent of the people of Arizona as proved by the written protests of nearly every social, religious, political, and business organization within our Territory, and the petitions of protest signed by many thousands of our citizens.

Second. The promise by Congress in the enabling act that the autonomy of Arizona should be preserved.

Third. The decided racial differences between the people of Arizona and the large majority of the people of New Mexico, who are not only different in race and largely in language, but have entirely different customs, laws, and ideals, and would have but little prospect of successful amalgamation.

Fourth. The radical and irreconcilable differences in laws, legal customs, and procedure of the two Territories.

Fifth. The fact of unquestioned proof that Arizona is developing most rapidly and substantially both in resources and population, the permanency and high character of its population, and the certainty that through the development of its great natural resources and the immense benefit to be derived from the Government irrigation works now under actual construction within its borders that Arizona will eventually reach such proportions both in resources and population as will warrant Congress in urging its admission to the Union as an independent State.

Sixth. A dual set of excellent public buildings existing throughout both Territories, the value of which would be largely destroyed by the proposed merger.

Seventh. The unwieldy size of the proposed joint State, and consequent great expense in conducting a State government, and the rugged and volcanic character of a large portion of the country existing between the settled communities of the two Territories.

Eighth. The exceeding difficulty of a proper adjustment of the debts of the two Territories, certain counties in New Mexico being practically bankrupt and their securities at a great discount, while Arizona's securities, Territorial, county, and municipal, are well above par and of the highest character.

Ninth. The objection by the people of Arizona, 95 per cent of whom are Americans, to the probability of the control of public affairs by people of a different race, many of whom do not speak the English language and who outnumber the people of Arizona two to one, while the assessed valuation of Arizona exceeds that of New Mexico by over 33⅓ per cent.

In view of the foregoing reasons we request that the joint statehood bill now before the Senate be amended by striking out of the bill all reference to Arizona. If, however, an expression at the polls is deemed desirable and necessary, we urge that the bill be amended to provide that before the holding of the constitutional convention the question of joint statehood, free from any other issue, be submitted to the qualified voters of Arizona and New Mexico, voting separately at a special election called for that purpose only, to be held on the same day in both Territories, and unless approved by a majority of the qualified voters of each Territory no constitutional convention for the purpose of creating a joint State shall be held.

Respectfully submitted.

Dwight B. Heard, Phoenix, Ariz., irrigation farming and investment securities; Roy S. Goodrich, Phoenix, Ariz., attorney; James J. Riggs, Dos Cabezos, stockman; Alfred Quetu, Prescott, Catholic pastor; W. S. Sturges, Pima County, cattleman; Lee Crandall, Globe, miner; D. J. Brannen, Flagstaff, physician; Georget French, Nogales, attorney; W. H. Brophy, Bisbee, banker; L. R. Pintle, Douglas, banker; B. H. Packard, Naco, live stock and agriculture; Edgar S. Campbell, Prescott, mining; A. J. Doran, Prescott, mining; Frank R. Stewart, Prescott, Daily Journal Miner; Robt. E. Moss, Prescott, lawyer; B. A. Fowler, Phoenix, rancher; Harvey M. Shields, by D. B. H., Bisbee, Episcopal clergyman; Eugene Brady O'Neill, by D. B. H., Phoenix, lawyer; A. J. Chandler, Mesa, irrigation.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Colorado requests that a certain statement of fact accompanying the memorial just read be printed in the RECORD.

There being no objection, the statement was ordered to be printed in the RECORD, as follows:

Reasons in detail why Arizona should not be associated with New Mexico in statehood, proposed and submitted by delegates from Arizona and to accompany their memorial.

After more than forty years of existence as an independent Territory, Arizona is now confronted with the prospect of the destruction of autonomy and the loss of her identity by being forced into joint statehood with New Mexico; this in the face of the promise of Congress made in 1863, that Arizona should eventually be admitted as a State on her own application. The people of Arizona are unalterably opposed to joint statehood. We prefer to remain inhabitants of a Territory for all time rather than be annexed to New Mexico. We earnestly desire statehood, but not as provided in the present bill.

We have redeemed this fair land from the Apache and the desert at a great sacrifice of life and labor, and we believe our wishes should be considered.

Arizona has a population that is intelligent, patriotic, and sincerely devoted to the Constitution and the principles of liberty as set forth in the Declaration of Independence, the peers of any people under the flag.

Herewith we present reasons why our cause is just and why we should be permitted to work out our own destiny and not be compelled to accept jointure as proposed by the bill now under consideration by the Congress.

OPPOSITION OF THE PEOPLE OF ARIZONA TO THE PROPOSED JOINTURE WITH NEW MEXICO.

The people of Arizona are practically unanimous in their opposition to joint statehood with New Mexico, and the numerous protests now before Congress of nearly every organization within the Territory of Arizona and the protesting petitions signed by thousands of Arizona's people are certainly conclusive proof of the determined opposition of the people of Arizona to the proposed jointure.

A list of some of the many petitions of protest which have been presented to Congress on this subject is appended hereto.

A most interesting and clear expression of the intense feeling of the people of Arizona on this question occurred at the last day of the Annual Territorial Fair, held at Phoenix December 30, 1905. The low rates made by the railroads had brought all classes of people to the fair grounds from every section of the Territory, and the grand stand, holding over 3,000 persons, was packed with a thoroughly representative crowd of Arizonians. In order to ascertain what the real sentiment of these people was on the subject of joint statehood a short resolution protesting against the joint statehood bill was read through a megaphone, and all who were opposed to joint statehood were asked to rise. The grand stand rose as one man. In order to learn whether the above action was merely a temporary sentiment or the expressions of the real feeling of the people, fifty men, who had volunteered for the purpose, passed through the grand stand with petitions reciting the opposition of our people to joint statehood. This petition within thirty minutes was signed by over 3,100 persons and has already been presented to Congress. All those circulating this petition kept a careful poll of persons who refused to sign. Every person in the crowd was approached, and the poll shows that less than 2 per cent of those to whom the petition was presented failed to sign the same.

We therefore believe that we are perfectly safe in saying that the 98 per cent who signed the petition fairly reflects the sentiment of the people of Arizona on this question.

The feeling of our people on this subject was shown again by the result of the circulation on the streets of Phoenix, January 3 and 4, by one of the members of our delegation, of a petition of protest, which has also been presented to Congress.

In the two days referred to 1,200 signatures to the petition were secured, and a careful poll kept of those who refused to sign shows but seven names. Of the fifty-three newspapers published in Arizona, all but four are opposed to joint statehood.

Arizona is not asking Congress for statehood. She is asking only to be left alone, with an opportunity to work out her own destiny within her own boundaries and with her well-organized American institutions. Inspired by those courageous American ideals which have made the winning of the West possible, the people of Arizona have no fear of the future.

CHARACTER OF ARIZONA'S POPULATION.

Arizona's population is distinctly American, composed of people from all parts of the United States and the best type of immigrants from other countries. Their ideals of social conditions, Christian civilization, modern progress, and future development are of the highest. The census of 1900 shows the percentage of white illiterates, including Mexicans, to be but 6.2. Seventy-five per cent of our teachers are graduates of higher institutions of learning. One reason for this gratifying condition is that our teachers are paid higher salaries than in any State in the Union. County school teachers receive $75 per month or more. Arizona spends more per capita on her public schools than any State except Texas.

Kindergarten and manual-training schools are found in all parts of the Territory. Our common schools are graded and there are high schools in every city in the Territory. Our two normal schools, the Territorial University, and the Catholic Academy are well patronized, and under the careful, conscientious, and efficient instruction of an excellent corps of professors and assistants. We also have many prosperous schools of music and art and business colleges. The Government maintains a number of Indian schools, one of which, at Phoenix, is second largest in the country. Our industrial schools and penitentiary are under efficient management.

The Territorial teachers' convention, held in December, 1905, attended by more than 200 teachers, voted unanimously against joint statehood with New Mexico.

The following table illustrates the splendid growth in educational facilities:

	1895.	1905.	Increase in ten years.
			Per cent.
School census	15,201	29,290	92.6
Schools	219	523	139.2
Teachers	314	538	121.3
Expenditures	$201,357.89	$533,668.19	165
Properties	$414,447.00	$925,033.00	123
Bonded indebtedness	----------	$425,407.83	----------
Excess value of property over indebtedness	$414,447.00	$499,625.17	----------
Total expenditures, 1895 to 1904, inclusive	----------	$3,557,784.11	----------

Our churches—Catholic, Protestant, and Jewish—have as conscientious, zealous, and intelligent workers, clerical and lay, as are found in towns and cities of equal population in any section of the country. A deep interest is taken by their ministers and religious members in the intellectual and social development of the people—in fact, society is as highly organized as in any eastern community.

Attention is directed to the following figures, taken from the report of the governor of Arizona, just issued:

	1895.	1905.	Increase.
			Per cent.
Churches	103	171	66
Preachers	111	254	128.8
Members	11,562	47,622	311
Sunday-school scholars	6,147	22,124	259
Properties	$594,900	$936,732	57

MINING.

Mining is one of the great and rapidly developing industries of our Territory. There is but one county in the whole Territory that does not produce mineral in paying quantities. We in Arizona have demonstrated that our ore bodies are continuous and increase in value with the greater depths obtained, showing that the life of our mines, and especially of the copper mines, to be almost limitless. Many of the copper mines have from fifty to seventy-five years' work in sight. To give an idea of the progress that has been made during the past decade, we refer briefly to the production of copper during that period. In 1894 we produced in Arizona 44,514,894 pounds of copper. In 1905 the production of copper had increased to 241,400,000 pounds, which, at the present value of copper, is worth $40,000,000, an increase of 600 per cent in eleven years. There is not a State or Territory in the Union that can show so large a percentage of increase. It is safe to assert that within the next five years Arizona will produce more refined copper than any other State or Territory in the Union, and copper mining in Arizona may be said to be still in its infancy, although we are even now second in production. We produce annually approximately $5,000,000 in gold and about $1,500,000 in silver; thus we have for 1905 a production, in round numbers, of over $45,000,000 of precious and useful metals. This does not include about one-half a million a year which we receive for lead, zinc, tungsten, onyx, asbestos, platinum, and other minerals which have not as yet been developed as they will be in the near future.

We submit, in comparison with the above statement, the production of New Mexico for the year 1904, which shows their high-water mark in the production of these minerals: Copper, 5,366,666 pounds; gold, $381,930; silver, $124,103. It is unnecessary to comment on this comparison. It can readily be seen that it is a splendid proposition for New Mexico to absorb the Territory of Arizona.

In the operation of the mines of Arizona and the reduction of ores all modern appliances and methods are employed. The miner is a skilled laborer and commands wages ranging from $3 to $4.50 for eight hours' labor. He is generally married, with a fixed domicile, and belongs to our best class of citizens. A very large proportion of the miners own their homes.

The mining camp of to-day exists only in remote regions. We now have mining cities. For example, one of them, Bisbee, within the next five years will rival Butte City, Mont., in population and wealth. Its population in 1900 was 7,000; to-day it is over 15,000.

As an indication of the permanency of these mining cities, such as Bisbee, Douglas, Prescott, Morenci, Clifton, Globe, Jerome, and others, the history of the towns in the lake copper regions of Michigan can be referred to, which history shows that deposits of copper will produce for long periods of time. The early lumber buildings are being replaced by substantial and handsome structures of brick and stone.

AGRICULTURE AND IRRIGATION.

The development of agriculture by irrigation in the valleys of Arizona is one of the wonders of the West; a quarter of a million acres are now cultivated within the territory, served by many canals, whose combined length is 1,776 miles. New canals are in course of construction wherever water is available for irrigation, and this is but the beginning of Arizona's irrigation development, for, in addition to the water at present diverted for irrigation, the United States Government, under the wise provisions of the national reclamation act in constructing in Arizona two immense storage reservoirs, one near Phoenix, for the benefit of the wonderfully fertile lands of the Salt River Valley, and the other near Yuma, for the benefit of lands along the Colorado River Valley, largely in Arizona, which, when completed, will add immensely to the cultivated area of the Territory, and as there are millions of acres of magnificent land lying under these projects, no one can tell, as more economical and scientific methods of irrigation are employed, what proportions the irrigated area may reach.

The following extract from a recent statement by the Director of the Geological Survey gives some idea of the certainty of our great growth in this direction:

Irrigation in Arizona, 1902.

Source of water supply.	Number of farms irrigated.	Number of acres irrigated.
Streams:
Colorado River and tributaries, exclusive of Little Colorado River and tributaries and Gila River and tributaries	274	10,661
Little Colorado River and tributaries	456	11,776
Gila River and tributaries, exclusive of Salt River and tributaries	1,669	80,448
Salt River and tributaries	1,293	138,810
White River and tributaries	6	384
Other sources:
Springs	41	1,061
Wells	128	4,110
All sources	3,867	247,250

Statement made by the Director of the Geological Survey, in January, 1906, shows as follows:

"The Reclamation Service has under consideration a number of projects in Arizona, upon two of which actual construction has commenced. They are as follows:

"Salt River project, which will increase the irrigated area in Salt River Valley by 100,000 acres; Colorado River projects, 300,000 acres; Little Colorado, 80,000 acres; Upper Gila, 40,000 acres; San Pedro, 20,000 acres, or a total of 530,000 acres.

"Recent investigations indicate the possibility of extending irrigation in the plateau regions of the north and elsewhere by pumping to cover approximately 100,000 acres more.

"It is also believed that dry farming can be extended over certain areas of the plateau region to cover many thousand acres, but no estimate can at this time be given as to the extent.

As shown by the above estimates, it seems reasonable within the next generation to bring about irrigation in Arizona of a total of 887,000 acres, or more than three times as much land as is now irrigated.

"Comparisons of the present irrigated areas with the areas to be irrigated under the reclamation act are subject to qualification, on account of several important considerations. The areas now under irrigation are in most cases dependent upon a precarious water supply, and the lands produce only a portion of the products which will be grown with a complete water supply. Under the projects constructed in pursuance of the reclamation act an ample water supply will be available, making it possible for a larger number of people to make a satisfactory living upon corresponding areas. All of the areas reclaimed under the national reclamation act will be in small farm units, thus materially increasing the number of families. There are in the more densely settled parts of the country localities where the irrigated lands support a person to the acre."

It will be observed from the foregoing that nearly a million acres will be highly cultivated in Arizona with the known water supply by irrigation alone—nearly as much land as lies within the entire State of Delaware.

The fact that the climate of the principal valleys of Arizona is such that crops can be grown continuously the whole year under a system of water storage, with a soil of great depth and richness and continuously fertilized by nitrogenous silt from the mountains, makes it possible to maintain a large population on a comparatively small area. When the storage reservoir near Phoenix is completed, it is conservatively estimated that the Salt River Valley will have an intensively cultivated irrigated area of over 200,000 acres—larger than all the irrigated land in southern California south of Tehaticipi Pass, which supports such populous cities as Los Angeles, San Diego, Pasadena, Redlands, and Riverside. The great variety and character of the crops, many of which can be grown only in a limited area in the United States, makes these irrigated lands highly desirable to the best class of home seekers. Not only the staple crops of wheat, barley, rye, potatoes, corn, and alfalfa (of which six crops can be produced in one year) and most of the deciduous fruits are grown, but the semitropical fruits—such as lemons, oranges, figs, pomegranates, dates, olives, and grape fruit—are grown with marked success.

The Arizona oranges being first in the New York market, bring double the price of the California oranges and have won first premium at the California midwinter fair. The early cantaloupes grow most prolifically, whole fields having averaged as high as $300 per acre in one season. Sugar beets grow to perfection and have a high percentage of sugar. On account of the dry atmospheric conditions the beets kept well in the ground for many months, making it possible for a factory to operate almost continually. A 1,000-ton beet-sugar factory is already being constructed near Phoenix and others are contemplated. Many flour mills of the most modern equipment are in operation in all the irrigated sections, furnishing an excellent quality of flour, which is shipped throughout the Territory.

The great diversity of crops in our irrigated valleys makes possible a very large population to the square mile. In some portions of the Salt River Valley to-day, with an unregulated water supply, twenty-five to thirty families to the square mile are being supported, and through more intensive cultivation, which will be possible when the Government storage works are in operation, the number of persons to the square mile will be greatly increased. The rapidly growing mining cities and towns in the mountains of the Territory furnish a convenient and ample market for the agricultural products of the valleys. Dairying is one of the growing industries, and in the Salt River Valley alone six creameries are in operation with a daily output of nearly 3,000 pounds of butter. Honey of the highest quality is also produced in great quantities, the honey association of one valley having shipped thirty carloads last year. The raising of poultry and eggs is another rapidly growing industry, the demand being far in advance of the supply.

It is practically impossible to get an accurate estimate of the annual agricultural production of the Territory. Its value certainly reaches many millions and is steadily increasing.

In addition to the surface water, which, as above estimated, will supply 1,000,000 acres of land, there are large lakes of water beneath the surface of the ground. This statement is not made on speculation, but is based on the facts as determined by borings made in several valleys and reported by the Geological Survey in a recent report, and to-day thousands of acres in Arizona are in successful cultivation through the application of water pumped from these underground sources. A comparatively small part of the water that falls upon the mountain side is carried away in the surface streams. It flows largely beneath the ground and finally percolates into the lower plains, which in many cases are surrounded by mountains, thus forming natural reservoirs. In all the far-reaching plains the soil is of great depth and fertility, beneath which is an impervious stratum of cemented clay which holds the water under pressure. When this is cut through, the water rises sometimes to the surface in flowing wells and in almost all cases to within 15 to 50 feet of the surface. This water is raised by centrifugal pumps operated either by steam or electrical power generated in the mountains. It is impossible to estimate the area that can be irrigated by this method, but speaking conservatively it has already been determined that in some of Arizona's valleys from 20,000 to 50,000 acres can thus be reclaimed, and it is fair to presume that of all the hundreds of valleys and plains in Arizona, with their many millions of acres, the irrigated area can and will be vastly increased from this source.

In addition to the land that can be irrigated, there is a large area which can be farmed without irrigation. This has gone beyond the experimental stages in Kansas, Nebraska, Colorado, Wyoming, and Texas, where the rainfall is no greater than in a large area of northeastern and southeastern Arizona. Successful experiments in dry farming in Arizona have already been made, where large orchards are located in the north, of the finest grades of apples, which find a market reaching even to London.

COMMERCIAL AND BANKING DEVELOPMENT.

In treating this subject the statistics are not available except in relation to the banking interests. We are, therefore, obliged to rely upon our general knowledge of merchandise in Arizona to place an estimate upon the stocks of merchandise carried and the volume of business transacted per annum. In the past five years the growth of Arizona from a purely commercial standpoint has been the wonder of the entire West. The attention of northern and eastern capitalists has been drawn to her resources, especially her undeveloped mining lands, and the investments of large sums of capital in the mining regions and the successful development of paying properties has stimulated the merchandise and banking interests in a marvelous manner. It is not alone the development of the mines that has caused this prosperous condition, but of our stock raising, agricultural, and horticultural resources, which bring in a steady stream of home seekers of a very desirable class, who find the soil of Arizona extraordinarily productive.

As an example of wonderful growth in business lines, in 1901 in one of our mining cities there was only one bank, with a capital of $25,000. To-day there are three banks, the combined capital and surplus of which amount to $320,000 and with deposits of $2,350,000. In this one town there are thirty-six prosperous merchants, whose stock of goods total $1,000,000, and whose annual sales exceed $4,000,000. But one failure has occurred within the past three years.

Some years ago the representatives of eastern manufacturers and jobbing concerns on their semiannual visits to the Pacific slope rarely stopped at Arizona points, but now they consider the trade of these places such a valuable acquisition that they call at every town of importance in the Territory and carry away with them large orders that formerly went to Pacific coast houses. The modern department store has made its appearance, and buildings, the cost of which range from $60,000 to $150,000, have been erected at Morenci, Bisbee, Douglas, Tucson, Phoenix, Prescott, and Flagstaff, and stocks of merchandise embracing endless variety give a selection that vies with similar establishments in the large cities of the Eastern States.

As stated before, it is very difficult to get at the exact amount of money invested in merchandise by the merchants of Arizona, but a conservative estimate would place the figures at $12,000,000, with sales of at least $30,000,000 per annum. According to the report of the governor of Arizona for the year 1905, there are eleven national banks and eighteen Territorial banks in the Territory, having a combined capital and surplus of $2,122,675, and showing individual deposits of $10,000,000. These banks carry a cash reserve of about 40 per cent of their deposits. The governor's figures are taken from the banks' statements issued as of June 30, 1905, since which date have been made heavy increases in deposits and accumulation of surplus. To-day the individual deposits will total at least $12,000,000 and the capital and surplus reach $2,250,000. Only one bank failure has occurred in Arizona during the past ten years, and that was for a very small amount. The stability and careful management of the banking institutions of the Territory is a fact of which its citizens are proud.

THE LIVE-STOCK INTEREST OF THE TERRITORY.

By a careful calculation of statistics obtained from the Government's annual report for 1905, the census numeration, and other evidence at hand, a very close estimate can be made of numbers, and from market reports values are readily obtained. There are of cattle in the Territory 750,000 head, valued at $16 per head, making $12,050,000. Of horses, 25,000 head, at $40 per head, making $1,000,000. Of sheep, 1,000,000 head, valued at $3 per head, $3,000,000. Of goats, 75,000 head, valued at $2.75, making $206,250. These values are at least conservative, for of the 70,000 sold and removed from the Territory in 1905 the average price was $3.75 per 100 pounds gross weight f. o. b. at point of shipment, and it is reasonable to suppose those consumed in the Territory, about 60,000 in number, were in value about equal to those sold to go out of the Territory. So that it is safe to say that the 130,000 head of cattle disposed of during the year 1905 brought, in round numbers, $4,810,000.

The cattle and sheep, and, in fact, all stock are largely produced from the ranges. The cattle, however, are taken from the ranges to alfalfa fields of the different valleys for finishing. Alfalfa grown in Arizona, according to the reports of the Government experimental station, has fattening qualities exceeding that raised in any other section. It is a well-known fact that one ton of Arizona-raised alfalfa is worth two tons of that raised in Kansas or in California as a beef producer. Our finished animals are fitted for any market in the world, and some of these fancy export beeves have been fattened in Arizona on alfalfa alone. The plan is to take the cattle from the range in the fall of the year, after having put on all the flesh possible by grazing on the native grasses, then place them in the alfalfa pastures for a reasonable time, and under ordinarily favorable conditions, from two to four months, feeding prepares an animal for the market.

The grade or class of stock in Arizona compares favorably with the best of any State. At the first annual Territorial fair, held at Phoenix in December, 1905, our live-stock display would have been a credit to any community, and was highly complimented by numerous stock judges of the Middle West. Bulls and heifers were exhibited that had taken premiums at other State exhibits. As good sheep and hogs as could be found in any State were on exhibition. The horse, jack, and mule exhibit was particularly good, there being some of the most renowned harness stallions and mares present. In the heavy-horse exhibit a stallion, a blue-ribbon winner at the Royal Stock Show at Kansas City, held there in October, was a prominent feature of the exhibit, besides other good ones of great quality, and mares in the exhibit that were second to none in the United States.

A St. Louis first-prize senior champion jack, together with other prize-winning jacks, was on exhibition, and a class of young mules that would do credit to any State fair in the United States, and all the property of resident Arizonians and now in service. Fine Hereford and Durham bulls, the product of the best breeders, are steadily being brought into the Territory for the improvement of the cattle on the range, while high-grade Jersey, Holstein, and Galloway bulls are being brought in for the improvement of the valley cattle. The possibilities of this industry in Arizona can not be computed, for with Government control of the ranges, which is now being considered by the Department of Agriculture and the Department of the Interior, and the plan for which is being acquiesced in by the Arizona range owners, will make it possible for a man to lease at a nominal price the range he occupies, and the stockman will improve his holdings by fencing and developing water, thereby making it possible to raise three animals where only one is now produced.

It has been repeatedly asserted that "the opposition of the cattlemen of Arizona to joint statehood is prompted by the desire to retain control of the vast open ranges in this country." That this proposition is absolutely false is proven by reference to the resolutions passed against joint statehood by the Cattle Growers' Association, and to page 14 of Bulletin No. 62, entitled "Grazing on the Public Lands," recently issued by the Department of Agriculture, wherein it will be seen that 90 per cent of the cattlemen of Arizona are in favor of Government control of the ranges under reasonable regulations.

This, together with the increased production of alfalfa and grains of every description after the installation of the Government reservoirs and canals, will make Arizona one of the greatest stock-producing States in the Union.

LIVE-STOCK SANITARY CONDITIONS.

The general sanitary and health conditions of the live stock of the Territory has been excellent, due to the stringent laws that are in force and the efficient manner in which they have been administered. This branch of the work is in the hands of a Territorial live-stock sanitary board. No outbreaks of any contagious diseases have occurred, and isolated cases that have been discovered and promptly dealt with have been traced to outside sources. Under the regulations in force all importations of live stock are subject to inspection by the Territorial veterinarian when, in his opinion, such inspection is necessary, and a complete history of the live stock imported is at all times available for reference. Owing to the statutory safeguards that have been provided, Arizona is practically free from the stringent Federal restrictions placed on nearly all the range States and Territories.

SHEEP RAISING.

Climatic conditions and topography of the country make the raising of sheep in Arizona one of the most profitable of industries. They are handled in bands of 1,000 to 3,000, which graze on the mountains in summer and the valleys in winter. The annual increase is over 100 per cent and disease in the flocks is practically unknown. The freedom with which sheep roam and the excellent nutritious grasses upon which they live make a quality of mutton which far surpasses that found in the East and commands the highest market price. Nearly all the men engaged in raising sheep have doubled the money invested by the profits of the last three years. Much attention is given to breeding, and practical results are shown in increase of size, weight, and the length and quality of the wool. Fully 1,000,000 sheep, producing 5,000,000 pounds of wool annually, worth, at prevailing prices, $1,000,000, are grazing on Arizona's ranges. In no part of our country is the business of raising sheep more inviting and successful than in the Territory of Arizona, or those engaged in it more desirable as citizens.

In addition to cattle, horses, and sheep, Arizona is noted for its ostrich farms. Several are now in successful operation, one farm having over 1,100 birds under fence. This industry is developing along most satisfactory lines commercially and promises to be one of the successful industries of the Territory.

TIMBER RESOURCES.

The vastness of the timber lands of Arizona can better be appreciated when it is known that Arizona has one of the largest unbroken forests in the world, comprising a total acreage of 23,726,000, nearly one-third of the Territory, an area larger than Connecticut, Delaware, New Hampshire, and New Jersey combined. About one-half of this can not be classed as saw timber, but is equally valuable for fuel; being mostly cedar, juniper, and scrub oak. Seven million two hundred and forty-two thousand one hundred and seventy acres are in Government forest reserves (nine in number) and the greater part of the remaining acreage is at the present time withdrawn from entry, and known as the "Proposed Rio Verde Forest Reserve." Much of this timber is now inaccessible by reason of the lack of railroad facilities. The production of lumber on an extensive scale is confined to two lumber companies operating at Flagstaff and Williams, Ariz. The total production for the year ending June 30, 1905, amounted to 57,500,000 feet. There is a great demand for our lumber which is increasing from year to year by reason of the depletion of the white-pine forests in the lumber States of the East, and it is only a question of a very few years when Arizona will be recognized as one of the greatest lumber-producing States or Territories in the Union.

MANUFACTURING AND ITS POSSIBILITIES.

Arizona has a magnificent future in the line of manufacturing development. Throughout the entire Territory are found large and valuable deposits of iron, copper, and all kinds of building stone, including onyx, granite, marble, tufa, and sandstone. This development will undoubtedly be brought about by the utilization for power purposes of the waters that flow in the various streams and rivers of the Territory. In the northern part of Arizona the Colorado River flows through a tremendous chasm over a mile deep. All along the river are found rapids, and in a great many places it is practicable to develop water power and generate electricity. Unlimited power can be derived by this means and transmitted to the mines, the lumber mills, the quarries, and can also be used on the mesa and table-lands for pumping water for agricultural purposes. In California electricity developed from mountain streams is transmitted 250 miles. Throughout the Territory are numerous natural dam sites where the waters can be impounded and utilized for the purpose of generating electricity. At the junction of the Salt River and Tonto Creek the Reclamation Service of the United States Government is now engaged in the construction of the great Tonto dam. Five thousand horsepower is here being developed, and this will be multiplied many times as it is brought down into the Salt River Valley.

This power can be used for the purpose of manufacturing our enormous wool clip, the products of our forests, and in completing the manufacture of the output of our large copper mines. With the coming of transportation facilities it can truthfully be said that Arizona, solely by means of the utilization of her streams and impounded waters, can be made a great manufacturing and industrial section of the United States, the raw material being found there in unlimited quantities.

TRANSPORTATION.

Arizona has within her borders 1,230 miles of railroads, the Southern Pacific traversing the Territory in the south from east to west and the Santa Fe system in the north. From these two great lines radiate many small feeders. This furnishes transportation to most points in the Territory. Several new lines of railroad are now in actual course of construction. In many of the cities we have electric street railroads. In three of our cities new electric systems are being built and will be completed during the year. Our county roads are the pride of Arizona, and furnish a means of transportation in all parts of the Territory. Hundreds of thousands of dollars have been and are being spent on roads to the mines, and Territorial appropriations for large sums have been made to aid in building public roads and bridges.

PUBLIC INSTITUTIONS.

The Territory has an asylum for the insane, located at Phoenix, on a site containing about 160 acres of good farming land, which is mainly cultivated by the inmates of the institution. The buildings are spacious, well adapted for the purposes intended, and cost the people of the Territory about a quarter of a million dollars. Everything is done that can be done for the care and maintenance of the unfortunate inmates.

An industrial school, located at Benson, was erected at a cost of about $100,000, and is maintained for the care of incorrigible youth.

The Territory maintains a prison at Yuma, which has cost nearly half a million dollars, and is conducted upon the most approved lines for the government of such an institution.

The Territorial capitol at Phoenix, erected entirely at the cost of the Territory, in architectural beauty and general appointments compares very favorably with the capitols of many of the States. The surrounding grounds are beautiful and well kept. All our public buildings are well designed and adapted for the purposes intended and a source of public pride. What will become of these under joint statehood?

GEOGRAPHICAL REASONS AGAINST JOINTURE.

Arizona and New Mexico together have an area of over 235,000 square miles, more than five times the area of New England. From Phoenix, near the center of Arizona, to Santa Fe, the capital of the proposed new State, by rail is 651 miles. It costs $30 and requires twenty-eight hours to get there. From Yuma, Ariz., to Santa Fe is 791 miles, costs $40.25, and requires thirty-two hours to make the trip. (See Appendix for other comparisons.)

Hogback mountain ranges separate most of the settled communities of Arizona from those of New Mexico. The Continental Divide lies in New Mexico, some distance east of the Arizona boundary. The rivers flowing west of it cut through deep canyons, while the general character of the surface of the country becomes more rugged as it rises toward the west. On the Arizona side of these mountains there is an abrupt drop of from one to several thousand feet over titanic cliffs formed by huge tilted blocks. This formation extends north from Steins Pass, where the Southern Pacific crosses in the south, nearly to the Santa Fe in the north, and between these two railroads it is impracticable ever to build a railroad which will shorten the distance and time between Arizona and New Mexico points.

It is unnecessary to dwell on the inconveniences and expense of carrying on a State government under such physical disadvantages with our system of political conventions, State legislatures, etc.

OBJECTION TO JOINT STATEHOOD—CONSTITUTION PROVISIONS.

The Constitution of the United States, Article IV, section 3, provides:

"New States may be admitted by the Congress into the Union, but no new State shall be formed or erected within the jurisdiction of any other State; nor any State be formed by the junction of two or more States or parts of States without the consent of the legislatures of the States concerned as well as of the Congress."

The principles herein enunciated will be violated in uniting the two Territories of New Mexico and Arizona as one State without their consent.

CONGRESSIONAL PROMISE FOR SEPARATE STATEHOOD FOR ARIZONA.

The organic act creating the Territory of Arizona, passed by the Congress during Lincoln's Administration, February 24, 1863, provided:

"That said government shall be maintained and continued until such time as the people residing in said Territory shall apply for and obtain admission as a State on an equal footing with the other States."

It is admitted that the Congress would have undoubted right to change the boundaries of Arizona as a Territory, but we insist that in all justice and fairness the provision of the organic act just quoted was a promise to our people, when they applied for statehood, to be permitted to come in as a separate and independent State on equal footing with the other States. With this promise in their minds, the people then in the Territory, and those who have gone there since, have wrested Arizona from the control of the savage Apache and have also redeemed tens of thousands of acres from the desert by irrigation; have built up a splendid American population of about 175,000, developed wonderful mining and agricultural resources, and the promise made in 1863 should be kept by Congress to the extent of leaving Arizona alone and permitting her to remain at this time a Territory within her present boundaries. Arizona is not applying at this time for admission as a State.

COURTS OF NEW MEXICO CONDUCTED THROUGH SPANISH INTERPRETERS.

In the counties of New Mexico where the centers of population are, the native people of that Territory are of Spanish descent and more than one-half of these people do not speak and understand the English language. In accordance with the jury system in New Mexico, persons who do not speak and understand English are permitted to act as jurors, and because of this the necessity for Spanish interpreters is apparent and the courts in those counties are so conducted, and when a jury case is on every word that is spoken must be translated.

SPANISH INTERPRETER IN THE LEGISLATURE OF NEW MEXICO.

The rule is that the majority of members of legislatures in New Mexico are from the "native" people and the Spanish interpreter is always one of the officers in both houses of the legislature, made necessary because many of the members do not speak and understand the English language.

NEW MEXICO STATUTES.

The statutes of New Mexico are published in the same volume in English and Spanish for the convenience of these people.

DIFFERENCE IN ELECTION LAWS.

Arizona has a primary election law and the Australian system of balloting; New Mexico has not.

DIFFERENCE IN LAWS.

In Arizona we have a code which has its source in the common law. In New Mexico the statutes, to a great extent, are derived from the civil law. This is necessarily so because a majority of the people living in that Territory are descendants from the Spaniards and are accustomed to the laws and usage prevailing in old Mexico and Spain.

ARIZONA JURY SYSTEM.

In our Territory before a person is qualified to act as a juror, either grand or trial, he must speak and understand the English language. This is a statutory provision. In New Mexico there is no such limitation, and, as heretofore stated, persons who do not understand and speak the English language can rightfully sit upon juries. In Arizona no interpreter is used except as in any other part of the United States, when a witness is on the stand and he can not speak English. Arizona's courts are conducted entirely in English. The qualifications for jurors above mentioned should apply to all districts and counties of the proposed new State. In other words, there must be general legislation on this subject. Not for a moment is it to be hoped that this idea will prevail. The native people would not consent and thus deprive themselves of the right of sitting on juries. We submit that it would be special legislation only which would give the Mexicans a continuance of their right to act as jurors, and special legislation would doubtless be prohibited by the constitution of the proposed State.

NEW MEXICO WILL CONTROL THE CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTION.

According to the provisions of the Hamilton bill, in the constitutional convention New Mexico would have sixty-six members and Arizona only forty-four. It will readily appear that the native people of New Mexico, desirous of protecting the rights and privileges which have been theirs for so many years, will see to it that the members of this convention from New Mexico will stand for only such legislation as will continue these special privileges, and the fear of the people of Arizona is that the conditions above mentioned will be continued in the new State. This would destroy our present system of laws and procedure and cause us to meet conditions which it will be admitted are not such as tend to a development of our present system in Arizona. These suggestions of differences existing are not made with a desire or intent of disparaging or condemning the "native" population of New Mexico. Many of these native people who are now in the country known as "New Mexico" were there when it was cut off from the mother country—old Mexico—by the treaty of Guadalupe-Hidalgo, and were brought within the boundaries of the United States without their consent, and they are entitled to have their customs and rights, as they now exist, protected and not be disfranchised because they do not speak and understand the English language; but the people of Arizona should not be placed in a position where they will be subjected to such conditions.

DIFFICULTY OF ADJUSTMENT OF DEBTS.

Certain counties of New Mexico, because of their large indebtedness and small amount of taxable property, are practically bankrupt and their securities at a great discount. Arizona's securities, Territorial, county, and municipal, are well above par and of the highest character. Because of this state of affairs serious financial complications must necessarily arise if joint statehood is established.

TAXATION.

Railroads.—We wish here to emphatically deny the charges which have been made that a corrupt mining and railroad lobby is in Washington endeavoring to defeat joint statehood. The members of this delegation have come here representing the people of Arizona, paying their own expenses, and under no obligations of any character to any particular class in Arizona, with the honest and legitimate object in view of presenting to Congress the reasons why the jointure of these two Territories should not be effected. The condition of assessed valuation of mines and railroads has been given a very prominent place in discussion. We submit that the same difficulties are encountered in securing a proper assessment in Arizona as in other parts of the United States. So far as the railroads are concerned, we suggest this statement, and it is corroborated by the figures in the remarks of Mr. LLOYD, of Missouri, in the House upon the consideration of the Hamilton bill this week, page 1553, CONGRESSIONAL RECORD. The amount of taxes paid by the railroads in Arizona in 1904 was $135 per mile; in Texas, $110 per mile. Hundreds of miles of the Santa Fe Railroad in Arizona pay a tax of $175 per mile under an act of Congress. Continuing to quote from Mr. LLOYD'S statement, on the same page (1553 of CONGRESSIONAL RECORD):

"According to Poor's Railway Manual, 1905, there are 213,828 miles of railways, worth $15,422,873,305. They paid last year $54,325,856 for taxes in the United States, or $254 per mile." These figures indicate that while our Territory is not receiving as much revenue from its railroads as it should, it has received, when real value is considered, about as much as is paid in the States of the Union.

Mines.—The proper assessment of mines has always been a subject for serious contemplation. It is not possible to place the assessed valuation on a mine the same as on a lot in Washington, D. C. It is admitted for the sake of argument that the assessed valuation of mines in Arizona is too low. The difficulty is to discover and enforce an equitable method of assessment. This is true in New Mexico, and is likewise true in States east of the Mississippi. In 1901 the mines in Arizona were assessed at less than $2,000,000; in 1904 they were assessed at $4,440,000; in 1905, at $5,325,000, and increased by the Territorial board of equalization to $14,440,000. It is suggested that by joining Arizona with New Mexico this evil in the assessment of mines will be corrected, and this, too, when, according to the report of the governor of New Mexico, that Territory has $38,500,000 invested in mines, with an output last year of over $5,000,000, and not one dollar of this mining property is assessed. If it is true as alleged that the mine owners control these elected officers under a Territorial form of government, is it not also true that this control would continue under a State form of government? The remedy which has been recently attempted to improve this condition was by the action of the present governor of Arizona and the Territorial board of equalization. The governor is an appointee of the President, confirmed by the Senate, and he in turn appoints this board. This body at its meeting last summer raised the assessment of mines about $9,000,000. The supreme court of Arizona last week decided that this Territorial board had the power to raise the assessed valuation of patented mines. It is apparent, therefore, that an improved condition of the assessed valuation of patented mines was the result of action by officers who were not elected and under a Territorial form of government. If the evils exist as suggested in each of the Territories, then the uniting of these evils would not eradicate them, but make them easier of continuance. To the conservative mind such an argument made in an endeavor to secure joint statehood is lacking in logic and common sense. Let Arizona alone under the Constitution and flag, but as a Territory within her present boundaries, and her intelligent and rapidly increasing population, coming from the best blood of the nation, will work out their own salvation.

In every line of industry, as we have shown, Arizona is making remarkable progress. Her population and wealth are rapidly and steadily increasing. Her agricultural valleys to-day are among the garden spots of the world, and are rapidly filling up with the highest class of home-making citizens. As we have shown, the population of these valleys will be greatly increased when the vast irrigation works now in actual construction by the Government within Arizona's borders are completed and the flood waters stored for the purpose of creating thousands of new homes.

We have referred to Arizona's magnificent forests and the growing lumber industry under the wise control of the Government Bureau of Forestry. The showing in the live stock industry will compare favorably with that of any State in the Union.

We have shown the immense mineral resources of Arizona and the desirable class of home-making citizens in her mining towns and cities, as well as the rapid development of these mining sections along lines of permanent stability. The increase in Arizona's school population during the past decade of over 100 per cent is certainly most significant, and the substantial homes, modern brick schoolhouses and splendid public and private buildings which are being constructed in all of Arizona's towns and cities, and her vast and rapidly developing resources, give the assurance of a future of which not only Arizona but the nation will be proud. When she applies for statehood, as is her right as provided in the organic act, the Congress will find her coming bright and beautiful, fully equipped with population and wealth sufficient to completely satisfy the requirements of every fair-minded American citizen, and worthy to have a star placed in the blue field of our national flag.

APPENDIX.

A list of some of the petitions, protests, and resolutions of the people of Arizona in opposition to joint statehood.

The memorial of the Arizona legislature.
Protest, mayor and common council, Tucson.
Protest, mayor and common council, Phoenix.
Territorial Baptist convention.
Board of supervisors, Yavapai County.
Phoenix and Maricopa Board of Trade.
Tucson Chamber of Commerce.
Miners' Association of Arizona.
Arizona Cattle Growers' Association.
The citizens of Clifton, Ariz.
Protest of citizens of Coconino County.
Protest of citizens of Mohave County.
Protest of Republican central committee.
Protest of Democratic central committee.
Protest of citizens of Clifton, Ariz.
Resolutions, board of supervisors of Cochise County.
Resolutions, annual convention Arizona Cattle Growers' Association.
Resolution, John W. Owen Post, Phoenix, Ariz.
Resolutions, members Central Child Study, Phoenix, Ariz.
Resolution, Business Men and Miners' Association, Wickenburg, Maricopa County, Ariz.
Protest of the Republican central committee.
Protest, Methodist Episcopal Church.
Protest, Methodist Episcopal Church, Maricopa County.
Protest, Presbyterian Church, Phoenix.
Protest, Arizona Federation of Women's Clubs.
Protest, Volunteer Fire Department, Phoenix.
Protest, Bar Association, Prescott.
Protest, Territorial Bar Association.
Protest, mayor and common council, El Paso, Tex.
Protest, citizens, Valparaiso, Ind.
Protest, citizens' mass meeting, Dos Cabezos.
Protest, citizens' mass meeting, Tucson.
Protest, by petition, of 3,200 people at the State fair at Phoenix, obtained in thirty minutes, and a count of all refusing to sign showed less than 2 per cent of the people.
General Sampson obtained in Phoenix 1,200 names of protestants against the bill, and, keeping strict count and making no discrimination, reports that only 7 persons refused to sign.
Protest of Ministers' Conference, Phoenix, January 19.

Table showing distances, time, and fare from points in Arizona to Santa Fe, N. Mex., as compared with Phoenix, the present capital of Arizona.

[The time required to reach Phoenix from Globe and many other points in the Territory now, as shown, is due largely to delays occasioned by lay-overs necessary on account of existing schedules, all of which should shortly be remedied. This condition applies, in addition to Globe, to Bisbee, Douglas, Flagstaff, Holbrook, Naco, Nogales, Solomonville, St. Johns, Tombstone, Tucson, and Yuma.]

From—	To Phoenix.			To Santa Fe via Deming.			To Santa Fe via El Paso.			To Santa Fe via Ashfork.			Highest altitude reached.
	Miles.	Time.	Fare.	Miles.	Time.	Fare.	Miles.	Time.	Fare.	Miles.	Time.	Fare.
		h. m.			h. m.			h. m.			h. m.		Feet.
Bisbee	208	6 47	$11.95	589	24 18	$21.95	582	20 40	$26.80	891	29 6	$42.00	7,228 and 4,614
Douglas	234	8 22	12.70	555	20 15	20.45	556	19 5	26.55	917	30 41	42.75	7,228 and 4,614
Globe	140	14 30	9.55	549	25 12	25.65				791	42 39	39.60	4,357 and 7,228
Flagstaff	254	8 50	14.25							429	14 14	22.10	7,228
Florence	52	2 55	2.80							735	25 14	32.85	7,228
Holbrook	345	15 16	18.45							338	16 31	15.30	7,228
Jerome	180	9 5	10.90							549	23 40	26.05	7,228
Kingman	309	11 15	16.90							602	26 50	27.35	7,228
Naco	303	7 2	11.40				587	20 15	25.55	882	34 57	41.45	7,228 and 4,351
Nogales	247	9 22	13.95	569	25 38	26.55				898	37 31	44.00	4,614
Phoenix				651	28 9	30.05				679	27 55	30.05	7,228
Prescott	137	5 45	8.20							542	22 10	35.50	7,228
Solomonville	226	8 17	12.70							459	21 17	20.20	4,351
St. Johns	415	27 16	24.45							408	28 30	21.30	7,228 and 5,057
Tombstone	170	5 32	10.25	620	22 30	22.85							4,351
Tucson	111	4 2	7.25	540	24 7	23.65							4,614
Yuma	201	8 10	10.20	791	32 12					880	36 5	40.25	4,614 and 7,228

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Colorado asks that the memorial and statement of facts be printed as a document. Without objection, it is so ordered.

REPORTS OF COMMITTEES.

Mr. SMOOT, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 969) granting an increase of pension to Howard Ellis;

A bill (S. 2346) granting an increase of pension to John W. Reed; and

A bill (S. 325) granting an increase of pension to Henry B. Burton.

Mr. SMOOT, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2882) granting an increase of pension to Samuel E. Johnson, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. ALGER, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them each with an amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 2863) granting an increase of pension to Garrett Rourke;

A bill (S. 725) granting an increase of pension to William M. Smith;

A bill (S. 2406) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Milliman; and

A bill (S. 1228) granting an increase of pension to Julia L. Plimpton.

Mr. McCUMBER, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 1604) to amend the act of March 2, 1903, increasing the pensions of those who have lost limbs or been totally disabled in them in the military or naval service of the United States;

A bill (S. 4188) granting an increase of pension to Frank D. Smith;

A bill (S. 4187) granting an increase of pension to Nathaniel E. Skelton;

A bill (S. 4100) granting an increase of pension to Carlton A. Wheeler;

A bill (S. 3866) granting an increase of pension to Samuel J. Burlock;

A bill (S. 203) granting an increase of pension to Edward E. Needham; and

A bill (S. 200) granting an increase of pension to Fredrich Behrens.

Mr. McCUMBER, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them each with an amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 466) granting an increase of pension to James H. Lewis;

A bill (S. 656) granting an increase of pension to Abraham Walters;

A bill (S. 3800) granting an increase of pension to Albert D. Cordner;

A bill (S. 4227) granting a pension to John H. McKenzie; and

A bill (S. 655) granting an increase of pension to Charles E. Bishop.

Mr. McCUMBER, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally with amendments, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 1978) granting a pension to Thomas Edsall;

A bill (S. 4181) granting an increase of pension to Margaret L. Hallett;

A bill (S. 1399) granting an increase of pension to Henry Jordan;

A bill (S. 482) granting an increase of pension to Amos M. Runkle; and

A bill (S. 4020) granting an increase of pension to Henry C. Johnson.

Mr. SCOTT, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 2250) granting an increase of pension to John Rauch; and

A bill (S. 3932) granting an increase of pension to David Rankin.

Mr. SCOTT, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them each with an amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 1624) granting an increase of pension to Peter Betz;

A bill (S. 527) granting an increase of pension to Alfred McPherran;

A bill (S. 1634) granting an increase of pension to Solomon R. Ruch; and

A bill (S. 3031) granting an increase of pension to Frank Westervelt.

Mr. BURNHAM, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 1420) granting an increase of pension to Sarah A. Tyler;

A bill (S. 180) granting an increase of pension to Joseph W. Legro;

A bill (S. 3125) granting a pension to Parthenia W. Baker;

A bill (S. 2840) granting an increase of pension to George L. Jaquith;

A bill (S. 3473) granting an increase of pension to La Forrest C. Darling;

A bill (S. 22) granting an increase of pension to Andrew Smith;

A bill (S. 2091) granting an increase of pension to John P. Bambush;

A bill (S. 2090) granting an increase of pension to Sarah E. Adams; and

A bill (S. 2968) granting a pension to George W. Hale.

Mr. BURNHAM, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them each with an amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 3474) granting an increase of pension to James B. Kellogg;

A bill (S. 790) granting an increase of pension to William Benkler;

A bill (S. 1173) granting an increase of pension to James M. Fernald; and

A bill (S. 19) granting an increase of pension to Alphonso B. Holland.

Mr. PILES, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (H. R. 10582) granting an increase of pension to Oscar B. Caswell;

A bill (H. R. 10258) granting an increase of pension to Elias Smith;

A bill (H. R. 10007) granting an increase of pension to Appleton Gibson; and

A bill (H. R. 8649) granting an increase of pension to William Bode.

Mr. OVERMAN, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 3888) granting an increase of pension to Susan E. Israel, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them severally without amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 3547) granting an increase of pension to Stephen M. Davis;

A bill (H. R. 11302) granting an increase of pension to John R. Cotton;

A bill (H. R. 9104) granting an increase of pension to Henry Brown; and

A bill (H. R. 10459) granting a pension to Alta M. Westenhaver.

Mr. TALIAFERRO, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1739) granting a pension to Henry Sistrunk, reported it without amendment, and submitted a report thereon.

He also, from the same committee, to whom was referred the bill (S. 2153) granting an increase of pension to Helen Read, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. PATTERSON, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom were referred the following bills, reported them each with an amendment, and submitted reports thereon:

A bill (S. 1527) granting an increase of pension to John M. Odenheimer;

A bill (S. 3310) granting an increase of pension to Richard M. Ogle;

A bill (S. 597) granting an increase of pension to David M. Pearson; and

A bill (S. 589) granting a pension to Joseph L. Prentiss.

Mr. PATTERSON, from the Committee on Pensions, to whom was referred the bill (S. 1138) granting an increase of pension to Albert S. Blake, reported it with amendments, and submitted a report thereon.

Mr. CLARK of Wyoming, from the Committee on the Judiciary, to whom were referred the resolutions of the Great Eastern Lodge, No. 4, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, of Portland, Me., and others, favoring the passage of the bill (S. 1657) relating to liability of common carriers by railroads in the District of Columbia and Territories and common carriers by railroads engaged in commerce between the States and foreign nations to their employees, asked to be discharged from their further consideration, and that they be referred to the Committee on Interstate Commerce; which was agreed to.

RAILROAD DISCRIMINATIONS AND MONOPOLIES.

Mr. TILLMAN. I am instructed by the Committee on Interstate Commerce to report a joint resolution and ask for its immediate consideration. I would want to discuss the joint resolution briefly, and therefore I ask that we may recur to this order of business after the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE], who gave notice of his intention to speak this morning, has been heard. I do not want to interfere with that Senator, but the committee is anxious to have the joint resolution acted upon.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from South Carolina reports from the Committee on Interstate Commerce a joint resolution.

Mr. TILLMAN. My request is that the Chair will not at this time have the joint resolution laid before the Senate, but allow the Senator from Massachusetts, who had given notice of a desire to speak this morning, to proceed, and as soon as he finishes then I should like to have this order of business recurred to by unanimous consent, in order that I may present the joint resolution and have it read, be given an opportunity to say something about it, and have it acted upon.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. After the routine morning business——

Mr. TILLMAN. After the Senator from Massachusetts has concluded his remarks.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. After the routine morning business is closed the Senator from Massachusetts will be recognized, and after he has concluded his remarks the Chair will recognize the Senator from South Carolina to make report of the joint resolution from the Committee on Interstate Commerce.

BILLS INTRODUCED.

Mr. HEMENWAY introduced a bill (S. 4318) granting an increase of pension to H. S. Bennett; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4319) granting an increase of pension to Frederick C. Sturm; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BLACKBURN introduced a bill (S. 4320) for the relief of certain members of the National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. LATIMER introduced a bill (S. 4321) for an addition to the public building at Greenville, S. C.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. TALIAFERRO introduced a bill (S. 4322) to increase the limit of cost of the United States post-office and land office at Gainesville, Fla.; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Buildings and Grounds.

Mr. MORGAN introduced a bill (S. 4323) for the relief of Henry O. Bassett, heir of Henry Opeman Bassett, deceased; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Claims.

Mr. BULKELEY introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 4324) granting an increase of pension to James H. Noble;

A bill (S. 4325) granting an increase of pension to Jabez Miller; and

A bill (S. 4326) granting an increase of pension to Joseph A. Clark (with an accompanying paper).

Mr. MARTIN introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 4327) for the relief of Tilman Jeter (with accompanying papers);

A bill (S. 4328) for the relief of the Methodist Protestant Church; and

A bill (S. 4329) for the relief of the vestry of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, of Alexandria, Va.

Mr. FULTON introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 4330) granting an increase of pension to Charles J. Jenkins; and

A bill (S. 4331) granting an increase of pension to George Morrison.

Mr. KEAN introduced a bill (S. 4332) to correct the military record of James Danielson; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

Mr. SCOTT introduced a bill (S. 4333) granting an increase of pension to Albert S. Scroggins; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. ALLEE introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 4334) granting an increase of pension to Alfred J. Rumford; and

A bill (S. 4335) granting a pension to George W. Farquhar.

Mr. PILES introduced a bill (S. 4336) to establish a light and fog-signal station at the entrance to Resurrection Bay, Alaska; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4337) granting an increase of pension to Barney McGirl; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. CARTER introduced a bill (S. 4338) to authorize the President to classify and allot Indian reservations and restore to the public domain the surplus unallotted lands; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs.

Mr. CLARK of Wyoming introduced a bill (S. 4339) to amend section 4502 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, relating to bonds and oaths of shipping commissioners; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Commerce.

Mr. NELSON introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on the Judiciary:

A bill (S. 4340) to amend section 1026 of the Revised Statutes of the United States, relating to review of questions of law in criminal cases; and

A bill (S. 4341) relating to the right of review in criminal cases.

Mr. HANSBROUGH introduced a bill (S. 4342) to provide an excise board for the District of Columbia, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. CLARK of Montana introduced a bill (S. 4343) granting a pension to John W. Miller; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. BURROWS introduced a bill (S. 4344) granting an increase of pension to William R. Bartlett; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4345) granting an increase of pension to J. Dillon Turner; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. WETMORE introduced a bill (S. 4346) granting an increase of pension to William E. Holloway; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. WARREN introduced a bill (S. 4347) to authorize the appointment of a United States commissioner for the Shoshone or Wind River Reservation, in the State of Wyoming, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on the Judiciary.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4348) for the relief of Augustus Trabing; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Claims:

A bill (S. 4349) for the relief of James I. Patten; and

A bill (S. 4350) for the relief of Arthur A. Underwood.

Mr. GALLINGER introduced a bill (S. 4351) for the relief of Horatio McIntire; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4352) for the removal of snow and ice from the paved sidewalks of the District of Columbia, and for other purposes; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on the District of Columbia.

Mr. PENROSE (by request) introduced a bill (S. 4353) to amend an act to provide revenue for the Government and to encourage the industries of the United States; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Finance.

He also introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 4354) granting a pension to Elizabeth S. Taylor;

A bill (S. 4355) granting a pension to Anna E. Hetherington; and

A bill (S. 4356) granting an increase of pension to Thomas Allen.

Mr. PENROSE introduced a bill (S. 4357) to amend an act entitled "An act to regulate the immigration of aliens into the United States," approved March 3, 1903; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Immigration.

Mr. McCUMBER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 4358) granting an increase of pension to Thomas McCormick;

A bill (S. 4359) granting an increase of pension to Mary E. Lincoln;

A bill (S. 4360) granting an increase of pension to John P. Dunn;

A bill (S. 4361) granting an increase of pension to John W. Daley; and

A bill (S. 4362) granting an increase of pension to William Fleugel.

Mr. FORAKER introduced a bill (S. 4363) granting an increase of pension to Charles W. Stratton; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Pensions.

Mr. HALE. I introduce a bill to reorganize and increase the efficiency of the personnel of the Navy and Marine Corps of the United States. It is a bill which has been prepared mainly, not entirely, in the Navy Department. There are certain provisions in it to which I do not agree, but in order that the whole subject-matter may come before the proper committee I introduce the bill and ask that it be referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

The bill (S. 4364) to reorganize and increase the efficiency of the personnel of the Navy and Marine Corps of the United States, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Naval Affairs.

Mr. SPOONER introduced the following bills; which were severally read twice by their titles, and, with the accompanying papers, referred to the Committee on Pensions:

A bill (S. 4365) granting an increase of pension to Mathew Kerwin; and

A bill (S. 4366) granting an increase of pension to Henry B. Willhelmy.

Mr. DANIEL introduced a bill (S. 4367) for the relief of Mrs. C. N. Graves; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Claims.

He also introduced a bill (S. 4368) to authorize the United States Government to participate in the Jamestown Tercentennial Exposition on the shores of Hampton Roads, in Norfolk County, Va., in the year 1907, and to appropriate money in aid thereof; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Select Committee on Industrial Expositions.

Mr. CLARK of Wyoming introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 30) to create a commission to examine into the subjects of citizenship of the United States, expatriation, and protection abroad; which was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Mr. FORAKER introduced a joint resolution (S. R. 31) authorizing the Secretary of War to award the Congressional medal of honor to Peter B. Cupp; which was read twice by its title, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

AMENDMENTS TO BILLS.

Mr. SMOOT submitted an amendment proposing to appropriate $600,000 for constructing and completing irrigation systems to irrigate the allotted lands of the Uncompahgre, and Uintah, and White River Utes, in Utah, intended to be proposed by him to the Indian appropriation bill; which was referred to the Committee on Indian Affairs, and ordered to be printed.

Mr. PILES submitted an amendment relative to the detail of Capt. William N. Hughes, United States Army, retired, for duty at East Florida Seminary, Gainsville, Fla., intended to be proposed by him to the army appropriation bill; which was ordered to be printed, and, with the accompanying paper, referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

PROHIBITION AGAINST WEARING OF UNIFORM.

On motion of Mr. PENROSE, it was Ordered, That there be printed for the use of the Senate document room 200 copies of the bill (H. R. 13551) to prohibit the wearing of the uniform of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, or Revenue-Cutter Service of the United States, etc., first session Fifty-ninth Congress.

COMMITTEE SERVICE.

Mr. PATTERSON. Mr. President, about ten days ago I was appointed to the Committee on Privileges and Elections. I accepted the appointment with some protest and a very great deal of reluctance. Since the appointment was made I find that on account of the mass of other business in connection with other committees to which I must give my attention, it is utterly impossible for me to give that degree of attention to the business which is before the Committee on Privileges and Elections that the great importance of the question before the committee requires. For that reason, I ask unanimous consent that I may be permitted to resign from service on that committee.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Colorado asks unanimous consent to be relieved from further service upon the Committee on Privileges and Elections. Is there objection to the request? The Chair hears none, and the resignation is accepted.

Mr. BLACKBURN. I ask that the junior Senator from Tennessee [Mr. FRAZIER] be assigned to the vacancy just made upon the Committee on Privileges and Elections.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Kentucky asks unanimous consent that the junior Senator from Tennessee [Mr. FRAZIER] be appointed to fill the vacancy upon the Committee on Privileges and Elections. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and it is so ordered.

REGULATION OF RAILROAD RATES.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President, I ask that resolution No. 61, now on the table, may be laid before the Senate.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Massachusetts asks unanimous consent that the resolution submitted by the Senator from Georgia [Mr. CLAY] January 18, 1906, may be laid before the Senate. Is there objection? The Chair hears none, and the resolution is before the Senate. The resolution will be read.

The Secretary read the resolution, as follows:

Resolved, That in the opinion of the Senate there is a governmental power to fix maximum future charges of carriers by railroad, vested in the legislatures of the States with regard to transportation exclusively within the States and vested in Congress with regard to all other transportation.

Although legislative power, properly speaking, can not be delegated, the lawmaking body having enacted into law the standard of charges which shall control may intrust to an administrative body not exercising in the true sense judicial power the duty to fix rates in conformity with that standard.

It is the duty of Congress to provide by law that all interstate rates shall be reasonable and just, and then to delegate to the Interstate Commerce Commission the power to ascertain what rates are reasonable and just, and to enforce its findings, this power to be exercised in reviewing rates already put in operation by the roads and on complaint.

Mr. LODGE. Mr. President, Coleridge, in his "Table Talk," said on one occasion:

I have heard but two arguments of any weight adduced in favor of passing this reform bill, and they are in substance these: 1. We will blow your brains out if you don't pass it; 2. We will drag you through a horsepond if you don't pass it; and there is a good deal of force in both.

In the discussion about railroad rates which has been going on during the past year I have been frequently reminded of Coleridge's words and I have come fully to appreciate the justice of his saying that there is much force in what may be called the "knock-down and drag-out" mode of argument. But if there is some excuse for reasoning of this robust kind when a country is on the edge of revolution, as England was in 1832, it is curiously inappropriate to a question which is not the vital and yet simple one of obtaining a larger freedom and more genuine popular representation, but which is intricate to the last degree and complicated with every variety of perplexing details as well as with the gravest economic difficulties.

Impressed by the magnitude and the importance of the railroad question, I have for some months devoted such ability as I may possess to studying it in its various phases and to an earnest endeavor to understand the conditions of the problem. Startled at the outset at the extent of my own ignorance and the difficulty of the subject, I have been soothed as I proceeded by the growing conviction that the question was not understood thoroughly, if at all, by many of those who had awed me by the ease with which they disposed of it and by the glib way in which they offered solutions so compact and simple that they could be uttered as confidently as if they were established aphorisms instead of mere fractions of truth, often more misleading than complete misstatements.

I am very certain that my own inquiries, which have been diligent, although, I am only too well aware, very far from exhaustive, have not enabled me to master the problem; but they have disclosed to me very plainly the many political, economic, and legal questions which rise up at every stage of this investigation. I have also been brought to certain very definite conclusions of a general nature beyond which lies a wilderness of details, all important, all more or less serious, upon which I should enter with hesitating steps. Yet I shall venture to state the general conclusions at which I have arrived, because I think the subject one which is in such great need of full and dispassionate public discussion that even the most imperfect effort to arrive at the truth, if honestly made, will not be without value.

I began my inquiries with the firm belief that there were serious defects in our methods of carrying on railroad transportation which had given rise to injustice and to discrimination productive of grave evils in the body politic and economic. I also believed that these evils must be met and cured, if they could be cured, by Government regulation and supervision wisely applied, unless we were prepared to see a movement toward Government ownership, which, if successful, I should regard as an unmitigated disaster and one fraught with the destruction of the institutions and principles of government under which we have risen to greatness as a people and which we all revere and love. These beliefs have been strengthened by all that the study of the problem has taught me. Yet I have learned at the same time that the matter can not be dealt with as a simple question of right and wrong, and that success depends absolutely on the manner, the measure, and the form of the legislation by which we seek a solution of the difficulty. The vital point is not what we desire to do—upon that all thoughtful men are agreed—but how we are going to do it, and there we come to wide divergence of opinions.

The second conclusion which I reached, and I reached it very soon, was that since the foundation of the Government there have been very few questions before Congress more serious or more momentous than the one involved in this measure. This may seem an exaggerated, if not an extreme, statement, and yet I believe it to be well within the bounds of sober truth. Economically there is nothing which approaches in importance our system of transportation with the single exception of the maintenance of a sound money standard. Tariffs and banks, rates of duty, and internal taxes are trifles compared to our system of transportation, whether we consider the advantages which are produced by a good system or the evils which may flow from a bad one. Like the money standard, the transportation of people and of freight comes home, sensibly or insensibly, to the daily business and the daily life of almost every member of the community. Moreover, while it touches and affects the individual, it is also the chief factor in the general prosperity, as well as in the ability of the country to obtain its due share in the markets, the trade, and the commerce of the world. To deal with this great question wisely and successfully will tend to promote the well-being and prosperity of millions of human beings. To make a mistake in dealing with it will not only cause commercial and financial disaster of a magnitude almost beyond computation, but will involve possibilities of political change and of alterations in our principles of government the gravity of which can not be overestimated. The subject, therefore, is one which must be approached without rhetoric and without partisanship, soberly, discreetly, with a full sense of its vast importance, and with a thorough realization that the action of Congress is capable of having the most far-reaching effect upon the welfare of the people and upon the future of the United States.

It must also be remembered at the outset that in no country in the world do railroads occupy the same place which they have occupied in America. Steam and electricity have produced throughout the world a revolution, social, political, and economic, which can not be paralleled in its effect upon the human race except by that wrought in the condition of mankind through such discoveries as those of the control and application of fire, or the invention of the wheel, the origin of which is lost in the mists of time. In the earliest civilizations, in those of Egypt, Chaldea, and Assyria, which modern archæology is laying bare before our wondering gaze, we find men already possessed of all the means of transportation which were practically known to the world less than a hundred years ago. Land transportation was carried on by men or animals and water transportation by sail or oar. Power was supplied in the one case by the muscles of men or animals, in the other by muscular force or by the winds of heaven. So deeply was this fact impressed upon the human mind that we still reckon the motive power of steam and electricity in terms of the horse. Seas, rivers, and canals in the earliest times of which we have historic record furnished the waterways, and rude trails trodden out first by the feet of men or horses and developed gradually into constructed roads and paved streets supplied the land routes. From the dawn of history to the beginning of the nineteenth century there was no change in these methods of transportation. There was a slow improvement in seagoing vessels, but it seems probable, if not certain, that the roads of the Roman Empire furnished a better and more complete system of transportation and communication than was to be found in Europe in the Middle Ages or even as late as the eighteenth century. In means and modes of communication and transportation, which not only influence profoundly human society, but upon which that society largely rests, the men who fought at Waterloo were nearer to those who fought at Thermopylæ than they were to those who engaged in battle at Gettysburg, at Sedan, or at Mukden.

The Old World, therefore, in the course of centuries, reached its commercial and trade development on land through the construction of roads which were public works and which were slowly built by the combined efforts of the community. This country, on the other hand, was only in the earliest stage of its economic development when the application of steam to water and then to land transportation gave us first the steamboat and presently the railroad. By means of the railroad we were able to conquer, to open up, and to develop a continent, a task which with this new device occupied years where under the old system it would have consumed centuries. It is the railroads which have made the rapid yet solid development of the United States possible, and without them it may well be doubted whether the Union of States, covering so vast an area, and the subsequent political consolidation of the country would have been possible. With us, except along the Atlantic seaboard, and in later times on the Pacific coast, transportation and communication were obtained through railroads alone, except in those limited and detached regions where lake or river steamboats could be employed. We are the only country almost in the world which over great spaces has omitted the long preliminary stages of the building of highroads and has established on a large scale complete transportation and communication by the agency of rails and steam alone. We have been, therefore, in the past, and we are to-day, more dependent for our economic existence and for our civilization upon railroads than any other nation. If proof of this fact were needed, it can be found in the fact that there are more miles of railroad within the limits of the United States than there are in all Europe—more than in Europe, Africa, and Asia combined—nearly one-half of all the railroad mileage of the world.[a]

[a] I append the latest figures, as given by one of our leading statisticians in a recent letter to the New York Sun:

THE RAILROADS OF THE WORLD—THIS COUNTRY AHEAD BOTH AS TO MILEAGE IN OPERATION AND RECENT AND PRESENT GROWTH.

To the Editor of the Sun.

SIR: The United States leads the world both in the present mileage and recent growth of its railways, says the Department of Commerce and Labor, through its Bureau of Statistics, in a monograph just issued entitled "The transportation routes and systems of the world."

The total railway mileage of the world in 1904 was 534,000, mainly distributed as follows:

United States	211,074
European Russia	35,323
Germany	32,967
France	28,102
India	26,950
Austria-Hungary	24,120
United Kingdom	22,634
Canada	19,611
Africa	15,560
Australia	14,113
Argentina	11,559
Mexico	10,356
Italy	9,961
Brazil	9,368
Sweden	7,697
Siberia, Manchuria, and other Russian Asia	7,322
Japan	4,495
China	1,176

By that schedule we see that the United States in 1904 had 21,367 miles more railway than had European Russia, Germany, France, India, Austria-Hungary, the United Kingdom, and Canada combined. Or, to put it another way, the United States had 112,206 more miles of railway than all the other Anglo-Saxon countries of the world, namely, the United Kingdom, India, Canada, Africa (counting it all British), and Australia, combined.

The growth of the present railway system of the United States has been little short of marvelous. It was not until 1835 that it reached as much as 1,000 miles, being 1,098 miles in that year. Note the growth since then:

	Miles.
1850	9,021
1860	30,026
1865	35,085
1875	70,096
1885	128,320
1895	181,115
1905	217,328

There are two very striking facts to note here: First, that in spite of the civil war 5,059 miles of railway were built during that unhappy period; second, that in the ten years following our railway mileage was doubled.

During the latest year for which statistics are available, says the monograph, the railways of the United States carried, as compared with 1885:

	1885.	1904.
Freight.....tons..	437,000,000	1,300,000,000
Passengers	351,000,000	720,000,000

Reckoning our population at 80,000,000 in 1904, it is as if every man, woman, and child in the country made nine steam railway trips during the course of that year and also moved 16¼ pounds of freight.

The reduction since 1865 of railway freight rates in the United States is also remarkable, as illustrated by the fact that wheat by lake and rail has fallen from 29 cents to 5 cents; by railway only from 40 cents to 11 cents.

It will be noted that our railway mileage grew 6,254 miles between the summer of 1904 and the winter of 1905, and it is still growing, with no indication of its growth being checked for several years to come; on the contrary it bids fair to have a larger growth each succeeding year.

WALTER J. BALLARD.

SCHENECTADY, January 18, 1906.

There can be no greater proof of the energy and intelligence of the American people, of the genius which has been displayed in the construction and management of the railroads, and of the success which has attended these efforts than the fact that the United States exists in all the plenitude of its wealth and power to the admiration of the world to-day. Of all the nations of the earth, then, it surely behooves us more than any other to exercise the utmost care and the highest wisdom of which we are capable when we come to deal by law with that system of land transportation to which we owe so much and upon which such incalculable interests depend.

It is not worth while to consume time in demonstrating the right of the Government to legislate for the regulation of railroads. The highroads of antiquity and of modern times alike are public roads. The railroads which have so largely taken their place, although, as a rule, not built by the community, are likewise in the broadest sense public roads, because they perform the functions of the highroad, and those who operate them are common carriers. They are moreover the creatures of legislation, the possessors of great gifts and privileges conferred upon them by the public, and it is idle to suggest for a moment that they can set up any claim to deal with their property and their commodity of transportation with the same unrestricted freedom as the shopkeeper, the manufacturer, or the merchant, who enjoys no franchise from the state and who does not belong to a class like common carriers, who, by the very nature of their employment, have always been held to come peculiarly within the scope of the law.

The right of the Government, therefore, to regulate and control the operations of a railway system being uncontested, the only question for the law-making power to consider is how that right shall be exercised. Both in theory and in practice this question has received answers which range from Government ownership to complete abstention from any interference with the railroads of any kind whatever. The last extreme of entire noninterference, if it can properly be said ever to have existed, is now entirely abandoned, while the other extreme, that of Government ownership, has been widely attempted. In this country we have leaned toward the minimum of interference, but with the enormous expansion of railroads since the civil war there has been a constantly increasing movement toward railroad regulation. It is not my purpose, nor is it necessary, to trace the history of this movement. It has not been a steady and continuous progress, but has spread and advanced with sudden bursts, followed by corresponding periods of indifference and inaction. Most of the States have enacted railroad legislation and established a greater or less degree of control over the operation of railroads within their several boundaries. In many States this legislation has been wise and well considered, has proved of great benefit both to the railroads and to the public, and has practically put an end to agitation and discontent. In many other States the legislation proceeding apparently upon the theory that men could be compelled by law to carry on the business of transportation for the benefit of other people at an annual loss to themselves has been violent and injurious, detrimental both to the people and the business of the State as well as to the railroads, and has fortunately been usually brought to naught by the wisdom and courage of the courts.

This same feeling which produced the State laws finally found, as was to have been expected, national expression in the interstate-commerce act of 1887. After more than twelve years' experience with this law as interpreted by the courts, the movement began again for further and more stringent legislation. This resulted in the last Congress in the passage of the law commonly known as the "Elkins Act," which was directed toward the abolition of rebates, and under this law and the interstate-commerce act of 1887 we are living at the present time. The question now before us involves a further extension of the interstate-commerce act, and in order to enlarge and change that act intelligently the first step is to determine what the exact evils are from which we are suffering and then how these evils can best be eradicated without opening the door to new ones caused by remedies which are worse than the disease. The evils complained of in our system of operating and managing railroads, and from which the public suffers, may all practically be covered under one of three heads.

These three classes of grievances are:

1. Discrimination between persons,
2. Excessive rates, and
3. Discrimination between localities.

I will deal with them in their order.

By discriminations between persons I mean discriminations between individuals, or between corporations, or between a corporation and an individual, by which one shipper is charged a lower rate than another for the performance of precisely the same service. These discriminations are commonly known in this country as "rebates" and in England as "undue preferences." A very large proportion of all the injustices complained of and of all the grievances alleged comes under this head, and nothing is more important than to cure and, if possible, finally root out the undoubted evils which exist in and which have been caused by these personal discriminations or rebates. That they should be so far as possible extirpated both by law and by the thorough enforcement of law seems now to be universally admitted. Yet, despite this general agreement, both as to the existence of the evil and the wisdom of a radical cure, nothing stands so much in the way of intelligent legislation as the prevalent confusion of mind as to what precisely these personal discriminations are and the consequent failure to distinguish them from discriminations between localities. In nine cases out of ten, when I have talked with anyone who was very eager for general railroad legislation and especially for Government rate making, I have found that the special grievance complained of was a personal and not a place discrimination. Such a failure to distinguish between the two kinds of discrimination draws with it inevitably a corresponding failure to understand that the remedies for the two kinds of discrimination must be totally different. This distinction is vital, because arguments either for or against Government interference, which apply in one case, have no application whatever in the other. It is obvious that a simple law against rebates would have and can have no effect either on excessive charges or upon discriminations between localities. It ought to be, but apparently is very far from being, equally obvious that a law to prevent excessive charges or discriminations between localities would have no effect whatever in stopping rebates or personal discriminations. The essence of the evil in the rebate or personal discrimination is the inequality of charge to individual users of the railroad for performing precisely the same service. A charge may be excessive and yet equal; it may be discriminating as between places and at the same time perfectly equal to all individuals or corporations; but the rebate, which favors one man as against another for the performance of the same service, must be unjust and wrong, as it is usually secret and sometimes corrupt.

The personal discrimination or rebate consists and must consist in giving to a favored individual, firm, or corporation a lower rate than that established, published, or ordinarily exacted from other firms, individuals, or corporations for rendering the same service. A rebate, or personal discrimination, in other words, is an evasion—necessarily a secret evasion—of a fixed rate. Therefore fixing a rate, whether the fixation is done by the Government, by a traffic association, or by the railroad itself, is no remedy whatever for an offense which can not be committed unless there is already a fixed rate to be evaded. If we had no law as to railroad rates upon the statute books, the passage of a law giving to the Government authority to establish maximum, or maximum and minimum, or specific, or even simple distance rates, would have no effect whatever upon rebates and personal discriminations. They could go on in secret just the same as before if anyone was willing to break the law. As it happens, we have a stringent law recently passed against rebates. That law fixes a rate by making the published rate, whatever it may be, the only lawful rate, and yet many advocates of additional railroad legislation declare that this law has not stopped rebates. In so saying they seem oblivious of the fact that they thereby admit that a rate fixed by the Government fails to prevent discrimination between persons. If fixing one rate by Government fails to achieve the desired result, fixing another in another way will not do it, for the essence of the discrimination is in the evasion, not of one particular fixed rate, but of any rate which has been fixed in any way. In other words, Government rate making is not, and in the nature of the case can not furnish, any remedy by and of itself for personal discriminations or rebates.

The evasion of the established rate for the benefit of a favored shipper, which constitutes a discrimination between persons, therefore, must be dealt with not by general legislation as to rates, but by an ample provision for punishing those who violate the law. I regard these discriminations between persons, or rebates, as by far the greatest evil now existent in connection with our railroad systems and as one of the most fruitful in wrong and injustice with which we have to deal. It is upon these personal discriminations that the great trusts, whose operations have not only alarmed the people but have made them justly indignant, have been built up. Without the rebates which they have extorted from the railroads the monopolies, either partial or complete, which they have created in certain cases, and the abnormal increase in prices which they have sometimes brought about, would have been well-nigh impossible. The rebates have been a wrong and injustice to the people and a serious injury to the railroads themselves. I do not think that it would be possible to pass legislation too drastic for the purpose of stopping these discriminations between persons. We have a law now upon the statute books which, so far as prohibition can go, ought to be sufficient. It undoubtedly has largely checked rebates, but it has not stopped them entirely. To make the law thoroughly efficient we ought to add, in my judgment, three provisions. We should restore the former penalties of the interstate-commerce law—which should not have been repealed—and make these secret evasions of the published rates punishable by imprisonment. The men who perpetrate these evasions in defiance of the law suffer but little by a fine, even if it be a heavy one. Their resources are too large to make a money penalty a serious one. For this very reason they are persons who would feel acutely a punishment by imprisonment, and that penalty ought to be provided in any law which we pass.

A second addition to the present law which we need is a provision to facilitate the procuring of evidence by the law officers of the Government. This defect has been pointed out by the Attorney-General in his report, and I think nothing is more requisite than a clause enabling the proper authorities to examine the books of the railroad companies whenever they have good reason to think rebates are being granted. A third and last addition should be the enactment of suitable provisions in regard to private car lines, switching charges, private sidings and tracks, elevator charges, midnight rates, and all the various and ingenious arrangements now employed to cover up the grant of rebates. Unless we can efficiently deal with these devices for making discriminations between persons our legislation will fail, and the fact that elaborate and carefully drawn provisions will be needed in order to render the law effective in this direction should not deter us from undertaking this particular branch of the work, for without it our other provisions would be in large measure futile. If, then, we provide an adequate penalty, arm the law officers with the means necessary to obtain evidence, and overcome the ingenious devices to cover rebates now in use, I think personal discriminations will cease and that the greatest evil which has grown up under our railroad system will come to an end. That the eradication of rebates is not impossible or in the least impracticable is proved by the experience of England, where "undue preferences" are practically unknown and where the railroads are most reliable in the payment of dividends, showing that the abolition of rebates and personal discriminations would be to the railroads a solid benefit instead of a fancied injury.

I come now to those cases of complaint included in the second class under the head of excessive rates. In this direction the complaints are the fewest in number and there is less ground for them in the United States than anywhere else. That there are occasional instances of excessive rates no one will deny, but these are exceptions which prove the existence of the rule, and the rule is that American freight rates as a whole are the lowest in the world. I will place here, and I desire to call especial attention to it, a table giving the average of American rates in comparison with the average of rates in other countries.

Year.	United States.	France.	Germany.	Austria.	Hungary.	Italy.	European Russia.
1870	1.89	1.78	----------	----------	----------	a1.95	----------
1880	1.23	1.68	----------	1.81	----------	1.97	----------
1890	.94	1.54	1.34	1.39	1.38	1.64	1.14
1891	.90	1.51	1.33	1.36	1.28	1.63	1.06
1892	.90	1.51	1.33	1.33	1.25	1.63	.95
1893	.88	1.48	1.32	1.32	1.25	1.63	.99
1894	.86	1.47	1.32	1.31	1.25	1.63	1.00
1895	.84	1.45	1.32	1.30	1.24	1.63	.98
1896	.81	1.44	1.32	1.32	1.27	1.63	.95
1897	.80	1.42	1.29	1.27	1.26	1.63	.89
1898	.75	1.39	1.27	1.23	1.25	1.60	.86
1899	.72	1.35	1.24	1.22	1.27	1.58	.87
1900	.73	1.32	1.22	1.24	1.25	(b)	.84
1901	.75	1.33	1.23	1.24	1.26	(b)	----------
1902	.76	1.33	1.22	1.26	1.24	(b)	----------

a For 1872. b Data not comparable with earlier years.

This table shows, what I have already stated, that our railroad freight rates are the lowest in existence. Mr. Acworth, who is not only an expert as to English railroads, but a most distinguished authority on railway economics, stated in his testimony before the Interstate Commerce Committee that English statistics were so defective that it was hard to get a comparison with our rates. He testified, however, that while he thought their rates were better than ours up to 25 or 30 miles, on all longer hauls it was his opinion that our rates were two or three times lower than those in England above that distance. If the long were averaged with the shorter hauls it would make our rates much lower than theirs throughout. The railroads of the United States, moreover, paid on the average in 1904, according to Poor's Manual, 2.92 per cent upon all the capital invested, a very small return. No reasonable man expects the railroads to carry on business without proper and fair remuneration, and these figures show that the average return on capital invested in railroads is very low indeed. The fact that rates are lower here than in any other country and that, as the table given above shows, they have steadily declined, taken in conjunction with the very moderate returns on the capital invested in railroad property, is proof sufficient that there can be but little suffering from excessive rates and that when rates have been excessive they can not have been of long continuance except under very peculiar conditions. It may, I think, be safely asserted that if there was no grievance to be dealt with except excessive rates there would be no need of any legislation whatever. We could safely leave the cure of excessive rates to the law of competition among the railroads themselves, and where there were no competing lines to the competition of markets, which no consolidation nor combination of roads can do away with. If cases of excessive rates which neither the competition of roads nor of markets could reach still remained, the conditions which made them possible would be so rare that they would of necessity be few in number and could be relieved by a resort to the remedy of the common law, which has always recognized the obligations of common carriers and held them to account.

This brings me to the third class of complaints—those arising from rate discrimination between localities. These complaints are numerous and widely scattered, but they are sporadic, they are not uniform, and they are generally inharmonious among themselves, the wrong denounced by one community being not infrequently precisely the redress which is demanded by another. That evils in the form of place discriminations exist can not be disputed, but the difficulty of finding a remedy for them seems to me very serious. Indeed, the further I have proceeded in such investigation of the subject as I have been able to make the graver the difficulty has appeared. The preventive legislation directed against rebates deals always with a single case, each case constituting a violation of the statute, and in result only brings back the rate lowered through favoritism to the rate already established by publication. But when a rate discrimination between places is altered it may and probably will affect thousands of other rates and change the conditions upon which business of enormous magnitude and extending over vast areas is transacted. This single consideration illustrates at once the difficulty of finding a proper remedy for the injustices arising from place discrimination.

Nevertheless, in the way of remedy for discriminations between localities only one method is suggested, and that is to take more or less completely the rate-making power from the railroads and give it to the Government. It seemed to me, after reading many assertions and some arguments on both sides as to the probable effect of transferring the rate-making power wholly or in part to the Government, that more satisfying than any prediction and more instructive than any speculative conclusion would be the results of actual experience in government rate making which have been adopted and carried on in many forms and in all degrees of stringency in other countries.

I desire, therefore, briefly to review the practice and effects of government rate making in some of the principal countries of Europe and in Canada and Australia.

I will begin with England. It is not necessary to trace the whole course of English legislation in regard to railroads. It is sufficient to say that after much discussion and many experiments of a partial nature England finally, in 1888, passed an act recasting and consolidating all the old maximum rates which had been gradually established as each railroad had been constructed. In 1893 another act was passed which imposed a further limitation, to the effect substantially that no rate could be increased within the maximum rates unless the railway commission was satisfied that there was good reason for allowing it. The condition in England, in brief, then, since 1893 has been this: There is a statutory maximum highly elaborated and providing for a rate on different classes of goods from each point in the Kingdom to every other point. There is also a provision that rates should not give an undue preference to one trader over another, and, lastly, that no increase shall be made in the rate if anybody objects unless good cause can be shown before the railroad commission court, as it is called, presided over by one of the judges of the highest court. In practical operation we find that within the limitation of the maximum rates, which are so high that they have no practical effect, the railroads carry on the business much as they do here, except that there are no undue preferences and that no attempt has been made to prevent the locality discrimination which arises under long and short hauls. In other words, there are rates to competing points lower than the rates to intervening points where there is no competition and where the distance traveled is less.

It has apparently been found impossible in practice to do away with these discriminations arising from the long and short hauls and the inevitable effect upon the rates of competing points. The interference of the Government in England has been moderate and in a large degree tentative, and yet all the evidence we have shows that even this very limited interference has not had a good effect on business and has brought in evils at least as serious as those which it sought to cure. Mr. Acworth said in his testimony:

> As to rate making, I have no doubt that the interference of Parliament and courts and the executive has all tended to stereotype and keep rates at an unnecessarily high level. Speaking as an individual student, I have no doubt that leaving the power to make rates generally and primarily to the railroads and to the free play of the business forces is the process that will arrive at the best results for the community, with this exception: That I fully think it is necessary that the community in some way should interfere to protect all customers from unfair treatment.

In other words, Mr. Acworth, who is one of the highest living authorities on railway economics, believes that the power of rate making, if undue preferences—that is, rebates—are abolished, as has been done in England, should be left very largely and under very slight limitations to the natural working of economic forces. The result, practically, of the very moderate legislation which they have adopted in England has been to make the rates almost wholly inelastic. No railroad dares to lower a rate, if it can possibly be avoided, because of the restrictions imposed by law on increasing the rate when it becomes necessary. The result is that rates in England have not, as a rule, declined; and while our rates show a decline of 41.7 per cent as against a 24.3 per cent fall in prices, it is apparent that in England prices have fallen faster than rates, owing to the fixed character given to rates by legislation.

To sum what we may learn from the English experience, we find that the provision against increasing rates has prevented the reduction of rates; that undue preferences or rebates have been successfully stopped; that discriminations between localities exist, and that the long and short haul discriminations are not interfered with. It therefore appears that in England the rate making by Government, so far as it has gone and so far as it affects discriminations between localities, has had either no result or has prevented rate reductions. To quote from Mr. Acworth's book, The Elements of Railway Economics, page 158:

> The legislation of the years from 1891 to 1894 has done much to prevent any natural and gradual lowering of rates. A railway company is still free to lower. It has ceased to be free to raise. A manager may desire to lower a rate, hoping thereby not only to benefit trade, but also, by increasing largely the volume of traffic, to increase his own net earnings. But it is only a hope. In the nature of the case certainty is not attainable in advance. A prudent manager, therefore, will not, unless his hope is closely allied with certainty, lower a rate when he must face a lawsuit before he can put it up again.

In considering the English experience and trying to learn from it it is well to remember that it is the gentlest and most limited form of rate making by government which has been attempted in any foreign country, and yet we see that its principal outcome has been to prevent rate reductions and that rates have not fallen in England in anything like the proportion in which they have declined in the United States.

In France nearly all the railroads are in private hands; there are 26,148 miles in private operation and 1,726 operated by the State. The regulation of rates by the Government is very stringent, amounting practically to Government rate making. If a railway company wishes to raise or lower a rate, application must be made to the minister of railways. The minister then transmits a copy of the application to the prefect of the department, who notifies the local chamber of commerce, who have one month in which to file a reply. The evidence thus obtained is then submitted to the railway advisory council, who report upon it to the minister of railways, who then rejects or grants the request. This system has not done away with discriminations, but, on the contrary, has developed a new set, largely unknown to us and based on peculiar principles. The distance rate being found impracticable here as elsewhere to the point of impossibility, tapering rates have been introduced and carried to a point of elaboration probably beyond that attained in any other country. There are also many special rates devised to meet the needs of trade and industry. In fact, local discriminations exist in full force just as with us, only they are made by the clumsy, slow-moving governmental machinery instead of by the railroads themselves. The influences which govern the railroads in making rates are self-interest primarily, and secondarily, the competition of markets and the development of new territory. In France the influences are local and political, and these influences struggle for the control of the advisory council. Some years ago the railway representation on the council was diminished and that of the river and canal owners was increased, which illustrates the nature and working of the forces which strive for supremacy. What concerns us, however, is not the contest for control, but the practical results of this form of governmental rate making. Some of the decisions made and policies adopted are illuminating. As a rule, the council does not allow a railroad to reduce rates to a point which it reaches by a longer haul than another and rival road. This, no doubt, does away with making higher rates to intervening than to competing points, but it is accomplished by destroying competition to the point where it would otherwise exist. The council has also decided, and this practice now has the power of law, that railways must not reduce rates below 20 per cent above the rates on competing waterways. This strange policy is, of course, due to the pressure of the navigation interests, supplemented by local and political influences.

The results, briefly stated, of the system which these decisions illustrate have been to make rates inelastic, to keep them high, and to drive business to the waterways, where it is carried on by 300-ton boats drawn by horses, in order to find a free movement for freight. It will be seen by the table that the average charge per ton per mile in France was, in 1902, 1.33 cents as against 0.76 of a cent in the United States. Since 1870 rates have declined in the United States from 1.89 cents to 0.76 of a cent and in France from 1.78 cents to 1.33 cents. The level of prices in France between 1879 and 1897 has fallen 19 points and freight charges only 15 points, of which 13 were between 1887 and 1897. In the United States the decline of prices between 1880 and 1900 has been, in round numbers, 25 points and in freight charges 42 points. In other words, prices have declined in France faster than freight charges, and in the United States freight charges have declined nearly twice as fast as the general level of prices. Since 1881 the waterways in France have been gaininig steadily, and the average traffic density of the waterways carrying 95 per cent of the waterborne traffic was nearly twice the average traffic density of the French railways. The Government has recently carried a credit of a hundred million dollars to build additional canals, and this makes it to the Government's interest to prevent the lowering of railway rates where there is water competition. Summing up, we find that under stringent Government regulation in France rates are high and inelastic, that the movement of freight is so impeded that traffic is reverting to the river, the canal, and the towing path, and that discriminations between localities exist just as they do here, but are made by the Government in obedience to local, financial, and political influences, which exert power in proportion to the pressure they can severally bring to bear.

In Germany, the Government operates 29,473 miles of railway as against 2,815 miles in private operation, just reversing the proportion in France. Practically all the German railroads are controlled by the Government, either by direct ownership or stringent regulation, and nowhere has the problem of government management been more thoroughly studied or more elaborately worked out than in Germany. The main influence originally in bringing about Government ownership was political, the purpose being to promote the consolidation of the Empire, but the discriminations made by railways in favor of competing points also played a large part. Nothing is more instructive than to study the German system and the numberless problems with which the Government has endeavored to deal when it had once entered upon the policy of substituting law for the play of economic forces. An earnest and most intelligent effort has been made to meet every conceivable contingency by legislation, and like most such efforts this one has failed to foresee all the difficulties which a perverse world, fruitful in difficulties, can produce. It would be impossible for me to attempt here more than a brief outline of the German system and its results, but there is an extensive literature on the subject both in German and English which well repays examination.

Roughly stated, the German Government rate is composed of a dispatch fee increasing up to 62 miles and a mileage charge decreasing with the increase of distance. The principle is that of the distance rate, tapered moderately according to the number of miles traveled. Nothing on its face could be simpler or fairer, but the way it works out in practice is by no means either simple or fair. There are various classes of rates established, called ordinary tariffs, which consist of—

1. The less than one carload rate;
2. The express rate—double the former;
A1. Shipments of not less than 5 metric tons;
B. Shipments of not less than 10 metric tons.

Then there are four special classes applicable to specified articles—

A2. Shipments of between 5 and 10 metric tons, and I, II, and III, shipments of not less than 10 metric tons; the articles being roughly classified as follows:

Class I includes high-priced articles such as manufactures and grain, the latter for the benefit of the farmers.

Class II, semimanufactured articles.

Class III, low-priced goods or raw materials.

These classes all get reductions at special rates. But there is a further reduction by what is known as "preferential rates," which are "applicable to agricultural and industrial products intended to facilitate imports and exports and increase the traffic of the country."

The official British report on the Prussian railways states that not less than 63 per cent of the freight goes under preferential rates, about 17 on special rates, and only 20 per cent under the ordinary rates or regular tariff. Thus it will be seen that instead of doing away with discriminations government rate-making in Germany has resulted in giving discriminations of one sort or another to 80 per cent of all the freight carried. Even more interesting than the figures are the reasons for these reductions as stated in the same report. The reductions are made, first, as bounties to certain interests; second, as export bounties; third, for competing with foreign transportation; fourth, to support certain special important industries, such as the shipbuilding industry, the Silesian textile industry, and the beet-sugar industry, by conveying their raw materials at cheap rates; fifth, as a special fuel tariff; sixth, for the alleviation of distress due to bad harvests, floods, etc. It will be seen at a glance that these reductions can not be governed by economic reasons, but are, in the main, brought about by the pressure of political and industrial interests, and there must be, and indeed there is, a constant struggle between these interests to secure for each its share of the favors of low rates.

At the same time the railroads of Germany are managed as a revenue-paying branch of the Government, and the determination of the Government to make the railroads yield income tends to keep the rates high and inflexible, except so far as they are modified by preferred and special rates. What the general effect has been is shown by the enormous growth of traffic on the waterways. In 1875 there were 290,000 ton-miles of freight carried per mile of waterway and 410,000 ton-miles per mile of railway. In 1900 the ton-miles of freight per mile of waterway had risen to 1,150,000 and on the railways to only 740,000 ton-miles. In other words, the result of Government management in Germany has been to drive traffic back to the waterways in order to obtain a free movement for freight. There has been a great struggle in Germany for a further development of canals, and the Government proposed a bill in 1900 to spend no less than 339,000,000 marks for new canals. This bill was defeated, but none the less the canal and river business has continued its enormous development. It is a striking commentary on government rate making that both in France and Germany traffic is being driven from the railways back to the waterways, which were used by men for transportation for thousands of years prior to the invention of steam.

As Germany has worked out government rate making more thoroughly than any other country, it is worth while to take one or two concrete instances in order to show the precise operation and result of discriminations when made by the Government. From 1877 to 1888 the charge for hauling grain remained at something over a cent and a half per ton mile. The agricultural interests of eastern Prussia then petitioned the Government to reduce this charge 66 per cent. The Government replied that it would be an inequitable departure from the scheme of uniform rates, because it would benefit the landowners of eastern Prussia at the expense of those of central and western Prussia, whose markets would then be open to eastern grain. In 1891 the charge was reduced to a little over a cent a ton mile on hauls between 23 and 187 miles. The amount of grain for long hauls increased rapidly, but the government of Saxony protested that their farmers and millers had a natural right to supply the Saxon demand, and should not be interfered with by the Prussian farmers and millers. Bavaria, Wurtemberg, and Baden followed suit, and millers on the Rhine also protested that it would interfere with their business of milling foreign grain, and that they had a natural right to the business of Rhenish Prussia. The result was that in 1894 the old rate of over a cent and a half a ton mile was restored and the various localities of Germany were again shut up by this arrangement of rates to the local producers, who claimed the natural right to their home market.

To take another example, the Ruhr district, which lies east of the Rhine and north of Cologne, is the great coal, iron, and steel producing region of continental Europe. Two hundred and twenty-six miles to the southwest lies what is known as the "Saar district," which is also an iron and coal producing region. The Ruhr district needs some of the ores of the Saar district to supplement its industry, but the railway rates are such that it can not import them, and it brings the ores it requires from Norway and Sweden. The Saar district, on the other hand, needs the coke of the Ruhr district, but owing to the system of railway rates is cut off from it. The Saar district is shut out of the markets of eastern Germany, but it has a practical monopoly of the steel trade with southern Germany and Switzerland. In similar fashion the iron and steel products of the province of Silesia have a monopoly of the trade of Silesia and the points of eastern Prussia. It will be seen that the iron trade of Germany is shut up in districts, and competition in the home product is destroyed except so far as it is maintained by the operation of the waterways.

To take another example; from the center of the Roumanian wheat and corn district it is 1,440 miles to Magdeburg, and the railways should be able to carry wheat and corn over that distance for $4.75 a gross ton. In the United States wheat is moved for much less over similar distances, but owing to the railway rates of Germany and Austria the wheat of Roumania goes down the Danube 475 miles to the Black Sea, thence 4,765 miles by sea to Hamburg, and thence 185 miles up the River Elbe to Magdeburg. The total charge for a shipment is $6.66 a long ton, or 50 cents a ton more than it costs to carry wheat from Duluth to Magdeburg, and yet it is much cheaper than the railway charge for carrying wheat 1,440 miles direct by rail from Roumania to the Elbe district of Germany. There is no need to multiply examples to show how government rate making in Germany has hampered the movement of traffic and the course of trade. Every analysis that is made, whether into the sugar industry, the commerce in oil, the trade of the different ports, or anything else, all alike exhibit the same results in impeding freight movement, inclosing different areas with what amounts to high tariff barriers and driving traffic to the waterways for relief.

Taking next the test of cost, it will be seen from the table already given that the average freight charge per ton per mile in cents is 1.22 in Germany as against 0.76 in the United States. Even more significant is the comparison with the level of prices. In Germany, between 1880 and 1899, prices fell 17.6 per cent and railroad rates 14.7 per cent. In the United States prices fell 24.3 per cent and railway charges 41.7 per cent. It is difficult to express the importance of this contrast or adequately to state the vast importance to the business and well-being of the country involved in the fact that our railroad rates went down nearly twice as fast as prices. Nothing, in fact, could demonstrate so clearly and beyond cavil our superiority in railroad management to the rest of the world.

To sum up the results from this brief review of German experience. We find that in Germany Government rate making and management have been carried out with an elaboration and scientific thoroughness unequaled anywhere else. The result has been the abolition, practically, of rebates or personal discriminations and the multiplication of all other discriminations, extending not only to localities, but to industries, character of articles, and the final destination of the freight. The outcome of this system of discrimination has been to sectionalize Germany and draw tariff barriers around certain regions or districts, and the discriminations have been brought about by the pressure of political, local, and industrial interests, have been taken up by political parties, and have played a large part in national politics and in the legislation of the Reichstag. It is also apparent that, although Germany has managed to make a profit on her railroads, the transportation efficiency is low, the railroads are run with great disregard of public convenience, and rates are 50 per cent higher than our own and are inelastic.

In Germany, which has Government operation practically throughout, and in France, which has very little Government operation and complete Government control of lines privately owned and operated, we find all the important and characteristic features which government rate making and ownership exhibit anywhere. The same results as those I have noted in France and Germany are apparent with unessential modifications in Austria-Hungary, in Italy, and in the smaller European states. It is therefore unnecessary to do more, in considering the experience of other countries, than to glance at Russia, Canada, and Australia, because they all present the element of great area, and Australia and Canada that of recent settlement, which are common to the United States, but which are not found in England or in western Europe.

With an area nearly three times that of the United States, Russia has only (1904) 43,774 miles of railroad as against our 212,000. These figures are an impressive expression of the difference in economic energy between the American people and the people of Russia, and are also instructive as to the comparative value of individual enterprise and that of the military and religious socialism which has hitherto been the Russian system. The State itself in Russia owns and operates over 65 per cent of the railways and is increasing its ownership. In 1887 the council of state asserted the right of the State to regulate all railway rates, so that practically all freight rates in Russia, whether on Government lines or those operated by private persons, are fixed by the Government. The rates in Russia, as will be seen by an examination of the table, approach, on the average, more nearly the average of the rates of the United States than in any other country. This is due to the fact that most of the freight in Russia consists of grain and other articles of large bulk, and that hauls are long hauls as in this country. The low average is also due to the fact that the Russian railways are run at a loss and show a deficit. It is perhaps needless to say that it is comparatively easy to obtain low rates if the railroad is run at a loss, but in order to do this it is necessary to have somebody make up the deficit, and this can only be done in the case of government-owned roads by the taxpayers being forced to make good the losses of operation. Even with this great advantage of running the railroads at a loss the Russian average rate is still higher than the rate in the United States, where the railroads are run at a profit. This illustrates incidentally the inferiority of government management, which is further shown by the fact, sufficiently obvious to anyone who has traveled in Russia, that the railroad lines are laid with slight reference to economic demands, but apparently chiefly for military or strategic reasons. The towns which the railroads are supposed to serve often lie many miles from the line, involving a long haul by carts in order to deliver freight to the railroads. This making the towns and distributing points eccentric to the railroad lines, which extends also to whole areas of population, adds, of course, enormously to the expense of the freight movement, although it does not show itself directly in the rate charged for the railroad transportation alone.

These conditions, it is true, bear more upon the incompetence of government management than upon the effects of government rate making, but if we examine even in a most general way the course of freight rates upon grain, the principal production of Russia, we can see at once the evil effects of the government rate making. Grain is the great product of Russia and it is immensely important to Russia to promote its export. Without going into details, it is enough to say broadly that there has been a protracted struggle between the Government, which has desired, very naturally, to aid in the export of grain, and the local interests, which have objected to low rates on long hauls because it would affect unfavorably the price of grain in those areas to which these local interests felt that they had a natural right. To put it concretely by an example, the landowners and farmers of central Russia have objected strenuously to low rates on grain from remote points, because it tended to lower the price of grain in the region which they claimed a natural right to supply. There has been a long conflict between these opposing elements and there have been many ups and downs in the arrangement of rates, and yet, although Russia is an autocracy, the pressure of the local interests, political and financial, has been so strong that they have usually prevailed and the long-distance rates have been kept up in such a way as to hamper the movement of grain, to cause congestion of the grain supply in certain places, to force down the price in remote districts, and to raise the price at the port of export. The great grain fields of Siberia have been largely shut up, to the enormous injury or that region, by the successful and zealous opposition of local interests in old Russia. The famines which have occurred in certain parts of Russia when crops have failed in those regions have been in large measure due to the difficulty of moving grain, caused by the rates as well as by the ill-arranged railway lines which have not been able to bring grain cheaply from different parts of the Empire. If we had had rates in this country handled as the rates in Russia have been handled by the Government, the great wheat-growing region of the West could never have been developed, for the farming regions of the East would never have permitted rates to have been made which would have enabled the grain-growing States west of the Mississippi to enter the eastern market in the manner in which they have entered and taken possession of it. Had this course been followed in the United States the great farming population which has given to the East their market for manufactures could never have been built up, any more than it has been possible to build up effectively the vast grain-growing region of Siberia.

This is a mere outline of the results of government rate fixing upon the great staple of Russia, but it is enough to show how government rate making, oscillating one way and another under the pressure of local interests, has impeded the freight movement and arrested the development of the country. We find also in Russia, as we do in Germany and France, the same resort to the rivers and waterways in order to secure the free movement of freight. It is not necessary to analyze further the Russian experience. Government rate making has not removed discriminations, but has merely substituted for those which are necessitated by economic forces, and which in the long run balance each other and cure themselves, hard and fast discriminations made by the Government under the pressure of local, political, and industrial interests.

In Australia we have not only a large country with long hauls, but a new country, and the result of government control there is an interesting one. The great business of Australia is to bring the wool from the interior to the seaports and take back the supplies and manufactures needed by the inhabitants of the sheep-raising, farming, and mining districts. The result has been that the railroad question in Australia has largely resolved itself into a struggle between the various seaboard cities, which constitute one-half the population, for favoring rates. In other words, the conflict in Australia is, in the main, on the question of port differentials. The recent confederation of the colonies came very near being wrecked on this question of rates to the various ports. It was got over by a compromise, which, so far as an outsider can see who reads the reports, settled nothing. It was agreed that there should be no preferential rates, but that there could be differentials; the preferred were defined as illegitimate reductions, and differentials as legitimate. To each colony also was left the right to make rates on their own railroads, and it seems as if the struggle was only postponed and that under the confederation the conflict must break out again whenever it is sought to determine what discriminations are legitimate and what are illegitimate. The system adopted in making rates has been that of tapering, and the result of this has been to concentrate business in the seaboard cities and to abolish all interior basing or distributing points. Basing and distributing points are of great value, because they decentralize, and the Australian rates as arranged tend to cause too high centralization. The absorption of population in the seaboard cities is considered by the statesmen of Australia to be a great evil. There can be no doubt that the movement of population toward concentration in Melbourne, Adelaide, and Sydney set in before there was much extension of the railway systems, but there is no question that it was highly stimulated by the government establishment of tapering rates.

Roughly speaking, the picture which is presented to us by Australia is that of a large population at the ports and a scattered population of farmers, sheep growers, and cattle raisers in the interior, no interior cities and towns with independent life and commerce, and the growth of urban population at a few points, which throws out of balance the entire body politic. There is no doubt that this situation in Australia and the failure of the country to advance in population is not due to the railroad system alone, but it is equally certain that the system of railroad rates fosters tendencies which all the best judges of conditions in Australia deeply deplore. It will be observed that government rate making in Australia has not done away with discriminations between localities. On the contrary, it has substituted another and more injurious discrimination and has embedded it by process of law in the economic existence of the country. It will also be observed that, whatever the cause, this new country has failed to build up the interior as we have built up the vast interior regions of the United States. To put it a little differently, government rate making in Australia, if it has dispensed with evils of which we complain here, has opened the door and assisted the growth of evils much more serious in their nature and much more detrimental to the sound and healthy development of the country.

In Canada they have a railway act which confers powers of the most sweeping kind upon a government commission. The act was not assented to until October 24, 1903, and has not been in practical operation for much more than a year, so that it is almost impossible to draw any conclusions as to its workings. It is worth notice, however, that the act contains two clauses which show that the commission has full power to make discriminations:

DISCRIMINATIONS.

2. The tolls for larger quantities, greater numbers, or longer distances may be proportionately less than the tolls for smaller quantities or numbers, or shorter distances, if such tolls are, under substantially similar circumstances, charged equally to all persons.

3. No toll shall be charged which unjustly discriminates between different localities. The board shall not approve or allow any toll which, for the like description of goods or for passengers carried under substantially similar circumstances and conditions in the same direction over the same line, is greater for a shorter than for a longer distance, the shorter being included in the longer distance, unless the board is satisfied that owing to competition it is expedient to allow such toll. The board may declare that any places are competitive points within the meaning of this act.

It is also worthy of notice that despite the fact that the act gives almost autocratic powers for rate making it has been discovered that it does not cure discriminations. The question came up in a debate in Parliament last April, and it was then pointed out that Canadian railroad rates were much higher than American rates and that Canadian shippers were thereby handicapped in the market. It was also declared that freight from Michigan procured lower rates over Canadian lines than similar freight from points in Canada, although the Canadian points were nearer the port of destination.

The act has been in operation so short a time that it is not possible to make deductions of value, but it is already apparent that it has not cured discriminations but has produced others of a similar nature, as has happened in all other countries where government rate making has been attempted. The act, in fact, recognizes that discriminations must be made, and proposes to transfer them from the workings of economic forces to the action of a government board. There is no reason to suppose that the results in Canada under such a system will be different from the results under similar conditions in all other countries.

If now we review the experience of all other countries, taken as a whole, we find a singular uniformity of result so far as general principles are concerned. This examination shows us that it is not only entirely possible to abolish all discriminations between persons—that is, all rebates or undue preferences—but that this has been actually and effectively accomplished in other countries. It is not necessary to differentiate between the methods employed in the several countries, for whether, as in England, railroad regulation has been effected through the establishment of a railway commission court, or, as in France and Germany, by the simple operation of direct government control, the conclusion on this point is the same. It is proved beyond a doubt that personal discriminations can be utterly extirpated, and if it has been done in other countries it can be done here by suitable legislation.

On the second point of excessive rates the experience of other countries demonstrates that whatever good effects government rate making has had it has not lowered rates, but, on the contrary, has made them not only higher but inelastic. Where, as in Russia, rates are low, although not so low as ours, the railroads are run at a loss and the loss is made good out of the pockets of the taxpayers. In England, with maximum rates fixed by Parliament in a schedule and the prohibition against raising rates without the consent of the railway commission court, the rates are higher than ours, inelastic, and do not decline in accordance with the fall of prices, or, indeed, in any substantial degree.

On the continent of Europe generally rates are 50 per cent higher than ours and show the same quality of inflexibility and the same lack of adaptation to changing conditions which we find in England. We have the lowest average freight rates in the world, and yet our railroads are run at a profit without, of course, a dollar of expense to the taxpayer. Government rate making in this country—directed as it can only be against place discriminations and excessive rates—therefore, if the experience of all the rest of the world is of any value, and I regard it as conclusive, would either not reduce the rates at all, or, if it did reduce the rates generally, it would destroy the profits of the roads and lower the wages of those employed upon them unless we accepted the other alternative of Government ownership, with the roads run at a loss and the people taxed to carry them on. The idea of many persons who have been urging Government rate making in this country appears to be that Government rate making will lower freight rates. In seeking popular support that is one of the inducements they hold out, and yet it is as clear as anything can possibly be that it will be impossible to reduce rates arbitrarily and suddenly by Government action without destroying the profits of the railroads and lowering the wages of those employed upon them, or else forcing Government ownership and placing upon the shoulders of the taxpayers the gigantic burden of running 200,000 miles of railroad at a loss. So far as excessive rates alone are concerned, it seems to me perfectly obvious from the experience of other countries that there should be no legislation, because if legislation is attempted the results will be disastrous in ultimately raising rates and in making them inflexible, and will produce a far worse condition than now exists under the play of natural forces.

The third and last point is that of discrimination between localities. The experience of other nations shows that government rate making has not stopped discriminations in the slightest degree. It has substituted discriminations made by the Government for the discriminations which are brought about by economic forces, the competition of markets, and the action of business interests. It hardly, I think, needs argument to show that discriminations forced in this way through political action would be peculiarly unfortunate in the United States, and that the combinations of political interests would make discriminations, which would be in the long run more oppressive than those which come into existence by the natural competition of business interests and the working of economic forces. That discriminations which arise in what may be called the "natural" way have in some instances been created to serve the selfish ends of individuals intrusted with the management of railroads is undoubted, but the history of our railroad development shows that these are constantly being reduced in number, and that the laws of competition and the necessity of earning money are certain to cure them in the long run. Moreover, the discriminations which exist in what may be called the "natural" way have the immense advantage of not leading to those results so apparent in Germany, where the pressure of local and political interests has forced the establishment of rates which have broken the country up into sections and thrown around each section a barrier higher than those which any tariff could create, in obedience to the entirely false principle that any given town or city or any given area of country is entitled by its neighborhood to the sole possession of the region and the population immediately surrounding it.

That discriminations between localities exist under our system, which work injustice, it would be folly to deny, but it would be a still greater folly to establish a new series of discriminations, working a larger injustice, in the hope of curing the original inequalities. To get rid of the inequalities which exist is eminently desirable; but it is much better to submit to those than to create more and worse inequalities by another system which experience has proved to be worse. In this direction, therefore, it seems to me that we ought to proceed with the utmost caution. Whatever attempt to remedy place discriminations we may make, we should so guard it as to avoid applying a remedy far worse than the disease. The experience of the world leads me to doubt most seriously whether any Government rate making, with a view to curing place discriminations, can be affected without bringing a change for the worse; but if it is to be tried at all it ought not to go beyond the fixing of a maximum rate by the Commission, with the most absolute protection against hasty or prejudiced action through provision for an appeal to the courts of the country. This certainly is as far as we can safely go, unless we are prepared to disregard entirely all the teachings of experience and all the wisdom of those who are authorities upon railway economics.

In closing this consideration of the lessons of experience in regard to the relation of the railroads to the Government I wish again to insist upon the magnitude of the problem. I am not arguing this question because I am a friend or an enemy of the railroad. I have no personal interest in railroads whatever. Such small interests as I once had I parted with before I took up the study of the subject in order that I might be wholly free from any conceivable bias. I am looking at the railroad system simply as one of the greatest forces in our modern economic life, upon which the prosperity of the country and its trade and commerce are more dependent than upon any other. It is in this way and with this spirit that Congress should approach the discussion of this question. Many of those who are loudest in denunciation of the railroads, and who assume to speak for the people of the United States, confuse their own personal hostilities and, in some cases, their own desire for revenge with the public interest, which has no grudges to satisfy and which seeks only to promote the general welfare. Even the shippers who especially cry out for sympathy, it is well to remember, have shared, in some instances at least, in the rebates and personal discriminations which could not have existed without their seeking and collusion, and mistake occasionally the disappointment caused by a failure to secure preferences themselves for a righteous indignation which aims solely to redress a public wrong. It is the fashion with many persons to talk about the railroads as if they were a great mechanical monster, a Frankenstein, which was striving to devour the people of the United States who created it. This is a false and misleading conception. The President of the United States, in his message to Congress on December 3, 1901, said:

> It must not be forgotten that our railroads are the arteries through which the commercial lifeblood of this country flows. Nothing could be more foolish than the enactment of legislation which would unnecessarily interfere with the development and operation of these commercial agencies.

Not only is this statement of the President profoundly true, as indicating the part which the railroads play in our commercial and industrial life, but it must also be remembered that the idea so sedulously disseminated, that the railroads are merely the property of a few men and run for their selfish interests, is without foundation in fact. The vast capital invested in railroads and distributed in the form of stocks and bonds is held by thousands of persons, many of whom have most moderate means. These securities largely constitute the securities of savings banks, in which are laid up the hard-won earnings of the working men and women of the country, and if we injure or destroy these securities we only affect slightly the great capitalists, but we bring misery and misfortune and poverty to thousands of persons whose little all, either in their own names or that of the savings banks and the trust companies, has been placed in the railroads of the country. It is well also not to forget that the high-paid men who are at the head of the great lines of road are but a handful in comparison with the great body of people who earn a secure but modest livelihood in the operation of railroads. There are between two million and a half and three million of people whose livelihood is dependent upon railroads. To force by ill-considered legislation a reduction in the earnings of this great body of people would be a cruel injustice, but that is just what we shall do if we do not consider well the steps we take.

The prosperity of the country is knit up with the well-being of the railroads, but it is also to be remembered that the profitable existence of the railroads depends upon the prosperity of the country. There is no body of people—and they constitute one-seventh of our population—so profoundly interested in the prosperity of the United States as the people, great and small, who own our railroads, who operate them, and who work for them. It is preposterous to suggest that the railroads of the country are hostile to its well-being and eaten up by a short-sighted selfishness which would lead them to destroy any industry or injure any locality. We all want to see the waste places built up, but no one desires it so much as the owners and managers of our railroads. We all want to see the settled and established sections of the country thrive, but to the railroads the well-being of such places is a matter of life and death. The great cry of the moment is the need of foreign markets. The expansion of our foreign trade in the last nine years has been marvelous, but that which has enabled us to enter into foreign markets more efficiently than any other one element has been our system of railroad transportation. If you cripple that system, if you force it into the position of the systems of Europe, you end at once all prospect of successful competition in the markets of the world. A sudden and ill-considered revolution in our methods of railroad management would bring on a business panic, reduce wages, and probably carry disaster to our trade and commerce in a degree which it is impossible to estimate.

For those reasons we should proceed with the utmost care. I consider it essential that we should have proper legislation in regard to the railroads, that there should be Government supervision and regulation, that we should stop the intolerable abuse of rebates or discriminations between persons, because if we do not we may find ourselves precipitated into that worst of all disasters, Government ownership. But it is equally essential that the legislation we undertake should not itself lead to Government ownership, the dangerous pitfall we are seeking to avoid. It is vital that this legislation should succeed, but it can only succeed by being effective against the evils which it can cure, while it proceeds with the utmost care in those directions where experience has shown that some of the remedies now proposed have introduced evils far more unbearable and far more injurious than those which it was sought to remedy.

Two dangers seem to me to menace this legislation. The first is that in the desire to have rates fixed in some form by an executive commission, exercising powers delegated to it by Congress, we shall fail to give an effective remedy for the worst evil which has arisen, that known as "personal discriminations." Whatever else governmental rate making can do, it can not by the mere fact of its existence do away with an offense which consists in the evasion of an established rate. The result of a failure to deal with what, to my mind, is the real and, I am strongly inclined to believe, the only real evil of the present conditions would be to discredit the law, convince the people that it was insincere, and thus promote an agitation in favor of that worst of all evils, Government ownership. Whatever else is done or left undone, no pains should be spared to render the law effective for the absolute extirpation of personal discriminations or rebates. That which is to be feared as to rebates is that the law will not go far enough and will not be intelligently effective.

The second danger which is involved in this legislation is that the rate making by the Government, which can only affect excessive rates and place discriminations, will go too far and will bring on evils far more serious than those it is designed to cure. The lessons to be learned from the experience of other nations confirm this view and admonish us to proceed in this direction with the utmost caution. We should not go too far in rate making by Government—surely not beyond conferring the power upon an executive commission to make maximum rates. The Commission charged with this great duty, upon the just performance of which the stability of business and of credit, as well as the welfare of thousands of people will so largely depend, should be established and organized with the utmost care. In tenure and salary the office of Commissioner should be made acceptable to men of the highest character and ability, and the chairman of the Commission should, as in England, be taken from among the judges of our circuit courts.

Finally, there should be ample provision for an appeal to—or, more properly, a review by—courts of competent jurisdiction sitting in equity, not only as to whether the rate is confiscatory, but also whether it is just and reasonable, and an arrangement should be made by law for the rapid disposition of all such cases.

All these conditions, as I understand it, are laid down in the legislation recommended to Congress by the President of the United States. In his message of December 5, 1905, he says:

> In my judgment the most important provision which such law should contain is that conferring upon some competent administrative body the power to decide, upon the case being brought before it, whether a given rate prescribed by a railroad is reasonable and just, and if it is found to be unreasonable and unjust, then, after full investigation of the complaint, to prescribe the limit of rate beyond which it shall not be lawful to go—the maximum reasonable rate, as it is commonly called—this decision to go into effect within a reasonable time and to obtain from thence onward, subject to review by the courts.

Last autumn, on October 22, 1905, a distinguished member of the Administration, the Secretary of War, speaking at Akron, Ohio, said:

> These results convinced those familiar with the law and anxious that it should operate effectively, that the two changes necessary were, first, a provision authorizing the Commission in declaring a rate to be unreasonable to declare at the same time what was a maximum reasonable rate, and to make an order requiring the company to reduce its rate to that maximum; and, second, that the law should, under proper penalty, require obedience to the order of the Commission and thus compel the carriers to treat the order with proper respect, reserving to them the opportunity to avoid its operation by a resort to the Federal court, and a setting aside of the order by judicial supersedeas or final decree. * * *
>
> The two short amendments to the present law I have just described are all that the President has recommended to Congress. He regards them, for the reasons I have attempted to state, as essential to an effective interstate-commerce law.

A little later the distinguished Senator from Pennsylvania, very recently a member of the President's Cabinet and a most eminent lawyer, speaking, as it was understood, with the approval of the President, said at Pittsburg on November 5, 1905:

> There is no order that can be made by any commission or board now existing, or which it is proposed to create, that can change a rate or practice that is unreasonable or unjust without its order being subject to review in a judicial proceeding in the United States circuit court upon the ground of the unreasonableness of the order of the commission, and there is no law that does and probably no law could be enacted that could prevent the court, if satisfied that injustice had been done the railroads, from staying the operation of the order upon terms until the court had passed upon the merits of the controversy. * * *
>
> No device can cure the objection to suspending the operation of the Commission's finding until passed upon by the court. Of course I do not mean that, in an independent proceeding begun in the court, the court could not, in the exercise of its discretionary powers, when satisfied that the rate fixed by the Commission was unlawful, enjoin its operation until a final hearing. That is a power that inheres in the court that need not be conferred by statute and probably can not be taken away by statute. * * *
>
> The Commission should have the power, if it finds the complaint well founded, to declare what shall be a just, fairly remunerative, and reasonable rate or practice to be charged or followed in place of the one declared to be unreasonable. * * *
>
> This order of the Commission should take effect within such reasonable time as shall be prescribed by the Commission in the order, and should be final, subject only to attack for unlawfulness in the Federal courts, where it would have to stand or fall upon its merits.

A year ago what was known as the "Esch-Townsend bill" came over from the House, containing in the first section the following clause:

> But at any time within sixty days from date of such notice any person or persons directly affected by the order of the Commission, and deeming it to be contrary to law, may institute proceedings in the court of transportation, sitting as a court of equity, to have it reviewed, and its lawfulness, justness, or reasonableness inquired into and determined.

This clause, which fully embodies the principle of review by the courts, had the nearly unanimous approval of the House of Representatives.

The distinguished Member of the House who has had charge of the bill which has just passed that body, introduced last year a bill which contained the following provision:

> But any common carrier affected by the order of the Commission, and deeming it to be contrary to law, may institute proceedings in the court of commerce of the United States, sitting as a court of equity, to have such order reviewed and its reasonableness and lawfulness inquired into and determined. Pending such review, if the court shall be of opinion that the order or requirement of the Commission is unreasonable or unlawful, it may suspend the same until the further order of the court, in which event the court shall require a bond of good and sufficient security, conditioned that the carrier or carriers petitioning for review shall answer all damages caused by the delay in the enforcement of the order of the Commission, which shall include compensation for whatever sums for transportation service any person or corporation shall be compelled to pay pending the review proceedings in excess of the sums such person or corporation would have been compelled to pay if the order of the Commission had not been suspended.

Speaking of his bill on February 9, 1905, Mr. HEPBURN said:

> I have had in the preparation of the bill that I have the honor to present the aid of his suggestions and his counsel in regard to essential provisions. I have had that of his Attorney-General, that of other members of his official family. I made many alterations and many changes from time to time, as it seemed to me wise and best, to carry out the wise suggestions of his message. I prepared a rough sketch of the bill, the general principles of which met with his approval. With these aids I improved it, perfected it, and got it into that shape that was thought to be best. It again met with his approval in all its general scope and features, although some of the minor matters were not discussed with him. It was my pleasure and it was my great advantage to have the assistance of the Attorney-General. That bill met with his approval.
>
> Let me further say that, being somewhat timid about my own knowledge with regard to the language conferring jurisdiction upon courts, fearful of faulty phraseology, having had but little service in courts for twenty-four years, after it was completed and its general features were approved as being in harmony with the recommendations of the Executive I asked the Attorney-General to have that bill put in legal phraseology with especial reference to those features relating to court procedure.
>
> In the bill that I introduced, every word of it, save two, was prepared in the office of the Attorney-General; there were two words changed, one—by the mistake of the printer or copyist—the word "district" was used instead of "circuit." I changed the word "thirty" for "sixty." I had a motive just and justifiable; I believed that with the machinery I had prepared for the review of the findings of the Interstate Commerce Commission, with the speed that might be possible and would be probable in the administration of that law, that in the great majority of the cases where the findings of the Commission were not accepted by the carrier they would be disposed of by the courts within the sixty days.

From this it will be seen that a clause providing for an appeal as to the justice and reasonableness of the rate fixed by the Commission not only had the approval of the author of the bill which has just passed the House, but that that clause was drawn by the present distinguished Attorney-General of the United States.

Therefore, Mr. President, it is clear that the policy laid down by the President, declared in public speeches by those authorized to speak for him, approved by the author of the present House bill and by the present Attorney-General, who drafted the court clause in that bill, and adopted, so far as the courts are concerned, only a year ago by the House of Representatives, embodies the principles of the maximum reasonable rate established by the Commission, and the subsequent review of such rate by the courts, if their aid is invoked, to determine not merely whether the rate established by the Commission is confiscatory, but whether it is lawful, just, and reasonable.

To this policy I gave my adhesion, and for a proper bill, embodying these principles, I propose to vote. I confess that I do so with reluctance, for I have the gravest doubts as to the wisdom of government rate making even in the most limited form, but so important does this legislation seem to me, so essential do I think a proper regulation and supervision of the railroad system, that I am not willing to oppose it, even if I do not feel satisfied as to some of its features. But if this policy which I have described is to be modified, the case will assuredly change. There seem to be now prophets of a new dispensation, who wish to depart from the line marked out by the President in his message and accepted in the House bill of last year by removing so far as possible from the proposed law all proper provisions for review by the courts. This seems to me to strike at the very heart of the measure. I am anxious to see this legislation, but I can not assent to any restriction upon the right of an American citizen to seek redress in the courts of the country. I am not yet prepared to substitute for the courts of the United States an executive commission. A proper solution of this railroad question is of vast importance, but it sinks into nothing compared with the primary duty of preserving to every American—high or low, rich or poor—free access to the courts of the country. I am quite aware that no statute can take away the constitutional right of a citizen to appeal to the courts if an attempt is made to take his property without due process of law. In other words, legislation can not prevent an appeal to the courts if it is alleged that the rate is confiscatory; but this is a very narrow ground and a very limited right. A rate may not be absolutely confiscatory and yet may be in the highest degree unjust and unreasonable, and indeed well-nigh ruinous. I am not sure that it would be possible to deprive a citizen by legislation of the right to appeal to the courts as to the justice and reasonableness of a given rate, which is a purely judicial question. But no attempt ought to be made, either directly or indirectly, by silence or by assertion, to destroy this privilege or, rather, this right. If delays are feared it is easy to make arrangements by law which will compel the swift disposition of these railroad cases. If it is a question as to maintaining a rate pending an appeal, either by bonds or by paying the money into court, loss to the party successful in the suit can be prevented. None of these objections have any real weight. But the distrust of the courts, the inclination to refuse an explicit statement of the right to such a judicial review of the Commission's decision as are now manifested, are ominous in the extreme. Nothing could be more alarming to reflecting men than the disposition shown by some persons to transfer to the legislative and executive branches powers pertaining to the judiciary, and thereby deprive the citizen of the most fundamental and sacred of rights.

The right of trial by jury is guaranteed to every citizen by the Constitution, and like unto it is his title to his day in court. In trial by jury and in an independent judiciary are to be found the very corner stones of liberty. They stand in history side by side with the Magna Charta of England and the Declaration of Independence of the United States. If every other protection were swept away, while trial by jury and an independent bench of judges shall survive, life, property, and personal liberty will still be safe and sheltered. The right to trial by jury and to the writ of habeas corpus were firmly established among the English-speaking people everywhere long before our Revolution, but the judges were still largely under the control of the Crown. So deeply did the great men who framed the Constitution feel this that one of the leading and governing principles of their action was to secure in the organic law the complete separation of the judiciary from the legislative and executive branches of the Government. The great court which they then established in the Constitution has been, of all its many memorable features, that which has most attracted the admiration of the world. To that court we owe the protection and development of the Constitution under Marshall, and it has always been the upholder and defender of ordered liberty and of personal rights, whether threatened by the rich and powerful or put in jeopardy by popular excitement or by excesses in legislation.

No one would pretend that judges have never decided wrongly, that the law's delays never wrought injustice, or that the courts have not in the administration of the criminal law often given too great weight to technicalities which were once a refuge from a bloody code, but which, with the softening of manners, have become a mere obstruction of justice. To assert otherwise would be to say that the courts were infallible, and that can be said of nothing human. But as we look back over the long vanished years, as we contemplate the movements of our daily life, we should be blind indeed if we did not perceive that many of the greatest and most enduring victories in behalf of human freedom have been due to the wisdom and courage of the courts and that day by day substantial justice is rendered unnoticed and unmarked in the countless controversies which arise between man and man. The courts are the greatest bulwark of the order of the state and the liberty of the people. It will be an evil day when they decline in character or when we lose faith in them. It will be hardly less evil if we try by any statutory device to exclude from the courts any American citizen who would seek their protection for his life, liberty, or property. We are about to pass a great measure from which, I hope, great good may come, but one which in its operation will affect the property and interests of millions of our fellow-citizens. It should be guarded with scrupulous care, but above all it should provide that no man should be deprived of his opportunity to go to the courts in defense of his rights if he thinks those rights are invaded.

Mr. PERKINS. Before the Senator from Massachusetts takes his seat, I should like permission to ask him one question on a phase of this subject-matter which inadvertently he passed over. I do this because the distinguished Senator has an enviable reputation—a national reputation—as a student of economics, and this rate question is one which is agitating the public mind in every State of the Union, perhaps more particularly so in the State I have the honor in part to represent.

The three evils which the Senator complained of were, first, rebates or discriminations between individuals, companies, and corporations; second, rebates or discriminations between different towns and cities, and, third, excessive rates, for which he had a remedy—that of competition.

The phase which the Senator failed to treat upon is that of pooling. To illustrate it, if three railroads reach into the Dakotas and there are a million tons of wheat for export out of the Dakotas to other markets and those three railroads agree to divide the proceeds of the rate they have agreed upon for the transportation, is not that one of the great evils which he should have added to the three he enumerated and against which as representing here the people we ought to legislate?

Mr. LODGE. I understand the question to refer simply to the feature of excessive rates because of failure of competition. My reply is that, in the first place, our rates to-day are the lowest in the world on the average, showing that economic forces in their natural play have brought the rates down. Second, that where such a case exists as the Senator describes we are not left to the competition of the roads alone, but there also comes in the competition of the markets and the competition for possession of the world's trade and meeting the world's price, which the railroad has to do whether it is in a pooling arrangement or not. My own belief is that the natural economic forces will settle rates so far as an excess is concerned—the Senator will understand I am confining myself to that—by the competition of the markets, by the play of natural forces, and by the certainty that if rates are put up to a point where it would make it profitable for some one else to come in he will come in. But, as a matter of fact, I think the working of economic forces disposes largely of the Senator's question, because, taking the great average of the rates all over the country, they are the lowest in the world and have enabled us to meet all competition in foreign markets.

Mr. ALDRICH. The case suggested by the Senator from California is covered by a prohibition contained in the present law.

Mr. LODGE. Of course. We have a law against pooling; I knew that; but I understood the Senator to put a hypothetical case.

[During the delivery of Mr. LODGE's speech the Vice-President announced that the hour of 2 o'clock had arrived and laid before the Senate the unfinished business, being Senate bill 529, known as the "shipping bill," when, on request of Mr. GALLINGER and by unanimous consent, the unfinished business was temporarily laid aside.]

Mr. TILLMAN. In connection with the discussion we have just had, wherein the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE] gave us such an illuminating speech, I have had my attention called to a dispatch from Berlin in the Washington Post of this morning, and I should like to have it inserted in the RECORD without having it read. I do this simply because I wish to save time. The headlines are "Our railways in bad light—Prussian rates are lower and fewer people are killed." It relates to the report of Privy Councillors M. Hoff and F. Schwabach, who came over here at the instance of the Prussian Government to examine into and report the facts.

Mr. KEAN. Fewer people are killed in Prussia because fewer people travel there.

Mr. TILLMAN. I am not going to enter into the merits of the controversy, but I merely called attention to the fact that the statements of the Senator from Massachusetts are denied by the Prussian experts who have been here to examine and report on the conditions in both countries.

Mr. KEAN. I will ask the Senator whether there is anything in the article about freight rates.

Mr. TILLMAN. Freight and passenger rates.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. In the absence of objection, the article will be printed in the RECORD.

The article referred to is as follows:

OUR RAILWAYS IN BAD LIGHT—PRUSSIAN RATES ARE LOWER AND FEWER PEOPLE ARE KILLED.

BERLIN, February 11, 1906.

Privy Councillors M. Hoff and F. Schwabach, whom the Prussian Government sent to the United States in 1904 to study American railroad systems, have just published an exhaustive work on their findings which is attracting much attention in the German press. Herren Hoff and Schwabach make many striking comparisons of the American and Prussian railroads, often to the disadvantage of the former. They quote official statistics showing that per million passengers carried the American roads killed six times and wounded twenty-nine times as many of them as the Prussian roads.

The writers found that the average passenger rate in America was 2.02 cents per mile, against 0.98 cents in Prussia, while freight rates nominally average 0.78 cents per ton mile in the United States, against 1.36 cents in Prussia. This comparison, the authors affirm, is fallaceous, because it ignores some essential facts. The American statistics, they say, include freight carried for the railways themselves, while the Prussian statistics show only pay freights. On the other hand, the American statistics exclude high-class goods carried by express companies, which class is included in the Prussian figures. Furthermore, they say, the American roads receive immense sums for carrying the mails and the Prussian lines almost nothing, and besides the latter carry a volume of postal packages for which the American roads get large extra sums from the express companies.

If conditions were equalized at all on these points, Herren Hoff and Schwabach figure that the American average for freight would be 1.44 cents per ton per mile and that of Prussia 0.95.

The original cost of construction of the Prussian lines was 65 per cent higher per mile than that of the American roads.

HOUSE BILLS REFERRED.

H. R. 13104. An act to amend an act entitled "An act to revise and amend the tariff laws of the Philippine Islands, and for other purposes," approved March 3, 1905, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on the Philippines.

H. R. 13456. An act for the relief of James McKenzie, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Military Affairs.

H. R. 13542. An act authorizing the Secretary of the Interior to lease land in Stanley County, S. Dak., for a buffalo pasture, was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Public Lands.

H. R. 7139. An act legalizing the removal of the county seat of Washita County, Okla., was read twice by its title, and referred to the Committee on Territories.

URGENT DEFICIENCY APPROPRIATION BILL.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the action of the House of Representatives on the bill (H. R. 12320) making appropriations to supply urgent deficiencies in the appropriations for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1906, and for prior years, and for other purposes, disagreeing to the amendments of the Senate, and requesting a conference with the Senate on the disagreeing votes of the two Houses thereon.

Mr. ALLISON. I move that the Senate insist upon its amendments, and agree to the conference asked for by the House.

The motion was agreed to.

By unanimous consent, the Vice-President was authorized to appoint the conferees on the part of the Senate; and Mr. HALE, Mr. ALLISON, and Mr. TELLER were appointed.

WILLIAM J. GROW.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 1098) granting an increase of pension to William J. Grow, which was, in line 8, to strike out "twenty" and insert "twenty-four;" so as to read "twenty-four dollars."

Mr. McCUMBER. I move that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

OSCAR R. ARNOLD.

The VICE-PRESIDENT laid before the Senate the amendment of the House of Representatives to the bill (S. 943) granting an increase of pension to Oscar R. Arnold, which was, in line 8, to strike out "twenty-four" and insert "thirty;" so as to read "thirty dollars."

Mr. McCUMBER. I move that the Senate concur in the amendment of the House.

The motion was agreed to.

RAILROAD DISCRIMINATIONS AND MONOPOLIES.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, I ask unanimous consent to return to the order of business "Reports of Committees," in pursuance of a request I made this morning; and I send to the desk a joint resolution which I am authorized by the Committee on Interstate Commerce to present and ask immediate consideration of it.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from South Carolina makes the following report from the Committee on Interstate Commerce——

Mr. TILLMAN. It is not a report, except this——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from South Carolina reports from the Committee on Interstate Commerce a joint resolution. Is that it?

Mr. TILLMAN. That is it, sir.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The joint resolution will be read.

The joint resolution (S. R. 32) instructing the Interstate Commerce Commission to make examinations into the subject of railroad discriminations and monopolies, and report on the same from time to time, was read the first time by its title and the second time at length, as follows:

Whereas persons engaged or wishing to engage in mining and shipping bituminous coal and other products from one State of the United States to other States of the United States complain that they are treated unjustly by common carriers engaged in interstate carriage, in that they, being independent operators without influence with and in whose business common carriers or their officers have no interest, are unjustly discriminated against, and undue preference is given to other persons in whose business the officers of common carriers are interested, or in traffic in which the common carrier is interested, either directly or indirectly, and that undue preference or advantage is given by such common carriers to the shippers of coal from mines in which said carriers or their officers are interested, either directly or indirectly; and

Whereas it is further alleged that the bituminous coal and other traffic above referred to is controlled by a combination of common carriers by means of stock ownership, or other instrumentalities, directly or indirectly, thus creating a monopoly in restraint of trade: Therefore be it

Resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives in Congress assembled, That the Interstate Commerce Commission be authorized and instructed to immediately inquire, investigate, and report to Congress from time to time as the investigation proceeds—

First. Whether any common carriers by railroad, subject to the interstate-commerce act, they or any of them, own or have any interest in, by means of stock ownership in other corporations or otherwise, any of the coal or other products which they or any of them, directly or through other companies which they control or in which they have an interest, carry over their or any of their lines as common carriers.

Second. Whether the officers of any of the carriers aforesaid, or any of them, or any person or persons, or any of them, charged with the duty of distributing cars or furnishing facilities to shippers are interested, either directly or indirectly, by means of stock ownership or otherwise, in corporations or companies owning, operating, leasing, or otherwise interested in any coal mines, coal properties, or any other traffic over the railroads with which they or any of them are connected or by which they or any of them are employed.

Third. Whether there is any contract, combination in the form of trust, or otherwise, or conspiracy in restraint of trade or commerce among the several States, in which any common carrier engaged in the transportation of bituminous coal or other products is interested, or to which it is a party; and whether any such common carrier monopolizes or attempts to monopolize or combines or conspires with any other carrier, company or companies, person or persons to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce in bituminous coal, or other traffic among the several States, or with foreign nations, and whether or not, and if so, to what extent, such carriers or any of them limit or control directly or indirectly the output of coal mines or the price of coal.

Fourth. If the Interstate Commerce Commission shall find that the facts set forth in the three paragraphs above do exist, then that it be further required to report as to the effect of such relationship, ownership, or interest in coal or coal and other traffic aforesaid, or such contracts, combinations in form of trust, or otherwise, or conspiracy or such monopoly or attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire as aforesaid, upon such person or persons as may be engaged independently of any other persons in mining coal and shipping the same, or other products, who may desire to so engage, or upon the general public as consumers of such coal and other products.

Fifth. That said Commission be also required to investigate and report the system of car distribution in effect upon the several railway lines engaged in the transportation of bituminous coal or other products as aforesaid, and whether said systems are fair and equitable, and whether the same are carried out fairly and properly; and whether said carriers or any of them discriminate against shippers, or parties wishing to become shippers, over their several lines, either in the matter of distribution of cars or in furnishing of facilities or instrumentalities connected with the receiving, forwarding, or carrying of coal as aforesaid.

Sixth. That said Commission be also required to report as to what remedy it can suggest to cure the evils above set forth, if they exist.

Seventh. That said Commission be also required to report any facts or conclusions which it may think pertinent to the general inquiry above set forth.

Eighth. That said Commission be required to make this investigation at its earliest possible convenience and to furnish the information above required from time to time and as soon as it can be done consistent with the performance of its public duty.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from South Carolina asks unanimous consent for the consideration of the joint resolution just read. Is there objection?

There being no objection, the Senate, as in Committee of the Whole, proceeded to consider the joint resolution.

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, it will be observed by those who have listened to the reading of the joint resolution that it is very comprehensive and covers a very wide field of investigation. It will also be observed that it is a joint resolution which has the force of law and must pass both Houses of Congress before it becomes effective.

I will state here that the basis of the joint resolution in most of its terms is the resolution introduced in the House of Representatives last week by a member of that body, Mr. GILLESPIE, of Texas, which is now pending before the House Committee on Interstate Commerce simply as a House resolution. Of course it is easy to see that if the Senate shall pass the joint resolution the House committee, if it coincides with our view that a searching investigation is required, can take Mr. GILLESPIE's resolution, amend it, change it to a joint resolution, report it, substitute the Senate joint resolution for it, and pass it, and we can get the whole machinery of investigation in motion. The question is whether or not the House will do it.

I wish to give some reasons, Mr. President—I think it is due to the Senate that some should be given—why at this stage of the proceedings in dealing with railways I have thought it necessary to begin so searching an inquiry. I have been a member of the Interstate Commerce Committee of the Senate for eleven years, and I have had more or less to do with various propositions submitted to us from time to time dealing with the railways of the country. I am not as well informed on the subject as I would like to be, but I have some very clear convictions as to the evils which exist, and I have also some very strong desires to contribute, so far as I may be able, toward a proper and just solution of this vexed problem.

Any man who is silly enough to approach it in any other frame of mind than that of recognition of its overshadowing importance, its complexity, its vital importance, I may say, to millions of our people—all of them, in fact—is lacking in that common sense which at last is the essential basis for all decent consideration of public questions. It is a great question. In some of its aspects, when you begin to scrutinize and analyze, one is compelled to see that there are so many perplexities and so many conflicting interests and so many contingencies that anything like radical or ultra legislation would work incalculable harm, and I for one stand here to disclaim any purpose or desire to injure the railways of the United States, to rob them or take from them the right that is inherent in every property owner to have a fair return for the money invested.

We find, however, upon a cursory examination of conditions—and a very cursory one will suffice—that the old idea of competition has been destroyed utterly in this country, not only in this particular, but in many others, and in its place have come combination, consolidation, the organization of large bodies of capital under the direct control of a very few individuals, who are thus enabled by concert of action to produce the trusts and monopolies which are now grinding the people to death.

This is a funny world, Mr. President, and the older I grow and the nearer I get to the confines of that "undiscover'd country from whose bourn no traveler returns" the more am I convinced and the more clearly I see the absurdity, the contradiction, the ridiculousness, if I may use such a term, of human nature; and I do not hesitate to say now that a more stupendous farce than the one which is being played in the Congress of the United States, with 80,000,000 or 85,000,000 people looking on, as an audience, has never been enacted in the world's history.

We find, looking around the field a little, taking cognizance of what we read in the papers day by day, that the President of the United States is constantly in the public eye. He is heralded in the public press as the chief agitator, inspirer, leader in the effort to emancipate the people from the grinding exactions and outrages being perpetrated upon them by the railroads of the country. You can not pick up a paper from any part of the country that you do not see somewhere in it allusion to the fact that President Roosevelt has won his fight; that he is standing pat; that he has not budged one inch; that he does not yield to the importunities of the friends of the railway magnates, and all that kind of thing. Congress as a coordinate branch of the Government charged with making laws, and hardly ever mentioned. It is all and always the President's fight, the President's victory, etc.

And when you examine further and consider the actual conditions, what do you find? You find that President Roosevelt has as his two chief advisers—I am only speaking from the current reports in the newspapers—as the men upon whom he chiefly relies, Elihu Root, a man of profound legal ability, high character, and all that kind of thing; a man whom I admire and respect, too, but who is known absolutely and indisputably to have been, during his career as a lawyer, the closest adviser and in fact the attorney in many instances of railway magnates in New York City, who are primarily at the root of all the devilment that is abroad in the land in regard to railway management. Who is the other? An honored member of the Senate, a former Attorney-General, the junior Senator from Pennsylvania [Mr. KNOX].

These two great lawyers are now given the task, as the people are informed, to provide instrumentalities by which the people's rights shall be protected and their interests guarded from the oppressive and exacting and tyrannical and outrageous robberies by the railways. Mr. KNOX and Mr. Root are now the instruments of the President, the advisers of the President, in framing this legislation. Of course the Attorney-General, another great lawyer, is in the ring or among the conferees charged with a very serious duty. When you look back at Mr. KNOX's antecedents you find that he has been—I do not know for how many years—in the employ of the Pennsylvania Railroad; has been its warmest or closest friend and counselor, its attorney, as I am informed, and when you look further to see which one of the railroads and which man in charge of a railroad is most deeply concerned in the oppressive and tyrannical and outrageous exaction of the railways, you find the Pennsylvania Railroad and Mr. Cassatt at the head of the list, and therefore we have the spectacle of the people of this country being bamboozled with the story sent abroad every day from this press bureau or that that the President is depending upon the Secretary of State and the Senator from Pennsylvania to assist him in framing this great statute for the protection of the masses against the classes.

I do not want to appear too suspicious. Possibly I am naturally critical. I have thought sometimes if I had a genius for anything it was for fault-finding. Therefore I would disclaim at the outset any purpose to reflect in the slightest degree upon the integrity of purpose and the patriotism of these true and tried counselors of the Executive. But, recalling recent history, I am bound to say that I would like it better, and I would sniff less at the meat—to liken this law it is proposed we shall enact to a dish—I would sniff less to see if there was not some poison in it if it had not had such cooks.

The Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE] a few moments ago declared, with his air—you-can-not-possibly-dispute-me air—that the railroads were necessary and anxious to have the territory tributary to their lines developed; that the proposition is self-evident, and therefore indisputable. But the proof that has already been produced in this Chamber in the communication from the Red Rock Fuel Company and the communication from the governor of West Virginia goes to show how absolutely false is the assumption that a railroad always desires the natural and proper development of the territory tributary to its line.

If there were not so much evidence of the insincerity—or I had better say the apparent insincerity—of those charged with the execution of our laws, that they are cognizant and have been cognizant for several years, certainly for many months, of one case after another involving the identical principles underlying those which brought on the Northern Securities suit, and yet the Attorney-General has done absolutely nothing—I say if there were not so much evidence piled up to show that this zeal for the protection of the people is apparent, not real; that it has no sincerity behind it, that it is not honest, I would give more credence and be more willing to surrender my suspicions. But I am a plain, blunt man myself. I do not know how to practice the arts of deceit or chicanery or hypocrisy, and therefore when I see people parading their zeal and patriotic impulses for the public welfare when there is so much opportunity for that zeal to bear fruit and yet nothing is done, I naturally and necessarily feel that there must be something wrong.

Mr. KNOX. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Pennsylvania?

Mr. TILLMAN. With pleasure.

Mr. KNOX. I have just returned to the Chamber, and I have been informed that some reference was made to me, and it was stated that I had been counsel for the Pennsylvania Railroad. If I was informed correctly, I wish to say that the Senator is entirely mistaken. I never sustained the relation of counsel to the Pennsylvania Railroad either permanently or temporarily, directly or indirectly, at any time during my professional career.

Mr. TILLMAN. I am very glad to have the Senator disclaim that. I have seen it stated in the papers.

Mr. KNOX. I only make the statement lest I be misunderstood about the matter, not that I think it would be necessary to apologize for such a professional relationship.

Mr. TILLMAN. Not in the slightest. I have no purpose or intention of reflecting on the Senator. Every lawyer has the right to accept a professional fee from any honest and decent source, railroads included. He has the right and it is his duty to give honest and able services to the best of his ability to do so. I therefore am glad to have the Senator say to us and to have the country know that these stories that have been going about to the effect that he was elected to the Senate of the United States as the representative of the Pennsylvania Railroad and is here in their interest are false. I will respect him more for the balance of my life, regardless of what else may happen, because of the fact that he was not so associated.

Mr. KNOX. Mr. President, then I wish to say to the Senator that a great deal has been accomplished by my refuting the story.

Mr. TILLMAN. The Senator does me too much honor to imagine that my personal opinion is of any value to him at all. I am glad he has the slightest appreciation of it.

But it can not be denied, I imagine, that Mr. Root has sustained intimate relations with the great railway corporations of New York City. It is not to his discredit that I am saying that. I am only trying to bring out this phase of the subject, because I see men preparing railroad-rate legislation who all their lives in a professional way have been engaged in these various legal combinations and trickeries, and I do not know what other things, but any string of adjectives that you want to use that will describe the process by which one railroad has continued to swallow another, until we have only got about five great systems out of the 200,000 miles in the country, and if you will examine the record you will find that practically those five are controlled by boards of directors who are so closely allied and so near akin in business relations that we have undoubtedly a railway trust in this country which controls, directs, manages, and, in the estimation of some people, is robbing the people of the country.

My language may be a little harsh. It may be going too far. I do not intend to be vitriolic and let my words express more than I feel; but I myself feel very deeply the condition of my own part of the United States, controlled absolutely by a corporation owned in New York, without a solitary opportunity down there to have any word in it except as a suppliant, with very little chance to do anything toward getting any redress; and I have understood from what I read that this same situation obtains practically throughout the country. Anyhow, it is shown in evidence that the entire country south of the Potomac and east of the Mississippi is dominated wholly by three railway corporations who have absorbed and combined and bought up or united with all the others; and that all three are controlled by the Pennsylvania and its brother in iniquity, the New York Central. This is believed by all well-informed persons.

I want to put this little document, after I read a few lines from it, not in the RECORD, but have it printed as a document. It is a "Petition to Theodore Roosevelt, President of the United States, by the Receivers and Shippers' Association of Cincinnati, Ohio." It was sent to the President June 1, 1905. It has been there more than eight months. I will simply read the conclusion, after marshaling the facts and producing the evidence at which these petitioners arrive:

> Wherefore your petitioners respectfully ask that you will instruct the Attorney-General of the United States to begin proceedings in the United States court—
>
> 1. To enjoin the Southern Railway Company and the Atlantic Coast Line Company from acquiring or attempting to acquire further stock of railroad companies in the southern territory, and from voting the stock which they now hold in railroads other than the stock of their own companies, and from exercising or attempting to exercise any control, direction, supervision, or influence whatever over the acts and doings of said other railway companies, and to secure such other relief on behalf of the people of the United States against said illegal combinations, conspiracies, and monopolies as the law and equity of the situation demand.
>
> 2. To institute proceedings in equity to dissolve the said Southeastern Mississippi Valley Association and Southeastern Freight Association, and to enjoin the company's subscribers thereto, and all and each of them, from further agreeing, combining, conspiring, and acting together to establish and maintain rules, regulations, and rates for carrying freight upon their several lines of railroad, and to secure such other relief on behalf of the people of the United States against said illegal combinations, conspiracies, and monopolies as the law and equity of the situation demand.
>
> 3. To enjoin the Southeastern Mississippi Valley Association and the Southeastern Freight Association from carrying into effect the joint agreements entered into between them, and from continuing to agree, combine, conspire, and act together to establish and maintain rules, regulations, and rates for carrying freight upon the several lines of railroads whose companies are directly or indirectly parties to said agreement, and to secure such other relief on behalf of the people of the United States against said illegal contracts, combinations, conspiracies, and monopolies as the law and equity of the situation demand.
>
> 4. To enjoin the companies parties to the meeting in New York City from carrying into effect the agreements entered into at said meeting, and from continuing to agree, combine, conspire, and act together to establish and maintain rules, regulations, and rates for carrying freight upon their several lines of railroad, and to secure such other relief on behalf of the people of the United States against said illegal combination, conspiracy, and monopoly as the law and equity of the situation demand.

That is the essence; that is the conclusion of the arguments and facts presented to the President by this association of Cincinnati merchants and business men.

Mr. President, I ask that this book be printed as a Senate document, only such parts as I have read to be incorporated in my remarks.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Without objection, it is so ordered.

Mr. TILLMAN. Now, Mr. President, in order to get the matter immediately in interest, I am going presently into this question of merger and consolidation, to point out the neglect of duty by the Attorney-General. Probably I had better do it right now, because having already introduced that it would look a little odd to leave it standing by itself. I therefore recall to the attention of the Senate the charges or statements of fact made in the letter of the Red Rock Fuel Company and in the letter of the governor of West Virginia as to the situation in that State. I found last night in my mail because of somebody—I do not know who was kind enough to send it to me—this volume of Public Addresses by Gov. A. B. White, 1901–1905. Gov. A. B. White was the predecessor of Governor Dawson, and instead of Governor Dawson making known to the country a situation that was new and had just come about, I find here that Governor White in his first message makes this remarkable statement:

> There is now no competition among the three great trunk lines traversing this State, because they are all under the same control, and that control is that of a foreign corporation, possibly more concerned in the development of another State. Railroads should not have the right to say for whom they will haul freight, how much they will haul, in what direction they will haul it, nor to fix absolutely the rates of hauling. Being common carriers and public highways, they must be open to all on precisely the same terms, and these must be reasonable. It is intolerable that these highways can be used to build up one individual or interest and to tear down another. I know the argument of enlightened self-interest—> that it is to the interest of a railroad to develop the territory it traverses by being fair and just. But this is not sufficient. Experience has proved that under more favorable conditions than those that now obtain it was not sufficient; and especially can we not trust the operation of self-interest when the railroads of one State are controlled by another of a foreign State, which foreign railroad is probably more directly interested in the development of the other State, and more especially as the principal product, so far as railroad freight is concerned, of this State comes somewhat in competition with the principal product of the other State. This is shown by the fact that the tonnage of coal carried by this foreign railroad in its own State increased 6,000,000 tons last year, while the tonnage of our own State showed no appreciable increase. If the railroads which are situated to do the business of West Virginia had given our shippers the necessary facilities our output of coal the past year would have approximated 30,000,000 tons instead of 23,000,000, and our output of lumber would have shown a proportionate increase.

That of the Senator from Massachusetts, to which I have just alluded—

Here is another governor of West Virginia, the predecessor of the present governor, calling attention to a condition of merger, of outside control, of conspiracies in restraint of trade, all of which are indictable under the original Sherman law and also under the Elkins law. Therefore we find that this condition of discrimination, of injustice, of wrong, and robbery has gone on from bad to worse; and it is only after the people of the country, sleeping quietly and peacefully, as is the habit of the masses, voting their party tickets under the influences which usually govern in such cases, oblivious of the great underlying and active forces that are revolutionizing trade and business, are at last aroused. They are beginning to wake up even in Pennsylvania. The poor, besotted Pennsylvania legislature, if I may use such a phrase, which has been said time out of mind for the last twenty-five or forty years to be owned body and soul by the Pennsylvania and the Reading railroads, I believe I saw in the newspapers two or three days ago has at last awoke to the fact that the people of Pennsylvania showed at the last election by a change of 600,000 Republican votes around to the other side that they were sick unto death and tired. This legislature tumbles over itself to pass a resolution instructing the attorney-general of that State to inquire and take action to see if the constitution of that State has been violated in the matter of the ownership of coal mines by railroads—something that is known of all men to have existed for a quarter of a century or more; and the anthracite coal output has been fixed in quantity and fixed in price beyond any possibility of dispute by reason of the fact that the limited area of anthracite coal lands is penetrated by only three roads. I believe—the Lackawanna, the Reading, and the Pennsylvania, and the Pennsylvania either itself or through its allies controls all those; and therefore, as I said, it is the head devil in the whole programme of monopoly.

There is another little exhibit that might perhaps have attracted the attention of an Attorney-General who is zealous in the discharge of his duties, who wanted to see that these combinations in restraint of trade and these mergers are brought to book in the courts and an effort made to undo them. I hold in my hand an advertisement clipped from the New York Herald of February 9, 1906. I will have it put in the RECORD without reading the whole of it.

Twenty million dollars Pennsylvania Company 4 per cent fifteen-twenty-five year gold loan of 1906. Due April 1, 1931, with the option to the Pennsylvania Company to redeem all, but not any part, of the issue on April 1, 1921, or on any interest date thereafter, on giving ninety days' notice. Principal and interest unconditionally guaranteed by the Pennsylvania Railroad Company. Interest payable semiannually on April 1 and October 1 in New York. Principal and interest payable without deduction for any tax or taxes, which the trustee of the Pennsylvania Company may be required to pay, or retain therefrom, under any present or future law of the United States of America or of the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. Girard Trust Company, trustee. Coupon certificates in denomination of $1,000 each with provision for registration of principal.

The above loan is to be secured by the obligation of the Pennsylvania Company, the pledge of $10,000,000 par value of the common stock of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad Company; $14,000,000 par value of the common stock of the Pittsburgh, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis Railway Company; $4,000,000 par value of the stock of the Vandalia Railroad Company, and by the unconditional guaranty of the Pennsylvania Railroad Company.

A large amount of the above loan having been sold, the undersigned offer the unsold portion for subscription at 100½ per cent, with interest adjusted to April 1, 1906, from which date the loan bears interest.

The subscription list will be opened at the office of the undersigned at 10 o'clock a. m. on Wednesday, February 14, 1906, and will be closed at 3 o'clock p. m. or earlier on the same day, the right being reserved to reject any applications and to allot smaller amounts than applied for.

Allotments made upon subscriptions are to be paid for on March 1, 1906, against temporary receipts of the trustee, which will be exchangeable for actual certificates as soon as ready. The amount payable on that date, with interest adjusted to April 1, is $1,001.66 per $1,000 certificate.

For further details as to the above loan, reference is made to the agreement relating thereto, copies of which may be obtained at the office of the undersigned.

Application will be made to list the above loan on the New York Stock Exchange.

New York, February 9, 1906.

KUHN, LOEB & CO.,
William and Pine streets.

It is a very innocent-looking little advertisement. These people have grown so utterly indifferent to governmental control and conditions in Washington, they have such a saving faith in the innocuous character of the thundering from the White House and from the Attorney-General's office, that they boldly advertise the fact—and the report of the Interstate Commerce Commission sent to the House last week proves it—that they control not only the Baltimore and Ohio and limit its coal shipped to market, but control the Norfolk and Western and the Chesapeake and Ohio, and those are the three railroads that cover West Virginia. And the Attorney-General is very busy, at the instance of his Chief, to have the country believe that this is a simple and innocent financial transaction; that there has been nothing unlawful in it; that it is nothing in restraint of trade; that there is the freest liberty of action and opportunity for development, until the Red Rock Fuel Company comes forward and states the fact, the bald, the outrageous fact, that the Baltimore and Ohio people denied them the right to connect their spur with the Baltimore and Ohio line and refused them any outlet to market, even though the Interstate Commerce Commission, after trial in the courts, issued the order.

These fellows snap their fingers in the faces of the people and of the people's representatives here, and say, as a celebrated financier of New York said once, "The public be damned! What are you going to do about it?" And then we are told by the newspapers: "The President stands firm;" "the President does not mean to yield one jot or tittle;" "he will not be coerced or bamboozled or persuaded to give way to the railway influences;" "he is going to stand by his original declaration." What was his original declaration? I will not go back to the original, but I will go back to the revised edition, the last one in the message. Our Executive does not always put in his messages things that he says in his speeches. He thinks them out and gets them in his mind and speaks them, and then sometimes boils them down under advisement from some of those friends of mine on the other side who can get his ear occasionally and tell him, "You had better take that out." But here is what the President said in his last message:

In my judgment the most important provision which such law should contain is that conferring upon some competent administrative body the power to decide, upon the case being brought before it, whether a given rate prescribed by a railroad is reasonable and just, and if it is found to be unreasonable and unjust, then, after full investigation of the complaint, to prescribe the limit of rate beyond which it shall not be lawful to go—"the maximum reasonable rate," as it is commonly called—this decision to go into effect within a reasonable time and to obtain from thence onward, subject to review by the courts.

Now, here is the milk in the cocoanut—

Now, the whole trouble here, if there be trouble—I am not so sure that there is, but the apparent trouble—is that there is a very strenuous effort being made to persuade the President to agree to put into the Hepburn bill as it has come to us an express provision which shall say in terms that there shall be an appeal to the courts, etc. I do not know the language; I have never been allowed to see it; but Messrs. Root and KNOX are prayerfully considering it, I am told, and it may be the momentous words will come to our eyesight sometime in the near future. But the trouble is to keep the President from flying the track and granting to the railways a provision in regard to an appeal which will not allow the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission to go into effect at once, or within thirty days, but leave it to the judge to say, by supersedeas or injunction, "This rate is unreasonable; it is confiscatory; you must not put it into effect because it is unconstitutional," and all that kind of thing.

I know that there is the right of appeal to a court to right any wrong that can be shown to exist; and I would be the last to take it away from any man or any corporation, for it is in the Constitution itself in language which declares that you shall not take private property for public use without due process of law. It is there, and being there it is sufficient; and if the President of the United States sees fit under threats—I have heard there were threats; I do not know, but, anyhow, under pleading, or by threats on that side; if he stands firm, if he holds fast to the end, if he does not yield that crucial point, then I shall have more faith in the sincerity of purpose and honesty of intention of this whole agitation.

Mr. FORAKER. Mr. President——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator from South Carolina yield to the Senator from Ohio?

Mr. TILLMAN. With pleasure; always.

Mr. FORAKER. I wish to ask the Senator from South Carolina if he does not think there ought to be a proper provision in this so-called "Hepburn bill" for a review by a court of the action of the Commission?

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, that depends entirely on what the Senator from Ohio would mean by the word "proper."

Mr. FORAKER. One that would allow anybody, a party to a proceeding, who felt aggrieved by an order made, to appeal to a court for a review and the judgment of the court as to whether or not it was a right and proper order.

Mr. TILLMAN. I should be perfectly willing to have the right of appeal given if you will permit the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission to go into effect pending the appeal. Otherwise the poor devil who is endeavoring to get redress for excessive rates on freight will be dragged from one court to another for three years at least, and will be so deterred by the length of litigation and the expenses, and possibly the accompanying destruction of his business interests in the meantime by such behavior as has been shown to us by the Red Rock Fuel Company, that he might just as well go into bankruptcy at once and close out his affairs.

Mr. FORAKER. The bill does provide that the order shall go into effect at once, and it will if the bill shall be passed, as I hope it will not be in the form in which it is. Does not the Senator think it would be proper to leave to a court to decide whether or not there was any equitable or just cause for the suspension of the order until the party could be heard?

Mr. TILLMAN. It would depend entirely on the phraseology that the Senator might employ as to whether or not I should agree to that. As at present advised, I stand by the President's original position, that nothing we shall do here in the way of legislation shall prevent the decision of the Interstate Commerce Commission from taking effect within thirty days, at least, and remaining in effect until the court has reviewed the case and decided whether or not there was error in the action of the Commission.

Mr. FORAKER. Mr. President, I should like to ask the Senator just one other question, and that is whether or not he thinks the so-called Hepburn bill meets the requirements of the President's recommendation, or whether or not it more than meets the requirements of the President's recommendation?

Mr. TILLMAN. Mr. President, I said a little while ago that there was a great game of opera bouffe or farce going on here, and I stand by my suspicions. I believe there are too many words in the Hepburn bill. It is a maze of words through which you can stumble, and every man will disagree as to what it means. They disagreed in the House anyway. One man says it means thus and so, and another man says that is not so; it is not in there; and so you go.

Mr. FORAKER. Are we to understand then, from the remarks made by the Senator from South Carolina, that he is entirely satisfied with the Hepburn bill?

Mr. TILLMAN. I certainly am not entirely satisfied with the Hepburn bill. [Laughter.] I hope to offer some amendments that will cover these phases of the railway question that

I have just been alluding to in West Virginia, that, as far as I can understand the English language, are entirely unprovided for; but I will ask the Senator from Ohio if he is entirely satisfied with the Hepburn bill?

Mr. FORAKER. Mr. President, I do not have to be satisfied with it.

Mr. TILLMAN. Well, would the Senator vote for it?

Mr. FORAKER. If the Senator will allow me, if I had been satisfied with that bill, after I heard the speech of the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE] this morning I certainly would not have been satisfied with it any longer.

Mr. TILLMAN. Well, I want to ask the Senator——

Mr. FORAKER. The Senator from Massachusetts thoroughly convinced me that I was right in my position on rate legislation.

Mr. TILLMAN. The Senator from Ohio is a very great lawyer and one of the most forceful and clear-headed men in argument I have ever listened to. It is always inspiring to me to have him get up and elucidate a point, because he goes at it so energetically and so earnestly; but the Senator has catechised me in regard to the Hepburn bill, and I have answered very frankly that I do not like it. I should now like to ask the Senator, after he has said he does not like it, whether he is going to vote for it?

Mr. FORAKER. Mr. President, I am not going to vote for it.

Mr. TILLMAN. Then I am glad of that, but I am sorry that the Senator from Colorado [Mr. PATTERSON], who is such a stickler for Senatorial independence, is not here to give the right hand of fellowship to the Senator from Ohio.

There is another Senator who refuses to bow to party caucuses.

I want to say here and now the reason I had for introducing the joint resolution looking to a thorough and searching investigation was because, notwithstanding the month or more that we devoted to hearing witnesses, making inquiries of witnesses, and cross-examining them last summer in the Interstate Commerce Committee, there is so much yet unknown that it is necessary to know in order to legislate intelligently, that I feel almost willing to say, notwithstanding the agreement that has been made by the members of the Interstate Commerce Committee—if I may disclose the secrets of the committee, though they have already been given to the press—that I want more light before I agree to vote for a bill that may contain half a dozen snakes in it, much less the one which was charged against the Senator from Iowa [Mr. DOLLIVER] last week.

We are dealing with the most important question that this country has before it to-day. It is a vital question, and I find nothing in this bill, which the people are taught to believe will make everybody happy and do away with all cause of complaint—I find nothing whatever in it, so far as I can understand the English language, which will grant relief to the Red Rock Company or to any other company which is the private owner of coal lands, bottled up by the corporations running by their doors, although they are public carriers who presume to exercise the right, and to enforce it, that they will not give cars to these people because, forsooth, they themselves or their friends and associates own coal lands up there, as I understand. The output must be limited in quantity to suit—I will not say the convenience, but the greed of the real controlling interest in Pennsylvania—the Pennsylvania Railroad. There is nothing of the kind in the Hepburn bill except by implication.

I want a provision in any railroad law that I vote for which will be somewhat along the line which the gentleman from Ohio [Mr. GROSVENOR] drew up, but did not introduce in the House, that will prohibit any public carrier from owning and controlling a product which is carried over its line. I want this monopoly of the anthracite coal region, which is to-day the instrumentality through which the American people are robbed of from sixty to one hundred million dollars a year, checked. I want a provision in this law, or in some law which we shall pass through Congress, which will prevent any monopoly of the bituminous coal lands on the Atlantic slope by the Pennsylvania Railroad and its allies; and you have not got it in this bill. It is not there. If there is anybody here who asserts that it is there, let him read the language and try to show it. Yet you talk about the rate-making business as the principal cause of complaint, and you say you are going to redress the grievances of the shippers, when you leave the coal of an entire State—several thousand square miles of it—subject to this condition.

The Baltimore and Ohio and its allied roads, under the dictation and control of the Pennsylvania Railroad, can say to the owner of coal lands, "You have got coal down there that may be valuable, and we know it, but we have coal lands of our own and our friends have; we do not propose to have you compete with us; you shall not have the benefit or the facilities of our railways as a public carrier; we will haul coal until we have exhausted our own mines and those of our friends, and your grandchildren or your great-grandchildren may enjoy the coal that lies under your land if by that time we have not squeezed you out or other railroads are here to offer facilities of shipment." That is the abuse I am after as much as I am after the rate-making business. We have no coal in South Carolina, but we have to buy it; and I do not like to have somebody in Tennessee or elsewhere levying tribute of a dollar and a half or two dollars a ton over what it costs. I am going to offer an amendment in committee, and if I do not get it in the bill there I am going to offer it in the Senate, looking to redressing and righting and preventing this particular wrong. But knowing the condition in the Senate and the condition of mind in which the country now seems to be, the people having faith in the President's integrity of purpose and honesty of intention, looking to him as the great Moses to lead them out of the wilderness, depending wholly on his wisdom and that of his advisers, I want to see the Senate legislate intelligently.

We are under a cloud. We all know that. The newspaper press agencies, however controlled, getting their inspiration from whatever source—I do not know exactly what, but I have my suspicions—have educated the people of this country to believe that they are dependent solely upon Theodore Roosevelt, that the Senate is the servile tool and agent of these corporations, and that unless the whip is cracked and we are compelled to fall in line and take his ipse dixit they will get no relief.

We have now a peculiar and anomalous situation in the bill sent here by the House of Representatives. With only seven votes in the negative, it is so practically unanimous that one would say he must be a bold man to get up and declare against it; a bill which had so many wise lawyers and patriotic statesmen engaged in framing it, which came originally to us from the Attorney-General under the very wing of the President, everybody with any wisdom in law in the Republican party consenting, so to speak, in writing it, and saying, "Here, Pete, pass this." [Laughter.] But when Pete gets up to explain it, he wobbles about through the bill, and swears things are in it which nobody else can see, and swears things are not in it which everybody who knows the English language can see are in it, why, then, should I not be suspicious? Why should I not want the Republican majority and the Democratic minority to perform their function in legislating here advisedly and in the light of facts?

We have got enough facts for me, but they will say, "Well, the Red Rock people are lying; the governor of West Virginia may be mistaken; the two governors of West Virginia may misunderstand the facts." Therefore, I brought in the resolution—and I ask the Senate to pass it and hope the House will do likewise—instructing the Interstate Commerce Commission, which has facilities for investigation, which has trained experts at its command, to take this matter up, to go through it, and, if they go about it in the way I hope they will, certainly they will begin to uncover some fire somewhere in a week or two.

We had better wait here until June before we pass any legislation on the railroad-rate question rather than fail to pass such as will be wise and best; and certainly we had better pass none at all rather than pass something that will fool the people after all the anger and the arousement which has come about among them, and which will be greatly inflamed if they learn next year or the year after, when the Supreme Court has got through with it, that his mass of words, these thousand or more phrases and lines, all doubled and twisted and muddled up, had in them a loophole through which, with a little stretching, you can drive, not only an automobile, but a whole freight train. [Laughter.] There is danger of just such a catastrophe.

At the suggestion and solicitation, in a sarcastic way, of two distinguished Senators on the other side, who are on the committee with me—Messrs. ALDRICH and FORAKER—I prepared a little bill that I defy any lawyer here or anybody else or any court to prevent granting redress in the rate business. It goes right to the meat of the question; it has not got an extra word in it; it accomplishes the purpose which the President says he desires, but of course it will never pass. I will never get a vote on it. It does not deal with this question of monopolies. That is already dealt with to a considerable degree by the Elkins law, under which all restraints of trade, all combinations, and so forth, are prohibited and punished.

We have shown by the decisions of the court in the Northern Securities case that you can stop these mergers, but the trouble all along here is this: You stop them. Then they say, "Well, we have obeyed your order," and they go right around and transfer or swap about or work up some chicanery or trickery under the leadership and inspiration of great lawyers like Mr.

Root and others, and then the same thing goes right on, and the combination is carried out, but these people, Mr. James J. Hill and his confederates, do not obey the orders of the court. You will never stop this devilment until you put some millionaire in prison with stripes on him. That is my honest and earnest belief.

I presume, of course, that nobody will for a moment object to the investigation, and that the Senate will pass the resolution without any man voting against it. I will read here something that ought to make everybody willing to pass it, because it is a matter that invites inquiry. I suppose it will be asked why a Senatorial committee shall not investigate it, because we know better how not to do it than any people on the top of God's green earth. [Laughter.] It is for the simple reason that the Committee on Interstate Commerce has no time that I did not undertake to have that committee charged with the grave and responsible duty of looking into these questions that are disputed by some.

Here is another item [exhibiting] that is clipped from the Post of yesterday—"Mr. Cassatt not afraid." Here is another one from the Philadelphia Inquirer, which I will read:

PITTSBURG, PA., February 10, 1906.

That rebates amounting in the aggregate to millions have been granted to the Standard Oil Company by the Pennsylvania lines, and that small feeder lines have been frozen out by unjust discrimination in rates and unfair distribution of cars, are facts which it is said to-night have been gathered from the records and accounts opened to President Roosevelt's agents who are at work here.

Why does the President's agent take so long when the facts are so clear and so plain? The Northern Securities business was a very simple process. Only $30,000 were paid into the receiving company. Thirty thousand dollars in cash was advanced, and with that $30,000 as a basis they issued $400,000,000 worth of stock, and with that $400,000,000 of stock they went about to the various railroads which they wanted to consolidate, and said: "Here, we will take your road and we will give you so much of the holding company's stock;" and they said to others they could get so much stock, and so on, and so on. Then the Government took a hand in the matter, and under the leadership and legal attainments of our friend from Pennsylvania [Mr. KNOX] they won. But who denies the fact that the New York Central and the Pennsylvania in conjunction own or control lines that do own a controlling interest in nearly every railroad east of the Mississippi River? The President knows it; or, if he does not, there is no use of the Interstate Commerce Commission to report it for they have it there practically; and here you go.

The President knows these things, and his Attorney-General sits down and sends his agent to Harrisburg, which used to be a cesspool of rottenness, but it is getting quite respectable and decent now. We may then hope that in about five or ten years from now there will be enough facts gotten upon which to base a lawsuit to stop some of these combinations; yet the country is led to believe religiously that they have no protector, no hope, no chance to get redress, and no opportunity, unless they cling to the coat tails of the President and follow him blindly. I would rather have a little more action and less profession. I would like to have some overt act and honest effort to show that these illegal combinations were broken up or tried to be broken up.

We had a spectacle once, not very many years back—and I alluded to it in the Senate on a previous occasion—of the Attorney-General, Mr. Griggs, of New Jersey, retiring from the office of Attorney-General, going to his home, and immediately taking the case of the Northern Securities Company against the United States, against Attorney-General KNOX, who was then in office. It was another case of archangels like that described by Byron in The Vision of Judgment, where Michael and his former comrade, Satan, were brought to court as attorneys to try the case to see whether George III's soul should go to heaven or not.

> Yet still between his Darkness and his Brightness,
> There pass'd a mutual glance of great politeness.

[Laughter.]

So we have it. The Attorney-General and the ex-Attorney-General—the present Attorney-General so far has not been engaged by any railroad that I know of that is fighting the Government—I mean our friend the Senator over there who used to be in that office. And Mr. Moody—I have nothing in criticism in him. I am just watching him and praying that he will not take always to examine before he will bring some suits upon the evidence already in his possession and easily accessible to him if he had any honest purpose of trying to accomplish anything in regard to the rebate business.

I want to recall a little transaction a very short while back in which a member of the Cabinet was brought to book in a case before the Interstate Commerce Commission for granting rebates. I find "In the matter of the Transportation of Dressed Meats and Packing-House Products," before the Interstate Commerce Commission, this testimony:

Mr. DAY. Mr. Morton, the Commission wants to know the concessions that have been made during the past year; take the year 1901, or the last part of it, or eight months of the year; what concessions have been made from the established tariffs in the transportation of packing-house products and dressed beef or dressed meats by your road?

Mr. MORTON. We have carried the business from Kansas City to Chicago for 5 cents less than the published tariff to Chicago and Chicago Junction points.

Mr. DAY. Domestic as well as export?

Mr. MORTON. Both.

Mr. DAY. How long have you been doing that?

Mr. MORTON. We did it, I think, about April 1; we commenced to do it from the beginning of the year, at which time there was a general declaration of good faith and intention of an absolute maintenance of rates. We maintained the rate until April 1. We carried, I think, about 2 per cent of the business from Kansas City to Chicago. We bring into Kansas City about 33⅓ per cent of all the live stock brought in there.

Commissioner FIFER. What per cent?

Mr. MORTON. About 33⅓; and we were not satisfied with the proportion of the product that we were getting out. I do not know that rates were being cut via Chicago or via St. Louis, but we do know that we were confronted with a condition, not a theory, and we could not get any business unless we met the conditions, which we did. We told one of the largest shippers in Kansas City that if they would come and ship with us we would give them 5 cents reduction from the tariff, and in order to get them we had to promise to do it for a year—I think until the 1st of July of this year, 1902. Ordinarily on tariff rates we ought to carry 20 to 25 per cent of the business from Kansas City, where the rates are equal by all lines. Our justification for taking this business was that we were carrying less than 10 per cent of what we thought we were fairly entitled to.

Then a little further on I find the following:

Mr. DAY. How was this traffic billed out?

Mr. MORTON. Billed on the tariff.

Mr. DAY. How was the adjustment made?

Mr. MORTON. By cash.

Mr. DAY. At the time?

Mr. MORTON. Later.

Mr. DAY. It was billed at the tariff and the tariff was collected?

Mr. MORTON. The tariff was collected.

Mr. DAY. Were there claims presented for settlement?

Mr. MORTON. Statements.

Mr. DAY. Presented to whom?

Mr. MORTON. To our freight department.

Mr. DAY. Approved there?

Mr. MORTON. Settled there.

Mr. DAY. They did not go through the auditing department?

Mr. MORTON. The vouchers went through the auditing department—many vouchers for specific accounts. These shippers that did not sign any vouchers—some settlements have been made through connecting lines.

Mr. DAY. Who were the settlements made with?

Mr. MORTON. The shipper.

Mr. DAY. Any more than one?

Mr. MORTON. Yes, sir.

Mr. DAY. Who were they?

Mr. MORTON. The packing-house owners. Do you want the names?

Mr. DAY. Yes, sir.

Mr. MORTON. The principal shipper was the S. & S. Company, but settlements have been made with other people shipping at the same time.

Mr. DAY. Made directly with the houses or through their agents?

Mr. MORTON. Through their agents that have charge of that particular branch of the business.

There is a confession of the then vice-president of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railroad Company that he paid rebates contrary to law; and then when in another case, the Coal Company case, proceedings were had before the Interstate Commerce Commission and the facts were brought out that the railroad had granted rebates contrary to an injunction, evidence was produced before the Interstate Commerce Commission that the managers of the road had undoubtedly granted more rebates in spite of the injunction. I called for the papers here by resolution six weeks ago. They came here and the complicated doubled and twisted methods of getting around the law necessitated photolithographs, so that they have not come in from the Printing Department yet. It takes a long time to get anything that exposes any of these people high up. It may be we will get them after a while. I hope so, or else I hope the Senate will go after those people with a stick and make them come to time.

But, I assert, whatever may have been the innocence of Mr. Morton, the evidence that the traffic manager or the men in authority had granted rebates in spite of the injunction, is not disputable, and that is a queer railroad which has a vice-president or other man in authority who has things going on in his road and in its management which are unlawful and contrary to his orders without his knowing it.

Messrs. Harmon and Judson were invited by the Government to take the case and prosecute it. They found they could not get the testimony upon which to convict without getting out proceedings in contempt. When they asked the Attorney-General for authority to go after the head man or head men of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe, they were told, "No evidence whatever exists of the guilt of the Secretary of the Navy, Mr. Morton. Therefore you can not enter that proceeding. You must stop where you are." The attorneys resigned. They found that the prosecution was not made in good faith, and that the Department of Justice was only honeyfuggling with the public. Therefore the thing dropped, and Mr. Morton, having resigned from the Navy, with the confession of rebates on him, made by his own mouth, and the proof hanging over him, if it had been allowed to be brought out, that he had disobeyed the injunction of the court, is promoted and made head of the great insurance organization in New York, which has been the stamping ground for as dirty a lot of thieves as ever walked God's green earth.

They took a man with this nice clean record and put him in charge of these hundreds of millions, which are the savings, so to speak, of the widows and orphans who are beneficiaries of policies in that insurance company. Yet here we go. The White House is immaculate. Nobody doubts, at least I do not doubt, Theodore Roosevelt's purpose and integrity and patriotism. As I stated the other day, he is monstrously persuaded by some people who get around him and honeyfugle him with flattery. I am afraid it is true. I do not know what their methods are. Whatever the methods may be, he stands by his friends. He gave Morton a certificate of good character, and so on.

Here is another phase of the subject which will be the final scene in this comedy, as I have tried to depict it; a sort of a tragedy, too. I find in the Post of February 10 this dispatch from New York:

[Special to the Washington Post.]

NEW YORK, February 9, 1906.

It is practically certain that an effort will be made to indict Judge Andrew Hamilton on a charge which will permit of his being extradited from France. It was learned on good authority to-day that Attorney-General Julius Mayer believes action can be taken against Hamilton on the facts contained in the report of the Fowler investigation committee, and that the State authorities will have to act in the event of nothing being done by District Attorney Jerome.

Mr. Jerome left town for Lakewood, Conn., this afternoon, to be gone until Monday. He refused to say anything about insurance affairs. Attorney-General Mayer has taken the stand all along that it is Mr. Jerome's duty as prosecuting officer of the county to handle the criminal end of the insurance scandal without any interference by the State authorities, and it was said to-day that that is the attitude which the attorney-general's office takes in the matter.

WITHIN GOVERNOR'S POWER.

It is possible, however, for the governor, acting on the advice of the attorney-general, at any time to issue instructions for the impaneling of a special grand jury to hear evidence on a criminal charge.

Of the findings against Hamilton by the Fowler committee, this one attracted special attention to-day:

"No other conclusion would seem to be permissible than that Hamilton used for his own purposes $75,000 of the proceeds of the check of June 6, 1904, delivered to him for the purpose of paying the State tax."

Attorney-General Mayer expressed his opinion of the Fowler committee report to-day. He said: "After studying the legal propositions involved I am convinced that the courts will hold that payment of political contributions was unauthorized and in violation of law."

IN THE SAME CATEGORY.

"Do you place legal expenses for which no satisfactory accounting has been rendered in the same category with political contributions?"

"Yes," was the attorney-general's reply.

When Mr. Mayer referred to the payment of political contributions as being in violation of the law, he meant the civil, not the criminal, law.

The attorney-general's attitude in this matter means that John A. McCall will probably be held liable for the $148,000 which the New York Life contributed to the Republican national committee under his instructions, and also for any other campaign contributions that may be turned up by the Fowler investigating committee as having been authorized by President McCall.

Right in the same paper, as illustrating the progress of events, we find this:

The President entertained the executive committee and officers of the Republican national committee at dinner last evening. Those present were Mr. George B. Cortelyou, Mr. Harry S. New, Mr. Cornelius N. Bliss, Mr. N. B. SCOTT, Mr. Franklin Murphy, Mr. Charles F. Brooker, Mr. William L. Ward, Mr. R. B. Schneider, Mr. D. W. Mulvane, Mr. George A. Knight, Mr. Elmer Dover, Mr. J. A. TAWNEY, Mr. F. H. Hitchcock, Mr. William F. Stone, Mr. Charles H. Duell, and Mr. L. A. Coolidge.

The President has been elected nearly a year and a half, and never has it been found necessary or desirable to bring these friends of his—these true and tried lieutenants and counselors in his last race for the Presidency—to dine with him. The inevitable conclusion, in my mind—at least it ought to be, if it is not—is that these people were brought together to confer how the money could be raised to help poor old McCall out of the bog into which he has sunk and refund the $148,000 which he stole from the policy holders of the insurance company and contributed to the campaign fund of the national Republican committee. I do not know that it was mentioned. If not, more's the pity, for surely this man McCall is not going to be left in the lurch and run the risk of bankruptcy or being sent to the penitentiary because of the fact that his love for the Republican party got him into this trouble.

The other day somebody here made comparison between Andrew Jackson and President Roosevelt. Let us look at it. Andrew Jackson never put Nicholas Biddle in his Cabinet. In his fight against the money power he fought to the bitter end. He used no blandishments; he used a bludgeon. President Roosevelt had no need for any campaign fund, but his lieutenants did. Mr. Bliss collected it; Mr. Cortelyou spent it. Mr. Cortelyou is in the Cabinet, and, as I said, the trusted friend and attorney of the money power in New York, Mr. Elihu Root, is in the Cabinet. I acknowledge he is a very bright and great man. I have nothing to say against him personally, for I admire him; but Andrew Jackson never would have taken as a Cabinet officer a man so closely allied with Nicholas Biddle in the United States Bank.

So we have a condition in this country to-day which should give every thoughtful man pause, to see whether or not it is possible that Senators have the saving grace and patriotism and regard for their obligations of office, the oaths they took, to take up and consider all these questions relating to the public welfare, this railway rate business, this railway discrimination business, this railway monopoly business, this destruction of private property without due process of law, simply by denying the right to ship coal and all that kind of thing. I say we need an investigation. We want the facts. We want the Interstate Commerce Committee to do the best it can with the bill now before it. I am ready. We have agreed among ourselves to bring it in next Friday, or to bring in something, so that the discussion here on the floor may proceed along the line of enlightenment for the people of the country and Senators who are not on the committee as to what is in the bill and what is not. I would rather keep it in committee until we get the facts from the Interstate Commerce Commission, upon which we could base an amendment to prevent public carriers from owning any coal or other product which is to be shipped over their lines, thus relieving us from this infernal monopoly which now oppresses the lifeblood out of Pennsylvania in the anthracite regions and is seizing upon the bituminous regions of Pennsylvania and West Virginia and the Atlantic seaboard generally, by which the people are held up and compelled to pay from $1 to $2 a ton more than is a just compensation for their coal, in order to put more millions, and stolen millions, in the pockets of Cassatt and his allies.

Mr. ELKINS. Mr. President, I have no purpose to discuss the joint resolution which has been reported by the Senator from South Carolina [Mr. TILLMAN] from the Interstate Commerce Committee, of which I am chairman. I voted to report the joint resolution and will vote for it in the Senate. My purpose is to bring to the attention of the Senate the statutes of the State of West Virginia on the subject of compelling railroads to connect, and to correct the misapprehension in the mind of the Senator from South Carolina, and possibly in the minds of others, as to the laws of West Virginia. The question raised by the Senator's remarks was whether there is adequate law in the State to correct an abuse complained of there arising out of the refusal of a railroad to make a connection with a lateral or branch line. I stated there was a law on the subject, and the only purpose I have at this time is to relieve the people of West Virginia and the State from the charge made by the Senator from South Carolina, if I may use that word, of being in disgrace because we have no proper law to compel a connection between railroads. The Senator from South Carolina said in his remarks a few days since:

In the first place, I want to remark that the relief sought here would appear to be obtainable under State law, and if there be none, then West Virginia stands disgraced because she has not enacted such a law.

As soon as I heard that remark, I interrupted the Senator to state that there was a law to compel the connection of railroads.

The Senator also referred to the circumstance in his remarks on the 8th instant, and substantially repeated what he said, and offered a letter from the governor of West Virginia, who stated, referring to the Senator from South Carolina—I will use his language—

You are nearer right than Senator ELKINS.

Mr. President, in order that there may be no doubt on this question and in order to properly defend my State and her people from the charge of disgrace, I wish to read and have appear in the RECORD the statute of the State of West Virginia on the subject of compelling connections between railroads. I read from the Code of West Virginia, chapter 54, page 573:

50. Every corporation formed under this chapter shall, in addition to the powers hereinbefore conferred, have power:

* * * * * * *

Seventh. To cross at grade, or to cross over or under, intersect, join, and unite its railroad with any other railroad now built and constructed, or hereafter to be built and constructed, within this State, at any point on its route, and upon the grounds of such other railroad company, with the necessary turnouts, sidings, and switches and other conveniences in furtherance of the object of its connections, and every corporation whose railroad is, or shall be hereafter, intersected by any new railroad shall unite with the corporation owning such new railroad in forming such intersection and connections and grant the facilities aforesaid; and if the two corporations can not agree upon the amount of compensation to be made therefor, or the points and manner of such crossing and connections, the same shall be ascertained and determined in the manner prescribed by section 48 of this chapter.

I can not conceive of language being broader or of a remedy being more perfect to obtain a connection than the statutes of West Virginia afford.

I have no purpose to enter into any discussion of the question raised by the Senator, or of abuses alleged to have been committee by the railroads in West Virginia. I hope the joint resolution before the Senate will pass. I simply wish to say to the Senate and to put on record the fact that the laws of West Virginia afford a remedy in the case complained of, and the State is not in disgrace because of any supposed failure to enact proper laws. I believe the laws of West Virginia are about as stringent on the question of railroads and their operation as those of most of the States in the Union.

The people of West Virginia, which I am proud in part to represent on this floor, would hardly forgive the Senators if they should fail to resent a charge of the State being in disgrace coming from any source for any reason whatever. My contention is that our legislature under the section just quoted has provided a proper remedy to compel railroad connections. Why this remedy was not resorted to by the parties in interest I can not say. I suppose they had good reasons for not doing so.

Mr. NEWLANDS. In connection with the able speech of the Senator from Massachusetts [Mr. LODGE] I ask to have inserted in the RECORD certain extracts from an article written by Mr. William Z. Ripley, professor of economics, Harvard University——

Mr. KEAN. All of that is probably contained in the testimony taken before the Interstate Commerce Committee last summer.

Mr. NEWLANDS. Does the Senator state that this article appears in the report of those hearings?

Mr. KEAN. I do not know about that, but Mr. Ripley told nearly everything he knew, and more too, I think, before the committee; I think the request to print had better be looked into.

Mr. NEWLANDS. I ask that certain extracts from this article be printed in the RECORD. I will not ask to have them read.

Mr. ALDRICH. I do not object to their being printed as a document, but I do object to anything being published in the RECORD unless it is read.

Mr. NEWLANDS. Then I will ask to have it read. I will ask the Secretary to read the part marked, extending from pages 3 to 15.

Mr. ALDRICH. I recollect the article very well; it has some statements in it which I think would be enlightening; and I should be very glad to have the whole article read if any part of it is read.

Mr. NEWLANDS. It is entitled—

CHANGES IN RAILROAD CONDITIONS SINCE 1887.

The increased value of railroads as investments; widespread consolidations, direct and indirect, which obliterate competition, and the increase of rates as a tax on the business of the country; the necessity of regulation. By William Z. Ripley, professor of economics in Harvard University, expert on railroads for the United States Industrial Commission, 1900, and author of its final report on transportation.

I understand the Senator from Rhode Island wishes the entire article read, and I send it to the desk for that purpose.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Rhode Island requests that the entire article be read if any part of it is read.

Mr. ALDRICH. If any part of it is to be read, I suggested that the entire article be read.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Rhode Island suggests that if any part of the article is to be read, the entire article should be read. Is there objection to its being read? The Chair hears none. The Secretary will read as requested.

Mr. SPOONER. Does that embrace the entire pamphlet?

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The entire pamphlet.

Mr. SPOONER. Every man has read it, and I object to thus consuming the time of the Senate. I want to make a little speech on the subsidy bill to-morrow or some other time.

Mr. KEAN. Does the Senator from Wisconsin wish to go on to-night? If not, I would like to move an executive session.

Mr. SPOONER. No; I do not want to go on to-day.

Mr. TILLMAN. I hope——

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Wisconsin objects to the reading of the pamphlet.

Mr. SPOONER. Yes; I object.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The question then must be determined by the Senate without debate. Shall the article be read? [Putting the question.] The "noes" have it.

Mr. NEWLANDS. Mr. President——

Mr. KEAN. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. TILLMAN. I hope the Senator will let the joint resolution be passed.

Mr. KEAN. I beg the Senator's pardon. I thought the joint resolution had been passed.

Mr. TILLMAN. No.

Mr. KEAN. I make no question on it.

Mr. NEWLANDS. Mr. President, I think I have the floor.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Nevada has the floor except as against the motion to proceed to the consideration of executive business.

Mr. KEAN. I withdraw the motion.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from New Jersey having withdrawn his motion to proceed to the consideration of executive business, the Senator from Nevada is entitled to the floor.

Mr. NEWLANDS. I will not insist upon the reading at present, if it will interfere with the passage of the joint resolution of the Senator from South Carolina.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. Does the Senator withdraw his request?

Mr. NEWLANDS. I do.

The VICE-PRESIDENT. The Senator from Nevada withdraws his request. The joint resolution is in the Senate as in Committee of the Whole. If there be no amendment, the joint resolution will be reported to the Senate.

The joint resolution was reported to the Senate without amendment, ordered to be engrossed for a third reading, read the third time, and passed.

The preamble was agreed to.

EXECUTIVE SESSION.

Mr. KEAN. I move that the Senate proceed to the consideration of executive business.

The motion was agreed to; and the Senate proceeded to the consideration of executive business. After ten minutes spent in executive session the doors were reopened and (at 4 o'clock and 40 minutes p. m.) the Senate adjourned until to-morrow, Tuesday, February 13, 1906, at 12 o'clock meridian.

ADJUSTMENT OF TITLE TO ISLE OF PINES.

The injunction of secrecy was removed February 12, 1906, from Confidential Executive Report No. 1, Fifty-ninth Congress, first session, "Adjustment of title to Isle of Pines."

On motion of Mr. MORGAN, it was Ordered, That 500 additional copies of Confidential Executive Report No. 1, Fifty-ninth Congress, first session, "Adjustment of title to Isle of Pines," with views of the minority, be printed for the use of the Senate.

NOMINATIONS.

Executive nominations received by the Senate February 12, 1906.

COLLECTORS OF CUSTOMS.

George W. Gardiner, of Rhode Island, to be collector of customs for the district of Providence, in the State of Rhode Island, in place of Ellery H. Wilson, deceased.

Frederick O. Murray, of New York, to be collector of customs for the district of Buffalo Creek, in the State of New York, to succeed Henry W. Brendel, whose term of office has expired by limitation.

Howard S. Nyman, of the District of Columbia, to be collector of customs for the district of Georgetown, in the District of Columbia. (Reappointment.)

PENSION AGENTS.

St. Clair A. Mulholland, of Pennsylvania, to be pension agent at Philadelphia, Pa., to take effect March 9, 1906, at the expiration of his present term. (Reappointment.)

Charles A. Orr, of New York, to be pension agent at Buffalo, N. Y., his term having expired January 13, 1906. (Reappointment.)

RECEIVER OF PUBLIC MONEY.

Will M. Gifford, of Nebraska, to be receiver of public moneys at Lincoln, Nebr., vice Alva E. Kennard, term expired.

REGISTERS OF LAND OFFICES.

Charles F. Shedd, of Nebraska, to be register of the land office at Lincoln, Nebr., vice William A. Green, term expired.

George W. Stewart, of California, to be register of the land office at Visalia, Cal., to take effect March 5, 1906, when his term expires. (Reappointment.)

PROMOTIONS IN THE NAVY.

Lieut. Clarence M. Stone to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 28th day of June, 1905, vice Lieut. Commander Victor Blue, an additional number in grade.

Lieut. Douglas E. Dismukes to be a lieutenant-commander in the Navy from the 1st day of July, 1905, vice Lieut. Commander James E. Palmer, retired.

PROMOTIONS IN THE ARMY.

Lieut. Col. Sedgwick Pratt, Artillery Corps (detailed inspector-general), to be colonel from February 9, 1906, vice Thorp, retired from active service.

POSTMASTERS.

ALABAMA.

Albert N. Holland to be postmaster at Scottsboro, in the county of Jackson and State of Alabama, in place of Albert N. Holland. Incumbent's commission expired January 20, 1906.

ARKANSAS.

Joseph E. Dougherty to be postmaster at Russellville, in the county of Pope and State of Arkansas, in place of Samuel Davis. Incumbent's commission expired January 16, 1906.

CALIFORNIA.

Robert J. Nixon to be postmaster at Yreka, in the county of Siskiyou and State of California, in place of Robert J. Nixon. Incumbent's commission expires February 28, 1906.

Frank L. Powell to be postmaster at Lemoore, in the county of Kings and State of California, in place of Frank L. Powell. Incumbent's commission expires February 28, 1906.

COLORADO.

Daniel E. Cooper to be postmaster at Lamar, in the county of Prowers and State of Colorado, in place of Daniel E. Cooper. Incumbent's commission expired January 20, 1906.

Wesley H. Ogle to be postmaster at Lake City, in the county of Hinsdale and State of Colorado, in place of Wesley H. Ogle. Incumbent's commission expired January 20, 1906.

FLORIDA.

John C. Stowers to be postmaster at West Palmbeach, in the county of Dade and State of Florida, in place of John C. Stowers. Incumbent's commission expired February 10, 1906.

IDAHO.

Ed F. Winn to be postmaster at Idaho Falls, in the county of Bingham and State of Idaho, in place of Ed F. Winn. Incumbent's commission expired January 21, 1906.

ILLINOIS.

William G. Baie to be postmaster at Hinckley, in the county of Dekalb and State of Illinois, in place of William G. Baie. Incumbent's commission expired February 5, 1906.

Cornelius T. Beekman to be postmaster at Petersburg, in the county of Menard and State of Illinois, in place of Cornelius T. Beekman. Incumbent's commission expired February 5, 1906.

L. A. Constantine to be postmaster at Aurora, in the county of Kane and State of Illinois, in place of L. A. Constantine. Incumbent's commission expired February 5, 1906.

